

WorldCourts™

Institution:	Inter-American Commission on Human Rights
Title/Style of Cause:	Agustin Jarquin Anaya, Rafael Cordoba Alvarez and Eddy Stubbs Guillen v. Nicaragua
Doc. Type:	Decision on Precautionary Measures
Dated:	12 February 1999
Citation:	Anaya v. Nicaragua, Inter-Am. C.H.R., OEA/Ser.L/V/II.106, doc. 6 rev., Ch. III, para. 46 (1999)
Terms of Use:	Your use of this document constitutes your consent to the Terms and Conditions found at www.worldcourts.com/index/eng/terms.htm

46. On February 12, 1999, the Commission granted precautionary measures and required the State of Nicaragua to adopt measures to protect the lives and physical integrity of Mr. Agustín Jarquín Anaya, and Messrs. Rafael Córdoba Alvarez and Eddy Stubbs Guillén. According to the information presented, the threats against Comptroller Joaquín Anaya were proffered by the President, Dr. Arnoldo Alemán, and were related to the activities undertaken by the victims in the performance of their professional duties in the General Department for Integrity in Public Service of the Office of the Comptroller-General of the Republic. On February 23, 1999, the State transmitted to the Commission its observations in which it denied, firstly, that President Arnoldo Alemán Lacayo had threatened any public official. The Government also declared that, in keeping with the measures requested, the protection and personal security of the persons in question had been increased, including, in the case of Mr. Anaya, a personal escort service comprised of five persons; protection of his residence and place of work by a uniformed policeman 24 hours a day; and a telephone communications monitoring service, by the Department of Investigation of Personal Security Matters in coordination with the Department of Criminal Investigation of the National Police, to process information and investigate threats made against him. Pursuant to that response, the parties continued presenting information and observations in relation to these measures.