"Prudence" marked on its surface.¹³¹⁰⁶ She was able to describe the dimensions of the boxes as well, comparing them to the screen before her during her testimony at trial.¹³¹⁰⁷

4967. The witness also provided detailed excerpts of what was said by the relevant actors at this point. She stated that Ndindabahizi gave the first box to her female neighbour and said, "[g]ive this to our young Interakamwe for them to use when they rape the Tutsi, so that they are not contaminated with HIV or AIDS."¹³¹⁰⁸ The Chamber notes that Witness FAE provided inconsistent testimony as to who gave the second box of condoms to the woman. Initially she said that Sibomana, who was sitting next to Nyiramasuhuko in the back seat of the car, handed Nyiramasuhuko a box which she gave to the woman.¹³¹⁰⁹ Nyiramasuhuko then said: "Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands."¹³¹¹⁰ Witness FAE stated that she could hear these words clearly because the vehicle in which Nyiramasuhuko sat was located close to the window through which she was watching the events unfold.¹³¹¹¹ The witness also testified that Nyiramasuhuko gave the box to Sibomana, who in turn gave the box through the window to the woman.¹³¹¹² Witness FAE then reiterated that Nyiramasuhuko handed the box to the lady, explaining that she could see that the sleeves of Nyiramasuhuko's shirt were rolled up when she handed the box through the window.¹³¹¹³

4968. The Chamber notes inconsistencies between Witness FAE's prior statement and her testimony at trial. The prior statement declared that Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the front of the car with a gun between her legs.¹³¹¹⁴ However, she did not describe the presence of a gun at any point in her testimony. The witness responded that she merely answered questions posed by the Prosecution and did not improvise or pre-empt with information that was not specifically requested.¹³¹¹⁵ Witness FAE's statement and testimony were also inconsistent as to the order of seating in the vehicle among the passengers. In her prior statement, Witness FAE stated that Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the front of the vehicle.¹³¹¹⁶ However, in her testimony, she said Nyiramasuhuko was seated in the back.¹³¹¹⁷ She justified this discrepancy by offering an explanation as to the dynamics of a double-cabin vehicle of this type. She claimed that the front part of the vehicle encompasses a cabin and the back is the bed of the truck, in which no one sits. Nyiramasuhuko was sitting in the back seat of the front cabin of the vehicle.¹³¹¹⁸

4969. The witness explained that the inconsistencies occurred because of her inability to master the French language, which also prevented her from correcting the inconsistencies at the time.¹³¹¹⁹ She asserted that she gave this prior statement in French without an interpreter present, which accounted for these discrepancies.¹³¹²⁰ The Chamber accepts Witness FAE's explanation with regard to the aforementioned discrepancies, which the Chamber does not consider, in any case, to be material.

4971. Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN all denied that Nyiramasuhuko was present during this time in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur.¹³¹²² Witness MNW lived at the crossroads and so would have seen any vehicle that would have passed during that time.¹³¹²³ However, Witness MNW's theory as to why Nyiramasuhuko did not visit the secteur in June 1994 is based on the fact that she did not hear about it from others or her husband's boss.¹³¹²⁴ She had a "drinking joint" in her house and claimed that if Nyiramasuhuko had come or said these things, she would have heard about it from her patrons.¹³¹²⁵ However, Witness MNW conceded that the bar she operated was closed from the first few days of June 1994 for the rest of the month due to lack of supplies.¹³¹²⁶

4972. The Chamber therefore considers that the testimony of Witness MNW in this regard is of limited value. Not only is the witness unreliable in terms of Nyiramasuhuko's whereabouts during that period, but she did not demonstrate first-hand knowledge of the situation.

4973. Witness WZNA stated that his friend Sibomana, who according to Witness FAE was in the vehicle with Nyiramasuhuko on that day, would have told him about delivering condoms in the presence of Nyiramasuhuko. This would have been an unusual turn of events, considering that he was in the company of a minister.¹³¹²⁷ Witness WZNA also claimed to have seen Witness FAE and her children in their house in June 1994.¹³¹²⁸ The witness based his conclusion that Nyiramasuhuko was not present at that time and did not distribute condoms, on the fact that Sibomana did not inform him of its occurrence. His evidence in this regard is neither compelling nor conclusive.

4974. Witness WNMN was a native of Mpare secteur, but lived with his sister in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur while he was teaching.¹³¹²⁹ In 1994, the academic year did not follow the normal timetable due to the war.¹³¹³⁰ He testified that after the Easter holidays, classes resumed during the first two weeks of the month of May 1994, and he taught for about two weeks and three or five days.¹³¹³¹ During this time, the witness went to his sister's house each day as the road to his school passed in front of her house.¹³¹³² He would go from his parents' house in Mpare secteur.¹³¹³³ The witness averred that after this period, he saw refugees coming in from other communes and the school was forced to shut down because there were too many refugees. After the classes stopped he went home to his parents' house.¹³¹³⁴ He also stated that he met Witness FAE at his sister's home towards the end of June 1994, when he spent four days there.¹³¹³⁵ The Chamber notes that Witness WNMN was not present in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur during the time of this incident, as he claimed to have been at his parents' house.¹³¹³⁶ He may have visited Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, but these visits may have been sporadic. Therefore Witness WNMN would not have been in a position to provide eyewitness testimony or direct knowledge of the whereabouts of Nyiramasuhuko.

4975. Each of the Defence witnesses provided their own hypotheses as to why Nyiramasuhuko could not have possibly distributed condoms and ordered rapes. Witness MNW initially testified that she had not heard any news of condom distribution in her secteur, which she claimed she was in a prime position to hear because of the bar in her house.¹³¹³⁷ Under cross-examination, it arose that Witness MNW had heard people talk about condoms and had even seen pictures of condoms.¹³¹³⁸ However, she did not elaborate as to whether the condoms she had heard of were linked back to Nyiramasuhuko. On the contrary, she claimed that this allegation against Nyiramasuhuko was untrue because as a mother, a married Rwandan woman, and a Minister of a high post, Nyiramasuhuko would not risk distributing condoms for fear of being labelled an "uneducated person".¹³¹³⁹

4976. Witness WZNA stated that, due to her ministerial position, Nyiramasuhuko would not have had the time to complete such tasks.¹³¹⁴⁰ However, Witness WNMN recognised that he was not in a position to report as to Nyiramasuhuko's actions or words from April to 4 July 1994.¹³¹⁴¹

4977. Defence Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN testified as to when they saw Witness FAE between April and June 1994. Witness MNW stated that she did not see Witness FAE in June 1994.¹³¹⁴² Witness WZNA testified that between April and July 1994 he visited Witness

FAE's house on multiple occasions and confirmed that both Witness FAE and her children were inside the house on these occasions.¹³¹⁴³ Witness WNMN stated that he saw Witness FAE twice in May 1994 and again towards the end of June 1994, at his sister's home.¹³¹⁴⁴ The Defence witnesses are not consistent as to when they saw Witness FAE. However, the Chamber notes that they may have seen her at different times and on different occasions. Witness FAE testified that she was only away from her house from 23 April 1994 to early June 1994.¹³¹⁴⁵ Nonetheless, the Chamber finds it unbelievable that during that time, Witness FAE would be openly at home with her children or that she would be visiting Witness WNMN's sister, who was a Hutu. Witness FAE testified that between April and July 1994, Tutsis were being pursued and she was hiding in various locations.¹³¹⁴⁶ The Chamber therefore finds Witnesses WZNA and WNMN not credible on this point.

4978. Nyiramasuhuko admitted she knew Witness FAE, but testified that the present allegation was implausible.¹³¹⁴⁷ She would not have sat in a vehicle along with Doctor Ndindabahizi, the leader of the PSD Party in Butare, and would not have gone with him to distribute condoms.¹³¹⁴⁸

4979. The Chamber notes that Defence Witnesses MNW, WZNA and WNMN all provided hearsay accounts as to why the allegation is implausible, without any convincing and detailed analyses. Indeed, among the Defence witnesses there are inconsistencies as to when they saw Witness FAE. Witness MNW testified that she did not see Witness FAE in June 1994, whereas Witnesses WZNA and WNMN both testified as to seeing Witness FAE in June 1994.¹³¹⁴⁹ The Chamber considers it impossible to rely on these witnesses to establish that Witness FAE was not in the area in June 1994 or that Nyiramasuhuko did not visit the area at that time.

4981. Prosecution Witness FAE was asked during cross-examination whether the survivors association that she belonged to had a custom of character destruction. She responded: "We are telling you what we saw and we are telling you about things that we heard with our own ears."¹³¹⁵¹ When asked whether they denounced people in order to be requited with scholarships for their children, she responded that she, and no one else, paid for her children's studies.¹³¹⁵²

¹³¹⁵² T. 18 March 2004 pp. 59-60 (ICS) (Witness FAE).

4982. Taking into account the foregoing, the Chamber finds that Witness WNMN's assertions about Witness FAE were not sufficiently credible or convincing to undermine the veracity of Witness FAE's testimony under oath.

4984. The Chamber recalls Nyiramasuhuko's alibi evidence for early June 1994 (3.6.19.3.2.1). The Chamber has considered this evidence with regard to the present allegation and finds that the Prosecution has discharged its burden of proof. Regardless of whether Nyiramasuhuko was staying in Murambi, Gitarama préfecture, from 12 April to 5 June 1994, the short distance between Butare and Murambi would have permitted Nyiramasuhuko to be present in Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, for the distribution of condoms at this time (3.6.19.4.1). The Chamber notes that the analysis regarding Nyiramasuhuko's other alibi evidence in relation to June 1994, is equally relevant to this allegation (3.6.19.4.1). Therefore, Nyiramasuhuko's alibi evidence does not raise a reasonable doubt that she was present at Cyarwa-Sumo secteur in early June 1994.

4985. The Chamber finds that the testimony of Prosecution Witness FAE, provides sufficient and unchallenged detail so as to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the allegation that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. The Chamber further finds that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the woman to whom she distributed the condoms to "[g]o and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands."

3.6.48 Rango Forest, June 1994

3.6.48.1 Introduction

4986. The Kanyabashi Indictment and the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment allege that "around late April 1994," Kanyabashi, accompanied by certain members of the commune police, escorted two busloads of Tutsi refugees from the Butare préfecture office to Rango

¹³¹⁵³ T. 17 March 2004 pp. 74-75, 84-85; T. 18 March 2004 pp. 47-48, 50-51 (ICS) (Witness FAE).

Forest.¹³¹⁵⁴ The refugees were confined in an enclosure, deprived of food, beaten and some died.¹³¹⁵⁵

4987. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi accompanied the convoy of refugees to Rango Forest and upon arrival, he instructed Interahamwe to guard the Tutsi refugees and prevented them from leaving.¹³¹⁵⁶ Pits were dug and Kanyabashi told the refugees that they would be buried there on 5 July 1994.¹³¹⁵⁷ The Prosecution also alleges that refugees at Rango Forest were denied food, water or shelter and were beaten and raped.¹³¹⁵⁸ The survivors did not leave Rango Forest until they were freed by the RPF.¹³¹⁵⁹ In support of its submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Witnesses TA, FAP, RE, QBQ, QY, SD, SS, SU, SJ, QBP, TK and Expert Witness Alison Des Forges.

4988. Apart from the preliminary issues that will be addressed in the section below, the Kanyabashi Defence submits that the Prosecution evidence on this allegation was insufficiently precise to support a finding beyond a reasonable doubt.¹³¹⁶⁰ The Kanyabashi Defence bases its submission on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAP, QBP, RE, SD, SU, SS, TA, TK, Des Forges, Defence Witnesses D-1-4-O and WMKL, Nsabimana and Nteziryayo.¹³¹⁶¹

4989. The Kanyabashi Defence further submits that Kanyabashi accompanied the refugees to Rango Forest in order to ensure their safe passage and, once there, he requested that the refugees be protected.¹³¹⁶² In this regard, the Kanyabashi Defence contests the credibility of Prosecution Witnesses TA and FAP.¹³¹⁶³

4990. The Kanyabashi Defence also submits that while at Rango Forest the refugees were not detained or attacked, but "protected", and that Kanyabashi took care of them, acting in cooperation with religious and humanitarian organisations in order to improve their living conditions and keep them alive.¹³¹⁶⁴ The only holes dug were for latrines, for which disinfectant was provided, and the three deaths that occurred at Rango Forest were due to natural causes.¹³¹⁶⁵ In making its submissions, the Kanyabashi Defence relies upon the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses SJ, TA, FAP, SD, SU, RE, TK, SS, QBP, QBQ and QY, Defence Witnesses WMKL, D-1-4-O, D-2-10-Y and Nteziryayo.

¹³¹⁵⁴ The Chamber notes that the Prosecution, the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Defence, and their respective witnesses have referred to "Rango Forest", "Rango compound", and "Rango" interchangeably. For ease of reference, the Chamber will refer to "Rango Forest" throughout the Judgement.

4991. In addition to its preliminary issues on the vagueness of the Indictment, which will be addressed below, the Nsabimana Defence submits that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is vague and therefore the responsibility of Nsabimana cannot be assessed with regard to the events at Rango Forest.¹³¹⁶⁶

4992. The Nteziryayo Defence also submits that the factual allegation in relation to the "killing of the refugees at Rango" cannot be considered for the purposes of determining Nteziryayo's responsibility, since it falls outside the scope of the Indictment.¹³¹⁶⁷ Alternatively, it submits that the Prosecution witnesses who testified about the events at Rango Forest gave either contradictory or uncorroborated testimony. Although most of these witnesses testified that they left the BPO after Nteziryayo had been appointed préfet, they did not mention Nteziryayo as one of the persons who had authority during the period when they stayed at the BPO, nor did they testify as to any involvement by Nteziryayo with regards to the events at Rango Forest.¹³¹⁶⁸

3.6.48.2 Preliminary Issues

Kanyabashi Indictment

Vagueness of Paragraph 6.42

4993. The Kanyabashi Defence contends that Paragraph 6.42 of the Indictment does not adequately plead Article 6 (3) responsibility because it does not specify the involvement of Kanyabashi's subordinates, their identity, the acts allegedly committed or Kanyabashi's alleged knowledge in this regard.¹³¹⁶⁹

4994. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.42 of the Kanyabashi Indictment makes a general accusation that Kanyabashi was involved in the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest. The Indictment does not identify the role either Kanyabashi or his subordinates are alleged to have played in the transfer.

4995. The Chamber recalls that an indictment must be read as a whole (2.5.3). Thus, the allegation that in April 1994 Kanyabashi escorted Tutsi refugees to Rango Forest must be read in the wider context of the offences alleged in the Indictment against him. Kanyabashi was the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune in Butare préfecture from April 1974 until around 4 July 1994.¹³¹⁷⁰ A joint reading of Paragraphs 4.3 and 6.32 of the Kanyabashi Indictment indicate that Kanyabashi, in such capacity, exercised authority over his subordinates, notably conseillers de secteur and commune policemen. Paragraph 3.5 of the Kanyabashi Indictment clearly states that the bourgmestre represents the executive power at the commune level and has authority over the civil servants posted in his commune, in addition to policing duties in regard to maintaining order and law enforcement. More generally, Paragraph 1.29 of the Indictment sets out the role of local authorities, including bourgmestres, at the time of the alleged crimes; this included issuing directives in execution of the plan to exterminate the Tutsis; inciting and ordering their subordinates to perpetrate the massacres; and taking direct part in them.

4996. In light of a contextual and systematic reading of the Indictment, the Chamber considers that the allegation in Paragraph 6.42 of the Indictment, that Kanyabashi "accompanied by members of the communal police" escorted the Tutsi refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest, clearly refers to the involvement of Kanyabashi's subordinates in the transfer and to Kanyabashi's supervisory role in it. Accordingly, the Chamber finds the Indictment adequately pled Article 6 (3) responsibility in relation to Kanyabashi, with respect to the events at Rango Forest.

Time of the Transfer

4997. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Kanyabashi should be acquitted of the allegation concerning the transfer to Rango Forest, because this event took place at the end of June and not "around the end of April" as alleged in the Indictment.¹³¹⁷¹

4998. The Chamber reiterates that an indictment must be read as a whole (2.5.3). Furthermore, considering that the indictment cannot have the degree of specificity of the evidence underpinning it, if the evidence at trial does not conform to the indictment, the Chamber must determine whether a fair trial requires exclusion of evidence outside the scope of the indictment.¹³¹⁷² In this regard, the Appeals Chamber held that "in general, minor differences between the indictment and the evidence presented at trial are not such as to prevent the Trial Chamber from considering the indictment in the light of the evidence presented at trial".¹³¹⁷³ This is to be assessed on a case-by-case basis and taking into account the rights of the accused to be informed of the nature of the charges against him, which entails that he must be able to identify the criminal acts and conduct alleged in the indictment in all circumstances.¹³¹⁷⁴

4999. The Chamber notes that the Kanyabashi Indictment covers acts allegedly committed between 1 January and 31 December 1994. More specifically, the crimes alleged in Paragraph 6.42 fall within the framework of allegations set forth by a combined reading of Paragraphs 6.18, 6.44, 6.45 and 6.58, which cover the time period between April and July 1994. Therefore, the allegation in Paragraph 6.42 does not, as such, fall outside the temporal scope of the Indictment.

5000. In any event, as will be outlined in the following paragraphs, a significant amount of evidence establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that the transfer to Rango Forest occurred in June 1994, and not late April as the Indictment alleges. Thus, the Indictment is defective. However, the Chamber first notes that such evidence was adduced by both Prosecution and

See Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 322 ("The indictment is pleaded with sufficient particularity only if it sets out the material facts of the Prosecution case with enough detail to inform a defendant clearly of the charges against him or her so that he or she may prepare his or her defence.").

Defence witnesses, including Kanyabashi Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y, who testified that the refugees were transferred to Rango Forest in June 1994.¹³¹⁷⁵ Further, the trial record does not show that Kanyabashi indicated to the Chamber that the evidence at trial fell outside the scope of the Indictment, nor that he requested additional time to prepare for his defence.¹³¹⁷⁶ Thus, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi was aware of the time period alleged during the course of the trial in relation to the events at Rango Forest and he suffered no prejudice from the defect in the Indictment.

5001. Secondly, Kanyabashi never contested the issue of the time of the transfer to Rango Forest prior to his Closing Brief. In light of recent jurisprudence of the Tribunal, the Chamber takes into account Kanyabashi's failure to object to this error earlier in the trial and the lack of any reasonable explanation for it.¹³¹⁷⁷ Therefore, the Chamber considers Kanyabashi acknowledged that the transfer occurred in June 1994, as demonstrated by the evidence adduced during the proceedings.

5002. The Chamber is thus of the view that, although the discrepancy between the time of the transfer as alleged in the Indictment, and the actual time such transfer was carried out according to the evidence presented, may appear considerable, the error in Paragraph 6.42 of the Indictment did not result in any prejudice to the rights of the Accused.¹³¹⁷⁸ This inaccuracy did not mislead Kanyabashi as to the nature of the charges against him, nor did it influence or alter the Chamber's approach towards the evaluation of the evidence thereto.¹³¹⁷⁹ Kanyabashi was able to identify the crime and criminal conduct alleged and had adequate time to prepare his defence. Consequently, the Chamber will consider the allegation at Paragraph 6.42 in relation to Kanyabashi, in light of the evidence presented at trial.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

Lack of Notice Concerning Nsabimana's and Nteziryayo's Involvement in the Transfer

5003. Both the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Defences assert that the allegations regarding the transfer to Rango Forest fall outside the scope of the Indictment. The Chamber notes that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment does not allege Nsabimana's involvement in the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest and is silent on any specific meeting concerning this issue. With regard to Nteziryayo, the Indictment generally alleges his responsibility in the ongoing massacres from 19 April to July 1994 through his participation in a "strategy adopted

However, an objection raised at trial will not automatically lead to a shift in the burden of proof: the Trial Chamber must consider relevant factors, such as whether the Defence provided a reasonable explanation for its failure to raise the objection earlier in the trial.")).

¹³¹⁷⁸ See Kunarac et al., Judgement (AC), para. 217 ("minor discrepancies between the dates in the Trial Judgement and the Indictment go to prove the difficulty, in the absence of documentary evidence, of reconstructing events several years after they occurred and not that the events charged in the Indictment did not occur"); see also Rutaganda, Judgement (AC), paras. 302-303.

and elaborated by political, civil and military authorities in the country” with the aim of exterminating the Tutsis.¹³¹⁸⁰ Paragraph 6.40 of the Indictment mentions the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest, but solely in connection with Kanyabashi. Thus, the Chamber finds the Indictment is defective, as it did not give any notice to Nsabimana or Nteziryayo of their alleged involvement in the transfer to Rango Forest.

5004. Further, Paragraph 6.40 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment was not pled in support of any count. In light of the Preliminary Issues section contained above (2.4), and considering that Paragraph 6.40 is of no particular background or relevance in the context of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Chamber will not base a conviction on this paragraph.

3.6.48.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness TA

5005. Witness TA, a Tutsi woman, testified that in mid-June 1994, the refugees who had not been killed and who remained at the BPO were transported in two buses to Rango Forest.¹³¹⁸¹ Before leaving towards Rango Forest the refugees were taken towards Nyange, however they got turned back at the roadblock.¹³¹⁸²

5006. Witness TA testified that the transportation of the refugees was decided during a meeting held at the MRND Palace, where it was said that the refugees that remained there “were ghosts, Tutsi ghosts, and that it was decided that it was out of the question that the international community knew anything about [the refugees’] existence...”.¹³¹⁸³ The witness heard from passersby and from the bus drivers that the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi, the préfet and Nyiramasuhuko participated in the meeting and that it was convened upon the request of Kanyabashi.¹³¹⁸⁴ Witness TA also heard “that place was beginning to stink because of [the] presence [of the refugees] and because of the many dead bodies that were there and there was a lot of flies in that location.”¹³¹⁸⁵

5007. Witness TA testified that at this meeting it was further decided that “one day [the refugees] will be killed and that [their] bodies will be laid on the body of Habyarimana after he is buried”. According to the witness, this is the reason why the transport was organised, so that the refugees would be killed at the roadblocks.¹³¹⁸⁶

5008. Witness TA testified that the Interahamwe and soldiers came to the BPO and forced the refugees to get onto two buses.¹³¹⁸⁷ The Interahamwe and soldiers beat the refugees with their guns and with sticks and spat at them.¹³¹⁸⁸ There was no guard on the buses; however the witness stated that it was not possible to leave the buses “because it was the order issued by the authorities” and they had nowhere to go.¹³¹⁸⁹ After the buses left for Rango Forest, no surviving refugee remained at the BPO.¹³¹⁹⁰

5009. Witness TA testified to staying at Rango Forest for more than three weeks.¹³¹⁹¹ There were not many Interahamwe guarding the refugees but they occasionally beat them.¹³¹⁹² On one occasion, a priest gave food to the refugees. He was attacked by Interahamwe who threatened to kill him, so he fled.¹³¹⁹³

5010. At the beginning of July 1994, the Inkotanyi took the refugees away from Rango Forest.¹³¹⁹⁴ Witness TA testified she saw Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo at the BPO.¹³¹⁹⁵ She never saw Kanyabashi at the BPO, the EER or Rango Forest.¹³¹⁹⁶

Prosecution Witness FAP

5012. Witness FAP testified that all the refugees boarded the buses and were taken away from the BPO; some street children were also among them, while others were left behind. Witness FAP did not know what happened to those who were afraid to board the bus; once she got on board, she did not turn around to see if anyone remained in the courtyard.¹³¹⁹⁹ Witness FAP testified that there was no list drawn up of refugees going to Rango Forest.¹³²⁰⁰ The refugees were taken as far as Mukuni, when the driver said he would take the road to the left, via Cyarwa, because considering the state they were in, he could not take them past President Sindikubwabo’s residence in Tumba.¹³²⁰¹

5013. Witness FAP testified that when she arrived at Rango Forest, the authorities, including Kanyabashi and Grégoire were already there in their Suzuki. When the refugees descended from the bus, they entered the perimeter that was fenced with barbed wire and people, including Fidèle and Alexis, opened the gate upon Kanyabashi’s instruction. The witness did not know who Fidèle and Alexis were.¹³²⁰² She stated that she was three and a half metres from Kanyabashi when he spoke to Fidèle, it was not raining and it was still light out.¹³²⁰³ She stated that the military préfet was not at Rango Forest.¹³²⁰⁴ Witness FAP stated that she knew Kanyabashi well enough that she could not confuse him with the new military préfet.¹³²⁰⁵

5014. While Witness FAP could not remember how many days she spent at Rango Forest, she did recall that it was already June when the refugees arrived there.¹³²⁰⁶ Witness FAP identified Prosecution Exhibit 36A as a photograph of Rango Forest.¹³²⁰⁷ She stated that they never approached the house in the photograph.¹³²⁰⁸

5015. Witness FAP testified that they did not receive any food, nor were they supplied with water. On one occasion, a white man brought provisions, but the provisions were given to the two people responsible for the protection of the refugees and not shared with the refugees. After "white people" came and photographed the refugees, provisions were brought but only maize was distributed. On two occasions, people went with Fidèle to fetch water from the Mukura River, but they discovered larva from rotting corpses so they stopped drawing water from the river. They dug holes to gather rain water which they drank.¹³²⁰⁹ Witness FAP was not among the people who went to the river.¹³²¹⁰

5016. Witness FAP testified that the refugees were told by the Interahamwe guarding them that they would be used as "specimens" to show people what Tutsis looked like. Pits were dug and the refugees were told they would be buried there on 5 July.¹³²¹¹ The witness did not get close enough to see the pits that were being dug so she did not know how big they were.¹³²¹²

5017. Witness FAP stated that Kanyabashi told the person in charge of the refugees that the Tutsis were government refugees and that their safety should be ensured. Kanyabashi also said that any death would have to be reported, but the fate of the refugees would be sealed on 5 July.¹³²¹³ The witness understood this reference to their "fate" to mean that they would be killed.¹³²¹⁴

5018. Witness FAP testified that she and other refugees were living under the trees and were regularly covered with sacks and beaten on their stomachs at Rango Forest.¹³²¹⁵ Fidèle witnessed the beatings but did nothing to prevent it.¹³²¹⁶ One of the refugees suffered a miscarriage as a result of the beatings.¹³²¹⁷ A white priest brought a consignment of food, but Fidèle and others told him that they were not going to allow the “snakes” to eat.¹³²¹⁸ She saw some orphans being fed but no one else. The refugees lacked cooking or medical facilities at Rango Forest.¹³²¹⁹

Prosecution Witness RE

5019. Witness RE, a Tutsi woman who was 16 years old in 1994, testified that the departure of the remaining refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest coincided with the new military préfet's appointment. The military préfet said that he no longer wanted to see the “dirt” in that place when he would come back the following day and he sent one of his bodyguards, named Kazungu, to tell the refugees that buses were going to drive them to Rango Forest. Witness RE interpreted the word “dirt” as meaning the Tutsis.¹³²²⁰

5020. Witness RE testified that when she and the other refugees left the BPO for Rango Forest, Kanyabashi's vehicle accompanied the convoy. Kanyabashi gave instructions to the Interahamwe who were watching over the refugees to take good care of the Tutsi survivors among them because they were to be presented to the international community, and they were to be killed on 5 July.¹³²²¹

5021. Witness RE testified that the refugees received no food during their stay at Rango Forest. A white man attempted to provide them with food, but it was taken away by the Interahamwe. The witness testified that the Interahamwe beat the refugees during the day and raped women and girls at Rango Forest. She remained at Rango Forest until 4 July 1994, when she and the other refugees were rescued by soldiers of the Inkotanyi.¹³²²² The witness also stated that her mother died at Rango Forest from cholera.¹³²²³

Prosecution Witness QBQ

5022. Witness QBQ, a Tutsi woman who was 24 years old in 1994, testified that she arrived at the BPO towards the end of April 1994. The day after arrival, the refugees from the BPO were transported to the EER, but they stayed there only for a week due to the difficult living conditions, and they were brought back to the BPO. The next day, the refugees were transported to Rango Forest by Kanyabashi.¹³²²⁴ The witness did not know who Kanyabashi was, but other people pointed him out to her.¹³²²⁵ Upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi ordered the Interahamwe, including Fidèle, to protect them. Fidèle made sure that nobody attacked the refugees, however, they continued to live in terrible conditions. Witness QBQ testified that she saw the Interahamwe digging a ditch, but when they finished digging the Inkotanyi arrived and took the refugees away.¹³²²⁶

Prosecution Witness QY

5023. Witness QY, a Tutsi woman who was 17 years old in 1994, testified that Kanyabashi accompanied the refugees to Rango Forest.¹³²²⁷ Upon arrival, two Interahamwe named Alexis and Fidèle took the refugees out of the bus and showed them where they should stay, in the woods. Kanyabashi instructed the two Interahamwe that the refugees were not to be killed and that it should be reported to him if anyone was to die.¹³²²⁸ Witness QY testified that refugees were not attacked at Rango Forest and were protected by gendarmes; she identified two gendarmes as Alexis and Fidèle.¹³²²⁹ However, the refugees endured bad conditions and were not fed.¹³²³⁰ They also had to dig holes in order to collect rain water. The witness saw two pits at Rango Forest.¹³²³¹

Prosecution Witness SD

5024. Witness SD, a Tutsi woman, testified that after the abortive trip to Nyange, she stayed at the BPO for a week, by which time Nteziryayo had been appointed the new préfet. The witness stated that Nteziryayo was introduced to the refugees at the BPO. After less than one week from Nteziryayo's appointment as the new préfet, the refugees were transferred to Rango Forest by bus. Kanyabashi and Grégoire organised the transport.¹³²³²

5025. Witness SD testified that Grégoire informed the refugees that they would be taken to Rango Forest, but Kanyabashi and Nteziryayo were present as well. The witness had seen Grégoire at the BPO before; this occasion, when he accompanied Kanyabashi to Rango Forest, was the last time she saw him. Witness SD never saw Nteziryayo at Rango Forest.¹³²³³

5026. Witness SD testified that Kanyabashi told the refugees that they would be protected at Rango Forest. There were very nearly only women and children boarding the two buses to Rango, as all but two of the men had been killed. Some Hutu women whose husbands had been killed were also taken to Rango Forest.¹³²³⁴ The buses left the BPO at about 3.00 p.m. and it took about 30 minutes to reach Rango Forest.¹³²³⁵

