57. On February 7, 2001, the Commission granted precautionary measures on behalf of journalist Pablo López Ulacio, director of the weekly “La Razón”. The Commission indicated that Mr. López Ulacio “is at grave risk and requested that the affronts on the journalist’s freedom of expression be stopped and, as a result, that the censorship measures against him be lifted, including those on La Razón.” The parties have provided information to the Commission on those precautionary measures.
