Trial Chamber II ("Trial Chamber" or "Chamber") of the International Criminal Court ("Court"), in the case of The Prosecutor v. Germain Katanga and Mathieu Ngudjolo Chui, in accordance with Regulation 37(2) of the Regulations of the Court ("Regulations"), issues the following decision.

1. During the status conference held on 2 October 2009, the Chamber requested that the Defence submit specific, written applications on questions relating to the admissibility of evidence.<sup>1</sup>
2. On 19 October 2009, the Defence for Mathieu Ngudjolo filed an urgent request seeking the extension of the page limit for its forthcoming application concerning the admissibility of evidence relating to deceased witnesses.<sup>2</sup>
3. The Chamber, by its decision of 21 October 2009<sup>3</sup>, authorised this request for the extension of page limit, pursuant to regulation 37(2) of the Regulations, granting permission to file an application comprising 40 pages.<sup>4</sup>
4. The same day, the Defence for Germain Katanga ("Defence") also filed an urgent request for an extension of page limit<sup>5</sup> pursuant to regulation 37(2) of the Regulations for its submissions on issues relating to the admissibility of evidence. It argues that exceptional circumstances exist that justify an extension of the page limit applicable to ordinary filings, given the complexity, novelty and depth of the factual and legal analysis required to set out its argument in full.<sup>6</sup> As the Chamber requested detailed written submissions on the issues of admissibility, the Defence seeks to submit its observations on a number of matters pertaining to the admissibility of evidence within the case, both of general and specific character.<sup>7</sup> Thus, instead of filing a number of separate applications, the Defence requests the Chamber to be granted an extension of page limit so as to be able to present its arguments in one consolidated filing comprising 60 pages.<sup>8</sup>

5. As the Chamber has held on previous occasions,<sup>9</sup> it is vital that the parties be given the opportunity to fully develop their arguments, especially where, at the request of the Chamber, a number of complex procedural matters are being addressed. It is important that the Defence has the fullest possible opportunity to raise all issues of admissibility that can be addressed before the commencement of the hearings on the merits as exhaustively as possible. Therefore, the Chamber considers that the nature of this filing does indeed require that the page limit be extended to the requested 60 pages.