5027. Witness SD testified that she arrived at Rango Forest in June.¹³²³⁶ Witness SD stated that upon arrival, Kanyabashi instructed the Interahamwe to protect the refugees and to inform him if any of the refugees died. Among the Interahamwe was someone called Fidèle, who carried a gun, and two others who carried clubs, knives and grenades.¹³²³⁷ The witness stated that Fidèle did not respect Kanyabashi's instructions to protect the refugees, and they were beaten. As a result, one woman miscarried.¹³²³⁸

5028. Witness SD testified that upon arrival at Rango Forest, the refugees dug a latrine. No food was provided beyond some porridge for the children. At some point, a priest brought some food, but it was not distributed.¹³²³⁹ Blankets were distributed. A doctor came, but the witness did not see him treat anyone and testified that he stayed in one of the buildings which the refugees were prohibited from approaching. The Interahamwe stayed at the gate of the perimeter during the night and did not mingle with the refugees.¹³²⁴⁰

5029. Witness SD testified that while they were at Rango Forest, two pits, of which the larger was approximately two metres by one and a half metres and the smaller was about half that size, were dug by people from outside, who had been sent there by Kanyabashi.¹³²⁴¹ The Interahamwe told the refugees that they [the refugees] would be buried in those pits on the same day the President of the Republic was going to be buried.¹³²⁴² Witness SD testified that the RPF arrived just as the holes were finished being dug at about 9.00 or 10.00 a.m. The Interahamwe left when they heard the RPF gunshots.¹³²⁴³ Witness SD testified the refugees left Rango Forest on 4 July 1994, when they were found by Inkotanyi of the RPF.¹³²⁴⁴

Prosecution Witness SS

5030. Witness SS, a Tutsi woman, testified that towards the end of June 1994, she left the BPO for Rango.¹³²⁴⁵ Witness SS could not remember the exact date of her departure from the BPO, but she testified that this occurred when Alphonse Nteziryayo had just been appointed préfet, replacing Sylvain Nsabimana.¹³²⁴⁶ At the BPO, the Tutsi refugees were put in two buses and taken away in the evening under escort.¹³²⁴⁷ The Hutu refugees did not board the buses and they left before the vehicles departed to Rango Forest.¹³²⁴⁸ The refugees were taken to a fenced forest.¹³²⁴⁹ During their stay at Rango Forest, the refugees were supervised regularly by two Interahamwe: Fidèle, who was armed with rifles and wore civilian clothes, and Alexi.¹³²⁵⁰

5031. Witness SS testified that, at some point in time, a white person came with food, but the Interahamwe did not allow him to distribute the food to the refugees. Fidèle accompanied the refugees to go and fetch water in the river called Macura.¹³²⁵¹ Distribution of porridge took place there, especially for sick children, but in small quantities. Blankets were distributed, but the Interahamwe took them back.¹³²⁵² At some point in time, doctors came, however they did not give medical attention to anyone. As a result, during the witness' stay at Rango Forest, two or three deaths occurred due to illness.¹³²⁵³ Witness SS saw people digging pits or graves that were to be used to bury the refugees, but in the meantime the refugees used them as latrines.¹³²⁵⁴ The RPF arrived on 4 July 1994 and the refugees who were not wounded were jubilant.¹³²⁵⁵

Prosecution Witness SU

5032. Witness SU, a Tutsi woman, testified that in late June, the refugees were forcibly transferred by buses to a fenced property at Rango Forest.¹³²⁵⁶ The witness did not indicate how many refugees were transferred. The refugees boarded the buses under the supervision of Kanyabashi, assisted by a civilian Interahamwe called Fidèle and one other armed man, known to the witness only as Gregwa.¹³²⁵⁷ Witness SU stated that Kanyabashi rode in another vehicle and accompanied the convoy of buses to Rango Forest.¹³²⁵⁸ The witness also saw Kanyabashi give Fidèle a list with the names of the refugees and tell him, "[i]f the representatives of the international community come here, we will show them these persons and we will tell them that these are the remaining Tutsis in Rwanda. ... If any of these persons die, Fidel, you have to submit a report."¹³²⁵⁹

5033. Witness SU testified that the living conditions at Rango Forest were just as deplorable as those at the BPO.¹³²⁶⁰ After a few days, the refugees were asked to dig pits. Fidèle and another local Interahamwe took over the task because the refugees were too weak to finish it. Witness SU testified that the refugees were asked to go inside the pits to see if they could fit in them.¹³²⁶¹ In early July, RPF soldiers arrived and liberated the refugees from Rango Forest.¹³²⁶²

Prosecution Witness SJ

5034. Witness SJ, a Tutsi woman who was 29 in 1994, testified that she was transported by bus from the BPO to Rango Forest with other refugees,¹³²⁶³ where she stayed for about two weeks.¹³²⁶⁴ At Rango Forest, the refugees were guarded by the Interahamwe and the forest was fenced. The refugees were denied food and water.¹³²⁶⁵ One night, the Interahamwe left and never came back. Elements of the national army arrived the day after, between 1.00 and 2.00 p.m., and took the refugees to the préfecture.¹³²⁶⁶ Witness SJ testified this probably happened at the beginning of July; she testified that Interahamwe “kept referring to the date of the 5th”, however, she could not be sure what exactly they were referring to.¹³²⁶⁷

Prosecution Witness QBP

5035. Witness QBP, a Tutsi woman, testified that in the last week of June, buses were brought to transport refugees to Rango Forest.¹³²⁶⁸ The military préfet and the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi, were present when the buses were brought to the BPO. When questioned by the Chamber, Witness QBP clarified that the military préfet who was present at the BPO when the buses arrived “was dark skinned and was in military uniform.”¹³²⁶⁹ Witness QBP testified that Kanyabashi accompanied the refugees to Rango Forest, but she did not see him there afterwards.¹³²⁷⁰ Witness QBP testified that no refugees remained at the BPO after the buses left for Rango Forest.¹³²⁷¹

5036. Witness QBP testified that the refugees were told they would be taken to Rango Forest because they were hindering the operations of the préfecture and were causing problems at the BPO, and that they were going to be shown where to stay.¹³²⁷² Upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave a document to an Interahamwe carrying a gun and told him to report to him if any of the refugees were to go missing.¹³²⁷³ At Rango Forest, the Interahamwe told the refugees to dig pits in which they were to be buried. Since the refugees were weak, the Interahamwe dug the pits themselves, however the refugees were told to go in to measure them up. Neither the préfet nor the bourgmestre of Ngoma provided the refugees at Rango Forest with food or water. While a priest attempted to give food to the refugees, he was accused by the Interahamwe of being an accomplice and was chased away.¹³²⁷⁴ In the first week of July, the Inkotanyi of the RPF came and liberated the refugees.¹³²⁷⁵

Prosecution Witness TK

5037. Witness TK, a Tutsi woman, testified that the refugees were transferred by bus from the BPO to Rango Forest.¹³²⁷⁶ Upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi appeared.¹³²⁷⁷ Kanyabashi was welcomed by street children as the “Muzehé”, which is a mark of respect.¹³²⁷⁸ The witness testified this was the first and only time she saw Kanyabashi.¹³²⁷⁹ Kanyabashi told the Interahamwe to let them through, as Rango Forest was fenced.¹³²⁸⁰ The Interahamwe present at Rango Forest were the same who were at the BPO, and they “continued their work, which was to kill”. Witness TK only noticed one man disappearing and never saw him afterwards. At the beginning of their stay at Rango Forest, the refugees were assisted by a religious man, but at some point the Interahamwe took away the supplies he had given them.¹³²⁸¹ Some refugee women were forced to marry Interahamwe and were given food by those Interahamwe; these women enabled other refugees to survive by sharing that food with them.¹³²⁸² Nevertheless, some of the refugees died from hunger and cholera.¹³²⁸³

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5038. Alison Des Forges testified that, during two conversations she had with Nsabimana,¹³²⁸⁴ she learned that the presence of the refugees at the BPO had been a problem for Nsabimana and that he was left alone with it, since no one else would take responsibility. According to Des Forges, Nsabimana also said that the group of refugees was sent away to the EER school where they remained for approximately 10 days, until the authorities in charge sent them back to the BPO. At that point in time, the Interahamwe came to the BPO to kill; “soldiers and others” came to take away and rape women, while other refugees were selected to be killed. From the BPO, the refugees were sent away to Rango Forest.¹³²⁸⁵

5039. Des Forges testified that she heard testimonies that the transfer to Rango Forest was ordered by Nteziryayo on the day he took over as préfet, 20 June 1994, and that Kanyabashi and one of the sous-préfets supervised the move.¹³²⁸⁶ Des Forges testified that the transfer to Rango Forest occurred perhaps two weeks after the transfer to Nyange and was carried out with several vehicles, but probably in one despatch. She indicated she was not entirely sure about this, since the sources of such information were people who were transferred both to Rango Forest and to Nyange and therefore might have confused elements of the two trips.¹³²⁸⁷ Des Forges testified that some of the refugees boarded the buses voluntarily while others did not want to leave, since they were afraid they were going to be killed; so they were forced onto the buses.¹³²⁸⁸

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-1-4-0

5040. Witness D-1-4-0, a Hutu who was working as a health assistant at the Rango Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest,¹³²⁸⁹ testified that in June 1994, between 200 and 300 refugees were transferred from the BPO to Rango Forest. Some of them were wounded or sick, while others suffered from diarrhea.¹³²⁹⁰

¹³²⁸⁹ In light of all the evidence, the Chamber is satisfied that the Holy Cross Centre was a health centre located at Rango Forest and notes, inter alia, that this was referred to also as the “Frères de la Sainte Croix”. For ease of reference, the Chamber will refer to the “Holy Cross Centre”.

¹³²⁹⁰ T. 6 May 2008 p. 54 (ICS) (Witness D-1-4-0).

5042. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the refugees were comprised mainly of children and women.¹³²⁹⁴ He indicated that he knew many of those refugees were native of Gishamvu, while others hailed from Runyinya and Nyakizu communes, or from Gikongoro préfecture.¹³²⁹⁵ Witness D-1-4-0 testified there were fewer than 30 men among the refugees.¹³²⁹⁶ The number of refugees at Rango Holy Cross Centre did not increase during the time he went there to provide medical care.¹³²⁹⁷ Witness D-1-4-0 stated that he treated more than 30 people during the time he was assigned to the Rango Holy Cross Centre,¹³²⁹⁸ and he was the only person who provided medical attention to the refugees that were brought there. Father Daniello and a nun also took care of the refugees by supplying them with foods, pots, blankets and soap.¹³²⁹⁹ The witness testified that at Rango Forest, the refugees cooked for themselves and could also fetch firewood in the vicinity.¹³³⁰⁰

5043. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that other foodstuffs like maize were also brought from the Ngoma commune office by Anicet, who was reported to be Kanyabashi’s son.¹³³⁰¹ Witness D-1-4-0 saw Anicet arrive aboard a green Toyota pickup belonging to Ngoma commune.¹³³⁰² This vehicle was known to people in Ngoma who called it “ruhumbengegare” in Kinyarwanda, meaning “the car that picks up hoodlums.”¹³³⁰³ The witness pointed out that he often saw that vehicle before April 1994, but just once between April and July 1994.¹³³⁰⁴ He testified that he knew very few members of the commune staff of Ngoma, citing as examples Rutayisire, the person in charge of the finances and who often came to the health centre, Kanyabashi and policeman Cassien, who lived near the health centre.¹³³⁰⁵

5044. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that at Rango Forest the people in charge of security were Fidèle, who assisted in the distribution of supplies, and another person named Gashirabake.¹³³⁰⁶ Witness D-1-4-0 testified that Fidèle was not an Interahamwe.¹³³⁰⁷

5046. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the refugees had access to clean water, which they fetched from a place called Mpazi. Water was stored in gallons supplied by Ngoma commune.¹³³¹² The refugees stayed outside in the verandas and corridors as the buildings were locked up.¹³³¹³ Witness D-1-4-0 testified that three toilet facilities were put up for the refugees at Rango Forest and their construction was supervised by the witness himself, who also provided disinfectant so that the facilities could be better maintained. The refugees dug the latrine pits, assisted by Fidèle and Gashirabake.¹³³¹⁴

5048. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the refugees talked about Kanyabashi; they said that Kanyabashi had been of service to them because he had transported them from the préfecture offices where they were living under poor conditions and that Kanyabashi had even accompanied them in the buses.¹³³¹⁶ On cross-examination, the witness stated that he had not asked the refugees if it was Kanyabashi who ordered them to board the buses.¹³³¹⁷ The witness testified that the refugees never told him if they had received any assistance from Ngoma commune while they were at the préfecture office.¹³³¹⁸

5049. Witness D-1-4-0 testified that the only Interahamwe he saw at Rango Forest was called Cyiza. Cyiza was married to one of his colleagues at the health centre and never went to Rango Holy Cross Centre during the time the refugees settled there. Witness D-1-4-0 remembered

Cyiza said on one occasion that “Kanyabatutsi”—referring to Kanyabashi—“prevented them [the Interahamwe] from killing”.¹³³¹⁹

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-10-Y

5050. Witness D-2-10-Y, a Tutsi who worked as a gardener at the congregation of Salesiens de Rango in 1994,¹³³²⁰ testified that he arrived at the BPO towards the end of May 1994.¹³³²¹ Kanyabashi told the witness and other refugees at the BPO that they were to be transferred to Rango Forest where they would be better protected.¹³³²² Witness D-2-10-Y testified that he spent two weeks at the BPO¹³³²³ and was transferred to Rango Forest in June.¹³³²⁴

5051. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that, while at the BPO, the Interahamwe asked the refugees to gather because Kanyabashi would speak to them.¹³³²⁵ The witness could not recall when exactly this happened. The witness testified that Kanyabashi was the first to inform the refugees about their travel to Rango Forest.¹³³²⁶ Kanyabashi told them for the first time on one morning, when he came alone to the BPO; and on a second occasion, when he returned to the BPO at about 12.00 p.m. on the departure date. This time, Kanyabashi was accompanied by a police officer who was on board his vehicle.¹³³²⁷ The witness said that he saw Kanyabashi at the BPO only on these two occasions, which occurred on different days.¹³³²⁸

5052. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that after being informed about their transfer to Rango Forest, the refugees were afraid, but Kanyabashi told them that he would provide policemen for their security.¹³³²⁹ In the presence of Kanyabashi, around 300 refugees boarded two buses belonging to ONATRACOM and were transported to Rango Forest.¹³³³⁰ When questioned if there could have been up to 1,000 refugees involved in the transfer, the witness said this was unrealistic. The witness testified that he did not see any refugee being forced to board the buses, nor did he see people using machetes to wound the refugees before they boarded the buses.¹³³³¹

5053. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that his father and other family members were transported along with him from the BPO to Rango Forest.¹³³³² The witness stated that street children who spent nights with the refugees at the BPO were not transported to Rango Forest.¹³³³³ Witness D-2-10-Y testified that there were policemen on board each of the buses, who helped them to cross the roadblocks on their way to Rango Forest.¹³³³⁴ Witness D-2-10-Y did not see any soldiers or Interahamwe on the buses.¹³³³⁵

5054. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that they arrived at Rango Forest past 2.00 p.m. but before nightfall,¹³³³⁶ and that Kanyabashi was present.¹³³³⁷ Kanyabashi indicated to the refugees the person in charge of their security, Fidèle, who had been an employee at the Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest prior to 6 April 1994.¹³³³⁸ Kanyabashi spoke with Fidèle, standing at a certain distance to the witness and other refugees. Kanyabashi greeted and waved at the refugees, asking them to be patient.¹³³³⁹ Kanyabashi told Fidèle that he had to ensure the refugees' security and that he should not allow anyone to disturb them.¹³³⁴⁰ Witness D-2-10-Y testified that Fidèle carried a firearm but did not wear military attire.¹³³⁴¹ Fidèle obeyed Kanyabashi's orders.¹³³⁴²

5055. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that refugees at Rango Forest were spread out into the forest surrounding the Holy Cross Centre.¹³³⁴³ The witness stated that the Reverend Brothers were not present when the refugees were staying at Rango Forest.¹³³⁴⁴ The witness did not see any gendarmes at the premises of Rango Forest.¹³³⁴⁵

5056. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that during his stay at Rango Forest, Fidèle led the refugees to the Mpazi stream to fetch water.¹³³⁴⁶ The witness testified that they did not go to Mukura River to fetch water, nor did he hear that other refugees did. The witness did not hear that Mukura River contained decomposed bodies and, therefore, was "liver borne" (sic). Witness D-2-10-Y testified that they had to fetch water because the water supply was not sufficient to cater to the refugees.¹³³⁴⁷ In cross-examination, Witness D-2-10-Y testified that when he went to fetch water, he saw a roadblock on a small road linking Rango market to Butare town.¹³³⁴⁸

5057. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that at one time, Father Danello supplied the refugees with food. The food was brought in a green vehicle called "Ruhumbangegera", normally used to transport offenders. That vehicle belonged to the commune and was driven by the son of Kanyabashi's wife, Anicet. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that Danello and Fidèle distributed food supplies to the refugees.¹³³⁴⁹ The witness denied that persons in charge of the refugees' security or anybody else took the food away. Witness D-2-10-Y added that the refugees also received buckets, blankets and some rice.¹³³⁵⁰ Witness D-2-10-Y testified that a nun, accompanied by a person called Murokore, visited the Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest three times to provide health services to the refugees. They treated wounded persons and provided them with drugs and medication.¹³³⁵¹ The witness testified that three persons died of illness during their stay at Rango Forest, but he was not aware that any other person died during that time.¹³³⁵²

5058. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that, while at Rango Forest, the refugees dug two pits to serve as toilets, on the instruction of Murokore. He was not aware that any pits were dug in order for the refugees to be buried in.¹³³⁵³

5059. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that no Interahamwe stayed at Rango Forest with the refugees,¹³³⁵⁴ but at some point two Interahamwe, known as Gikongoro and Ngoma, arrived.¹³³⁵⁵ The witness also testified that when Fidèle went back home, the Interahamwe and persons from a specific Hutu ethnic group known as Abakomba arrived to kill the refugees. Fidèle heard the cries of the refugees and returned immediately to the premises; the assailants fled.¹³³⁵⁶

5060. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that when some refugees went to Rudandi to buy provisions, an Interahamwe known as Gashirabake, who was the other person in charge of the security of the refugees beside Fidèle, put several persons in a bag and beat them up at Rango Forest. According to the witness, such an incident happened only once during his stay at Rango Forest.¹³³⁵⁷ Gashirabake obeyed Kanyabashi's orders together with Fidèle.¹³³⁵⁸ Witness D-2-10-Y testified that at the time of his testimony, the man who was with Fidèle, Gashirabake, was being prosecuted by the national court for having taken part in killings.¹³³⁵⁹

5061. Witness D-2-10-Y testified that two weeks after his arrival at Rango Forest, the RPF arrived in the area and released the refugees.¹³³⁶⁰ In cross-examination, the witness said that the RPF arrested the population – Hutus as well as Tutsis – and sent them to Rango town for their safety. His father and his five brothers remained in town, while the witness and his sister Alphonsine went to Gikongoro; since then, the witness has not seen his family members.¹³³⁶¹ Witness D-2-10-Y testified that he decided to go to Gikongoro even though the RPF had told the refugees that they were safe in Rango, because there were also Tutsis at Gikongoro.¹³³⁶²

The witness testified that, beside his twin sister who was killed in Kabakobwa, all the family members who had taken refuge at the BPO had survived.¹³³⁶³

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WMKL

5062. Witness WMKL, a Hutu teacher at one of the Butare schools in 1994, testified that there were no longer refugees at the BPO during the first week of June 1994.¹³³⁶⁴ The witness testified that in June the refugees were moved from the BPO to the Holy Cross Centre at Rango Forest. Witness WMKL attended a meeting during which Kanyabashi stated that the refugees were transferred from the BPO so that they could not be the object of any intimidation by members of the population.¹³³⁶⁵ Witness WMKL further testified that he never heard that those refugees were maltreated during their stay at Rango Forest.¹³³⁶⁶

Nteziryayo

5063. Nteziryayo testified that about 250 persons were transferred to Rango Forest either on 19 or 20 June 1994. He learned this from the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs, Everest Bicamumpaka. Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were transferred before he started working as préfet. His first day at work as the new préfet was 21 June 1994; therefore, he was not at the BPO when the transfer occurred.¹³³⁶⁷ Nteziryayo further testified that he did not take part in the decision to transfer them to Rango Forest.¹³³⁶⁸ Nteziryayo denied the portion of Prosecution Witness FAP's testimony, where Witness FAP stated that he was transferred to Rango Forest after Nteziryayo's appointment and that he was told by Grégoire that Nteziryayo "no longer wanted garbage in front of his office".¹³³⁶⁹

5064. Nteziryayo testified that the plan to move the refugees from the BPO to Rango Forest had been initiated during the tenure of Préfet Nsabimana,¹³³⁷⁰ between humanitarian organisations and the préfecture authorities.¹³³⁷¹ Nteziryayo agreed with the plan to transfer the refugees, vis-à-vis the sous-préfets, Hakizamungu and Bicamumpaka, as discussed at a meeting he had with them on 19 June, because it did not entail any problems and the refugees would be better off at Rango Forest.¹³³⁷² Clergymen of Rango had provided their convent for accommodating the refugees so they could live in better conditions than in Butare, where they had been living in the open, in front of the offices or behind the BPO, exposed to all passersby and open for everyone to come in.¹³³⁷³ Nteziryayo could not recall whether, by the time of the said meeting, the refugees had already been transported to Rango Forest.¹³³⁷⁴

¹³³⁷⁴ T. 7 June 2007 p. 58 (Nteziryayo).

5066. Nteziryayo testified that he was informed by Bicumumpaka that the refugees were receiving considerable aid from humanitarian organisations and that Ngoma commune was also working hard to sustain the refugees. Nteziryayo stated that he instructed Bicumumpaka to follow up the situation of those refugees and to remain in touch with the humanitarian organisations that were assisting the refugees.¹³³⁷⁷

5067. Nteziryayo testified that on one occasion, he went to Rango Forest and inspected the site where the refugees stayed; he was satisfied that their situation was better there than the préfecture courtyard.¹³³⁷⁸ Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were still under “minimal living conditions”, but at least they were in a fenced place, with shade, and Ngoma commune had provided guards for their safety. The “religious” looked after them and some persons provided them with health care; Caritas provided food; other humanitarian organisations had given them blankets, cooking utensils and other useful items and medical care. Bicumumpaka went there regularly, if not on a daily basis, to reassure the refugees.¹³³⁷⁹

5068. Nteziryayo testified that refugees at Rango Forest were not beaten up. The persons who took care of the refugees were in good faith. Otherwise, according to Nteziryayo, the refugees would have complained vis-à-vis the préfet or other authorities. Bicumumpaka did not report any cases of maltreatment.¹³³⁸⁰ Nteziryayo denied that the authorities who tried to improve the living conditions of those refugees refused to let a white person distribute food among the refugees.¹³³⁸¹ Nteziryayo further stated that the refugees were not thrown into mass graves; none of the refugees were ever killed; there were no attacks or threats against those refugees;¹³³⁸² and the refugees were not waiting to be buried in mass graves on 5 July 1994.¹³³⁸³ Nteziryayo testified that Witness FAM’s testimony that Nteziryayo had led Tutsi refugees from Muganza to Rango Forest, first to the house of Ruhashyankiko and later to the house of Pierre Rwakayonza to kill them, was false.¹³³⁸⁴

¹³³⁸⁴ T. 22 May 2007 p. 4 (Nteziryayo).

5069. Nteziryayo testified that as the préfet he received an update of the situation at Rango Forest on a daily basis and was personally satisfied that the transfer to Rango Forest was aimed at improving the situation of those refugees and making it "more humane". Therefore, it would have been contradictory if people had maltreated them at the same time.¹³³⁸⁵ Nteziryayo testified that after 28 June 1994, he contacted humanitarian organisations to assist in looking after the refugees in the Mubumbano or the Rango Forest refugee camp. Nteziryayo testified that he had to take care that the refugees would not be attacked by other persons, and that he had to look for supplies and means of transport.¹³³⁸⁶ The refugees remained at Rango Forest until the arrival of the RPF in Butare town.¹³³⁸⁷

3.6.48.4 Deliberations

5070. It is undisputed that refugees were transferred from the BPO to Rango Forest. Both Prosecution and Defence witnesses presented compelling evidence in this regard, as indicated below.¹³³⁸⁸ The issues for the Chamber to determine are: when the transfer occurred; the number of refugees involved; and whether criminal acts were perpetrated against the refugees throughout and/or as a consequence of the transfer. Further, the Chamber must assess whether Kanyabashi was involved in the transfer and the extent of his involvement. As stated above, the Chamber will not consider the allegation concerning the transfer to Rango Forest in relation to Nteziryayo and Nsabimana.

3.6.48.4.1 Time Period of the Transfer

5071. The Chamber heard consistent evidence from Prosecution Witnesses TA, SS, SU, QBP and Des Forges to the effect that the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest occurred in June 1994.¹³³⁸⁹ In addition Prosecution Witness SD testified the transfer was carried out about one week after the appointment of Nteziryayo as the new préfet.¹³³⁹⁰ Prosecution Witness FAP corroborated this evidence, testifying that at the time of the transfer to Rango Forest, Nteziryayo had already taken over his duties as the new préfet.¹³³⁹¹ The Chamber has previously found that Nteziryayo was appointed préfet of Butare by the Interim Government on 17 June 1994 (3.6.34.4.3). In light of this evidence and the testimony of Witnesses SD and FAP, the transfer to Rango Forest occurred in the second half of June 1994. The Chamber has also considered the testimony of Prosecution Witness SJ, who was not able to give a precise indication of the time period she was transferred to Rango Forest. Nevertheless, she testified that the refugees were rescued probably at the beginning of July, about two weeks after their arrival at Rango Forest. She therefore also places the transfer as occurring sometime in late June 1994.¹³³⁹² Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0, D-2-10-Y and WMKL corroborated this testimony, stating that the transfer to Rango Forest occurred in June 1994.¹³³⁹³ Nteziryayo gave evidence that the transfer to Rango Forest was carried out either on 19 or 20 June 1994.¹³³⁹⁴

5072. Witness QBQ's testimony conflicts with the accounts that the refugees were transferred in late June 1994. She testified that she arrived at the BPO towards the end of April, and the day after her arrival she was transported with the other refugees to the EER. She stayed at the EER for one week only, after which she and the other refugees were brought back to the BPO. The following day, they were immediately transported to Rango Forest.¹³³⁹⁵ According to this evidence, between the witness' arrival at the BPO and her departure to Rango Forest, just over a week had passed. The Chamber observes that this account appears contradictory with Witness QBQ's subsequent testimony in cross-examination, where she stated that she arrived at the BPO at the end of April and she departed to Rango Forest about one month later.¹³³⁹⁶ Therefore, the Chamber does not find Witness QBQ credible as to the time frame when the refugees were transferred to Rango Forest.

3.6.48.4.2 Number of Refugees Transported to Rango Forest

5074. Prosecution Witnesses TA, FAP, SU, SS, QBP and Des Forges testified that the transfer was carried out with two or more buses.¹³³⁹⁷ This account is consistent with the Chamber's previous finding, in the context of the transport of the refugees from the BPO to Nyange, which was carried out by way of two or more buses (3.6.40.4.2). Defence Witness D-2-10-Y corroborated this account.¹³³⁹⁸ Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y gave figures ranging from 200 to slightly more than 300 refugees being transported from the BPO to Rango Forest.¹³³⁹⁹

5075. Witness TA was not able to indicate a precise number of refugees, but testified that there were less than 1,000 people in the two buses.¹³⁴⁰⁰ The Chamber recalls that the Ntahobali Defence challenged the credibility of Witness TA during cross-examination, on the grounds that the witness lacked precision in some answers with respect to time and date, but was able to give very specific details about other facts.¹³⁴⁰¹ The Chamber has already assessed this aspect of Witness TA's testimony with respect to the incidents at the BPO and has come to the conclusion that Witness TA's testimony is credible with respect to the time of her arrival and her experience at the BPO (3.6.19.4). However, in relation to the number of refugees present at Rango Forest, the Chamber cannot rely on Witness TA's testimony, for the reasons explained below.

5076. The testimony by Prosecution witnesses that there were two or more buses supports Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y's account on the number of refugees involved (250 to 300). The Chamber is of the opinion that, it is reasonable that a few hundred people were transferred by means of two or more buses.

5078. Regarding the composition of the group of refugees, Witness SD testified that only women, children, and two old men boarded the two buses to Rango Forest, as all the rest of the men had been killed.¹³⁴⁰² This conflicts with other testimonies which, although not entirely consistent with each other, indicate that there were some men among the refugees. Defence Witness D-1-4-0 testified that fewer than 30 of the refugees who settled at Rango Forest were men.¹³⁴⁰³ Defence Witness D-2-10-Y testified that there were around 100 men among the refugees, around a third of the refugee population.¹³⁴⁰⁴ Prosecution Witness TK testified that, at some point during her stay at Rango Forest she noticed one male refugee disappearing.¹³⁴⁰⁵ In addition, Defence Exhibit 473, which shows some of the refugees prior to the transfer to Rango Forest, captured images of several men. In light of the foregoing, the Chamber is convinced that both men and women were transferred to Rango Forest, but the number of men had diminished significantly due to the killings at the BPO and EER (3.6.36.4.3).

5079. Regarding the ethnicity of the refugees, the Chamber notes discrepancies between the testimonies of Witnesses SD and SS. Prosecution Witness SD stated that there were some Hutu women among the refugees,¹³⁴⁰⁶ whereas Prosecution Witness SS testified that, prior to being put on the buses the Tutsi refugees were separated from the Hutus and only the Tutsis were taken away.¹³⁴⁰⁷ The Chamber recalls its finding that Hutu refugees were separated from Tutsi refugees and taken to Mubumbano refugee camp (3.6.19.4.10). Therefore, most if not all Hutu refugees had been taken from the BPO to Mubumbano by 15 June 1994. The Chamber considers that although there may have been some Hutus among the refugees, the majority of refugees were Tutsis.

5080. In sum, the Chamber concludes that approximately 250 to 300 mainly Tutsi refugees were transported to Rango Forest, by a convoy which comprised at least two buses.

3.6.48.4.3 Whether the Transfer Was Forceful

5081. Witness TA testified that at the BPO the refugees were forced onto the buses by the Interahamwe, who beat them.¹³⁴⁰⁸ Witness TA further stated that, although there was no guard onboard, it was not possible to leave the buses "because it was the order issued by the authorities", and they had nowhere to go.¹³⁴⁰⁹ This evidence is corroborated by Prosecution Witness SU, who also testified that the refugees were forced onto the buses under Kanyabashi's supervision.¹³⁴¹⁰ Witness SU further stated that a civilian Interahamwe called Fidèle and one other armed man known as Grégoire were present during the transfer.¹³⁴¹¹ Witnesses FAP and SD testified that the refugees were told in the presence of Kanyabashi, Laurent Kubwimana and Grégoire, that they had to leave the BPO.¹³⁴¹² Grégoire told them that those who refused to go to Rango Forest would be killed; instead, they would be given provisions and safety at Rango Forest.¹³⁴¹³ According to Witness RE, the transfer of the refugees occurred under the supervision of Interahamwe.¹³⁴¹⁴ According to Des Forges, some of the refugees boarded the buses voluntarily while others did not want to leave, since they were afraid they were going to be killed. They were therefore forced onto the buses.¹³⁴¹⁵

5082. Defence Witness D-1-4-0 disagreed with Witness SU and testified that Fidèle was not an Interahamwe.¹³⁴¹⁶ Likewise, Defence Witness D-2-10-Y testified that he did not see any soldiers or Interahamwe on the buses, and that Fidèle carried a firearm but did not wear military attire.¹³⁴¹⁷ Further, Witness D-2-10-Y testified that no force was used to board the refugees onto the buses and that there were policemen on board of each of the buses, who helped them to cross the roadblocks on their way to Rango Forest.¹³⁴¹⁸

5083. The Chamber believes there are some credibility issues with regard to Defence Witness D-1-4-0. This witness was added to the Kanyabashi Defence witnesses' list at a late stage of the trial on 24 April 2008.¹³⁴¹⁹ The Chamber notes that Witness D-1-4-0 was a Hutu and that he was chosen to be the health attendant at Rango Forest directly by Kanyabashi. This indicates the witness might have had a prior relationship with Kanyabashi.¹³⁴²⁰ Further, in the Chamber's view, Witness D-1-4-0 might have had personal reasons to lie since he was involved in the transfer. The Chamber considers these factors impact the witness' credibility and will therefore not rely on his evidence. This leaves the testimony of Witness D-2-10-Y alone supporting the assertion that the transfer was not forceful. However, considering that his evidence is uncorroborated, and having weighed all the evidence by Prosecution witnesses as outlined above, the Chamber does not find the testimony of Witness D-2-10-Y credible in relation to this issue.

5084. In light of the foregoing, the Chamber is convinced that “guards”, including members of the Interahamwe, supervised the boarding of the buses. Further, the Chamber finds the evidence sufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the environment in which the transfer was carried out was coercive and the refugees had no other choice than to board the buses.

3.6.48.4.4 Events at Rango

5085. Prosecution Witnesses SS and SJ testified that the refugees were taken to a fenced forest where they were guarded by the Interahamwe.¹³⁴²¹ Witness SS further stated that during their stay at Rango Forest the refugees were supervised regularly by two Interahamwe in civilian clothes: Fidèle, who was armed with rifles, and Alexi.¹³⁴²² They were assisted by other Interahamwe at night.¹³⁴²³ Likewise, Prosecution Witness SD testified that upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi instructed the Interahamwe to protect the refugees and to inform him if any of the refugees died. Among the Interahamwe was Fidèle, who carried a gun and two others who carried clubs, knives and grenades.¹³⁴²⁴

5086. Nteziryayo’s account corroborates these testimonies in part, stating that the refugees were provided guards for their safety.¹³⁴²⁵ Further corroboration came from the testimony of Defence Witness D-1-4-0, who stated that Fidèle was a guard on duty at Rango Forest, who was in charge of security and assisted in the distribution of supplies, along with another person, Gashirabake.¹³⁴²⁶ The Chamber recalls there are some credibility concerns in relation to Witness D-1-4-0 and it will therefore not rely on his testimony with regard to this issue. The Chamber further notes that only one Defence witness, Witness D-2-10-Y, challenged the testimony of the Prosecution witnesses in relation to the presence of the Interahamwe at Rango Forest.¹³⁴²⁷ Witness D-2-10-Y testified that there was no Interahamwe staying at Rango Forest with the refugees,¹³⁴²⁸ but at some point two Interahamwe, known as Gikongoro and Ngoma, came.¹³⁴²⁹ This testimony is uncorroborated and therefore the Chamber will not rely on it.

5087. In light of all the evidence presented, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that members of the Interahamwe guarded the refugees at Rango Forest.

5088. Prosecution Witness SU testified that refugees were put in a shed and confined within a fenced area at Rango Forest.¹³⁴³⁰ Defence Witness D-1-4-0 disagreed with Witness SU and testified that the refugees stayed outside on the verandas and corridors as the buildings were locked up.¹³⁴³¹ These testimonies are not corroborated and therefore the Chamber cannot make a determination on this issue. However, having considered all the evidence before it, the Chamber is convinced that the refugees, whether in a shed or outdoors, were confined in an enclosure and prevented from crossing the fence.¹³⁴³²

5089. Several Prosecution witnesses gave congruent testimony with regard to beatings taking place at Rango Forest. Witness TA testified that during the time spent at Rango Forest the few Interahamwe present beat the refugees.¹³⁴³³ Witness RE testified that the Interahamwe beat the refugees during the day and raped women and girls at Rango Forest.¹³⁴³⁴ Similarly, Witness FAP testified that she and other refugees were living under the trees and were regularly covered with sacks and beaten on their stomachs at Rango Forest.¹³⁴³⁵ Additionally, the Chamber observes that Defence Witness D-2-10-Y corroborated Witness FAP's testimony, stating that he witnessed one incident in which an Interahamwe known as Gashirabake (who was the other person in charge of the security of the refugees beside Fidèle) put several persons in a bag and beat them up.¹³⁴³⁶ Prosecution Witness FAP further stated that Fidèle witnessed the beatings but did nothing to prevent them.¹³⁴³⁷ One of the refugees suffered a miscarriage as a result of the beatings.¹³⁴³⁸ Witness SD corroborated this evidence, testifying that Fidèle did not respect Kanyabashi's instructions to protect the refugees. She said that they were beaten and one woman miscarried.¹³⁴³⁹ Finally, Witness TK testified that the Interahamwe present at Rango Forest were the same who were at the BPO and they "continued their work, which was to kill."¹³⁴⁴⁰ However, the witness only noticed one man disappearing and she never saw him afterwards.¹³⁴⁴¹

5090. Only one Prosecution witness, Witness QY, testified that refugees at Rango Forest were not attacked, but instead stated that the gendarmes, including Alexis and Fidèle, were instructed not to attack the refugees and to report any deaths.¹³⁴⁴² The Chamber does not discount Witness QY's testimony and believes that she might not have witnessed or experienced any maltreatment herself. However, in light of the consistency among the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAP, RE, TA, TK and SD, the Chamber finds their account credible, that refugees were beaten by Interahamwe at Rango Forest and that one woman miscarried.

5091. The Chamber also heard evidence from numerous Prosecution witnesses to the effect that the refugees at Rango Forest endured deplorable conditions, were not given food or water, and lacked sanitary and medical care.¹³⁴⁴³ Prosecution Witnesses FAP, RE, QBP, SD, SS, TA and TK testified that the only attempt by a white priest to feed them was stopped by some members of the Interahamwe.¹³⁴⁴⁴ Prosecution Witnesses SS and SD testified that blankets were distributed, but the Interahamwe took them back.¹³⁴⁴⁵ Witness SS further stated that at some point in time, doctors had come, however they did not give medical attention to anyone.¹³⁴⁴⁶ Prosecution Witnesses SS and FAP also testified that, on a couple of occasions, the refugees were accompanied by Fidèle to fetch water from the Mukura River, but they had to stop because they discovered rotting corpses being eaten by maggots there. Thereafter, they dug holes to gather rain water for drinking.¹³⁴⁴⁷

5092. The Chamber notes that a significant amount of congruent evidence from Prosecution witnesses exists concerning the maltreatment to which the refugees at Rango Forest were subject, even in relation to details and specific events. Thus, the Chamber finds their account credible.

5093. The Chamber also heard from Prosecution Witnesses FAP and SD that some orphans or sick children among the refugees were fed.¹³⁴⁴⁸ The Chamber considers their evidence credible, particularly in light of the fact that Witnesses FAP and SD were refugees themselves. They did not have any reason to lie about the fact that some refugees were provided with care. In light of all the evidence, the Chamber believes that some orphans or sick children among the refugees at Rango Forest were fed.

5094. The Chamber further notes that Prosecution Witness TK testified that during their stay at Rango Forest, the refugees only survived due to the help of refugee women who had been forced to marry Interahamwe and who shared the food they received from them [Interahamwe].¹³⁴⁴⁹ Nonetheless, she testified that some of the refugees died from hunger and cholera.¹³⁴⁵⁰ Likewise, according to Prosecution Witness SS, two or three deaths occurred due to illness.¹³⁴⁵¹ This evidence was corroborated by Defence Witness D-2-10-Y's account that three persons died of illness during their stay at Rango Forest; the witness was not aware that any other person died during that time.¹³⁴⁵²

5095. Nteziryayo challenged the testimony of several Prosecution witnesses, including Witnesses SD, TK and RE. He testified that refugees at Rango Forest were not beaten up, there were no cases of maltreatment reported by the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs, and none of the refugees were killed.¹³⁴⁵³ Nteziryayo further testified that as the préfet he received an update of the situation at Rango Forest on a daily basis and was personally satisfied that the transfer to Rango Forest was aimed at improving the situation of those refugees and making it "more humane". Therefore, it would have been contradictory if people had maltreated them at the same time.¹³⁴⁵⁴ In addition, while challenging the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses RE, QBP, SS and TK specifically, Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were looked after by the "religious" as well as humanitarian organisations. Nteziryayo said the refugees were provided with health care and food. He denied that the authorities refused to let a white person distribute food among the refugees.¹³⁴⁵⁵ According to Nteziryayo, the situation of the refugees at Rango Forest was better than at the BPO courtyard.¹³⁴⁵⁶ Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were still living under "minimal living conditions", but at least they were in a fenced place with shade and were protected.¹³⁴⁵⁷

5096. Defence Witness D-1-4-0 supported Nteziryayo's account, stating that he never witnessed any assault on the refugees,¹³⁴⁵⁸ and did not hear any of them complaining that they had been beaten up at Rango Forest during the time he treated them at the Rango Holy Cross Centre.¹³⁴⁵⁹ Witness D-1-4-0 only learned that on one occasion people coming from outside attempted to get in to assault the refugees, but they were repelled by Fidèle.¹³⁴⁶⁰ This evidence is corroborated by Witness D-2-10-Y's testimony.¹³⁴⁶¹ Defence Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y further testified that food supplies, blankets, soap and medical attention were provided to the refugees.¹³⁴⁶² They also stated that the refugees had access to clean water which they fetched from a place called Mpazi, led by Fidèle.¹³⁴⁶³ Witness D-1-4-0 also testified that the refugees cooked for themselves and they could also fetch firewood in the vicinity.¹³⁴⁶⁴

5097. The Chamber notes the consistency between the testimony of Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y. However, in relation to their evidence that Fidèle was a guard in charge of security at Rango Forest and that he also repelled an attack by Interahamwe coming from outside, the Chamber notes that it was not presented with any evidence indicative of acts of violence on behalf of Fidèle himself towards the refugees. On the other hand, sufficient evidence established that members of the Interahamwe beat the refugees, whether or not Fidèle was aware of it. In addition, the Chamber recalls there are credibility issues in relation to Witness D-1-4-0 concerning the events at Rango Forest, and observes that Nteziryayo's account on this matter, which only partially corroborates the testimony of Witnesses D-1-4-0 and D-2-10-Y, is hearsay.

5098. Thus, having weighed all the evidence before it, the Chamber finds the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that, during their stay at Rango Forest some refugees were subject to physical violence, including beatings, on behalf of members of the Interahamwe. In light of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber also finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the refugees at Rango Forest endured deplorable living conditions. Although there had been occasions when humanitarian organisations or refugee women married to Interahamwe distributed food to the refugees, they were nevertheless deprived of food by the authorities. As a result of these conditions of mistreatment and violence, some of the refugees died.

5099. In relation to the purpose of the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest, the Chamber recalls Witness TA's testimony that the transportation was decided upon during a meeting held at the MRND Palace, on the grounds that "that place was beginning to stink because of [the] presence [of the refugees]." ¹³⁴⁶⁵ She also testified that the refugees were going to be killed and that their bodies "will be laid on the body of Habyarimana after he is buried". ¹³⁴⁶⁶ The Chamber also heard from Prosecution Witness QBP, who testified that the refugees were told they would be taken to Rango Forest because they were hindering the operations of the préfecture and were causing problems at the BPO. ¹³⁴⁶⁷ Similarly, Des Forges testified that she learned from Nsabimana that the refugees had been a problem and no one wanted to take responsibility, so they were sent away from the BPO. ¹³⁴⁶⁸

5100. Prosecution Witnesses FAP and RE partly corroborate this account. They testified that they were informed that Nteziryayo did not want "dirt" in front of his office, and they understood this as referring to the "Tutsi". ¹³⁴⁶⁹ Prosecution Witness RE stated that Kanyabashi gave instructions to the Interahamwe to take good care of the refugees, because they were going to be presented to the international community, but that they would be killed on 5 July. ¹³⁴⁷⁰ Nteziryayo challenged this testimony, ¹³⁴⁷¹ and stated that he had to take care of the refugees at Rango Forest and make sure they would not be attacked by anyone; for this, he sought support of humanitarian organisations. ¹³⁴⁷² Defence Witness WMKL supported Nteziryayo's account, stating that he heard from Kanyabashi that the refugees were to be transferred away, so that they could not be the object of any intimidation. ¹³⁴⁷³ Also Prosecution Witness QY testified that, once at Rango, Kanyabashi instructed the two Interahamwe that the refugees were not to be killed and that it should be reported to him if anyone was to die. ¹³⁴⁷⁴

¹³⁴⁷⁴ T. 19 March 2003 p. 64 (Witness QY).

5101. The Chamber notes the consistency between the testimonies of Prosecution Witnesses FAP and RE, and finds their account credible, namely that the refugees were informed they would be killed shortly. The Chamber also believes the testimonies of Witnesses QY and WMKL to the extent that what was made public to the eyes of the international community was that the refugees would be transferred for their own safety. However, having weighed all the evidence, the Chamber considers this might have been part of the strategy to improve the international community's perception of the authorities in Rwanda and hide their true intentions, which were to get rid of the Tutsi refugees.

5102. In this regard, the Chamber has also considered that several Prosecution witnesses, in particular Witnesses SS, FAP, SD, SU and QBP, testified that pits were dug at Rango Forest in order to bury the refugees.¹³⁴⁷⁵ Witness SU even stated that the refugees were asked to go inside the pits to see if they could fit in them.¹³⁴⁷⁶ This account is partly corroborated by the testimony of Witnesses D-2-10-Y and Witness D-1-4-0, who also testified that refugees dug three latrine pits, assisted by Fiddle and Gashirabake;¹³⁴⁷⁷ however, he stated he was not aware that any pits were dug in order to bury the refugees.¹³⁴⁷⁸ Similarly, Nteziryayo testified that the refugees were not thrown into mass graves nor was there a plan to do so.¹³⁴⁷⁹ The Chamber however recalls that Nteziryayo gave hearsay evidence on this issue.

5104. Having considered all the evidence before it, the Chamber is convinced that at least two pits were dug at Rango Forest, and that the refugees were told they would be buried in them, in early July 1994. In relation to the transport to Rango Forest, the Chamber finds the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that the ultimate purpose of this transfer was to kill the Tutsi refugees. Further, in light of all the evidence the Chamber is satisfied that the refugees were rescued by the Inkotanyi of the RPF in early July 1994.

3.6.48.4.5 Involvement of the Accused

5105. The Prosecution presented compelling evidence indicating that Kanyabashi was involved in the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest. Witnesses RE, QY, QBP and QBQ testified that Kanyabashi accompanied the convoy of refugees to Rango Forest.¹³⁴⁸² Similarly, ¹³⁴⁸² T. 24 February 2003 p. 32 (Witness RE); T. 25 March 2003 p. 70 (Witness QY); T. 24 October 2002 pp. 88-89 (Witness QBP); T. 3 February 2004 p. 24 (Witness QBQ); T. 4 February 2004 p. 15 (Witness QBQ).

Witness SD testified that Kanyabashi was present at the BPO when the transfer was organised and that he accompanied the convoy of refugees all the way to Rango Forest.¹³⁴⁸³ Des Forges stated that Kanyabashi supervised the move.¹³⁴⁸⁴ Witness FAP testified that Kanyabashi was already present at Rango Forest when the refugees arrived.¹³⁴⁸⁵

5106. Defence Witness D-1-4-0's testimony corroborated this evidence. He testified that he heard refugees saying that Kanyabashi "had been of service to them because he had transported them from the préfecture ... and he had even accompanied them in the buses".¹³⁴⁸⁶ Similarly, Defence Witness D-2-10-Y stated that the refugees boarded the buses in Kanyabashi's presence and that, upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi was there.¹³⁴⁸⁷ Nteziryayo testified that Kanyabashi was involved in the transport of the refugees to Rango Forest, along with the sous-préfet in charge of social affairs.¹³⁴⁸⁸ The Chamber recalls the credibility issues in relation to Witness D-1-4-0, and it is also mindful that Nteziryayo's testimony on this issue is hearsay and that he is a co-Accused in this case. However, in light of the considerable amount of corroborating evidence by Prosecution witnesses, the Chamber finds Witness D-1-4-0's and Nteziryayo's accounts credible with respect to Kanyabashi's involvement in the transfer of the refugees to Rango Forest.

5107. Having considered all the evidence before it, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi carried out the transfer of the refugees, from the departure from the BPO up until their arrival at Rango Forest, with the assistance of the Interahamwe. The Chamber further observes that, as found above, crimes at Rango Forest were committed by the Interahamwe. However, the Chamber notes that the evidence has demonstrated Kanyabashi's presence at Rango Forest only on the day of the transfer, or otherwise for a short while afterwards; the length of Kanyabashi's stay at Rango Forest was not established. Therefore, the Prosecution did not prove that he witnessed or otherwise knew of the beatings and mistreatment of the refugees at Rango Forest by the Interahamwe.

5108. In addition to Kanyabashi's role in coordinating and supervising the transfer as found above, the Chamber heard from Prosecution Witness RE that once at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave instructions to the Interahamwe to watch over the refugees, stating that this was only for the purpose of showing them to the international community, whereas they were going to be killed on 5 July.¹³⁴⁸⁹ Similarly, Prosecution Witness FAP testified that at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave instructions to the person in charge of the refugees, in order to ensure their safety, although their fate was sealed on 5 July.¹³⁴⁹⁰ Prosecution Witness SD also testified that upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi instructed the Interahamwe to protect the refugees and to inform him if any of the refugees died.¹³⁴⁹¹ The Chamber finds these testimonies reliable and concludes it has been established that upon arrival at Rango Forest, Kanyabashi gave orders to the Interahamwe as to how to deal with the refugees.

3.7 Training and Arming the Population, Roadblocks and Civil Defence

3.7.1 Training by Kanyabashi

3.7.1.1 Introduction

5109. Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 of the Kanyabashi Indictment allege that between March and June 1994, Kanyabashi facilitated and assisted the military training of militiamen and certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma commune.¹³⁴⁹²

5110. As part of the charge of conspiracy to commit genocide against Kanyabashi, the Prosecution submits that between February and July 1994, Kanyabashi used his position and power to provide and participate in training civilians and militia groups, namely young Hutu men under the age of 40. They were trained in the use of weapons at the commune stadium in Ngoma commune. In doing so, Kanyabashi exercised effective control over those persons.¹³⁴⁹³ These individuals went on to carry out attacks against Tutsi civilians, and thus participated in the preparation of the genocide.¹³⁴⁹⁴ In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAH, FAI, QG, FAM and Expert Witness Des Forges.

5111. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Paragraphs 5.12 and 6.31 of the Kanyabashi Indictment do not allege a crime, as the training of civilians is not a crime.¹³⁴⁹⁵ It asserts that Kanyabashi did not participate or instigate the military training of civilians in Ngoma commune. The Kanyabashi Defence asserts that the training of civilians took place in June 1994 and was a legitimate exercise in self-defence in light of the RPF's advance into Butare.¹³⁴⁹⁶ In support of its submissions the Kanyabashi Defence relies on the testimony of Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens.

5112. The Kanyabashi Defence further submits that the Kanyabashi Indictment is vague and fails to identify Kanyabashi's alleged subordinates and the dates and circumstances of the alleged training.¹³⁴⁹⁷ The Chamber recalls that the Kanyabashi Defence first raised this issue in its Preliminary Motion for Defects in the Form of the Indictment on 9 October 1999. The Kanyabashi Defence requested that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 among others, be deleted on account of their imprecision and vagueness and, in particular, due to the failure to identify his alleged subordinates and provide specific time references.¹³⁴⁹⁸

5113. The Kanyabashi Defence further submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution lacks credibility.¹³⁴⁹⁹ It asserts that Witness QG is part of a group of persons who fabricated testimony,¹³⁵⁰⁰ and that Witnesses QAH and FAM incited their co-detainees to implicate Kanyabashi.¹³⁵⁰¹ In addition, the testimonies of Prosecution Expert Witnesses Des Forges and Guichaoua fail to establish the criminal involvement of Kanyabashi in training civilians.¹³⁵⁰²

5114. In support of these submissions, the Kanyabashi Defence relies on the testimony of Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens, Kanyabashi Defence Witnesses D-2-YYY, D-2-13-D, D-2-21-T, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo.

3.7.1.2 Preliminary Issues

5115. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that the Kanyabashi Indictment is vague, fails to identify Kanyabashi's alleged role in the training, his subordinates and the dates and circumstances of the alleged military training.¹³⁵⁰³ Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 do not specify dates, places, nor identify the people whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have trained.

5116. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.12 and 6.31 of the Kanyabashi Indictment make a general accusation that Kanyabashi facilitated the training of certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma commune between March and June 1994. The relevant paragraphs contain a broad date range, vague reference to venue, and fail to specify the nature of Kanyabashi's participation in the training. The Chamber therefore finds that the Indictment is defective.

5118. In the summary of his anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief, Witness QG stated that after seeing Kanyabashi's visit to the conseiller in his secteur, the conseiller said that he had been ordered by Kanyabashi to select Hutus to be sent for training in the use of rifles and traditional weapons. Neither the location of the training nor the time frame is specified in Witness QG's summary. The summary further stated that Witness QG would testify that he heard from people who were trained that Kanyabashi asked for the training to be done by military trainers from the École des Sous Officiers ("ESO").¹³⁵⁰⁴

5119. Witness QG's previous statement of 12 June 1996, disclosed to the Defence on 13 December 2001, over three years prior to his testimony, contains further details of the allegation. Witness QG stated that the visit by Kanyabashi to the conseiller took place at the end of March 1994 in Ngoma commune and that the training took place in Huye Stadium by

ESO trainers before being moved to Kamena Stadium.¹³⁵⁰⁵ The Chamber finds that the substance of Witness QG's previous statement is consistent with the summary of its anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief with regard to a location and time frame for the alleged training allegation.

5120. Furthermore, the summary of Witness QAH's anticipated testimony mentions that the cellule conseiller came to see civilians with a list of those to train at Kamena Stadium. The summary does not specify in which cellule or commune the recruitment is alleged to have taken place. The summary further states that five days later, those who underwent the training met Kanyabashi. The Chamber observes that while the site of the training is contained in the summary, the identity of the trainees and the recruiters is not specified, nor is the month of the alleged training. Furthermore, Kanyabashi's alleged role in the training is not specified. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution provided the Defence with additional information in Witness QAH's previous statements of 28 October 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000.¹³⁵⁰⁶ In this statement, Witness QAH stated that in April 1994, the cellule conseiller recruited civilians for military training at Kamena Stadium. In his subsequent statement of 11 April 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 23 May 2001, almost three months before his testimony before the Tribunal, Witness QAH stated that he underwent training at the end of May 1994 after Kanyabashi had instructed that all members of the cellules and all men under the age of 40 receive weapons training.

5121. Taking into consideration the contents of the Pre-Trial Brief and previous statements of Witnesses QG and QAH, the Chamber concludes that the Kanyabashi Defence was provided with timely, clear and consistent notice of his alleged role in facilitating the training of civilians in Ngoma commune such that the Accused suffered no prejudice in the preparation of his defence.

5122. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Prosecution Witness FAI was not expected to testify against Kanyabashi insofar as the summary of Witness FAI's testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention Kanyabashi.¹³⁵⁰⁷ The Chamber recalls the Kanyabashi Defence was first informed of Witness FAI's intention to testify against Kanyabashi through his statement of 28 January 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 6 June 2002.¹³⁵⁰⁸ In its Decision on Kanyabashi's motion to exclude Witness FAI's testimony, dated 6 July 2002, the Chamber ruled that, since the information on which FAI was going to testify was additional information discovered during the course of further investigations by the Prosecution, no basis existed to bar Witness FAI from giving evidence in court. The Chamber further ruled that, although the Prosecution had made late disclosure of Witness FAI's 28 January 2001 statement, the Kanyabashi Defence had three months to prepare for cross-examination of Witness FAI, and therefore Kanyabashi had adequate notice of the charges against him and suffered no prejudice from such late disclosure.¹³⁵⁰⁹ In the present circumstances, the Chamber sees no reason to depart from its earlier ruling.¹³⁵¹⁰

5123. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief did not mention Witness FAM's intention to testify regarding Kanyabashi's alleged role in facilitating training.¹³⁵¹¹ FAM did not mention Kanyabashi in relation to military training in his previous statement of 24 February 2000. He testified that this was because he was detained with Kanyabashi's children at the time.¹³⁵¹² However, he mentions Kanyabashi in relation to other allegations, including the erection of roadblocks and the murder of Tutsis, in his previous statement of 24 February 2000.¹³⁵¹³

5124. The Chamber finds that the material facts to which Witness FAM testified regarding the present allegation were set out in the Pre-Trial Brief and the witness statements as set out above. Furthermore, the Defence cross-examined Witness FAM over the course of four days. The Chamber notes that Witness FAM is illiterate but gave detailed testimony regarding the site, circumstances and identification of those who allegedly underwent training. The Chamber therefore finds the fact that he testified that the training took place in February 1994 will not preclude the Chamber from considering his testimony on this allegation, insofar as it may lend weight to credible witness testimony regarding Kanyabashi's role in training between March and June 1994.

5125. The Chamber finds that the Kanyabashi Defence had adequate notice of the training allegation and did not suffer prejudice from the testimony of Witnesses FAI and FAM on this allegation.

3.7.1.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5126. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that before April 1994, when recruitment was planned for the Rwandan army, the bourgmestre received applications for recruitment.¹³⁵¹⁴ In May 1994, Bourgmestre Kanyabashi sent written instructions to Conseiller Pascal Habyarimana, ordering men under the age of 40 years to learn how to manipulate weapons.¹³⁵¹⁵ Witness QAH confirmed that such instructions would ordinarily be in writing and that in his capacity, he personally saw this letter.¹³⁵¹⁶

5127. The civil defence training programme in Ngoma commune did not start until the end of May 1994 and continued until mid-June 1994.¹³⁵¹⁷ The criteria for selecting those who were to attend the training were age and ethnicity.¹³⁵¹⁸ He recollected that his conseiller told the group that no Tutsis could participate in the training.¹³⁵¹⁹ On receipt of the conseiller's instructions, the witness recruited 35 young men from his secteur and they walked to the Ngoma commune office to undergo military training.¹³⁵²⁰ On arrival at about 7.30 a.m., they found Kanyabashi and some policemen who directed them to Kamena Stadium where the training was to take place.¹³⁵²¹ The training lasted nine or 10 days in total. There were also other training centres at Huye Stadium and the ESO.¹³⁵²²

5128. Witness QAH testified that he had known Kanyabashi since 1975.¹³⁵²³ Before 1994, he saw Kanyabashi regularly even though he never spoke to him, because he considered Kanyabashi to be a person of authority, namely the bourgmestre of the witness' commune.¹³⁵²⁴ The witness identified Kanyabashi in court.¹³⁵²⁵

Prosecution Witness FAI

5129. Witness FAI, a Hutu former civil servant currently detained in Rwanda testified that during the genocide, the bourgmestres received instructions to encourage youths to undergo training and that these youths volunteered for training in Ngoma commune.¹³⁵²⁶ The training took part in an old building in Ngoma commune opposite the Court of First Instance.¹³⁵²⁷ He saw approximately 60 youths who were undergoing or had undergone training.¹³⁵²⁸ The responsibilities of the bourgmestres included following up on the youths who had gone to be trained to see how they were doing in their training, and encouraging them and boosting their morale.¹³⁵²⁹

5130. The training centre was under the responsibility of Jean Baptise Ruzindaza, the President of the Court of First Instance, and the training exercises were supervised by instructors from the ESO military college.¹³⁵³⁰ The training was military in nature and involved physical fitness and the handling of weapons.¹³⁵³¹ The youths were taught how to assemble, disassemble and aim guns.¹³⁵³² Those who received training were not civilians, as they carried weapons, but they were not soldiers either.¹³⁵³³ They were Ibisumizi and there was no difference between them and the Interahamwe.¹³⁵³⁴

Prosecution Witness QG

5131. Witness QG, a Tutsi from Ngoma commune, testified that two to four days after the death of Habyarimana, Kanyabashi came to meet with the conseiller at the secteur office.¹³⁵³⁵ The witness did not attend this meeting, he learned about it from Joseph and Safari.¹³⁵³⁶ He learned that after the meeting, the conseiller went to the cellule leaders and the cellule committee and told them to teach young Hutus how to use weapons.¹³⁵³⁷ The weapons training took place at Huye Stadium and Kamena Stadium in Butare.¹³⁵³⁸ Witness QG could not say precisely when the training took place, just that he learned about the training from Joseph and Safari who, along with Mingoti, Antoine, Edouard and Pierre Nsimiyeyezu, were among the youths who received the training.¹³⁵³⁹ Some of those recruited, like Safari and Mingoti, later took part in attacks against Tutsis.¹³⁵⁴⁰

5132. Witness QG testified before the Tribunal that he knew Kanyabashi before April 1994; he recalled seeing Kanyabashi on two occasions after 6 April 1994.¹³⁵⁴¹ He identified Kanyabashi in court.¹³⁵⁴² Witness QG testified that he was told that "nothing was going to happen in Ngoma commune because Joseph Kanyabashi was liked by the Tutsi".¹³⁵⁴³ The witness confirmed that he said something similar in a prior statement.¹³⁵⁴⁴

Prosecution Witness FAM

5133. Witness FAM, a Hutu labourer and detainee in Rwanda, testified that he saw a document from the commune office, signed by Kanyabashi, instructing all young men to register for training.¹³⁵⁴⁵ The training took place in February 1994.¹³⁵⁴⁶ On cross-examination, Witness FAM rejected Defence Counsel's suggestion that the training took place at the end of May 1994, reiterating that those who were trained in the handling of weapons received them in February 1994.¹³⁵⁴⁷ According to the witness, the recruits had to be between 18 and 20 years old.¹³⁵⁴⁸ He did not enroll because he was above the required age and he had a scar on his arm. The training that took place in February 1994 was not related to recruitment for the Rwandan army. He identified the young people who went through the training as Mutakirwa, Anastas, Hitimana, Joseph, Jean Bosco and Dumel, among others.¹³⁵⁴⁹

5134. Witness FAM testified that when the group arrived at the commune office they were boarded on the commune vehicle, known as Ruhumbangegera. The vehicle was driven by the commune's driver, Mathias Nsanzabahizi, and was authorised to move around by a permit signed by the commune authorities. This demonstrated that it was the commune authorities who had organised the transportation for the training.¹³⁵⁵⁰

5135. Confronted with the fact that he did not mention Kanyabashi in relation to military training or the distribution of weapons in his previous statement of 3 August 1998, the witness explained that he did so because he feared for his own safety and that of his family as he was detained with Kanyabashi's children at the time.¹³⁵⁵¹

5136. Witness FAM testified that he had known Kanyabashi since 1985.¹³⁵⁵² He identified him as the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune and identified him in court.¹³⁵⁵³

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5137. Alison Des Forges testified that she had found a letter in the Butare préfecture office from Tharcisse Muvunyi, dated 21 April 1994, asking the bourgmestres to recruit 10 young men per secteur for self-defence training.¹³⁵⁵⁴ Training for civil defence differed from training for the military.¹³⁵⁵⁵

5138. She referred to Prosecution Exhibit 123, a letter from the director of the ISAR to the préfet of Butare and three bourgmestres, including the bourgmestre of Ngoma, regarding training and weapons, dated 25 May 1994, which, in her view, indicated a functioning administrative hierarchy responsible for the recruitment and training of civilians.¹³⁵⁵⁶

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-YYYY

5139. Witness D-2-YYYY agreed with the Prosecution's suggestion that he was aware of young people in Butare town learning how to handle weapons during April and May 1994. The training took place at Kamena Stadium. Kanyabashi did not play any part in the recruitment of youths for this training.¹³⁵⁵⁷

5140. The witness stated that he had known Kanyabashi since 1974 or 1975 which was about when he became the bourgmestre of Ngoma commune.¹³⁵⁵⁸ The witness stated that he was not friends with Kanyabashi and knew him only as the bourgmestre.¹³⁵⁵⁹ However, he stated that he was a fair person who worked hard and did not discriminate against people.¹³⁵⁶⁰ The witness identified Kanyabashi in court.¹³⁵⁶¹

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-D

5141. Witness D-2-13-D, a Hutu mill owner from Rango, testified that during his time at the Butare prison there was a group of people who were trying to incriminate Kanyabashi.¹³⁵⁶² The group included Witnesses FAM and QAH together with a certain Ruvugabigwi from Ruhengeri commune, and Mageza from Gikongoro.¹³⁵⁶³

5142. According to the witness, Mageza, together with Witness FAM, found Witness D-2-13-D in his cell and told him that they that they wanted to recruit him into their community. They said that there was a group that was going to testify against Kanyabashi in Arusha. The witness testified that he told them that he did not know anything about Kanyabashi and asked them to leave.¹³⁵⁶⁴

5143. The witness testified that he had known the bourgmestre, Kanyabashi, for a very long time since Kanyabashi worked at the university teaching hospital in 1974 or 1976.¹³⁵⁶⁵ Kanyabashi was from Mpare secteur, Huye commune.¹³⁵⁶⁶ In 1994, Kanyabashi had been bourgmestre of Ngoma commune for approximately 17 years. The witness clarified that in April 1994, he only saw Kanyabashi on two occasions.¹³⁵⁶⁷ He stated that before the President's accident, he had never attended a meeting with Kanyabashi, but then stated that there were meetings in Tumba, Nkubi, Sahera and Rango. The witness identified Kanyabashi in court.¹³⁵⁶⁸

Ntahobali

5144. Ntahobali testified that at a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994, members of the public requested that the authorities should train them in the use of firearms. Kanyabashi told the audience that he was going to consider the matter of training and firearms with the soldiers, and that he thought that it was the soldiers who were supposed to organise and establish a plan.¹³⁵⁶⁹

Nteziryayo

5145. Nteziryayo was referred to Prosecution Exhibit 115A (Letter from Tharcisse Muvunyi titled: "Recrutement des jeunes pour l'autodéfense populaire", 21 April 1994).¹³⁵⁷⁰ The letter requested that the recruitment be done immediately by the bourgmestre and the commune conseillers and would take place in the commune offices and the training would be provided by commune policemen.¹³⁵⁷¹ Nteziryayo testified that on reading that document when he was préfet of Butare, he understood that the recruitment had been requested by the Minister of Defence through the secteur commander who spoke to the bourgmestre telling him to immediately recruit the persons.¹³⁵⁷² The area commander was responsible for supervising the recruitment.¹³⁵⁷³

5146. Nteziryayo testified that the person responsible for training in Ngoma commune was Chief Warrant Officer Pierre Claver Ntirigira.¹³⁵⁷⁴ Nteziryayo testified that shortly after he had assumed his duties as préfet, he read a letter addressed to the conseiller de secteur signed by Kanyabashi dated 20 June 1994.¹³⁵⁷⁵ The letter invited the conseillers to select youngsters for training as part of the civil defence programme and informing them of an upcoming meeting with those who had undergone firearms training at Huye Stadium on 24 June 1994.¹³⁵⁷⁶ Nteziryayo testified that he saw this letter at the préfecture office in mid- to late June 1994.¹³⁵⁷⁷

Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens

5147. Reyntjens testified that Kanyabashi played a role in the civil defence programme in Butare.¹³⁵⁷⁸ He stated that in Butare, the recruitment of young people for civil defence started around the end of May 1994.¹³⁵⁷⁹ According to him, it is likely that Kanyabashi participated in the recruitment of young people for training in weapons handling in May or June 1994. He testified that by 28 May 1994, Ntyazo commune had already been occupied by the RPF.¹³⁵⁸⁰

5148. Having been shown a letter from the director of the ISAR to the préfet of Butare and three bourgmestres, including the bourgmestre of Ngoma, regarding training and weapons, dated 25 May 1994, Reyntjens agreed that the letter was a request from the director of the ISAR asking the bourgmestres to consider a number of ISAR staff members in the training of civil defence.¹³⁵⁸¹ He disagreed, however, that this letter indicated that Kanyabashi was involved in the selection process for the civil defence training.¹³⁵⁸² ISAR was an agricultural research institute, based in Rubona which was not situated in Ngoma commune.¹³⁵⁸³ He stated that he did not know why this letter was nevertheless directed to Kanyabashi.¹³⁵⁸⁴

5149. Reyntjens was shown a letter dated 20 June 1994 in which Kanyabashi instructed all his conseillers to identify individuals for civil defence training.¹³⁵⁸⁵ The letter mentioned that Kanyabashi would hold a meeting with the trainees on 24 June 1994 at Huye Stadium from 8.00 a.m. and that those who were trained in the handling of weapons should leave their firearms at roadblocks with their colleagues who had not received training.¹³⁵⁸⁶

3.7.1.4 Deliberations

5150. It is not disputed that training of civilians took place in Ngoma commune in June 1994.¹³⁵⁸⁷ It is disputed whether military training took place in Ngoma commune in April and May 1994 and whether Kanyabashi played any role in facilitating the training between April and June 1994.

5151. Witness QAH testified that the training began in May 1994.¹³⁵⁸⁸ Witness QG gave hearsay evidence that military training occurred after the President's death but he was unsure precisely when it took place.¹³⁵⁸⁹ Witness FAI testified that training took place during the genocide but he could not be more specific as to the time frame.¹³⁵⁹⁰ The Chamber observes that Witnesses QAH and FAI were detainees in Rwanda at the time of their testimony.¹³⁵⁹¹ Witness QAH had been sentenced to death at his trial for his participation in the genocide, while Witness FAI had not been sentenced at the time of his testimony.¹³⁵⁹² The Chamber will therefore consider each witness' testimony with appropriate caution.

5152. Witness QAH's testimony is corroborated by Witness D-2-YYYY's hearsay evidence that young people in Butare learned how to handle weapons during May 1994 and Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens' testimony that the recruitment of young people for civil defence started around the end of May 1994.¹³⁵⁹³ Taking all the evidence into consideration, the Chamber finds that the testimony of Prosecution Witness QAH, corroborated by the hearsay testimony of Defence Witness D-2-YYYY and Reyntjens established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that training of civilians in Ngoma commune took place in May 1994.¹³⁵⁹⁴

5153. With respect to the sites of military training in Ngoma commune, Witness QAH testified that he personally attended military training at Kamena Stadium.¹³⁵⁹⁵ This evidence is corroborated by the hearsay testimony of Prosecution Witness QG and Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-YYYY.¹³⁵⁹⁶ The Chamber accepts the hearsay testimony of Witness QAH and QG that Huye Stadium was another site of military training; Witness QAH's testimony is corroborated by Witness QG's hearsay testimony.¹³⁵⁹⁷ In addition, Defence Exhibit 539 (Letter from Kanyabashi to the conseillers of Ngoma commune regarding Civil Defence Training, 20 June 1994) states Kanyabashi's intention to hold a meeting with the trainees on 24 June 1994 at Huye Stadium at 8.00 a.m.¹³⁵⁹⁸ The Chamber considers that the Prosecution has established beyond a reasonable doubt that weapons training also took place at Huye Stadium in Ngoma commune in May and June 1994.

5155. The Chamber notes that Ntahobali testified that at a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994, Kanyabashi responded to the requests of members of the public to be trained in the use of firearms by telling those present that he was going to consider the matter of training and firearms with the soldiers.¹³⁶⁰⁰ The Chamber notes that as a co-Accused, Ntahobali may be motivated to shift blame by attributing responsibility for acts committed during the genocide as being authorised by Kanyabashi. The Chamber will therefore give limited weight to the uncorroborated testimony of Ntahobali on this point (3.6.14.4.2). The Chamber therefore finds that it is not established beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi stated that he would discuss the training of civilians with soldiers at the meeting of 26 April 1994.

5156. With regard to Kanyabashi's alleged role in facilitating the training of civilians in May and June 1994, Witness QAH testified that he personally recruited 35 young men from his secteur to undergo military training and that Kanyabashi directed them to Kamena Stadium where the training took place.¹³⁶⁰¹ Witness QAH also testified that in May 1994, Kanyabashi sent written instructions to Conseiller Pascal Habyarimana ordering men under the age of 40 to learn how to manipulate weapons and that he personally saw this letter.¹³⁶⁰²

5157. The Chamber finds the testimony of Witness QAH, that Kanyabashi instructed his conseillers to recruit young men for training, to be credible. The Chamber observes that QAH's testimony regarding the role of bourgmestres in recruiting and encouraging youths to undergo training from May to June 1994 is corroborated by Witness FAI who testified that the bourgmestres received instructions to encourage youths to undergo training and that it was the bourgmestres' responsibility to follow up on their progress.¹³⁶⁰³

5158. Witness QAH's testimony on Kanyabashi's role in training in his capacity as bourgmestre is further corroborated by the testimony of Witness FAM who testified that he saw a letter signed by Kanyabashi instructing young men to register for training and by Nteziryayo who testified to seeing a letter signed by Kanyabashi containing similar content to that seen by Witness QAH.¹³⁶⁰⁴

5159. The Chamber observes that Witness FAM did not mention Kanyabashi in relation to military training or the distribution of weapons in his previous statement of 3 August 1998. He stated that this was because he feared for his own safety and that of his family as he was detained with Kanyabashi's children at the time.¹³⁶⁰⁵ However, the Chamber notes that he mentioned Kanyabashi in relation to other allegations in his previous statement of 24 February 2000 including the erection of roadblocks and the massacre of Tutsis.¹³⁶⁰⁶ Therefore, the Chamber does not accept his explanation to be credible. Nonetheless, the Chamber finds that Witness FAM's testimony regarding the role of the commune authorities in the training is credible and reliable, despite his insistence that the training took place in February 1994, and lends weight to the eyewitness testimony of Witness FAI. Expert Witness Des Forges gave evidence that a functioning administrative hierarchy which included Kanyabashi was responsible for the training of civilians.¹³⁶⁰⁷ Her testimony further lends weight to the eyewitness testimony of Witness FAI.

5160. The Chamber notes that the Kanyabashi Defence relied on the testimony of Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-D in submitting that Prosecution Witness FAM belonged to a pressure group in prison whose mission was to incriminate Kanyabashi.¹³⁶⁰⁸ Witness D-2-13-D testified that Witness FAM was among a group of three people who approached him in jail, and asked him to join their group in testifying against Kanyabashi. Witness D-2-13-D did not testify that the group members asked him to lie. In fact, when he asked them to leave him because he knew nothing about Kanyabashi's alleged involvement, they apparently did so.¹³⁶⁰⁹ Further, Witness D-2-13-D did not state why he thought the group was preparing to testify falsely against Kanyabashi. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that Witness D-2-13-D's testimony undermines the testimony of Witness FAM.

5161. Witness D-2-13-D also testified that Witness QAH was a member of the group that approached him in jail and asked him to join in testifying against Kanyabashi.¹³⁶¹⁰ Defence Witness D-2-13-D testified that Witness QAH told him that he wished to falsely incriminate

Kanyabashi because he had a long-standing grudge against him.¹³⁶¹¹ The Chamber recalls Witness QAH testified that many years before the genocide he had been employed as a civil servant for several years. He testified that he resigned after a dispute with some colleagues and denies that he was sacked for professional misconduct.¹³⁶¹² Witness QAH, however, testified that he had never spoken to Kanyabashi and only knew him as an authority.¹³⁶¹³ The Chamber attaches more weight to Witness QAH's testimony under oath than hearsay statements attributed to him by another witness. The Chamber recalls Witness D-2-13-D's testimony that when he asked the group to leave him because he knew nothing about Kanyabashi's alleged involvement, they apparently did so. The Chamber finds that Witness D-2-13-D's testimony does not impact the credibility of Witness QAH.

5162. The Defence also adduced evidence through Witnesses D-2-21-T to support the assertion that Prosecution Witness QG was an Ibuka member who participated in meetings where they were asked to falsely accuse Kanyabashi regarding events about which the witness had no personal knowledge.¹³⁶¹⁴ The Chamber finds that because Witness D-2-21-T lacked credibility, as discussed above (3.2.3), her testimony does not undermine the testimony of Witness QG.

5163. Considering the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi, in his capacity as bourgmestre, was responsible for recruiting men for civil defence training in Ngoma commune in May and June 1994.

5164. With respect to the purpose of the training in Ngoma commune, the Chamber recalls the testimony of Witness FAI who testified that those who underwent military training were not civilians but not soldiers either.¹³⁶¹⁵ According to his testimony, those trained were Ibisumizi: there was no difference between them and the Interahamwe.¹³⁶¹⁶ Witness QAH gave hearsay testimony that he was told by the conseiller that no Tutsis could participate in the training.¹³⁶¹⁷ Witness QG gave hearsay evidence that some individuals who underwent the training later took part in attacks against Tutsis.¹³⁶¹⁸ The Kanyabashi Defence asserts that the training of civilians took place in May and June 1994 and was a legitimate exercise in self-defence in light of the RPF's advance into Butare.¹³⁶¹⁹ Expert Witness Reyntjens gave expert evidence that by 28 May 1994, Ntyazo commune had already been occupied by the RPF and the RPF was advancing on Butare.¹³⁶²⁰

5165. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage with respect to the purpose of the military training of civilians in Ngoma commune during May and June 1994. The Chamber will determine the purpose of the training, taking into consideration all the evidence with

3.7.2 Training by Nteziryayo

3.7.2.1 Introduction

5166. Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo facilitated and assisted the military training of militiamen.¹³⁶²¹ Paragraph 6.29 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment further alleges that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, supervised the training of militiamen, at least once with the assistance of Ndayambaje.¹³⁶²² Paragraph 5.12 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment further alleges that Nteziryayo facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma and Nyakizu communes between March and June 1994.¹³⁶²³ The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo was directly involved in facilitating military training in an official capacity to give effect to the genocidal plan.¹³⁶²⁴ In support of its submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAH, FAM, FAI, RV, TO and QAL.

5167. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution failed to adequately inform Nteziryayo of the material facts of the allegations against him. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that all evidence implicating Nteziryayo in the weapons training in Ngoma commune, Ntyazo commune and Butare town should be excluded since it is outside the scope of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.¹³⁶²⁵ In the alternative, the Nteziryayo Defence submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution lacks credibility. The Nteziryayo Defence relies on Defence Witness WUNBJ, Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo.

3.7.2.2 Preliminary Issues

5168. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the evidence relating to Nteziryayo's alleged role in training constituted new material facts not pled in the Indictment.¹³⁶²⁶ It submits the Prosecution failed to adequately set out Nteziryayo's alleged role in the training exercises or the acts or omissions alleged to have been committed by his subordinates.¹³⁶²⁷

5169. The Chamber recalls that the Nteziryayo Defence raised this submission in its Motion for Exclusion of Evidence filed on 23 January 2009. The Chamber further recalls that in its Decision of 25 February 2009, it denied Nteziryayo's Motion and noted that it would address issues relating to alleged defects in the Indictment, vagueness, credibility and the evaluation of evidence in its final deliberations.¹³⁶²⁸ The Chamber will now address the Indictment paragraphs alleging that Nteziryayo conducted military training.

Training in Muganza Commune

5170. Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment contains a general allegation that Nteziryayo facilitated the training of militiamen in the context of a conspiracy to commit genocide. Paragraph 6.29 of the Indictment alleges that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo supervised the training of militiamen. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.1 and 6.29 of the Indictment generally allege that Nteziryayo, along with others, facilitated the training of militiamen but does not identify those that Nteziryayo is alleged to have trained, nor the dates and circumstances of the alleged training. The Chamber therefore finds that Paragraphs 5.1 and 6.29 of the Indictment are unduly vague. Accordingly, the Chamber will proceed to determine whether Paragraphs 5.1 and 6.29 of the Indictment were cured of their defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure.

5171. The Chamber observes that information regarding the circumstances of Nteziryayo's alleged role in facilitating the training of militiamen is contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief through the summary of Prosecution Witness SM's anticipated testimony. Witness SM's expected testimony stated that Nteziryayo was responsible for the training of militiamen with traditional weapons.¹³⁶²⁹ Witness SM's previous statement of 19 June 1995, disclosed to the Defence on 16 October 2001, stated that Nteziryayo came to Muganza commune and taught the men and youth how to handle traditional weapons and organise themselves into ranks in order to attack. In his previous statement of 25 September 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, Witness SM stated that Nteziryayo attended a meeting with commune authorities at which Nteziryayo explained to the militiamen how to use traditional weapons and what to do in case of an attack by the Inyenzi. A banana tree trunk had been stuck in the ground a few metres from the militiamen, who were trained with spears and arrows. He showed them how to aim at the banana trunk, which he compared to an Inyenzi.¹³⁶³⁰

5172. The Chamber notes that the summary of Witness SM's testimony and his previous statements fail to identify the month or months of the alleged training, stating broadly that the training occurred during the genocide. The Chamber considers that as a result, the Nteziryayo Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable it to mount an effective defence. The Chamber therefore finds that the defect in the Indictment with regard to this allegation was not cured of its defect. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training at the Muganza commune office.

¹³⁶²⁸ Nteziryayo, Decision on Alphonse Nteziryayo's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence (TC), 25 February 2009, para. 28.

¹³⁶²⁹ Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief – Appendix; Witness FAQ (28) (did not testify); Witness SM (79) (did not testify).

¹³⁶³⁰ 19 June 1995, Statement of Witness SM, disclosed 16 October 2001; 16 April 1997, Statement of Witness SM, disclosed 23 May 2001; 25 September 1997, Statement of Witness SM, disclosed 4 December 2000. Witness SM did not mention Nteziryayo in his statement of 16 April 1997.

5173. The Chamber observes that there is no mention of Nteziryayo facilitating training at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony and two weeks later at the Muganza commune office in the Indictment, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief or the Prosecution opening statement. The summary of Witness TO's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the witness' intention to testify to this allegation.¹³⁶³¹ Furthermore, TO's previous statements of 8 October 1995, 11 June 1997 and 16 October 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001 do not mention training.¹³⁶³² In the present case, the Chamber considers that the information regarding Ndayambaje's alleged facilitation of training at his swearing-in ceremony, and at a meeting at the Muganza commune office two weeks later, amount to new material facts. The Nteziryayo Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable it to mount an effective defence. As a result, the Chamber finds that it would prejudice the Defence to consider the evidence of Witness TO on these allegations. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support this allegation.

5174. The Chamber recalls that in the summary of Witness QAL's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, Witness QAL stated that she attended a meeting at the Muganza commune office in May 1994 at which Nteziryayo spoke to ask those present if they had prepared their weapons as Nteziryayo had advised. According to the summary, Nteziryayo then told them to sharpen their weapons so that they would be able to kill in one stroke. The people present at the meeting were advised to secure the nails properly in their clubs, and those with bows were advised to pull the strings well so that the arrows could travel further.¹³⁶³³

5175. No mention was made in the summary that Witness QAL intended to testify that Nteziryayo facilitated or participated in training at the Muganza commune office. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that the summary of Witness QAL's anticipated testimony provided the Nteziryayo Defence with adequate notice that he was alleged to have facilitated training at the Muganza commune office in late June or early July 1994. Furthermore, none of Witness QAL's previous statements disclosed to the Defence indicated his intention to do so. The Chamber therefore concludes that it would prejudice the Defence to consider the evidence of Witness QAL on this allegation. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training at the Muganza commune office at the end of June or beginning of July 1994.

Training in Ngoma and Nyakizu Communes

5176. Paragraph 5.12 of the Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the civilian population between March and June 1994 in Ngoma and Nyakizu communes. The Chamber notes that while the Indictment specifies the specific communes in which Nteziryayo is alleged to have facilitated training and a period of four months, it does not identify the members of the civilian population Nteziryayo is alleged to have trained, nor the specific dates or circumstances of the alleged training. The Chamber therefore finds that Paragraph 5.12 of the Indictment is unduly vague and insufficient to enable Nteziryayo to prepare his defence. Accordingly, the Chamber will proceed to determine whether Paragraph 5.12 of the Indictment was cured of its defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure.

5177. The Chamber observes that the summary of Witness QAH's anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief stated that Witness QAH intended to testify that he completed his military training under the supervision of Nteziryayo at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune and that Nteziryayo taught the men how to dismantle and assemble guns.¹³⁶³⁴ Furthermore, the Prosecution provided the Nteziryayo Defence with additional substantive information of the allegation through Witness QAH's previous statements of 28 October 1997 disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, and 11 April 2001 disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001, three years before Witness QAH testified in April 2004.¹³⁶³⁵

5178. In his previous statement of 28 October 1997, Witness QAH stated that: (1) he underwent training at Kamena Stadium; (2) Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira were the instructors; (3) the recruits were taught to handle guns, grenades and camouflage technique; (4) Nteziryayo taught the recruits how to assemble and disassemble gun parts; and (5) weapons were distributed to the trainees and five days later the trainees were introduced to General Gatsinzi at a ceremony at the Ngoma commune office.¹³⁶³⁶

5179. In his previous statement of 11 April 2001, Witness QAH stated that Nteziryayo trained him in the use of weapons in early June 1994 at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune.¹³⁶³⁷ Witness QAH's previous statement provided that sometime at the end of May 1994, the conseiller, Pascal Habyarimana, acting on the orders of Bourgmestre Kanyabashi ordered all men under the age of 40 years to go for training in guns so that they would be able to protect themselves. Witness QAH stated that he was one of the recruits, that the recruits went to Kamena Stadium where they found Nteziryayo, Warrant Officer Ntirigira and two commune policemen. The training started on 28 May 1994. The trainers had FAL automatic rifles and showed the trainees how to dismantle and assemble the guns and how to use grenades. The trainees were taken to a firing range in a forest near the ESO where they practiced firing guns. The training ended in early June 1994.

5180. The Chamber considers that the information contained in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief and Witness QAH's previous statements is clear and consistent and was disclosed to the Defence in a timely fashion. These materials set forth the specific locations of the trainings, a specific description of the individuals trained and the circumstances regarding these trainings. Therefore, the Chamber finds that Nteziryayo had sufficient notice that he was alleged to have facilitated the training of civilians in late May and early June 1994 at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune and the Defence was not prejudiced in its ability to prepare its case with regard to this allegation.

Exclusion of Evidence of Witness QAH

5181. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that at the time of filing its Closing Brief, its motion requesting the exclusion of portions of evidence of several Prosecution witnesses, including Witness QAH, filed on 23 January 2009, was pending.¹³⁶³⁸ The Chamber observes that on 25 February 2009 the Chamber denied that motion in its entirety. The Chamber considered it was inappropriate to deal with the motion during trial, and chose to decide such issues in its final deliberations.¹³⁶³⁹

5182. Having regard to the Chamber's finding that the Nteziryayo Defence received sufficient notice of the current allegation, the Chamber considers there is no reason to exclude the evidence of Witness QAH. Witness QAH's statements were disclosed two and a half years before Witness QAH testified. For this reason the Chamber considers the Defence had sufficient time to prepare Nteziryayo's defence with regard to this allegation. For the foregoing reasons the Chamber concludes that the evidence on training given by Witness QAH was properly adduced by the Prosecution and thus denies the Defence's request to exclude his testimony.

5183. Witness RV testified that he attended a meeting in Kirarambogo at which Nteziryayo explained that he was responsible for sensitising the population about how to manipulate traditional weapons and for encouraging youths to join the army.¹³⁶⁴⁰ The Chamber notes that it may consider Witness RV's evidence insofar as it may lend weight to Nteziryayo's alleged role in facilitating military training in Ngoma commune, since the Chamber has found that the Defence had sufficient notice of this allegation. It will not consider Witness RV's evidence in respect of any other allegation that Nteziryayo facilitated training.

Other Individual Allegations of Training

5184. In his previous statement of 24 February 2000, disclosed to the Defence on 15 November 2000, Witness FAI mentions Nteziryayo's encouragement of youths to sign up for training at the Butare préfecture office. With regard to the Butare préfecture office as a location at which Nteziryayo facilitated training, the Chamber finds that Witness FAI's mention of Nteziryayo in relation to training in a single previous statement does not constitute clear notice of the allegation. The Chamber therefore concludes that Witness FAI's previous statement did not constitute clear and consistent notice of the allegation that Nteziryayo facilitated training at the Butare préfecture office.

5185. The Nteziryayo Defence also submits that the evidence from Prosecution Witness FAI in respect of the training in the use of weapons opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune should be excluded since it is outside the scope of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.¹³⁶⁴¹ The Chamber observes that neither the summary of anticipated evidence for Witness FAI in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, nor any of Witness FAI's previous statements, mentioned that Witness FAI would testify that Nteziryayo was responsible for military training opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune during the genocide. The Nteziryayo Defence was therefore not given sufficient notice that Nteziryayo was alleged to have facilitated training in this location. The Chamber will not consider the evidence brought by this witness in its deliberations. In any event, the Chamber considers that the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune.

5186. The Chamber also notes that in view of the absence of any mention of training that took place in Nyanza or Ntyazo communes in the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, or the Prosecution opening statement, the Chamber will not consider evidence led at trial relating to these allegations. In any event, the evidence is not sufficient to support a finding that Nteziryayo facilitated training in Nyanza or Ntyazo communes.

3.7.2.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5187. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda, testified that he underwent training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994.¹³⁶⁴² Bourgmestre Kanyabashi sent written instructions to Conseiller Pascal Habyarimana, ordering men under the age of 40 to learn how to manipulate weapons.¹³⁶⁴³ Witness QAH confirmed that such instructions would ordinarily be in writing and that in his capacity, he personally saw this letter.¹³⁶⁴⁴

5188. The civil defence training programme in Ngoma commune did not start until the end of May 1994 and continued until mid-June 1994.¹³⁶⁴⁵ The criteria for selecting those who were to attend the training were age and ethnicity.¹³⁶⁴⁶ He recollected that his conseiller told the group that no Tutsis could participate in the training.¹³⁶⁴⁷ On receipt of the conseiller's instructions, the witness recruited 35 young men from his secteur and they walked to the Ngoma commune office to undergo military training.¹³⁶⁴⁸ On arrival at about 7.30 a.m., the recruits found Kanyabashi and some policemen who directed them to Kamena Stadium where the training was to take place.¹³⁶⁴⁹ The training lasted nine or 10 days in total.¹³⁶⁵⁰

5189. Witness QAH testified that the first time he ever saw Nteziryayo was at Kamena Stadium when he went there for training. The witness, who in 1994 was a military recruit under Nteziryayo, positively identified Nteziryayo in court.¹³⁶⁵¹ There were approximately 250

recruits in total.¹³⁶⁵² Nteziryayo and Senior Warrant Officer Ntirigira were in charge of the training and were assisted by two policemen; Canisius and Cassien.¹³⁶⁵³

5190. Nteziryayo addressed the group and asked them to make sure that there were no Tutsis among them before they began the training.¹³⁶⁵⁴ Nteziryayo told the recruits that the purpose of the training was to counter the enemy.¹³⁶⁵⁵ The training began at 7.30 or 8.00 a.m. and went on until 3.00 p.m. each day.¹³⁶⁵⁶ Nteziryayo came every day to teach the trainees.¹³⁶⁵⁷ Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira taught them how to dismantle and re-assemble weapons, how to shoot and how to use grenades.¹³⁶⁵⁸ One day the recruits were taken below the Ngoma military camp to the firing range where they were taught how to throw grenades and how to identify targets.¹³⁶⁵⁹

5191. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo's role at Kamena Stadium was twofold: he taught them how to operate arms and incited them to hate the Tutsis.¹³⁶⁶⁰ On the first day of training, the witness heard Nteziryayo tell them, "[l]et us look around and make sure there is no Tutsi among us before we begin the training proper".¹³⁶⁶¹ Two days later, Nteziryayo told them again about the wickedness of the Tutsis who were living both in the country and abroad and that the Tutsis living in the country had cattle and money and had made their children available to fight them.¹³⁶⁶²

5192. Witness QAH testified that in early June, as they were being trained, Colonel Cyriaque Habyarabatura of the gendarmerie arrived at Kamena Stadium with a military soldier named Tharcisse Muvunyi. They spoke to Nteziryayo who told them that the Gitarama – Kigali road had been cut off by the RPF. According to Witness QAH, this was the first time he heard that the RPF was going to take over their town. Witness QAH testified that the recruits requested Nteziryayo that they be given guns so they could go fight and he responded that they would be given guns so that they could replace the soldiers who would then go to fight.¹³⁶⁶³

Prosecution Witness RV

5193. Witness RV, a Hutu civil servant in Rwanda and a detainee at the time of his testimony, testified that he attended a meeting in Kirarambogo chaired by Nteziryayo, who was head of civil defence in the region.¹³⁶⁶⁴ Nteziryayo explained that he was responsible for educating the population to manipulate traditional weapons such as bows, arrows and spears and for encouraging youths to join the army.¹³⁶⁶⁵

5194. Witness RV had not heard of civil defence before May 1994.¹³⁶⁶⁶ He stated that in June 1994 soldiers started to desert the army and he heard of the advance of the RPF over the radio. People were encouraged to train in the use of traditional weapons so that they could assist the soldiers. They told the population they would distribute weapons.¹³⁶⁶⁷ The witness stated that Nteziryayo had some relationship with the civil defence force. He saw Nteziryayo at meetings dealing with the issue of personnel for the civil defence force.¹³⁶⁶⁸

Defence Witness WUNBJ

5195. Witness WUNBJ, a detainee in Rwanda, testified that he had undergone weapons training at Kamena Stadium between the middle and end of May 1994.¹³⁶⁶⁹ The training lasted one to two weeks.¹³⁶⁷⁰ During the training the witness learned how to clean, dismantle and reassemble a rifle and how to shoot firearms.¹³⁶⁷¹ The purpose of the training was to assist the army at the front and to provide security within their cellules.¹³⁶⁷² According to the witness, the purpose of the training was not to kill Tutsis but to ensure security. He testified that they were informed at the training that the RPF was the enemy, that they were armed and that they had to learn how to use weapons in order to defend themselves.¹³⁶⁷³

5196. Witness WUNBJ was in the second group of trainees.¹³⁶⁷⁴ Candidates for training were chosen by criteria of physical appearance and good moral reputation.¹³⁶⁷⁵ The training was provided by a soldier.¹³⁶⁷⁶ The witness could not specify whether the candidates were Tutsis or Hutus.¹³⁶⁷⁷ He testified that after the training firearms were distributed to the candidates by a warrant officer, whose name the witness cannot recall.¹³⁶⁷⁸ General Marcel Gatsinzi did not come to Kamena Stadium; however the witness met him after the training outside the commune office.¹³⁶⁷⁹ Along with other participants of the training he was waiting for Gatsinzi because they were told that the general wanted to ask them about the training they had received.¹³⁶⁸⁰ The witness testified that to the best of his knowledge Nteziryayo never attended civil self-defence training.¹³⁶⁸¹

Defence Witness D-2-YYYY

5197. Witness D-2-YYYY, a Hutu civil servant,¹³⁶⁸² testified that he was aware of young people in Butare town learning how to handle weapons during April and May 1994.¹³⁶⁸³ The training took place at Kamena Stadium.¹³⁶⁸⁴ He had not heard of Nteziryayo being involved in training.¹³⁶⁸⁵ He had heard that a chief warrant officer was involved in the training and had seen him on a woman's bicycle; however, he did not know him.¹³⁶⁸⁶

Nteziryayo

5198. Nteziryayo testified that he did not aid, facilitate or encourage youths to receive military training in order to facilitate the killing of Tutsis.¹³⁶⁸⁷ He was never involved in any way with the recruitment of youth; he never asked anybody to recruit youths to be trained for the civil defence in Rwanda.¹³⁶⁸⁸ He was not in a position to give instructions for training, particularly weapons training.¹³⁶⁸⁹ Nteziryayo testified he did not attend any training sessions in weapons handling between April and July 1994.¹³⁶⁹⁰ He never trained members of the population in the handling of arms in Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune nor did he train recruits for Gikongoro and Butare préfectures under the authority of Colonel Simba and Senior Warrant Officers Rekeraho and Ntarugera.¹³⁶⁹¹

5199. Nteziryayo testified that the bourgmestre was responsible for the recruitment of youths for training.¹³⁶⁹² Nteziryayo testified that when he became préfet he saw a document dated April 1994 from the area commander to the commune authorities and the bourgmestre requesting the recruitment of youths.¹³⁶⁹³

3.7.2.4 Deliberations

5200. With respect to the alleged military training of civilians at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune, the Prosecution relied on the testimony of Witness QAH. The Chamber notes that Witness QAH was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony and had been sentenced to death at his trial for his participation in the genocide. The Chamber will therefore approach his testimony with appropriate caution.

5201. Witness QAH testified that, on the conseiller's instructions, he personally recruited 35 young men from his secteur and attended military training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994 with the other recruits.¹³⁶⁹⁴ The Chamber observes that Witness QAH's testimony on this allegation is clear and detailed and finds his testimony on this allegation to be credible. Furthermore, his testimony is corroborated by the first hand testimony of Witness WUNBJ who spent one to two weeks undergoing weapons training at the stadium in mid- to late May 1994, and the hearsay testimony of Witness D-2-YYYY who heard that civilians were undergoing weapons training at Kamena Stadium at this time.¹³⁶⁹⁵ Taking the evidence into consideration, the Chamber finds that the testimony of Prosecution Witness QAH, corroborated by the testimony of Defence Witness WUNBJ and the hearsay testimony of Defence Witness D-2-YYYY establishes, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the training of civilians took place at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune in May 1994.¹³⁶⁹⁶

5202. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo was responsible for the training of civilians at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994. The Chamber observes that Defence Witness WUNBJ underwent training at the same location over the course of one or two weeks between the middle and end of May 1994. Witness QAH's and Witness WUNBJ's testimony regarding the length of the training and its content were generally consistent. Both witnesses testified that the training consisted of learning to assemble, disassemble and shoot firearms and both witnesses agreed that the training was provided by soldiers. The witnesses differed, however, on the involvement of Nteziryayo in the training. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo personally trained the recruits in the handling of firearms while Witness WUNBJ denied that Nteziryayo was involved in the training.

5203. The Chamber finds, however, that Witness WUNBJ's account does not contradict that of Witness QAH. Witness QAH testified that he underwent training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994, while Witness WUNBJ testified that he attended training at the stadium between the middle and end of May 1994.¹³⁶⁹⁷

5204. Witness QAH testified that there were a large number of trainees; approximately 250 recruits in total, while Witness WUNBJ testified that he was in the second group of trainees.¹³⁶⁹⁸ More than one group of trainees was undergoing training at Kamena Stadium and Witness WUNBJ's testimony that Nteziryayo was not involved in his training does not vitiate Witness QAH's testimony that Nteziryayo participated in the training of the recruits that he himself attended. The Chamber considers Witness QAH's testimony that Nteziryayo trained recruits at Kamena Stadium to be clear and detailed and the Chamber finds him credible with regard to this allegation. The Chamber therefore finds that, through the testimony of Witness QAH, the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo facilitated the training of civilians at Kamena Stadium in May 1994.

5205. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage on the purpose of the military training of civilians which took place at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune during May and June 1994. The Chamber will reserve judgement on this issue until a later stage in its

3.7.3 Nteziryayo's Words to Recruits at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma Commune

3.7.3.1 Introduction

5206. Paragraph 5.3 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that the incitement to ethnic hatred and violence was a fundamental part of the plan put in place. The Indictment alleges that the incitement was articulated before and during the genocide by members of the Government and local authorities.¹³⁶⁹⁹ Paragraph 5.8 further alleges that from April to July 1994, Nteziryayo propagated incitement to hatred and violence and publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".¹³⁷⁰⁰ Paragraph 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo, as official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, incited the population to slaughter the Tutsis in Butare préfecture.¹³⁷⁰¹ The Indictment alleges that between April and June 1994 Nteziryayo incited and also aided and abetted the population, including his subordinates, to slaughter the Tutsis in Butare préfecture.¹³⁷⁰²

5207. The Prosecution submits that in June 1994 at Kamena Stadium, Nteziryayo said to the newly trained recruits: "Go and exterminate, go and exterminate, thereafter you can then go to the battle front... You do not sweep dirt and leave it inside the house, you must take it outside of the house".¹³⁷⁰³

5208. The Prosecution contends that Nteziryayo employed these statements as incitement to find and kill Tutsis, and that they resulted in subsequent killings.¹³⁷⁰⁴ The Prosecution further submits that Nteziryayo told these recruits to stop people at roadblocks and check their identity papers because there could be Inyenzi, namely Tutsis, who were to be killed.¹³⁷⁰⁵ The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witness QAH.

5209. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution lacks credibility, and that Witness QAH's identification of Nteziryayo was flawed.¹³⁷⁰⁶

3.7.3.2 Preliminary Issues

5210. Paragraphs 5.8, 6.31, 6.32 and 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relate to incitement and were pled in support of counts. These paragraphs generally allege that Nteziryayo incited the population to kill Tutsis and further indicate that the incitement occurred in Butare préfecture. While these paragraphs allege that Nteziryayo publicly incited people to exterminate Tutsis over a four-month period in Butare préfecture, these paragraphs fail to provide any details of specific incidents of incitement. In particular, no reference is made to incitement occurring at Kamena Stadium or to the fact that this incitement was directed at the recruits trained there. The Chamber therefore finds each of these paragraphs to be defective.

5211. The Chamber must then determine whether Paragraphs 5.8, 6.31, 6.32 and 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment relating to incitement were cured of their respective defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosures.

5212. Recalling the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (2.5.4), the Chamber observes that the witness summary grid in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief lists one witness, Witness QAH, who refers to Nteziryayo's presence at Kamena Stadium in Butare préfecture, during the military training exercises at that location. The summary for Witness QAH further indicates that Nteziryayo taught the men how to dismantle and assemble gun parts, that these men were given weapons in the presence of Nteziryayo, and that these men were later summoned and introduced to Marcel Gatsinzi, Nsabimana and Kanyabashi.¹³⁷⁰⁷

5213. The Chamber notes that this summary does not refer to the alleged statements made by Nteziryayo. While it does refer to Nteziryayo's presence at Kamena Stadium and links him to the training of these recruits, it does not specify as to any alleged inflammatory statements by Nteziryayo at this location, nor does it offer any time frame for this alleged incitement. The Chamber notes that the summary of the intended evidence of Witness QAH provided in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief was listed as being brought in support of Counts 1 (Conspiracy to Commit Genocide) and 3 (Complicity in Genocide) against Nteziryayo, but not Direct and Public Incitement to Commit Genocide. The Chamber therefore considers that the Nteziryayo Defence was not provided with adequate notice of the Prosecution's intention to lead evidence of incitement at Kamena Stadium, and finds that the defects in Paragraphs 5.8, 6.31, 6.32 and 6.53 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment were not cured by subsequent Prosecution disclosures. Accordingly, the Chamber will not consider the Prosecution evidence insofar as it relates to this allegation.

3.7.4 Training by Ndayambaje

3.7.4.1 Introduction

5214. The Ndayambaje Indictment alleges that from late 1990 to July 1994, Ndayambaje conspired with others to devise a plan to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and members of the opposition. The plan was alleged to consist of, inter alia, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen. The Ndayambaje Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje, together with others, adhered to and executed this plan and in doing so, organised, ordered and participated in massacres against Tutsis and moderate Hutus.¹³⁷⁰⁸ Each of the Indictments further alleges that Ndayambaje assisted Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for

Butare préfecture, at least once with the training of the militiamen between April and June 1994.¹³⁷⁰⁹

5215. The Prosecution submits that although Ndayambaje did not himself train the population, training was done during his swearing-in, in his presence and that he acquiesced to, and oversaw the training.¹³⁷¹⁰ The Prosecution also submits that Ndayambaje is responsible for training the population under Article 6 (3).¹³⁷¹¹ In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAU and TO.

5217. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber notes the Ndayambaje Defence submission that the Prosecution adduced no evidence as to Paragraph 6.34 during trial and that the Chamber must not consider this paragraph in its findings.¹³⁷¹³ The Chamber observes that it addressed this matter in its Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis of 16 December 2004. In its Decision, the Chamber found that the evidence led by Prosecution Witness TO, if believed, could be sufficient to sustain a conviction against Ndayambaje on this paragraph of the Indictment and denied Ndayambaje's request for acquittal on this paragraph. The Chamber therefore finds that there is no merit in the Defence's submission.

3.7.4.2 Preliminary Issues

5218. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that Paragraph 5.1 is too vague to adequately inform the Accused of the criminal acts charged or specify the essential elements of the alleged crimes.¹³⁷¹⁴ The Defence recalls that it previously raised objections in its motions on the defects in the form of the Indictment,¹³⁷¹⁵ on acquittal on the basis of Rule 98 bis of the Rules¹³⁷¹⁶ and on exclusion of evidence.¹³⁷¹⁷

5219. The Chamber notes that Ndayambaje's preliminary motion alleged that Paragraph 5.1 of the Ndayambaje Indictment lacked clarity and precision. In particular, it alleged that the time frame was too imprecise, there was no specific mention of the identities of those with whom the Accused allegedly conspired or the capacity in which he acted, and there was no specification as to the components of the conspiracy.¹³⁷¹⁸ The Chamber dismissed the motion on the basis that the Defence had failed to show good cause warranting waiver of the time-bar and did not consider the merits of the application.¹³⁷¹⁹ Regarding Ndayambaje's motion for acquittal under Rule 98 bis, the Defence submitted, inter alia, that Ndayambaje should be acquitted of conspiracy to commit genocide because the Prosecution had failed to adduce evidence that Ndayambaje met, discussed or even knew his alleged co-conspirators.¹³⁷²⁰ The Chamber dismissed Ndayambaje's motion on this point as it considered that the evidence adduced, if believed, could be sufficient for a reasonable trier of fact to find beyond reasonable doubt Ndayambaje's responsibility on the facts pled in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment.¹³⁷²¹ Furthermore, in Ndayambaje's motion on exclusion of evidence, the Defence sought the exclusion of the testimonies or parts of testimonies of 14 Prosecution witnesses because they concerned facts or elements not pled in the Indictment and because it did not have timely notification of those allegations.¹³⁷²² The Chamber denied the motion in its entirety, but observed that some of the matters raised could be considered at a later stage of the proceedings and that issues relating to the credibility and evaluation of testimony should be considered with the totality of the evidence.¹³⁷²³ The Chamber finds that there is no ground to revisit its decision and will address the matters raised in the motion as they arise in the Chamber's deliberations.

5220. The Chamber finds that Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment does not specify the individuals who are alleged to have received the training, the location, date or time, or Ndayambaje's alleged role in facilitating training. For these reasons, the Chamber considers that the Ndayambaje Indictment is defective.

5221. The Chamber will determine whether the Ndayambaje Indictment was cured of its defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure. The Chamber notes that in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, the summary of Witness FAU's anticipated testimony states that Witness FAU saw Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo participating in arms distribution and the training of youths.¹³⁷²⁴ The Prosecution provided the Defence with further details of the allegation through Witness FAU's previous statements of 10 October 1999 and 22 February 2001 which were disclosed to the Defence on 14 March 2001. These statements contained the allegation that Ndayambaje facilitated the training of the witness at the commune office and at Ngoma military camp shortly before the RPF arrived.¹³⁷²⁵ The Chamber considers that the information contained in the statements of Witness FAU was timely, clear and consistent, and therefore sufficient to inform Ndayambaje of the nature of the charges against him and to enable him to prepare his defence. The Chamber therefore finds that the defects in the Indictment were cured through the Prosecution's subsequent disclosure with regard to this allegation, and the Defence suffered no prejudice in the preparation of its case.

5222. The Chamber observes, however, that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the allegation of Ndayambaje facilitating training at his swearing-in ceremony or afterwards at the commune office. The summary of Witness TO's testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the witness' intention to testify to this allegation. Furthermore, there was no mention of training in Witness TO's previous statements of 8 October 1995, 11 June 1997 or 16 October 1997, disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001. The Chamber recalls that in its Decision of 1 September 2006, it denied the Ndayambaje Defence's motion for exclusion of the testimony of Witness TO. The Chamber stated that it was not satisfied that there was a basis to exclude the concerned testimony at that stage of the proceedings but that the matter may be considered at a later stage.¹³⁷²⁶

5223. At this stage, the Chamber considers that the information regarding Ndayambaje's alleged facilitation of training at his swearing-in ceremony, and at a meeting two weeks later, amount to new material facts. The Chamber further considers that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable the Defence to mount an effective defence. As a result, the Chamber finds that it would unduly prejudice the Accused to consider the evidence of Witness TO on these allegations. Therefore, the Chamber will not make a finding on whether Ndayambaje facilitated training at his swearing-in ceremony, and at the commune office two weeks later. In any event, the Chamber notes that the evidence was not sufficient to prove these allegations beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.7.4.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAU

5224. Witness FAU, a Hutu farmer from Muganza commune and a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that he joined the army at Ngoma military camp¹³⁷²⁷ at the end of May or beginning of June 1994.¹³⁷²⁸ Ndayambaje told the witness that if he refused to spill his blood for his country, dogs would drink his blood for free. For this reason, the witness ¹³⁷²⁵ From Witness FAU's prior statement dated 10 October 1999 (disclosed 16 March 2001), it appears Ngoma Foyer and Ngoma hostel are the same place. The English version of the statement reads "Ngoma hostel" and the French version reads "foyer de Ngoma" or Ngoma Foyer.

joined the army and went for training to Ngoma military camp in a vehicle with Ndayambaje.¹³⁷²⁹ At Ngoma military camp, soldiers taught the recruits to manipulate firearms. Prime Minister Kambanda and a priest called Martin came for some celebrations during which a competition was held. The winner received 5,000 francs and the others 2,000 francs. The trainees sang and danced and there were demonstrations in the dismantling and the assembling of guns.¹³⁷³⁰

5225. The training took 12 days but was not completed because the country fell to the RPF.¹³⁷³¹ The witness was told that he had to fight to prevent the country from being run over. He was not sure if the training was to make the recruits into soldiers.¹³⁷³² The witness did not fight in the battles of Butare and Ntyazo on 4 and 6 June 1994 since he had not finished his military training to become a soldier. He wore a military shirt and he participated in some fighting with advancing RPF soldiers until he was chased out of Butare. He subsequently fled to Zaire.¹³⁷³³

3.7.4.4 Deliberations

5226. The Chamber notes that Witness FAU was a detained witness at the time of his testimony, awaiting trial in Rwanda for crimes of extermination and genocide and will treat his evidence with appropriate caution.¹³⁷³⁴

5227. The Chamber notes the existence of numerous discrepancies between Witness FAU's previous statements and his testimony before the Tribunal regarding his participation in military training and subsequent fighting. In his 22 November 2001 previous statement, Witness FAU stated Kambanda visited those undergoing military training on 23 May 1994. In his testimony, he did not say this occurred in May.¹³⁷³⁵ In his previous statement of 30 October 2001, Witness FAU stated that he was a soldier at Ngoma military camp in April 1994. However he testified he was a soldier at Ngoma military camp in June 1994, not April.¹³⁷³⁶ The witness also testified that a number of incidents which his previous statements place as occurring in May, had in fact taken place in June 1994.¹³⁷³⁷ He disavowed the portion of his 30 October 2001 previous statement which indicated that he had killed many people during the war, namely during the battle of Ntyazo on 4 and 6 June 1994. Instead, he testified that he was not present at Ntyazo in June 1994 but that he participated in fighting with the RPF as he fled Butare. He could not say how many people he may have killed.¹³⁷³⁸

5228. The witness explained the discrepancies between his previous statements and his testimony at trial by stating that the investigators had made mistakes in recording his statements.¹³⁷³⁹ In re-examination, the witness stated that his confessions were given in different formats; in some he told the story of the events, while others were a question and answer format, which could explain the differences.¹³⁷⁴⁰ While the Chamber accepts that the dates may have been wrongly recorded by Tribunal investigators, it does not accept the witness' explanation for the substantive discrepancies between his previous statements and his testimony at trial, in particular the witness' indecision over whether or not he participated in the battle of Ntyazo in June 1994 and whether or not he killed anyone during his flight from Butare.

5229. The Chamber also finds that Witness FAU's testimony contained internal discrepancies with respect to this allegation. The witness testified that he was not sure if the military training was for the army, and also that the training went on for about 12 days. On cross-examination he specified that he joined the army and underwent military training for a few days.¹³⁷⁴¹ Perhaps most pertinently, the witness testified that Ndayambaje persuaded him to go for training, whereas on cross-examination he stated that he was enrolled in the army through the secteur conseiller.¹³⁷⁴²

5230. Taking these discrepancies into account, the Chamber finds that Witness FAU is not credible on this allegation and that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje facilitated military training at Ngoma military barracks at the end of May or beginning of June 1994.

3.7.5 Weapons Distribution by Kanyabashi

3.7.5.1 Introduction

5231. The Kanyabashi Indictment alleges that Kanyabashi, along with other persons, was responsible for distributing weapons to militiamen and other members of the civilian population between March and July 1994.¹³⁷⁴³ The Indictment alleges that the purpose of distributing weapons was to exterminate the Tutsi population and eliminate its "accomplices".¹³⁷⁴⁴

5232. The Prosecution submits that in the context of the killings that were already taking place in which the conseillers were involved, Kanyabashi was distributing weapons and ammunition in order to facilitate the killing of Tutsis.¹³⁷⁴⁵ The Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses FAM and QAH, Defence Witness WUNBJ and Expert Witness Des Forges.

5233. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that the Kanyabashi Indictment is vague and fails to identify Kanyabashi's alleged subordinates or the dates and circumstances of the alleged distribution of weapons.¹³⁷⁴⁶ In the alternative, the Kanyabashi Defence submits that the evidence presented by the Prosecution witnesses lacks credibility, and that the Prosecution failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi's distribution of weapons formed part of a criminal enterprise.¹³⁷⁴⁷ The Kanyabashi Defence submits that the events must be placed in context. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that defending one's country when it is at war is not a reprehensible act and that weapons were distributed to conseillers of the secteurs on 28 May 1994 when the RPF was just 30 kilometres from Butare.¹³⁷⁴⁸ The Kanyabashi Defence relies on the testimony of Defence Witnesses D-2-YYY, D-2-5-I, D-2-5-W, Innocent Rutayisire and Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens.

3.7.5.2 Preliminary Issues

5234. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment does not specify the dates, places or circumstances, or identify the people to whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have distributed weapons. The Defence submits that the Indictment is therefore defective and has not been cured.¹³⁷⁴⁹ The Chamber recalls that the Kanyabashi Defence first raised this issue in its preliminary motion for defects in the form of the Indictment on 9 October 1999. The Kanyabashi Defence requested that Paragraphs 5.1 and 5.13, among others, be deleted on account of their imprecision and vagueness and, in particular, due to the failure to identify his alleged subordinates and provide specific time references.¹³⁷⁵⁰ In its Decision of 31 May 2000, the Chamber dismissed the Defence's request to set aside the Indictment for vagueness, but held that the Prosecution must clearly distinguish the acts for which the Accused incurs criminal responsibility under Article 6 (1) of the Statute from those for which he incurs criminal responsibility under Article 6 (3).¹³⁷⁵¹

5235. The Chamber notes the Prosecution's allegation that Kanyabashi distributed weapons forms part of its case in relation to the count of conspiracy to commit genocide. The Chamber considers Kanyabashi's alleged distribution of weapons to be material to the count of conspiracy to commit genocide because it is a key element of the conduct imputed to Kanyabashi and forms the basis of the conspiracy charge. While the Indictment indicates the identities of those to whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have distributed weapons, it does not specify the dates and circumstances of the alleged distribution. The Chamber therefore finds that the information contained in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment did not provide adequate details to enable Kanyabashi to prepare his defence, and therefore considers Paragraph 5.1 of the Kanyabashi Indictment to be defective.

5236. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 5.13 of the Indictment makes a general accusation that Kanyabashi, along with others, distributed weapons to militiamen and certain members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and its “accomplices”. The Indictment identifies the individuals to whom Kanyabashi is alleged to have distributed weapons, but does not indicate the dates or circumstances of the alleged distribution. The Chamber considers that Paragraph 5.13 of the Indictment is unduly vague and insufficient to enable Kanyabashi to prepare his defence. Accordingly, the Chamber will proceed to determine whether Paragraphs 5.1 and 5.13 of the Indictment were cured of their defects through subsequent Prosecution disclosure.

5237. The Chamber notes that the summary of the anticipated testimony of Witness QAH contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief did not mention Kanyabashi’s alleged role in distributing weapons.¹³⁷⁵² However, the Prosecution later disclosed Witness QAH’s prior statement of 11 April 2001 which stated that Kanyabashi was aware of the distribution of weapons in Ngoma commune.¹³⁷⁵³ This statement was disclosed to the Defence on 15 June 2001, almost three years before Witness QAH testified before the Tribunal in April 2004. The Chamber therefore concludes that the Kanyabashi Defence was provided with timely, clear and consistent notice of his alleged role in distributing weapons in Ngoma commune, ensuring that Kanyabashi suffered no undue prejudice in the preparation of his defence.

5238. In addition, further information regarding Kanyabashi’s alleged role in distributing weapons is contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief which provided notice that Kanyabashi would be accused of distributing weapons through the summaries of evidence of four witnesses who did not testify at trial: Prosecution Witnesses FAT, QC, QE and RM.

5239. The summary of Witness FAT’s anticipated testimony stated that Kanyabashi participated in the distribution of arms to the conseillers, including in May 1994.¹³⁷⁵⁴ The summary does not identify in which commune this distribution took place. The Chamber therefore finds that the summary in the Pre-Trial Brief was not sufficient to inform the Defence of the allegation against him. However, Witness FAT’s previous statement of 21 February 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 14 March 2001, stated that the distribution of weapons to the conseillers de secteurs took place in May and June 1994 in Ngoma commune and Butare town. The weapons distributed in May were given to Kanyabashi in order to be distributed to the conseillers.¹³⁷⁵⁵

5240. Witness QC’s summary in the Pre-Trial Brief stated that Kanyabashi was part of the Butare Security Council, which was responsible for civil defence and the distribution of weapons in his commune. Witness QC learned that Kanyabashi was in charge of the weapons in his commune and that he had written to all the secteur chiefs in his commune asking them to designate young Hutus for military training. He saw a Kalashnikov and grenades that a friend got from the commune office.¹³⁷⁵⁶ In addition, the Chamber observes that in his previous statement of 13 June 1996, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, prior to the filing of the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, it was apparent that these events took place in Ngoma commune.¹³⁷⁵⁷ His statement reveals that at the height of the war, Kanyabashi was part of Butare's Security Council and that he had requested the secteur chiefs to designate young Hutus for military training. The time frame clearly fits within April to June 1994, as set out in the Indictment.

5241. Witness QE's summary in the Pre-Trial Brief stated that Kanyabashi regularly visited the home of Habimana, the conseiller of Ngoma commune, and that Witness QE heard Habimana giving instructions to killers. He stated that guns were given to Ngoma secteur for training and that the commune vehicle was used for transporting those being taught to use rifles.¹³⁷⁵⁸ Witness QE's statement of 28 September 1994, disclosed to the Defence on 4 December 2000, prior to the filing of the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, stated that six guns were given to Ngoma secteur to use for weapons training.¹³⁷⁵⁹

5242. Finally, Witness RM's summary in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief stated that one night, he saw Kanyabashi distribute two rifles to the head of the night patrol and his deputy. He understood that Kanyabashi intended that they be used to kill Tutsis.¹³⁷⁶⁰ Witness RM's statement of 18 June 1996, disclosed to the Defence on 13 December 2001, stated that he participated in night patrols in Butare town. One night in June 1994, Kanyabashi came about 6.30 p.m. and distributed two rifles to the head of the patrol and his deputy. During the patrols, Tutsis were killed.¹³⁷⁶¹

5243. Taking into consideration the information contained in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and the disclosure of the previous statements of Witness QAH who testified, and Witnesses FAT, QC, QE and RM who did not testify, the Chamber considers that the Defence had timely, clear and consistent notice that Kanyabashi was alleged to have been responsible for the distribution of weapons in Ngoma commune and Butare town, that he distributed weapons to the conseillers and to others and that the commune office was used to store weapons and the commune vehicle to transport those learning to train individuals to use them. Kanyabashi was thereby informed of the material facts that the Prosecution intended to prove at trial and was able to prepare his defence. The Indictment defect was thereby cured and there was no prejudice in the preparation of his defence case.

5244. With respect to the alleged distribution of traditional weapons by Kanyabashi at Kabakobwa in April 1994, the Chamber observes that this allegation was not pled in the Indictment. The Chamber notes that Prosecution Witness FAM did not mention his intention to testify on this issue in the summary of his anticipated evidence in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief.¹³⁷⁶² Furthermore, there was no mention of Kanyabashi's alleged distribution of traditional weapons at Kabakobwa in Witness FAM's prior statements of 3 August 1998, 18 August 1998 and 24 February 2000 or in subsequent disclosures by the Prosecution. Witness FAM was the only witness to testify to Kanyabashi's alleged distribution of traditional weapons at Kabakobwa. In the circumstances, the Chamber considers that the Kanyabashi Defence did not have notice of this allegation to enable him to mount an effective defence. The Chamber observes that the Kanyabashi Defence objected to Witness FAM testifying to alleged events at Kabakobwa during trial. This matter is considered by the Chamber elsewhere in the Judgement (3.6.8.2). As a result, the Chamber will not consider the evidence of Witness FAM relating to the alleged distribution of traditional weapons by Kanyabashi at Kabakobwa in April 1994.

5245. The Chamber notes that Witness FAM also provided testimony regarding the distribution of firearms at the Ngoma commune office in February 1994. The Chamber considers that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief makes no mention of the alleged distribution of weapons by Kanyabashi in February 1994. The Chamber therefore concludes that the Kanyabashi Defence was not provided with sufficient notice of this allegation.

3.7.5.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5246. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda convicted of genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that he underwent training at Kamena Stadium at the end of May 1994.¹³⁷⁶³ Guns were distributed among the recruits in early June 1994.¹³⁷⁶⁴ About 35 people from the witness' secteur attended the training.¹³⁷⁶⁵ Alphonse Nteziryayo distributed Kalashnikovs to those present, assisted by police officers and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira.¹³⁷⁶⁶ Witness QAH stated that there were about 250 to 260 recruits when the weapons were distributed. They were given the weapons so that they could man the roadblocks as replacements for the regular soldiers who were deployed to fight the RPF.¹³⁷⁶⁷

5247. Witness QAH was employed by Kanyabashi as a tax collector in Ngoma commune between 1975 and 1979. He testified that he resigned after a dispute with some colleagues and denied Defence Counsel's suggestion that he was sacked for misappropriating funds. Witness QAH testified that he had personally never spoken to Kanyabashi and only knew him as an authority in the commune.¹³⁷⁶⁸

Prosecution Witness FAI

5248. Witness FAI, a Hutu former civil servant who was detained in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that during the genocide, the bourgmestres received instructions to encourage youths to undergo training and that these youths volunteered for training in Ngoma commune.¹³⁷⁶⁹ The training took part in an old building in Ngoma commune opposite the Court of First Instance.¹³⁷⁷⁰

5249. Colonel Muvunyi carried out the weapons distribution at the end of the training, handing the weapons over to the soldiers responsible for the training for subsequent distribution.¹³⁷⁷¹

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5250. Relying on Prosecution Exhibit 124 (record of handing over of firearms issued by Kanyabashi to the conseillers de secteur in his commune, 28 May 1994), Alison Des Forges indicated in her Expert Report that Kanyabashi had 68 firearms, which he handed out to conseillers de secteurs on 28 May 1994, requiring each to sign a receipt noting the registration numbers of the weapons.¹³⁷⁷²

Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ

5251. Witness WUNBJ, a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that after undertaking weapons training at Kamena Stadium in the middle to end of May 1994, firearms were distributed to the recruits.¹³⁷⁷³ Major Habyarabatura, Bourgmestre Kanyabashi and a warrant officer were present when the arms were distributed. The arms were generally distributed at the secteur level and received by the conseiller, or in his absence, by a distinguished person of the commune.¹³⁷⁷⁴

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-5-I

5252. Witness D-2-5-I, a Hutu civil servant, testified that Kanyabashi's signature is on the bottom right corner of Prosecution Exhibit 124.¹³⁷⁷⁵ He testified that the guns in question transited through Ngoma commune, but were distributed not by the bourgmestre but by soldiers. The soldiers brought the weapons to the commune for the purpose of distribution. He did not know whether Conseiller Uwizeye in turn distributed the weapons to the youth in his secteur.¹³⁷⁷⁶

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-YYYY

5253. Witness D-2-YYYY, a Hutu civil servant,¹³⁷⁷⁷ testified that he heard that the brigadier had distributed firearms outside the commune office at the end of May 1994, and was told that at least each secteur conseiller received three firearms.¹³⁷⁷⁸

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-15-N

5254. Witness D-2-15-N, a Hutu trader, testified that there were many firearms at the commune office and when the order to go and hunt down people was issued, firearms were distributed. Shyirambere, the commune brigadier, was the commune authority who had handed the firearms to those manning the roadblock.¹³⁷⁷⁹

Nsabimana Defence Witness Innocent Rutayisire

5255. Innocent Rutayisire, a Hutu trader from Butare town, testified that Kanyabashi was not involved in civil defence nor was he involved in the distribution of weapons.¹³⁷⁸⁰

Kanyabashi Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens

5256. Referring to Prosecution Exhibit 124, Expert Witness Reyntjens testified that Kanyabashi's role in distributing the weapons listed was limited to passing on instructions from the authorities.¹³⁷⁸¹ Reyntjens testified that within the framework of civil defence, traditional weapons such as bows, arrows, machetes and spears, as well as firearms, mainly Kalashnikovs, were distributed. The witness added that traditional weapons were useless in fighting the advance of the RPF and therefore appeared to be distributed at least in part for the genocide. On the other hand, the firearms may have been distributed with the aim of sending people to the front to stop the advance of the RPF. Reyntjens stated that some officers of the Rwandan army, who were aware that civilians were being armed for the purpose of sending them to the front, expressed their disagreement because those civilians could not fight against the RPF effectively.¹³⁷⁸²

Nyiramasuhuko

5257. Nyiramasuhuko testified that during a Butare Security Council meeting held on 31 May 1994, she learned that firearms had been distributed in Butare urban commune on Kanyabashi's request. The bougmestre wanted guns to defend himself because it was a time of war.¹³⁷⁸³

Ntahobali

5258. Ntahobali testified that following the meeting of 26 April 1994, weapons were distributed to members of the public who had undergone weapons training.¹³⁷⁸⁴ He learned this from the conseiller at the end of May 1994.¹³⁷⁸⁵ During his conversation with the conseiller he learned that the conseiller had received numerous firearms and that he had distributed them to the various places that it had been decided that roadblocks would be erected. The conseiller told him that this was in line with the wishes of the people expressed at the meeting on 25 April 1994.¹³⁷⁸⁶

5259. Ntahobali testified that there was a document admitted as an exhibit that shows who received and who distributed the weapons. All secteur conseillers in Ngoma commune received firearms according to that document, which states that they received the firearms on 28 May 1994.¹³⁷⁸⁷

5260. Ntahobali further testified that on 6 June 1994, his birthday, Grégoire Ngendahimana and Padiri requested him to go to a roadblock because instructions had been given for the erection of a roadblock by the conseiller.¹³⁷⁸⁸ They told him that they had received a gun to be used in manning that roadblock. They also said that the conseiller had received weapons for distribution to the other roadblocks and that the weapons were being carried by men who had been trained for that purpose.¹³⁷⁸⁹

5261. It is disputed whether Kanyabashi played any role in the distribution of traditional weapons and whether he distributed weapons to militiamen between April and July 1994. It is also disputed whether firearms were distributed in April 1994. It is undisputed that firearms were distributed in late May and June 1994 when the RPF was advancing on Butare. It is disputed, however, whether Kanyabashi played any role in the distribution.

5262. The Chamber recalls that Ntahobali was the only witness to testify that following the public meeting of 26 April 1994 at Huye Stadium at which Kanyabashi spoke, weapons were distributed to members of the public who had undergone weapons training.¹³⁷⁹⁰ finds that it is not established beyond a reasonable doubt that the conseillers distributed weapons at the end of April 1994.

5264. Through Prosecution Exhibit 124 (record of handing over of firearms issued by Kanyabashi to the conseillers de secteurs in his commune, 28 May 1994), the Prosecution introduced evidence of Kanyabashi's distribution of weapons to conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994. Defence Witness D-2-5-I, a civil servant who worked closely with Kanyabashi during the events in 1994 (3.6.8.4.2.1), testified that Kanyabashi's signature was on the bottom of Prosecution Exhibit 124. Expert Witnesses Des Forges and Reyntjens also testified that Prosecution Exhibit 124 displayed Kanyabashi's role in distributing weapons. In light of the foregoing, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has established beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi distributed weapons to the conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994.

5265. The Chamber observes that Witness FAI testified that weapons were distributed by soldiers after training took place opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune.¹³⁷⁹¹ Witness FAI pled guilty to genocide in Rwanda in 1997.¹³⁷⁹² The Chamber observes that as an accomplice witness, Witness FAI may have had an interest in attributing responsibility for acts he committed during the genocide as being authorised by the authorities and therefore officially sanctioned. Accordingly, the Chamber will treat his evidence with appropriate caution. Furthermore, the Chamber notes that Witness FAI's testimony on this point is uncorroborated. While the Chamber has discretion to rely on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice witness, in the present case the Chamber retains reservations over the credibility of his testimony in this respect. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that weapons were distributed by soldiers after training opposite the Court of First Instance in Ngoma commune in May and/or June 1994.

5266. The Chamber observes that Prosecution Witness QAH and Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ testified that weapons were distributed to trainees at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune at the end of May and beginning of June 1994. Witness QAH was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony.¹³⁷⁹³ The Chamber will therefore consider his testimony with appropriate caution.

5267. The Chamber also notes that Witness QAH is alleged to be part of a group of individuals who wish to falsely incriminate Kanyabashi.¹³⁷⁹⁴ Defence Witness D-2-13-D testified that QAH told him in prison that he wished to falsely incriminate Kanyabashi because he had a long-standing grudge against him.¹³⁷⁹⁵ The Chamber notes its previous observation that it will treat the testimony of Witness D-2-13-D with appropriate caution (3.2.3). With respect to Defence Counsel's suggestion that Witness QAH harboured a grudge against Kanyabashi because he was sacked from his job in 1979 for misappropriating funds,¹³⁷⁹⁶ the Chamber accepts Witness QAH's explanation that he did not know Kanyabashi personally, only in his capacity as a commune authority and finds that there is no merit to this assertion. The Chamber observes that Witness QAH stopped working as a tax collector in Ngoma commune 25 years before he testified at trial and the Defence's assertion that he held a grudge does not affect his credibility on this allegation. The Chamber thus considers that Defence Witness D-2-13-D's account is not substantiated.

5268. Witness QAH does not allege that Kanyabashi played a specific role in the distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium, merely that the distribution took place in his commune. Witness QAH testified that Alphonse Nteziryayo distributed Kalashnikovs among those who had undergone training at Kamena Stadium in early June 1994, assisted by police officers and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira.¹³⁷⁹⁷ Witness QAH stated that there were about 250 to 260 recruits when the weapons were distributed and they were given the weapons so that they could man the roadblocks as replacements for the regular soldiers who were deployed to fight the RPF.¹³⁷⁹⁸ The Chamber finds Witness QAH's eyewitness testimony regarding this allegation to be detailed, credible and consistent.

5269. Furthermore, Witness QAH's testimony is corroborated by Witness WUNBJ's eyewitness account that after undertaking weapons training at Kamena Stadium in the middle to end of May 1994, firearms were distributed to the recruits.¹³⁷⁹⁹ The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that firearms were distributed by soldiers at Kamena Stadium at the end of May and/or early June 1994.

5270. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution did not bring any evidence to support the allegation that Kanyabashi had knowledge of the weapons distribution at Kamena Stadium in May or June 1994. Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ testified that Kanyabashi was present when the arms were distributed.¹³⁸⁰⁰ The Chamber observes that no other witness corroborates Witness WUNBJ's assertion that Kanyabashi had knowledge of the distribution of weapons by soldiers at Kamena Stadium in May and June 1994 and will not rely on the evidence of this witness in this respect. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi had knowledge of the weapons distribution at Kamena Stadium.

5271. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage with respect to the purpose of the weapons distribution at Kamena Stadium in May or June 1994. The Chamber will determine the purpose of the weapons distribution, taking into consideration all the evidence with respect to military training and the civil defence system, at a later stage of the Judgement.

3.7.6 Weapons Distribution by Nteziryayo

3.7.6.1 Introduction

5272. The Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo was responsible for distributing weapons to militiamen between late 1990 and July 1994.¹³⁸⁰¹ The Indictment further alleges that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to militiamen and certain carefully selected members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and eliminate its "accomplices".¹³⁸⁰² Between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, distributed weapons to militiamen, at least once with the assistance of Ndayambaje.¹³⁸⁰³ Each of the Indictments alleges that from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them with weapons.¹³⁸⁰⁴ In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QAH, FAI, FAM and QBV.¹³⁸⁰⁵

5273. In addition to its submissions on defects in the Nteziryayo and Nsabimana Indictment considered below, the Nteziryayo Defence submits that Nteziryayo was not responsible, and did not participate in, the distribution of weapons to civilians and/or militiamen. The Nteziryayo Defence relies on Defence Witnesses WUNBJ, AND-16, AND-50 and Nteziryayo.

3.7.6.2 Preliminary Issues

5274. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the allegation that Nteziryayo distributed weapons is unduly vague and was not sufficiently pled in the Indictment.¹³⁸⁰⁶ The Prosecution failed to adequately set out Nteziryayo's alleged role in the distribution of weapons or the acts or omissions alleged to have been committed by his subordinates. The Chamber recalls that in its Decision of 25 February 2009, it denied Nteziryayo's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence and stated that it would address issues relating to alleged defects in the Indictment, vagueness, credibility and evaluation of evidence in its final deliberations.¹³⁸⁰⁷

5275. The Chamber notes that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment make a general accusation that Nteziryayo, along with others, distributed weapons to militiamen and certain carefully selected members of the civilian population but do not specify the dates or locations of the alleged distributions.

¹³⁸⁰¹ Para. 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of all counts against Nsabimana and Nteziryayo).

¹³⁸⁰² Para. 5.13 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 against Nteziryayo).

¹³⁸⁰³ Para. 6.29 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 against Nteziryayo); Para. 6.34 of the Ndayambaje Indictment (in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 against Ndayambaje).

¹³⁸⁰⁴ Para. 6.56 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of all counts against Nsabimana and Nteziryayo).

¹³⁸⁰⁶ Nteziryayo Closing Brief, paras. 5, 639.

¹³⁸⁰⁷ Nteziryayo, Decision on Alphonse Nteziryayo's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence (TC), 25 February 2009, para. 28.

5276. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment sets forth a four year time span and states that, in general, as part of a conspiracy of which Nteziryayo was a part, militiamen were trained and distributed weapons. This paragraph lacks crucial details, including any location, specific date or indication as to who distributed weapons. Paragraph 5.13 states that Nteziryayo and others distributed weapons to militiamen in Butare préfecture. However, this paragraph is not in support of counts, and the identification of Butare préfecture is insufficiently specific to allow the Defence to properly investigate such a charge. Finally, Paragraph 6.29 alleges that Nteziryayo went to Butare préfecture and that between April and June 1994, Nteziryayo supervised the training of militiamen and distributed weapons to them. Again, the paragraph does not specify a location other than Butare préfecture and sets forth a period of three months.

5277. The Chamber therefore finds that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29 of the Indictment are unduly vague, insufficient to enable Nteziryayo to adequately prepare his defence and therefore defective. Bearing in mind the principles of notice previously articulated in this Judgement (2.5.4), the Chamber will consider whether the specific Prosecution allegations were cured by subsequent disclosures.

5278. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the following allegations were not sufficiently pled in the Indictment: (1) Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons in February 1994; (2) Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons at Kabakobwa in April 1994; (3) Nteziryayo's alleged role in the distribution of weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur on 23 April 1994; and (4) Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium in early June 1994. The Chamber will review these submissions in turn.

5279. The Chamber notes that the summary of Witness FAM's anticipated testimony contained in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief states that Nteziryayo was the most senior military official in Butare and he supervised the recruitment and training of youths. When the training was over, Nteziryayo distributed guns to those who had participated.¹³⁸⁰⁸

5280. Witness FAM did not mention Nteziryayo in his three confessional statements of 18 August 1998. In his previous statement of 24 February 2000, Witness FAM stated that Nteziryayo was the most senior military official in Butare and in February 1994 recruitment and training of youths was done under his supervision. Nteziryayo refused to recruit the witness for training in the handling of weapons, because he had a scar on his left arm. In mid-March, when the training was over, Nteziryayo distributed guns to those who had participated. These were the same youths who later came to be in charge of roadblocks during the genocide, together with the local population.¹³⁸⁰⁹ The Chamber observes that this previous statement was disclosed to the Defence on 1 October 2001.

5281. Witness FAM's statement fails to provide additional details such as the location of the alleged training and distribution of weapons, which the Chamber considers is a material detail necessary for allowing Nteziryayo to prepare a defence. As such, the information provided in Witness FAM's statement did not suffice to cure the defect in Indictment Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29. For this reason, the Chamber will not make a finding against Nteziryayo with respect to this allegation.

¹³⁸⁰⁸ Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief – Appendix; Witness FAM (7).

¹³⁸⁰⁹ 24 February 2000, Statement of Witness FAM, disclosed 1 October 2001.

5282. As concerns the alleged distribution of weapons at Kabakobwa, the Chamber notes that the only reference linking Nteziryayo to the Kabakobwa massacre is found in the summary of Prosecution Witness FAM's anticipated testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, which states that Nteziryayo brought soldiers to kill the Tutsis gathered at Kabakobwa.¹³⁸¹⁰ No mention is made of distribution of weapons. Furthermore, no mention is made of Nteziryayo's alleged distribution of weapons in Witness FAM's subsequent statement of 24 February 2000. The summary of Witness FAM's anticipated evidence states that one Friday in April 1994, Nteziryayo arrived at Kabakobwa onboard a white Pajero followed by a military truck full of soldiers and that on the same Friday, the Tutsis who had gathered at Kabakobwa were killed by soldiers brought there by Nteziryayo.¹³⁸¹¹

5283. The Chamber considers that the disclosure provided by the Prosecution in the form of Witness FAM's summary of anticipated testimony and Witness FAM's previous statements is inconsistent, and thus did not cure the defect in the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment with regard to the alleged distribution of weapons by Nteziryayo at Kabakobwa. Thus, the Chamber will not consider evidence presented on the alleged distribution of weapons by Nteziryayo at Kabakobwa in support of counts against Nteziryayo.

5284. Turning to the alleged distribution of weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur, the Chamber observes that Witness QBV's anticipated testimony in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief mentioned that Muvunyi distributed 20 grenades to attackers in Kibilizi secteur. It did not mention, however, the distribution of any other types of weapons or a roadblock. In his previous statement of 11 October 1998, Witness QBV stated that on 23 April 1994, Nteziryayo and Muvunyi were passing through Kibilizi secteur in Mugusa commune. Muvunyi distributed grenades to the youths who had undergone training. Muvunyi handed over the grenades to an influential trader who was in charge of the roadblocks in the commune.¹³⁸¹² In his second statement of 11 May 2000, Witness QBV stated that on 23 April 1994, Nteziryayo incited the Hutu youth to kill Tutsis and Muvunyi distributed grenades to those that had undergone training, including the trader Ndayisaba.¹³⁸¹³ In a third statement of 30 March 2001, Witness QBV stated that on 23 April 1994, Muvunyi and Nteziryayo brought firearms intended for the commune which were distributed on the same day by Brigadier Athanase.¹³⁸¹⁴

5285. The Chamber finds that the summary of Witness QBV's anticipated testimony in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief was sufficient to put Nteziryayo on notice that he was alleged to have been present with Muvunyi while grenades were distributed to Hutu youths in Mugusa commune on 22 or 23 April 1994. Witness QBV's previous statements of 11 October 1999, 11 May 2000 and 30 March 2001 are clear and consistent in their assertion that Nteziryayo was present during the distribution of weapons in Kibilizi secteur on 23 April 1994 and were disclosed to the Defence between 15 November 2000 and 20 September 2001, the last disclosure taking place approximately six months before Witness QBV testified at trial. As such, disclosure occurred in a timely manner. The Chamber therefore concludes that the Nteziryayo Defence was provided with sufficient notice that the Prosecution intended to bring evidence regarding the alleged distribution of weapons in Kibilizi secteur, Mugusa commune, on 23 April 1994,¹³⁸¹⁵ such that Paragraphs 5.1, 5.13 and 6.29 of the Indictment were cured of their defect.

5286. Information regarding the allegation that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to civilians who had undergone military training at Kamena Stadium is contained in the summary of Witness QAH's anticipated testimony in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief.¹³⁸¹⁶ In a previous statement of 28 October 1997, Witness QAH stated that Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira instructed recruits in military training at Kamena Stadium and weapons were distributed after the training in their presence by Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira and Colonel Habyarabatuma.¹³⁸¹⁷

5287. In his previous statement of 11 April 2001, Witness QAH stated that in early June 1994, when the witness was undergoing training at Kamena Stadium, Nteziryayo was about to provide the recruits with guns so that they could kill the Tutsis. At this time, the RPF were controlling the route from Gitarama to Kigali. The recruits requested that Nteziryayo take them to the battlefield but he refused, stating that they would be provided with guns but would replace the soldiers in Butare town who were maintaining security, while the soldiers would go to the front. After Nteziryayo addressed the recruits, Muvunyi and Major Habyarabatuma went away in a jeep, returning 30 minutes later with Kalashnikovs which they gave to Nteziryayo to distribute to the recruits. Nteziryayo and two commune policemen distributed the guns according to the recruits' secteurs and each of the eight secteurs of Ngoma commune received eight or nine guns.¹³⁸¹⁸

5288. The Prosecution disclosed to the Nteziryayo Defence Witness QAH's first statement of 28 October 1997 in November 1998, and the second statement of 11 April 2001 in June 2001, thus well before Witness QAH testified before the Tribunal in April 2004.

5289. The Chamber finds that the information contained in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and Witness QAH's previous statements is clear and consistent and was disclosed to the Defence in a timely fashion. Each statement places Nteziryayo in Kamena Stadium during the military training and describes him taking an active role in the distribution: physically handing guns to the recruits, or simply being present while his colleagues distributed them. The Chamber is of the view that these sources of information sufficiently informed the Defence of the Prosecution's intention to lead evidence that Nteziryayo was involved in the distribution of weapons following the military training of recruits at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune in June 1994. The Chamber therefore concludes that the evidence on the alleged distribution of weapons by Nteziryayo, given by Witness QAH, was properly adduced by the Prosecution and it will consider this evidence in support of the Prosecution's submissions.

3.7.6.3 Weapons Distribution at Kibilizi Secteur, Mugusa Commune

3.7.6.3.1 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QBV

5290. Witness QBV, a Hutu farmer from Mugusa commune and detainee who had confessed but not yet been sentenced at the time of his testimony,¹³⁸¹⁹ testified that he had participated in Interahamwe training from 7 April 1994 at the Mugusa commune office on six occasions, but he fell ill and did not complete the training.¹³⁸²⁰

5291. Nteziryayo arrived at a roadblock on the Butare-Mugusa road in Kibilizi secteur at about 2.00 p.m. on 22 April 1994.¹³⁸²¹ He was travelling with Muvunyi in a red double-cabin pickup, carrying guns, grenades and other tools in the back.¹³⁸²² They were both wearing military uniforms.¹³⁸²³ The witness was two to three metres away from Nteziryayo when Nteziryayo introduced himself and Muvunyi to the crowd of approximately 200 people assembled at the roadblock.¹³⁸²⁴ Nteziryayo saw that Witness QBV was carrying an axe and asked the witness his ethnicity and how he came to be in possession of the axe. Witness QBV told him that it had been given to him by soldiers from the Gikonko barracks.¹³⁸²⁵ Conseiller Gasana told Nteziryayo that Witness QBV had undergone weapons training and that he was in charge of the roadblock.¹³⁸²⁶

5292. Witness QBV testified that Muvunyi took three rifles, two Kalashnikovs, an M16 and a box of cartridges from the back of the red pickup, which he gave to Nteziryayo and who in turn passed them to the conseiller. Muvunyi then gave a box of 30 Chinese-type grenades to Nteziryayo which he gave to the businessman Ndayisaba.¹³⁸²⁷ Muvunyi gave a carton of matches to Nteziryayo who handed them over to Leodomir Mwimbanzu, the secteur President of the MRND Party.¹³⁸²⁸

5293. Witness QBV testified that after distributing the arms, Nteziryayo told the assembled group that they would need these weapons to kill the Tutsis.¹³⁸²⁹ Nteziryayo stayed at the roadblock for approximately one hour and left with Muvunyi in the red pickup.¹³⁸³⁰ Witness QBV took part in a massacre on the following day¹³⁸³¹ in which the guns and grenades distributed by Nteziryayo were used to kill the Tutsis and the matches to burn their houses.¹³⁸³²

5294. In cross-examination, when it was put to Witness QBV that his prior statements only discussed the distribution of grenades, but not other weapons such as Kalashnikovs, M16s or matches, Witness QBV testified that perhaps the writer of his statements did not properly follow the order of his statements, and that his statements were just provisional documents.¹³⁸³³

5295. Witness QBV testified that at the time of giving his statements he was detained with some of Nteziryayo's relatives, including one Nshimabarezi, Nteziryayo's brother-in-law, who pressured him not to give the Tribunal investigators many details that would incriminate Nteziryayo, but rather to say that only Muvunyi distributed weapons.¹³⁸³⁴

5296. Witness FAM testified that Nteziryayo was involved in the distribution of weapons and ammunition at roadblocks during the massacres.¹³⁸³⁵ The weapons were made available by Nteziryayo, but it was the driver of the commune office, Nsanzabahizi, who was in charge of the weapons and ammunition.¹³⁸³⁶

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-16

5297. Witness AND-16, a Hutu businessman from Mugusa commune testified that roadblocks were erected in his commune around 21 or 22 April 1994, on the orders of the conseiller, Gasana.¹³⁸³⁷ The main roadblock was in Sakindi, Kibilizi secteur, and it was under the responsibility of Witness QBV.¹³⁸³⁸ Witness QBV controlled that roadblock.¹³⁸³⁹ Witness AND-16 never saw any soldiers at the roadblocks; only civilians were involved.¹³⁸⁴⁰

5298. Weapons were not distributed at the roadblock manned by Witness QBV on 22 April 1994, or prior to this date in the secteur. Those present at the roadblock had traditional weapons including clubs, and those that had weapons had obtained them from elsewhere.¹³⁸⁴¹ People killed at the roadblock were killed with traditional weapons such as clubs and hoes, and not with guns or other modern weapons. Witness AND-16 denied that Nteziryayo gave grenades to him at the roadblock manned by Witness QBV. Witness AND-16 denied that Nteziryayo had given weapons to him, the conseiller and other authorities at the roadblock that Witness QBV was manning and also denied that he was told that those weapons were to be used to kill Tutsis.¹³⁸⁴²

5299. Witness AND-16 had three grenades in his possession but he had not received them from Nteziryayo.¹³⁸⁴³ Witness AND-16 bought the grenades from a cousin¹³⁸⁴⁴ on 15 April 1994 in order to provide for the safety of his family and his property.¹³⁸⁴⁵ Otherwise, he said members of the population made traditional weapons such as clubs, machetes and other traditional weapons.¹³⁸⁴⁶ Witness AND-16 testified that he believed that his cousin obtained the grenades from a soldier, Antoine Ngwije, who lived in Akabanga cellule, in Kibilizi secteur. The witness said he saw him carrying grenades but he did not know where he obtained them. The witness also said that a certain person by the name Emmanuel also had grenades but he did not know how he had obtained them.¹³⁸⁴⁷ Witness AND-16 testified that Nteziryayo did not go to Mugusa commune between April and July 1994.¹³⁸⁴⁸

5300. Witness AND-5, a Hutu policeman from Mugusa commune and a detainee appealing a life sentence for crimes committed during the 1994 genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that Nteziryayo could not have distributed weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur on 22 April 1994, since Nteziryayo did not visit Mugusa commune between April and June 1994.¹³⁸⁴⁹

5301. Witness AND-5 testified that in early June 1994 the commune received a consignment of weapons from the ESO camp.¹³⁸⁵⁰ These weapons were distributed at roadblocks, after the massacres.¹³⁸⁵¹ Witness AND-5 believed that Colonel Aloys Simba was in charge of civilian defence in the Butare and Gikongoro préfectures at this time.¹³⁸⁵²

5302. On cross-examination, the Prosecution suggested to Witness AND-5 that some of the guns that Witness AND-5 handed out to those manning the roadblocks were used to kill Tutsis. Defence Witness AND-5 responded that this was impossible because he did not distribute any guns until after Ntyazo had been taken by the RPF; no distribution was made during the killings.¹³⁸⁵³

5303. Witness AND-5 rejected the Prosecution's suggestion that he was denying that Nteziryayo came to Mugusa commune between April and June 1994 to distribute arms and attend meetings in order to downplay his own involvement in such events in Mugusa commune.¹³⁸⁵⁴

5304. Witness AND-72, a Hutu civil servant and a detainee convicted of crimes committed during the 1994 genocide, testified that the commune authorities distributed guns to the conseillers and to other people in Mugusa commune after the RPF took control of Ntyazo commune, in June 1994.¹³⁸⁵⁵ These weapons were the ones that commune policemen used to protect the commune office.¹³⁸⁵⁶ The witness testified that he himself received one gun to ensure security in his secteur.¹³⁸⁵⁷ Witness AND-72 testified that he never saw Nteziryayo come to the commune office between April and July 1994.¹³⁸⁵⁸

3.7.6.3.2 Deliberations

5305. Witness QBV is the only witness to testify that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to individuals present at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur, Mugusa commune on 22 April 1994. The Chamber notes that Witness QBV was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony who had confessed but had not yet been sentenced for crimes committed during the genocide and is an accomplice witness.¹³⁸⁵⁹ The Chamber will therefore approach his testimony with appropriate caution.

5306. Witness QBV testified that the distribution of weapons took place on 22 April 1994.¹³⁸⁶⁰ On cross-examination, Witness QBV was referred to his previous statement of 11 October 1999, which stated that on 23 April 1994, Muvunyi distributed grenades to the youths who had undergone training. According to this statement, Muvunyi handed over the grenades to an influential trader who was in charge of the roadblocks in the commune.¹³⁸⁶¹ He was also referred to his second statement of 11 May 2000 that also stated that Muvunyi distributed grenades to those who had undergone training on 23 April 1994, including the trader Ndayisaba.¹³⁸⁶² Witness QBV testified that when his previous statements were read back to him by the Tribunal's investigators he noticed that the date was wrongly recorded. He attributed this to an error in translation.¹³⁸⁶³ The Chamber accepts his explanation on this point and finds that it does not materially affect his testimony on this allegation.

5307. Witness QBV testified that he had participated in weapons training on 7 April 1994 at the Mugusa commune office.¹³⁸⁶⁴ On cross-examination the Nteziryayo Defence pointed out that in his previous statement of 11 October 1999, Witness QBV stated that he had not previously undergone weapons training and therefore he was not given grenades.¹³⁸⁶⁵ In his previous statements of 11 May 2000 and 30 March 2001, he did not mention that he had undergone training, despite describing the training that others had undergone in his latter statement.¹³⁸⁶⁶ On cross-examination it was pointed out by the Nteziryayo Defence that no mention was made in his previous statements regarding the distribution of rifles, Kalashnikovs, an M16 and a box of cartridges at the roadblock on 23 April 1994.¹³⁸⁶⁷

5308. Witness QBV testified that he did not tell the whole truth in his statements to the Tribunal's investigators because he was detained with relatives of Nteziryayo, including his brother-in-law and he was afraid for his safety.¹³⁸⁶⁸ Nteziryayo's relatives put pressure on him to talk about events in a way which did not incriminate Nteziryayo; to deny having seen Nteziryayo and to testify before the Tribunal that Muvunyi, and not Nteziryayo, distributed weapons.¹³⁸⁶⁹ He received letters to this effect but did not have a copy of any of the letters he claimed to have received while in prison.¹³⁸⁷⁰ Witness QBV testified that he informed the Prosecutor's office of the pressure he was being put under and these individuals were transferred to another prison yard.¹³⁸⁷¹ Witness QBV explained that in his subsequent statements, he gave further details and that he told the whole truth in his testimony before the Tribunal.¹³⁸⁷²

5309. The Chamber accepts that Witness QBV may have been under pressure from his co-detainees not to testify against Nteziryayo, but to attribute the distribution of weapons solely to Muvunyi. This does not, however, explain why no mention was made in his previous statements of the distribution of rifles, Kalashnikovs, an M16 and a box of cartridges at the roadblock in addition to the distribution of 20 grenades.¹³⁸⁷³ Having already implicated Nteziryayo, it does not make sense that he would fail to mention the other weapons in order to protect himself from retribution from Nteziryayo's family or friends.

5310. The Chamber observes that Witness AND-16's testimony corroborates that of Witness QBV with regard to the existence of the roadblock and the presence of Witness QBV at the roadblock on 22 April 1994. However, the witnesses' testimonies diverge at this point. Witness QBV testified to the presence of Witness AND-16 at the roadblock and his role in the distribution by Nteziryayo and Muvunyi. Witness QBV testified that Nteziryayo personally distributed weapons, while Witness AND-16 denied that Nteziryayo played any part in the distribution.¹³⁸⁷⁴

5311. Witness AND-16 testified that Nteziryayo never went to Mugusa commune between April and June 1994.¹³⁸⁷⁵ Similarly, Witness AND-5 testified that Nteziryayo could not have distributed weapons at the roadblock in Kibilizi secteur on 22 April 1994, since Nteziryayo did not visit Mugusa commune between April and July 1994.¹³⁸⁷⁶ The Chamber finds the assertions by Witnesses AND-16 and AND-5 that Nteziryayo did not go to Mugusa commune between April and June 1994 not to be credible; neither witness was in a position to make such an expansive statement and their testimonies do not cast doubt on the testimony of Prosecution Witness QBV.

5312. Nonetheless, the Chamber recalls that Witness QBV is an accomplice witness who confessed to killing a large number of Tutsis the day after the alleged distribution at the roadblock.¹³⁸⁷⁷ The Chamber observes that while it may rely on a single accomplice witness to establish a fact, in the present case there are a number of factors which cast doubt on his testimony in respect of this allegation. Witness QBV had not been sentenced for crimes committed during the genocide at the time of his testimony and he may have been motivated to attribute responsibility to Nteziryayo in order to obtain a more lenient sentence. Furthermore, as the Chamber has observed above, there are inconsistencies in his prior statements and between his previous statements and his testimony at trial that were not adequately explained by the witness. In the absence of corroboration, the Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo distributed weapons at a roadblock in Kibilizi secteur, Mugusa commune on 22 April 1994.

3.7.6.4 Weapons Distribution at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma Commune, Early June 1994

3.7.6.4.1 Evidence

Prosecution Witness QAH

5313. Witness QAH, a Hutu farmer and official from Ngoma commune and detainee in Rwanda convicted of genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that the first time he ever saw Nteziryayo was at Kamena Stadium when he went there for training. The witness, who in 1994 was a military recruit under Nteziryayo, positively identified Nteziryayo in court.¹³⁸⁷⁸ The criteria for selecting those who were to attend the training were age and ethnicity.¹³⁸⁷⁹ Witness QAH testified that his conseiller told the group that no Tutsis could participate in the training.¹³⁸⁸⁰ There were approximately 250 recruits in total.¹³⁸⁸¹ Nteziryayo and Senior Warrant Officer Ntirigira were in charge of the training and were assisted by two policemen, Canisius and Cassien.¹³⁸⁸²

5314. Nteziryayo addressed the group and asked them to make sure that there were no Tutsis among them before they began the training.¹³⁸⁸³ Nteziryayo told the recruits that the purpose of the training was to counter the enemy.¹³⁸⁸⁴ The training began at 7.30 or 8.00 a.m. and went on until 3.00 p.m. each day.¹³⁸⁸⁵ Nteziryayo came every day to teach the trainees.¹³⁸⁸⁶ Nteziryayo and Chief Warrant Officer Ntirigira taught them how to dismantle and re-assemble weapons, how to shoot and how to use grenades.¹³⁸⁸⁷ One day the recruits were taken below the Ngoma military camp to the firing range where they were taught how to throw grenades and how to identify targets.¹³⁸⁸⁸

5315. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo's role at Kamena Stadium was twofold: he taught them how to operate arms and incited them to hate the Tutsis.¹³⁸⁸⁹ On the first day of training, the witness heard Nteziryayo tell them, "[l]et us look around and make sure there is no Tutsi among us before we begin the training proper".¹³⁸⁹⁰ Two days later, Nteziryayo told them again about the wickedness of the Tutsis who were living both in the country and abroad and that the Tutsis living in the country had cattle and money and had made their children available to fight them.¹³⁸⁹¹

5316. The civil defence training programme in Ngoma commune did not start until the end of May 1994.¹³⁸⁹²

5317. In early June 1994, Colonel Habyarabatura, Cyriaque and a soldier called Tharcisse, came to Kamena Stadium. After speaking with them Nteziryayo told the trainees that Gitarama-Kigali road had been cut off by the RPF.¹³⁸⁹³ The recruits who were undergoing the training asked Nteziryayo to be given guns in order to fight against the RPF. Nteziryayo told them that they would be given guns in order to replace the soldiers at the roadblock so that they could go to fight along the main road.¹³⁸⁹⁴ Shortly afterwards Tharcisse Muvunyi and Colonel Habyarabatura gave guns to Nteziryayo who distributed them to the various secteurs who had sent people for the training.¹³⁸⁹⁵ About 35 people from the witness' secteur attended the training.¹³⁸⁹⁶ Kalashnikovs were distributed by Nteziryayo who was assisted by the police officers and the Chief Warrant Officer, Ntirigira.¹³⁸⁹⁷ Nteziryayo told the group to exterminate Tutsis, after which he distributed Kalashnikovs to the recruits.¹³⁸⁹⁸

5318. Witness QAH testified that there were about 250 to 260 recruits present when the weapons were distributed in early June 1994. They were given the weapons so that they could man the roadblocks to replace the soldiers who were deployed to fight the RPF.¹³⁸⁹⁹ When Muvunyi and Habyarabatura brought the guns to Kamena Stadium in the evening, the recruits assembled themselves according to their secteur. One person from each secteur was selected to be in charge. His responsibility was to provide the secteur with weapons.¹³⁹⁰⁰ Each secteur received seven guns plus one for the conseiller and ammunition.¹³⁹⁰¹ Witness QAH's brother was in charge of the guns in his secteur. No list was prepared to show who had received the guns. The witness received a gun from his brother who had received it from Nteziryayo.¹³⁹⁰² The responsable de cellule distributed the guns and appointed each recruit to a particular roadblock. After receiving the Kalashnikovs, the witness and the other recruits returned to their secteur. He testified that when the recruits stopped a Tutsi at the roadblock they would either kill him or take him to the authorities.¹³⁹⁰³ Witness QAH shot three persons at a roadblock.¹³⁹⁰⁴

Prosecution Witness FAI

5319. Witness FAI, a Hutu civil servant and detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony, testified that Nteziryayo, in his capacity as head of civil defence, was responsible for giving weapons to Hutu youths so that they could assist the military at the front and participate in the killings of the Tutsis.¹³⁹⁰⁵ Weapons training took place during the genocide in an old building in Ngoma secteur, opposite the Court of First Instance.¹³⁹⁰⁶ Jean-Baptiste Ruzindaza, President of the Court of First Instance, was in charge of the training. Training exercises were supervised by instructors who came from the ESO Military College. After the training, people who had just undergone the training received guns, so that they could go and help the army at the front or go and help the inhabitants to kill the Tutsis who were still alive.¹³⁹⁰⁷

5320. Witness FAI testified that the guns that were distributed after the training in Butare came from the Officers' College and that it was Colonel Muvunyi who distributed them to the soldiers responsible for the training in Ngoma commune.¹³⁹⁰⁸

5321. Witness WUNBJ, a Hutu civil servant, testified that he had undergone weapons training at Kamena Stadium towards the middle or the end of May 1994.¹³⁹⁰⁹ The training lasted between one and two weeks.¹³⁹¹⁰ During the training the witness learned how to clean, dismantle, reassemble and shoot a rifle.¹³⁹¹¹ The purpose of the training was not to kill Tutsis but to assist the army at the front and to provide security within their cellules.¹³⁹¹² The witness was informed that the RPF were the enemy and were armed so the recruits had to learn to use weapons in self-defence.¹³⁹¹³

5322. Witness WUNBJ testified that after the training, firearms were distributed to the recruits by a warrant officer, whose name the witness could not recall.¹³⁹¹⁴ The firearms were generally distributed at the secteur level and received by the conseiller, or in his absence, by a distinguished person of the commune.¹³⁹¹⁵ Witness WUNBJ did not see Nteziryayo between April and June 1994.¹³⁹¹⁶ To his knowledge, Nteziryayo never attended civil self-defence training nor distributed weapons there.¹³⁹¹⁷

5323. Witness AND-50, a Hutu teacher from Kigali, testified that Nteziryayo never distributed any weapons. He was not able to do so as he had left the army.¹³⁹¹⁸ Nteziryayo was not responsible for civil defence in Butare between April and July 1994.¹³⁹¹⁹ Colonel Aloys Simba was responsible for civil defence.¹³⁹²⁰

Nteziryayo

5324. Nteziryayo testified that he did not distribute firearms to the population of Ngoma commune as part of the civil defence programme between January 1994 and July 1994, nor did he distribute weapons to recruits trained in a stadium in Ngoma commune.¹³⁹²¹ However, Nteziryayo testified that the area commander distributed firearms to people between April and July 1994 for the civil defence in Butare préfecture.¹³⁹²²

5325. Nteziryayo testified that between April and July 1994, and in his role as préfet, he did not receive or possess any stock of weapons for civil defence distribution, and he did not know whether there was such a stock of weapons in the préfecture.¹³⁹²³ Nteziryayo testified that he never received any weapons for distribution in the communes of Butare préfecture. The officials of Ngoma commune did not request any weapons of him or ask him to train members of the population in the handling of weapons; he had no contact with authorities of the Ngoma commune. Nteziryayo denied distributing weapons to recruits trained in a stadium in Ngoma commune.¹³⁹²⁴ Nteziryayo testified that he did not distribute weapons to militia members and members of the civilian population and he did not actively participate in the massacres in Butare or elsewhere.¹³⁹²⁵

3.7.6.4.2 Deliberations

5326. The Prosecution relied on the testimony of Witness QAH with regard to the allegation of distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium. The Chamber notes that Witness QAH was a detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony and had been sentenced to death at his trial for his participation in the genocide. The Chamber will therefore approach his testimony with appropriate caution.

5327. Witness QAH gave eyewitness testimony that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to the secteurs who had sent people for the training.¹³⁹²⁶ Nteziryayo distributed Kalashnikovs to those who underwent training at Kamena Stadium in early June 1994.¹³⁹²⁷

5328. The Chamber observes that Defence Witness WUNBJ also underwent training at Kamena Stadium over the course of one or two weeks between the middle and end of May 1994 and was present during the distribution of weapons at the end of the training. The Chamber finds his account to be detailed, credible and consistent. Witness QAH and Witness WUNBJ's accounts of weapons distribution are generally consistent with each other. Both witnesses testified that the distribution among the recruits took place according to their respective secteurs and that a Warrant Officer participated in the distribution.¹³⁹²⁸ The witnesses differed, however, on the involvement of Nteziryayo in the distribution of weapons. Witness QAH testified that Nteziryayo personally distributed weapons, while Witness WUNBJ denied that Nteziryayo played any part in the distribution.

5329. The Chamber observes that Witness WUNBJ testified that weapons were distributed at Kamena Stadium in May 1994, while Witness QAH testified that he witnessed a distribution of weapons in June 1994. Witness WUNBJ's testimony that Nteziryayo was not involved in the distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium in May 1994, does not vitiate Witness QAH's eyewitness testimony that Nteziryayo distributed weapons to the recruits in June 1994. The Chamber observes that his testimony on this allegation is not corroborated with respect to Nteziryayo's involvement in the distribution of weapons. Nonetheless, the Chamber considers Witness QAH's testimony that Nteziryayo distributed weapons at Kamena Stadium to be clear and detailed and the Chamber finds him credible with regard to this allegation. The Chamber therefore finds that, through the testimony of Witness QAH, the Prosecution has proven this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

5330. The Chamber declines to make a finding at this stage on whether the distribution of weapons at Kamena Stadium in Ngoma commune in June 1994 constituted preparation for the genocide or self-defence against the advancing RPF. The Chamber will reserve judgement on this issue until a later stage in its deliberations.

3.7.7 Weapons Distribution by Ndayambaje

3.7.7.1 Introduction

5331. Each of the Indictments allege that Ndayambaje was responsible for distributing weapons to militiamen from late 1990 until July 1994.¹³⁹²⁹ The Indictments allege that Ndayambaje distributed weapons to militiamen and members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".¹³⁹³⁰ The Indictments further allege that between April and June 1994, Ndayambaje assisted Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, in the distribution of weapons.¹³⁹³¹ Each of the Indictments also allege that from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them with weapons.¹³⁹³²

5332. In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QBZ and TO.

5333. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Indictment is unduly vague and does not adequately inform Ndayambaje of the material facts of the allegations brought against him. Specifically, the Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Prosecution failed to plead the allegations that Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Remera commune office on 7 April 1994; that he assisted Nteziryayo in the distribution of weapons at the Muganza commune office in June 1994; or that he was responsible under Article 6 (3) for the distribution of weapons carried out by soldiers in the course of the massacres.¹³⁹³³

5334. In the alternative, the Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Prosecution witnesses lack credibility and that the Prosecution failed to prove the allegations beyond a reasonable doubt.¹³⁹³⁴ The Defence relies on the testimonies of Ndayambaje Defence Witnesses GABON, Brother Stan, AND-31, KEPIR and Ndayambaje.

3.7.7.2 Muganza Commune Office in Remera, 7 April 1994

5335. The Chamber observes that the Prosecution did not specifically plead the alleged distribution of weapons at the Remera commune office on 7 April 1994.¹³⁹³⁵ According to the Ndayambaje Defence, the Indictment is defective and such defects have not been cured.¹³⁹³⁶

5336. The allegation that Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Muganza commune office in Remera on 7 April 1994 amounts to a material fact which was not sufficiently pled in the Indictment. The Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief includes no reference to this specific incident. In his previous statement of 30 March 2001, disclosed to the Defence on 23 May 2001, Witness QBZ stated that Ndayambaje distributed a machine gun to a policeman at the commune office which was used to kill Tutsi prisoners.¹³⁹³⁷ The alleged distribution of weapons at the commune office was not mentioned in Witness QBZ's previous statement of 9 October 1999, disclosed on 1 December 1999.¹³⁹³⁸ The Chamber finds that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have timely, clear or consistent notice of this allegation. Thus, the Chamber will not make a finding on the alleged distribution of weapons by Ndayambaje at the commune office on 7

April 1994. In any event, the Chamber notes that the evidence was not sufficient to prove this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.7.7.3 Muganza Commune Office, June 1994

5337. In its Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis of 16 December 2004, the Chamber previously addressed the submission that no evidence has been adduced by the Prosecution that Ndayambaje assisted Nteziryayo in the distribution of weapons to militiamen.¹³⁹³⁹ The Chamber found that the evidence led by Prosecution Witness TO, if believed, could be sufficient to sustain a conviction against Ndayambaje on this paragraph of the Indictment and denied Ndayambaje's request for acquittal regarding this paragraph.¹³⁹⁴⁰

5338. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that Paragraph 6.34 of the Ndayambaje Indictment is vague.¹³⁹⁴¹ In the Chamber's view, the Prosecution failed to expressly plead the alleged weapons distribution at the Muganza commune office in June 1994. Therefore the Indictment is defective in this regard.

5339. Recalling the principles of notice previously outlined in this Judgement (2.5.4), the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the allegation that Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Muganza commune office in June 1994. Furthermore, the summary of Witness TO's testimony in the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief does not mention the witness' intention to testify to this allegation.¹³⁹⁴² Furthermore, there was no mention of the distribution of weapons in TO's previous statements of 16 October 1997 or 11 June 1997 which were disclosed to the Defence on 4 November 1998 and 30 March 1999 respectively.¹³⁹⁴³ The Chamber recalls that in its Decision of 1 September 2006, the Chamber denied the Ndayambaje Defence's motion for exclusion of the testimony of Witness TO. The Chamber stated that it was not satisfied that there was a basis to exclude the concerned testimony at that stage of the proceedings but that the matter may be considered at a later stage.¹³⁹⁴⁴

5340. At this stage, the Chamber considers that the information regarding Ndayambaje's alleged distribution of weapons in June 1994 amounts to the pleading of new material facts. The Chamber further considers that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have sufficient notice of this allegation to enable the Defence to mount an effective defence. As a result, the Chamber finds that it would unduly prejudice the Accused to consider the evidence of Witness TO on these allegations. Therefore, the Chamber will not make a finding on whether Ndayambaje distributed weapons at the Muganza commune office in June 1994. In any event, the Chamber notes that the evidence was not sufficient to prove this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

3.7.7.4 Weapons Distribution by Soldiers Under the Control of Ndayambaje

5341. The Ndayambaje Defence contends that Paragraph 6.53 of the Ndayambaje Indictment lacks detail, as it does not specify the main offences or the role played by Ndayambaje in the alleged events. It further submits that the Prosecution presented no evidence that from April to July 1994 some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen by providing them with weapons and that Ndayambaje was responsible under Article 6 (3) for this distribution. Consequently, it asserts that the Chamber must not consider this paragraph in its deliberations and findings.¹³⁹⁴⁵ The Chamber finds that the Ndayambaje Defence did not have timely, clear or consistent notice of this allegation and thus will not make a finding on this allegation.

5342. Paragraph 6.53 of the Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje was responsible under Article 6 (3) for the distribution of weapons to militiamen carried out by soldiers under his command.¹³⁹⁴⁶ If the Prosecution intends to rely on the theory of superior responsibility, the subordinates of the Accused must be sufficiently identified and the criminal conduct of those for whom the Accused is alleged to be responsible must be established.¹³⁹⁴⁷ The Chamber considers that Paragraph 6.53 of the Ndayambaje Indictment is therefore defective. Recalling the principles of notice previously defined in this Judgement (2.5.4), neither the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, nor the Prosecution opening statement refers to soldiers, subordinate to Ndayambaje, distributing weapons to militiamen.

5343. The Prosecution has also failed to lead any evidence on the identities of the soldiers who allegedly distributed weapons or to establish Ndayambaje's responsibility for the acts of these individuals. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje was responsible under Article 6 (3) for the distribution of weapons to militiamen carried out by soldiers under his command.

3.7.8 Weapons Distribution by Nsabimana

3.7.8.1 Introduction

5344. Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of the government, political leaders, civil servants and other personalities conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate members of the opposition, so that they could remain in power. The components of this plan consisted of among other things, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. In executing the plan, they organised, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population and moderate Hutus. Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Élie Ndayambaje and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.¹³⁹⁴⁸

¹³⁹⁴⁷ See, e.g., Muvunyi I, Judgement (AC), para. 19; Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 323.

¹³⁹⁴⁸ Para. 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (in support of all counts against Nsabimana and Nteziryayo).

5345. The Prosecution alleges that Nsabimana distributed weapons to the bourgmestres, his subordinates in the hierarchy of the préfecture, to be used in civilian defence. These weapons were used to kill the Tutsi civilian population. The Prosecution submits that in order to facilitate the massacres, Nsabimana personally signed for and distributed 60 guns to the bourgmestres of Butare préfecture on 16 May 1994, for use in the communes in furtherance of the plan to exterminate the Tutsis.¹³⁹⁴⁹ In support of these submissions, the Prosecution relies on the testimony of Prosecution Expert Witness Des Forges and Defence Witnesses SOLO and AND-5.¹³⁹⁵⁰

5346. In addition to its submissions on defects in the Nteziryayo and Nsabimana Indictment, the Nsabimana Defence submits that the Prosecution has not proven that Nsabimana distributed weapons to an individual or institutions in Butare préfecture.¹³⁹⁵¹ It relies on the testimony of Nsabimana.

3.7.8.2 Preliminary Issues

5347. The Nsabimana Defence submits that Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is unduly vague and fails to specify dates, circumstances and locations of his alleged activities and fails to identify the identities of his alleged subordinates.¹³⁹⁵² The Indictment is therefore defective.

5348. The Nsabimana Defence further submits that Nsabimana is not accused of distributing weapons in Butare préfecture. Paragraph 5.13 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje, Kanyabashi, Ladislas Ntagwanza and others distributed weapons in Butare préfecture. No mention is made of Nsabimana's alleged role.¹³⁹⁵³ The Chamber will not consider the specific allegation of distribution of weapons in Paragraph 5.13 since it is not listed in support of a count against Nsabimana.

5349. The Chamber notes that the Prosecution's allegation that Nsabimana distributed weapons in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment supports the count of conspiracy to commit genocide but it does not specify dates, places, nor identify the people whom Nsabimana is alleged to have distributed weapons. Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictment did not give Nsabimana sufficient information to adequately prepare his defence against the charge of distributing weapons as part of a criminal conspiracy. For these reasons, the Chamber considers that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment is defective.

5350. The Chamber will proceed to determine whether this defect was cured. The Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief stated that from April to July 1994, during the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them with logistical support, i.e. weapons, transport and fuel. The massacres were the result of a strategy planned, adopted and instigated by Nsabimana and others to destroy and exterminate the Tutsi population.¹³⁹⁵⁴ The Chamber notes that no mention is made of Nsabimana's alleged distribution of weapons in Butare between April and July 1994 in the summaries of anticipated Prosecution witnesses' testimony in the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief, or in the Prosecution opening statement.

5351. The Chamber considers that the defect in the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment was not cured. Nsabimana was not provided with sufficient information regarding the dates, locations and circumstances of his alleged distribution of weapons in Paragraph 5.1 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment. The Chamber will therefore not make any finding regarding this allegation. The Chamber further observes that the Prosecution did not bring any witnesses to support this allegation.

3.7.9 Roadblocks – Overview

3.7.9.1 Introduction

5352. All of the Indictments allege that in the hours following the crash of President Habyarimana's plane, military and militiamen set up roadblocks where they checked the identity cards of passers-by and killed or summarily executed those or most of those who were identified as Tutsis. As of the night of 6 to 7 April 1994, in the capital, elements of the Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion set up roadblocks on the major roads, controlling people's movements.¹³⁹⁵⁵

5353. All of the Indictments further allege that on 27 April 1994, the Interim Government ordered that roadblocks be set up, knowing that the roadblocks were being used to identify the Tutsis and their "accomplices" for the purpose of eliminating them.¹³⁹⁵⁶

5354. The Prosecution submits that roadblocks were in existence before the assassination of President Habyarimana and were a means of controlling people's movements during a time of conflict.¹³⁹⁵⁷ During the genocide more roadblocks were established, becoming an important tool in the commission of the genocide. They were a means of identifying Tutsis in order to kill them, set up under the auspices and with the authorisation of the authorities under the guise of self-defence. They were manned by a combination of soldiers, gendarmes, Interahamwe, other militia, commune police and civilians.¹³⁹⁵⁸ Trained and armed militia were regularly and routinely positioned by the authorities to search and kill Tutsis.¹³⁹⁵⁹

5355. The Defence did not make specific submissions on the Prosecution's allegation that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks in Butare préfecture. However, the five Accused gave evidence as to the use and purpose of roadblocks.¹³⁹⁶⁰ These will be considered in the evidence section below.

3.7.9.2 Preliminary Issues

5356. The Chamber notes that the allegation that the Interim Government ordered that roadblocks be set up on 27 April 1994 knowing that roadblocks were being used to identify and eliminate Tutsis, was not pled in support of counts against any of the Accused. Recalling the principles previously articulated in this Judgement (2.4), the Chamber observes that it cannot base a conviction of the Accused solely on this Paragraph of the Indictment. However, the Chamber will consider this evidence to the extent that it provides context to the events which occurred in Butare préfecture during the period at issue and to assess whether genocide was committed. The Chamber specifically addresses in this section the allegation that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks in Butare préfecture.

3.7.9.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAI

5357. Witness FAI, a Hutu civil servant in 1994¹³⁹⁶¹ and detainee in Rwanda at the time of his testimony,¹³⁹⁶² testified that roadblocks were set up immediately after 19 April 1994 in his secteur to prevent Tutsis from escaping by catching and killing them.¹³⁹⁶³ Roadblocks were monitored by the Hutu inhabitants of each cellule. Witness FAI testified that at the beginning of the killings, Tutsis passing by roadblocks were systematically killed.¹³⁹⁶⁴

Prosecution Witness QJ

5358. Witness QJ, a Tutsi, testified that to pass through the roadblock, one had to present identity papers.¹³⁹⁶⁵ The witness spoke specifically of the roadblock in front of the Hotel Faucon.¹³⁹⁶⁶ Hutus would be allowed to pass through roadblocks and Tutsis were asked to stand aside and sit on the ground next to the roadblock.¹³⁹⁶⁷ The Tutsis at the roadblock were taken to the Kabutare Forest, behind the Hotel Faucon, and killed.¹³⁹⁶⁸ Later, people were taken aside and killed just away from the main road.¹³⁹⁶⁹ Other people were taken from the Hotel Faucon roadblock across the street to a University bookshop and killed by soldiers.¹³⁹⁷⁰

Prosecution Witness FAU

5359. Witness FAU, a Hutu farmer detained at the time of his testimony,¹³⁹⁷¹ testified that roadblocks were erected in his area immediately following the death of President Habyarimana.¹³⁹⁷² Witness FAU participated in patrols and worked at a roadblock. Witness FAU was told to check identity cards; if someone did not have an identity card, they were taken for an Inyenzi and were to be killed. He averred that Inyenzi meant Tutsi.¹³⁹⁷³

Prosecution Witness QCB

5360. Witness QCB, a Hutu driver in 1994 and detained witness at the time of testimony,¹³⁹⁷⁴ testified that all the roadblocks that he knew about were set up on the night of 20-21 April 1994.¹³⁹⁷⁵ He testified to a roadblock at the house of Amanda Rugira.¹³⁹⁷⁶ The Interahamwe and two soldiers armed with knives and Kalashnikov guns manned the roadblock.¹³⁹⁷⁷ Interahamwe were checking people's identity cards to determine whether they were Tutsis or Hutus, detaining the Tutsis and allowing the Hutus to move on towards town.¹³⁹⁷⁸ A woman was asked to produce her identification card, and did so reluctantly; she was killed with knives.¹³⁹⁷⁹

5361. Witness QCB also testified as to a roadblock located in front of the home of Maurice Ntahobali.¹³⁹⁸⁰ Witness QCB arrived at this roadblock in the morning of 21 April 1994 with Léopold Ruvurajabo, a Tutsi.¹³⁹⁸¹ He testified as to the killing of Ruvurajabo. He said Interahamwe asked Ruvurajabo, who was a Tutsi, for his identification, but he refused to provide it. The Interahamwe told Ruvurajabo to step aside at a nearby school. He again refused and was then ordered to be killed.¹³⁹⁸²

Prosecution Witness FAK

5362. Witness FAK, a Hutu farmer and detained witness at the time of testimony,¹³⁹⁸³ testified that his conseiller de secteur ordered roadblocks be set up after 6 April 1994.¹³⁹⁸⁴ The witness manned two roadblocks in his secteur.¹³⁹⁸⁵ The man in charge of one roadblock gave instructions that the roadblock was set up for the purpose of checking the Inkotanyi so that they would not enter the commune.¹³⁹⁸⁶ The witness and others were later made to understand that Inkotanyi were Tutsis.¹³⁹⁸⁷ People checked identity cards, which were used to identify the "Inkotanyi", as the cards bore the ethnic origin of the individual; if the identity card read Tutsi, the Tutsis were to be killed.¹³⁹⁸⁸ Roadblocks were manned by Hutu civilians.¹³⁹⁸⁹ On the evening of 19 April 1994, some people brought a Tutsi couple to the roadblock and killed them; they were buried down the hill from the roadblock.¹³⁹⁹⁰

5363. After a meeting in Kibayi commune at a football field, Witness FAK went to a roadblock with Augustin Rwabuhungu and one Laurent, where they encountered the conseiller de secteur.¹³⁹⁹¹ Augustin said that he had a Tutsi girl in his home and the conseiller directed that she be brought to the roadblock. Witness FAK testified that they then killed the Tutsi girl with a club.¹³⁹⁹² The Tutsi woman had a child with her, who was killed by Rwabuhungu on the same day.¹³⁹⁹³

Prosecution Witness QBV

5364. Witness QBV, a Hutu farmer and detained witness at the time of testimony,¹³⁹⁹⁴ testified that every civilian pedestrian or motorist would be checked at the roadblocks for firearms and verification of ethnicity by checking their identification cards. If the civilian was a Tutsi, he would be asked to step aside and be reported to the conseiller.¹³⁹⁹⁵

Prosecution Witness TB

5365. Witness TB, a Tutsi teacher, testified that she saw a roadblock located on the road that went to the school centre in front of what is called économat [bursary] near the Catholic cathedral of Butare, where people were killed with traditional weapons.¹³⁹⁹⁶

Nsabimana Defence Witness TWW

5366. Witness TWW, a Hutu, testified that the authorities decided to set up roadblocks in order to maintain the peace and safety within the population.¹³⁹⁹⁷ He stated that in 1994, identity cards displayed a person's ethnic identity. Witness TWW did not see if identity cards were checked at roadblocks; he was not asked to show his. The witness did not know if Tutsis were crossing roadblocks.¹³⁹⁹⁸

Nsabimana Defence Witness SOLO

5367. Witness SOLO, a Hutu judicial police inspector in 1994,¹³⁹⁹⁹ testified that there were roadblocks in Rusatiro commune; at each of the roadblocks, he was made to show his identity card, without knowing the reason for it, after which he was ordered to go on his way.¹⁴⁰⁰⁰

Nsabimana Defence Witness Patrick Fergal Keane

5368. Patrick Fergal Keane, a journalist for the BBC,¹⁴⁰⁰¹ testified that he saw people checking for identity cards at the roadblocks, and remembered being told by the people at the roadblocks that they were checking for infiltrators who could be men, women or children.¹⁴⁰⁰² Referring to a video, Keane described what he saw as a soldier of the Rwandan army checking the identities of the people in a mini-bus, and a prisoner standing beside the soldier, wearing a pink uniform.¹⁴⁰⁰³ From his experience of roadblocks in Rwanda, the witness said that people were stopped at the roadblocks to ascertain their identity.¹⁴⁰⁰⁴ Keane testified that the people at the roadblocks spoke about their fear that they were going to be colonised by the Tutsis again; one man said he did not feel the Tutsis regarded them as human beings. This was the general tenor of what the people said at the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁰⁵ Keane said that in the interview, the young man who worked at the roadblock used the phrase "Inyenzi", which they were led to understand referred to cockroaches, a term used to reflect Tutsis.¹⁴⁰⁰⁶ He understood the word Inyenzi meant cockroach and was applied to RPF soldiers or Tutsi civilians and Tutsi as an ethnic group in 1994.¹⁴⁰⁰⁷

Nsabimana Defence Witness Charles Karemano

5369. Charles Karemano, the National Secretary of the PSD in 1994 and a Hutu, testified that he was in Kigali in April 1994.¹⁴⁰⁰⁸ At the time of the attack on the President, the préfet of Kigali, the RTL, and the Interim Government, were all asking the population to come out onto the streets to set up roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁰⁹ On 7 April 1994, neighbours asked him to man the roadblocks and check on the passage of enemies or traitors.¹⁴⁰¹⁰ Everyone was obliged to go, without exception, unless one was part of the enemy.¹⁴⁰¹¹ He was allowed to leave the roadblock around 9 April 1994 as he felt sick from the images of dead bodies and parts of cut-up bodies which were piled up on the road.¹⁴⁰¹² He assumed that these bodies were not killed by the RPF, because the bodies were exposed in an area that had not yet been conquered by the RPF.¹⁴⁰¹³

5370. Karemano testified that the killings in Butare and Cyarwa began in April 1994. Soldiers began the killings and invited people to loot houses.¹⁴⁰¹⁴ The leaders of the roadblocks instigated killings, there were no guidelines provided by the political authorities. The Cyarwa conseiller de secteur, Nicodeme, even told the witness that he was manhandled at roadblocks. After 19 April 1994, those manning the roadblocks were civilians.¹⁴⁰¹⁵

5371. Karemano testified that between 18 April 1994 and 3 July 1994 he went to Mbazi, Ngoma and Ruhashya communes.¹⁴⁰¹⁶ At roadblocks, identity cards were often requested; the witness thought that one's physical features and the information on the card would determine whether one was allowed to pass or not.¹⁴⁰¹⁷ He was able to move around because he had papers indicating he was Hutu and his facial features made him recognisable as a Hutu.¹⁴⁰¹⁸ In addition to an identity card, it was advisable to hold a laissez-passer to present at roadblocks authorising movement between communes.¹⁴⁰¹⁹ In normal times this document could be obtained from the commune or bourgmestre, but in those times possibly even a commander could issue them.¹⁴⁰²⁰ He went to the préfecture to ask for one, but was not issued one.¹⁴⁰²¹

5372. Nevertheless, a laissez-passer did not necessarily ensure safe passage or that one would not be killed, mistreated or threatened; some people who had documents were stopped and killed, whereas some people who did not have any papers were not affected by any violence. However it was thought to be better to have documents than not to have them.¹⁴⁰²²

5373. In general, those manning the roadblocks were bandits and people escaping from justice.¹⁴⁰²³ Those manning the roadblocks were taking power into their own hands and were not people appointed by the bourgmestre, préfet or secteur.¹⁴⁰²⁴ Karemano was also stopped at roadblocks and asked to show his identity card. The witness saw people stopped at other roadblocks.¹⁴⁰²⁵

5374. Karemano testified that generally the technique at roadblocks was not to kill; leaders of the roadblocks decided that the people to be killed would be taken elsewhere.¹⁴⁰²⁶ The official reason that people would go to roadblocks, was to stop the enemy from infiltrating the population, although other people went there to kill and then loot the person's house.¹⁴⁰²⁷

5375. Karemano testified that there was a meeting at the University around mid-May 1994 chaired by Prime Minister Kambanda at which academics made heinous speeches saying that Tutsis and, in particular, Tutsi university lecturers should be shot down.¹⁴⁰²⁸ By mid-May 1994, Tutsi professors Karenzi and Rumiya and many others had already been killed.¹⁴⁰²⁹ A professor named Gaetan, whom people considered to be Tutsi, was also killed; to his knowledge all the Tutsi lecturers of the university who were in Butare on the campus, were killed immediately after 19 April 1994.¹⁴⁰³⁰

Nsabimana Defence Witness BE

5376. Witness BE, a student at the Groupe Scolaire in 1994 and a Hutu,¹⁴⁰³¹ testified that he passed through roadblocks at Rango and Nkubi manned by civilians; since the people manning these roadblocks knew him well, they let him through.¹⁴⁰³² Local people went to roadblocks at night to carry out night patrols; the witness did not see people of Tutsi ethnicity arrested, killed or mistreated at those roadblocks.¹⁴⁰³³

Nsabimana Defence Witness Alexandre Bararwandika

5377. Alexandre Bararwandika, a Hutu doctor from Burundi, testified that, officially, roadblocks were set up to prevent infiltration of the RPF fighters.¹⁴⁰³⁴ He could not refute that unofficially the roadblocks were used to determine ethnicity.¹⁴⁰³⁵ Bararwandika saw the corpse of a man next to a roadblock behind the MSM garage near a mechanic shop, and the corpses of four women in the compound of the primary school.¹⁴⁰³⁶ The witness also saw people arrested at the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰³⁷

5378. Bararwandika presented his UNHCR identification card at the roadblocks; he said it was likely that the fact that his identity card indicated his nationality as Burundian satisfied the people at the roadblocks that his ethnicity was Hutu, as most Burundian refugees in Rwanda were Hutus. The witness testified that Rwandans had to show identity cards that displayed their ethnicity, which were asked for at the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰³⁸ Mere mention of one's ethnicity was not enough because, officially, the checks were intended to limit the infiltration of the RPF combatants.¹⁴⁰³⁹

5379. The witness transported four Tutsi children from Rango and was worried about how to get them across roadblocks. He went to see the bourgmestre who gave him completed identification papers. The secret at the roadblocks was to mention that the children he was evacuating were Hutus, and the strategy worked. In another case this strategy did not work because the person involved was killed before the witness could supply identification papers.¹⁴⁰⁴⁰

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Céline Nyiraneza

5380. Céline Nyiraneza, Ntahobali's aunt and Nyiramasuhuko's sister,¹⁴⁰⁴¹ testified that she went to Butare town a few days after the assassination of the President and stayed at the Hotel Ihuliro, crossing two roadblocks on the way. The first was located in front of Hotel Faucon and the second in front of the Rector's office. Two young people in civilian attire manned the roadblocks. When her vehicle got to the roadblock, it came to a stop. The witness was with her three children and another child, a niece of her husband. Those manning the roadblock asked people above 16 years of age to show their identity card. She was asked for her identification in order to determine whether the names of the children appeared in the identity card and ensure that the children who accompanied her were her own.¹⁴⁰⁴² Nyiraneza testified that she and her eldest child had their identity cards, however, her two younger children did not and were therefore characterised as being accomplices. They were still able to get to the Hotel Ihuliro.¹⁴⁰⁴³

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Maurice Ntahobali

5381. Maurice Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko's husband, Ntahobali's father and Rector of Rwandan National University,¹⁴⁰⁴⁴ testified that people were stopped at roadblocks; they were identified in order to determine whether they lived within the area and needed to go through the roadblock in order to get to their homes.¹⁴⁰⁴⁵ Ntahobali was aware that one of his friends, Professor Pierre Claver Karenzi, was murdered in April 1994 in Butare. He heard of this crime a few days after it occurred.¹⁴⁰⁴⁶

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness CEM

5382. Witness CEM, a Hutu teacher,¹⁴⁰⁴⁷ testified that she did not know the ethnicity of the people who manned the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁴⁸ The witness stated that roadblocks were not erected to kill people; when one got to a roadblock one was asked to present identification papers and were then allowed to go.¹⁴⁰⁴⁹ She said she never saw anybody killed near a roadblock, and never witnessed anybody killed during the day.¹⁴⁰⁵⁰ The witness testified that she knew that both Hutus and Tutsis were killed in May 1994.¹⁴⁰⁵¹ At the Hotel Faucon and EER roadblocks, she presented her identity card when asked and it was given back to her and she went on her way.¹⁴⁰⁵² Everyone who passed the roadblock was asked to stop and show their identity card.¹⁴⁰⁵³ She said that when one presented an identity card, it was checked and handed back.¹⁴⁰⁵⁴ She agreed ethnicity was indicated on identity cards.¹⁴⁰⁵⁵

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WZNA

5383. Witness WZNA, a Hutu factory worker,¹⁴⁰⁵⁶ testified that she had to go through various roadblocks to get to her place of work, including Mukoni, one near the University laboratory, one near the Rector's office, at Hotel Faucon and Rwabuye. At all the roadblocks the situation was the same; the soldiers manning the roadblock asked for identity papers and then let the vehicle through.¹⁴⁰⁵⁷

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness WKNKI

5384. Witness WKNKI, a Hutu trader, testified that towards the end of May 1994 roadblocks were mounted throughout the country, and there was at least one in each secteur. They were mounted as part of the civil defence operation in order to check infiltrations.¹⁴⁰⁵⁸ Witness WKNKI manned a roadblock; they were not intended to prevent people from fleeing. They checked for infiltrators by asking for identity cards; roadblocks aimed to find out who was coming from out of the country and attacking Rwanda, not to single out Tutsis.¹⁴⁰⁵⁹

Ntahobali Defence Witness WKNMJ

5385. Witness WKNMJ, a Hutu farmer, testified that she saw roadblocks at Mukoni, near the University and at the IPN (National Pedagogic Institute). Identification cards were checked at roadblocks. She agreed that her identity card bore her ethnicity. She said soldiers were present at the roadblocks and she saw no dead bodies near the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁶⁰

Ntahobali Defence Witness WCNMC

5386. Witness WCNMC, a Hutu student in 1994, testified that when she got to a particular roadblock, people would be stopped, show their identity card and then be allowed to continue.¹⁴⁰⁶¹ One morning, when she was on her way to Butare, she saw three people being arrested at the Mukoni roadblock for not having any identity cards but she did not witness any killings at the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁶² She confirmed that her ethnicity was indicated on her identity card and that she was allowed to pass through the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁶³

Ntahobali Defence Witness WUNBJ

5387. Witness WUNBJ, a préfecture employee, manned a roadblock in his cellule; between April and July 1994 all able-bodied men were expected to man roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁶⁴ Witness WUNBJ was told that the enemy was the RPF, who carried guns. As such, the witness, with others, checked those carrying luggage to see if they carried guns because the RPF infiltrated the members of the population who were fleeing.¹⁴⁰⁶⁵ He did not see any RPF carrying firearms at the roadblock, nor did they ever arrest anyone.¹⁴⁰⁶⁶

5388. Witness WUNBJ stated that the second page of identity cards showed a photograph of the bearer under which was the bearer's ethnic origin, Tutsi, Parmehutu or Twa.¹⁴⁰⁶⁷ One's ethnic group was clearly visible under the photo, and not hidden.¹⁴⁰⁶⁸ Witness WUNBJ testified that he never witnessed any killings or crimes at roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁶⁹ At roadblocks manned by civilians, people who did not carry bags or luggage could pass through without being checked. He did not ask people without luggage to show identity cards. He explained that people were only asked to present their identity cards at roadblocks manned by soldiers.¹⁴⁰⁷⁰ The witness testified that if people did not have identity papers, they could also provide their professional service card, and if they were simple peasants, they could provide an authorisation or paper given by the conseiller de secteur.¹⁴⁰⁷¹ People who went through roadblocks were questioned as to where they came from and where they were going, their cars and bicycles were searched and people's possessions were unloaded and checked.¹⁴⁰⁷²

Ntahobali Defence Witness H1B6

5389. Witness H1B6, a Hutu student at the National University in 1994, testified that they were asked to show their identity cards at the roadblocks. They produced their student cards, which did not contain any reference to their ethnic origin, and were allowed to pass. He did not see people sitting or killed, and did not see any blood at the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁷³

Ntahobali Defence Witness WCMNA

5390. Witness WCMNA, a Hutu, testified that he heard that during April to June 1994 in Butare, Tutsis and persons who were unable to show their identification papers at the roadblocks were killed by Hutus.¹⁴⁰⁷⁴ He did not see anyone being killed at a roadblock in Butare between April and July 1994.¹⁴⁰⁷⁵ Towards the beginning of June 1994, other roadblocks were mounted in Butare town, due to the massive influx of persons displaced by the war, which rendered it necessary to see if there were infiltrators among the displaced persons.¹⁴⁰⁷⁶ At the time it was considered that since the infiltrators were alleged to have come from outside the country, they therefore would not have identity papers, and those who came to roadblocks without Rwandan or internationally-recognised identity papers could be the enemy. In general, people with papers were able to pass roadblocks, but that was not always the case.¹⁴⁰⁷⁷

Ntahobali Defence Witness WCKJ

5391. Witness WCKJ, a Hutu trainer at the CFP in 1994, often passed the roadblocks at Kangoma, Groupe Scolaire and the one in front of Hotel Faucon; each time he went through the roadblock near the Hotel Faucon he was asked to provide his identity card.¹⁴⁰⁷⁸ He stated that when a person passed a roadblock, the person was asked to show his papers and if the person was carrying a bag, their bag was checked, and then the person continued on his way.¹⁴⁰⁷⁹ Although he heard people saying so, he never saw anyone killed at those roadblocks, or dead bodies, although he did not know if people were killed at the roadblock and then moved.¹⁴⁰⁸⁰

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-72

5392. Witness AND-72, a Hutu government official, testified that the population agreed to set up roadblocks in order to make sure that no one, or rather no RPF soldiers, would infiltrate the commune, and in order to ensure security in the different secteurs of the commune.¹⁴⁰⁸¹ Persons in charge of roadblocks were instructed to check foreigners who intended to enter the secteur, inspect their identity cards, arrest wrong-doers and hand them over to the commune authorities.¹⁴⁰⁸² Commune security ordered the conseiller to set up roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁸³ Identity cards were checked at roadblocks in order to determine the persons' ethnic origin. Civilians, including women and children, were killed at the roadblocks.¹⁴⁰⁸⁴

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-60

5393. Witness AND-60, a Hutu accountant in 1994, stated that he went through a roadblock in Mamba secteur, but was not required to show his identity card as the persons manning the roadblock knew him. Only unknown persons or those carrying goods were asked to show their identity cards.¹⁴⁰⁸⁵

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-53

5394. Witness AND-53, a Hutu farmer, testified that civilians armed with sticks manned the roadblock at Kanga Junction.¹⁴⁰⁸⁶ A roadblock was set up there to monitor the passage of persons who did not have identity cards, to make sure those passing were not RPF troops. If people refused to show their identification papers, those manning the roadblocks were to blow whistles to alert the population to come to their rescue. At no time did RPF soldiers pass by.¹⁴⁰⁸⁷ He testified he never heard that people had been killed at the roadblock.¹⁴⁰⁸⁸

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-30

5395. Witness AND-30, a Hutu teacher, testified that people thought the RPF was about to invade Ndora commune and in the aftermath roadblocks were set up to identify those who passed through their commune.¹⁴⁰⁸⁹ He heard that those who manned the roadblocks examined identity cards and baggage to identify who was an enemy or an accomplice of the enemy. The roadblocks had to be manned by men from the commune, and they were manned 24 hours a day.¹⁴⁰⁹⁰ He never saw or heard that people had been killed at a roadblock in his area.¹⁴⁰⁹¹

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-16

5396. Witness AND-16, a Hutu trader, testified that a roadblock erected at Sakindi on 22 April 1994, was intended to stop members of the population from fleeing. In the evening he saw corpses at the roadblock and learned that the roadblock was erected to control the migration of displaced persons.¹⁴⁰⁹² He was told that Semunkima and Kagewje had stopped the people and killed them after having asked them to show their identification cards.¹⁴⁰⁹³

5397. On 22 April 1994 about seven Tutsi women and girls who had escaped an attack sought refuge in his house. He said that members of their families had been killed and their houses had been destroyed. When those women wanted to flee towards the Mugogwe secteur, they were prevented from crossing the roadblock.¹⁴⁰⁹⁴

5398. Filip Reyntjens was referred to the minutes of a Security Council meeting of 20 April 1994 which provided that: "People who do not have identity papers or identification papers should be careful so that no one should suffer injustice.”¹⁴⁰⁹⁵ He was further shown a passage from Des Forges’ Report that read “[r]ecognizing that all those who did not have identification papers ran the risk of being killed, participants [of the 20 April 1994 Security Council meeting] declared that it was, indeed, necessary to make sure that ‘innocent people do not become victims as well’, no doubt meaning those Hutu who had fled their homes without the necessary documents”.¹⁴⁰⁹⁶ When asked about Des Forges’ interpretation, Reyntjens remarked that while Des Forges referred to “innocent people”, the text of the Security Council meeting said that “no one”, not only innocent people, should suffer injustice [at roadblocks].¹⁴⁰⁹⁷ Reyntjens testified that most of the time people were not handed over to authorities but were killed on the spot.¹⁴⁰⁹⁸

5399. Witness D-2-YYYY, a Hutu civil servant,¹⁴⁰⁹⁹ stated that he had to pass through a given roadblock each time he went to and from work.¹⁴¹⁰⁰ Each time he had to produce his identification because those manning the roadblock said that Inyenzi could disguise themselves dressing in a similar manner.¹⁴¹⁰¹ At the Hotel Faucon roadblock he saw the body of the university lecturer, Karenzi.¹⁴¹⁰²

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-20-F

5400. Witness D-2-20-F, a Hutu cook at Groupe Scolaire, testified that around 14 or 15 May 1994, 13 Hutu persons were arrested for having perpetrated killings against Tutsis. He saw people with firearms, bows, arrows and spears arresting his elder brother and taking him away. The witness said the conseiller tried to bring the arrested persons to the authorities, but soldiers intervened and shot the persons down at the roadblock at the University Laboratory.¹⁴¹⁰³

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-O

5401. Witness D-2-13-O, a Hutu driver in 1994,¹⁴¹⁰⁴ testified that Kanyabashi issued a Hutu identity card to his Tutsi wife that enabled them to cross several roadblocks.¹⁴¹⁰⁵ At each roadblock the witness was asked to show his identity card and was then allowed to pass.¹⁴¹⁰⁶

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-13-D

5402. Witness D-2-13-D, a Hutu mechanic, stated that on about 10 April 1994 the Interahamwe were at the Butare MSM garage roadblock and asked for his identification papers.¹⁴¹⁰⁷ On another occasion, at the Hotel Faucon roadblock, he saw Cassien Nkundumeremye, a commune policeman, being asked for his identification. Those at the roadblock checked Cassien's card and gave it back to him but said that he had a wife that was a Tutsi. He also saw other people crossing the roadblocks having their identity documents checked.¹⁴¹⁰⁸ Witness D-2-13-D also testified that Jean Semwiza ordered people to set up roadblocks in mid-May in his secteur.¹⁴¹⁰⁹

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-11-D

5403. Witness D-2-11-D, a Hutu farmer, testified that he was asked to show his identity card at a roadblock at the Ngoma/Huye commune border. The roadblock was manned by about 10 local people from Huye, dressed in civilian attire and armed with firearms.¹⁴¹¹⁰ Those manning the roadblock also had traditional weapons like machetes, swords and bows.¹⁴¹¹¹

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-2-5-I

5404. Witness D-2-5-I, a Hutu civil servant, testified that at the Hotel Faucon roadblock, which was manned by soldiers, he saw the body of university lecturer, Claver Karenzi.¹⁴¹¹² He said it was obvious the soldiers had killed Karenzi. He did not see bodies at this roadblock on other days.¹⁴¹¹³

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-1-4-O

5405. Witness D-1-4-O, a Hutu working at a health clinic in 1994, testified that while crossing some roadblocks in May 1994, he was required to produce his identification card, while at others he was let through without producing any document or having to answer any questions. Children who accompanied him were allowed to cross without difficulties.¹⁴¹¹⁴

Kanyabashi Defence Witness D-13-D

5406. Witness D-13-D, a Hutu driver for a government agency, testified that he was let through roadblocks by showing a pass signed by Gatsinzi to the persons manning the roadblock.¹⁴¹¹⁵ He also showed his identity card which identified him as a Hutu.¹⁴¹¹⁶

Nyiramasuhuko

5407. Having regard to Kambanda's instructions of 27 April 1994 concerning the establishment of roadblocks, Nyiramasuhuko testified that the government insisted on officially recognised roadblocks because there was information that some people were taking it upon themselves to mount roadblocks.¹⁴¹¹⁷ Nyiramasuhuko testified that those who were looting or stealing were to be arrested and punished.¹⁴¹¹⁸ Nyiramasuhuko stated that between 20 and 30 April 1994, the Cabinet learned there were killings in Butare préfecture.¹⁴¹¹⁹ In June 1994, massacres were gradually coming to an end and there were sporadic killings perpetrated by bandits or infiltrators.¹⁴¹²⁰ Identity cards were checked because Rwanda was being attacked by the Inkotanyi who were coming from Uganda, along with Ugandans, Sudanese, Burundians, and some people from Tanzania; luggage was searched because the RPF carried bullets in their luggage.¹⁴¹²¹

Ntahobali

5408. Ntahobali testified that roadblocks and night patrols were necessary to search for and keep an eye on foreigners.¹⁴¹²² At a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994, the authorities told the population that acts of violence and killings were perpetrated by thugs, gangsters or hoodlums, who were working for the enemy. Roadblocks were set up to prevent these hoodlums from killing.¹⁴¹²³

Nteziryayo

5409. Nteziryayo testified that the main reason for the establishment of civil defence was to protect and defend the population, and not to kill Tutsis.¹⁴¹²⁴

Nsabimana

5410. Nsabimana testified that he closed down several roadblocks erected by civilians. He also urged Colonel Muvunyi to close other unjustified roadblocks but only soldiers could do something at the roadblocks manned by soldiers; a lay-person could not interfere with roadblocks manned by soldiers.¹⁴¹²⁵

Ndayambaje

5411. Ndayambaje testified that RPF propaganda claimed that roadblocks were set up with a view to facilitating massacres, such that any person at a roadblock was regarded as a killer and came to be known as an Interahamwe.¹⁴¹²⁶ He said the mounting of roadblocks was a reflex which had occurred even before 1990, they were not mounted in a bid to attack anyone.¹⁴¹²⁷

3.7.9.4 Deliberations

3.7.9.4.1 Location of Roadblocks and Presence of Soldiers, Interahamwe and Civilians

5412. The Parties agreed as to the existence of roadblocks in Butare préfecture during the period in question. Although some roadblocks existed prior to 6 April 1994 in Butare préfecture, the number of roadblocks increased substantially after that date.¹⁴¹²⁸ The Chamber accepts that some roadblocks were set up in Butare town starting in 1990.

5413. After 6 April 1994, roadblocks existed at major intersections in Butare town.¹⁴¹²⁹ The Chamber has already noted that it was uncontested that the number of roadblocks in Butare in May 1994 was considerable, restricting ease of movement (3.6.19.4.9.2). The Chamber recalls its finding, for example, regarding the existence of the roadblock which existed near Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali's house, located at a distance of approximately 50-100 metres from the Hotel Ihuliro (3.6.23.4.2).

5414. Although some witnesses referred to these roadblocks by differing names, the Chamber has considered maps and photographs of the intersections as well as witness testimony and is

¹⁴¹³⁰ The witnesses named roadblocks according to the buildings found nearby. Where several buildings were in a particular area, the witnesses referred to these roadblocks by different names. For example, the rector's office was near Chez Bihira, CUSP, and the Butare préfecture office; Chez Rugira was near the University Laboratory; and Mukoni junction was near President Sindikubwabo's house. 5416. Furthermore, it was largely uncontested that people who passed through the roadblocks in Butare préfecture were asked for identification by civilians, soldiers and Interahamwe manning the roadblocks and that national identification cards at that time indicated the ethnic group of the individual.¹⁴¹³⁵

3.7.9.4.2 Targeting and Killing at Roadblocks

5417. The Parties contested whether Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks. The Prosecution contends that the roadblocks were used to identify Tutsis. The Defence argues the roadblocks were used to identify the RPF and that identification was checked to determine whether a person was a foreigner, which may indicate membership in the RPF or an accomplice from another country,¹⁴¹³⁶ who might be carrying guns or bullets.¹⁴¹³⁷

5418. The evidence presented at trial established that identification cards were verified at the roadblocks. Witness FAI testified that the roadblocks were set up to prevent Tutsis from escaping by catching and killing them.¹⁴¹³⁸ At one roadblock mounted near the witness' place of work, anyone who came upon the roadblock was to show identity papers,¹⁴¹³⁹ and Tutsis were killed.¹⁴¹⁴⁰

5419. Witness QJ provided eyewitness testimony as to the search for and killing of Tutsis at roadblocks. Witness QJ testified that to pass through the Hotel Faucon roadblock, one had to present identity papers.¹⁴¹⁴¹ Tutsis were asked to stand aside and sit on the ground next to the Hotel Faucon roadblock.¹⁴¹⁴² He specified that in April, May and June 1994, those stopped at the roadblock were taken to Kabutare and shot, but that in June they were thrown everywhere on the streets.¹⁴¹⁴³ As time went by, Tutsis were shot next to roadblocks and their bodies would be strewn by the roadside.¹⁴¹⁴⁴ People were taken from the Hotel Faucon roadblock across the street to a University bookshop and killed by soldiers.¹⁴¹⁴⁵ The whole town stank and it was impossible to go to a roadblock without seeing a dead body.¹⁴¹⁴⁶

5420. Witness QCB testified as to a roadblock manned by Interahamwe near the house of Amanda Rugira; the Interahamwe checked people's identity cards to determine whether they were Tutsis or Hutus, detaining the Tutsis and allowing the Hutus to move on towards town.¹⁴¹⁴⁷ Witness QCB further testified that a woman was asked to produce her identity card, and was subsequently killed at the Rugira roadblock.¹⁴¹⁴⁸ Witness QCB also testified as to the killing of a Tutsi man named Léopold Ruvurajabo at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.¹⁴¹⁴⁹ Witness QCB further testified that at the roadblock close to the mosque, he saw that Tutsis kept there were being held at the EER School and were subsequently killed.¹⁴¹⁵⁰

5421. Witness FAK stated that people checked identity cards to identify the "Inkotanyi", as the cards bore the ethnic origin of the individual; if the identity card read Tutsi, the Tutsis were to be killed.¹⁴¹⁵¹ Witness FAK testified that towards the evening of 19 April 1994, a lot of people brought a Tutsi couple to the roadblock and killed them.¹⁴¹⁵² After a meeting in Kibayi commune, Witness FAK went to a roadblock with Augustin and Laurent, where they encountered the conseiller de secteur.¹⁴¹⁵³ Augustin said that he had a Tutsi girl in his home and the conseiller directed that she be brought to the roadblock. Witness FAK testified that they then killed the Tutsi girl with a club,¹⁴¹⁵⁴ and Augustin killed the girl's child.¹⁴¹⁵⁵

5422. Witness FA testified that in April 1994, she saw a man beaten and detained at a roadblock after producing his identity card.¹⁴¹⁵⁶ Witness SX testified that identity cards were checked and Tutsis massacred at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.¹⁴¹⁵⁷ Witness TB testified to a vehicle being stopped at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. The people in the vehicle were made to show their identity cards, after which some were beaten and detained.¹⁴¹⁵⁸ Witness TQ testified that he and a Tutsi woman were stopped at Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.¹⁴¹⁵⁹ The witness, who knew the woman to be a Tutsi, instructed her not to show her identity card because according to the witness, the woman could not have gone beyond the roadblock if she had been identified as Tutsi¹⁴¹⁶⁰ (3.6.23.3). Witness TQ also testified that at the Kigembe roadblock, on asking people to show their identification papers, members of civil defence would beat the people and call them *Inyenzi/ Inkotanyi*¹⁴¹⁶¹ (3.6.45.3).

5423. Witness FAU testified that he searched for and killed Tutsis at a roadblock; he testified that if someone did not have an identity card, they were taken for an Inyenzi and were to be killed.¹⁴¹⁶² Defence Expert Witness Reyntjens was referred to the minutes of a Security Council meeting of 20 April 1994 which provided that "[p]eople who do not have identity papers or identification papers should be careful so that no one should suffer injustice."¹⁴¹⁶³ He was also referred to Des Forges' report which concluded that "no one" meant Hutus who had fled their homes without the necessary documents.¹⁴¹⁶⁴ Reyntjens remarked that while Des Forges referred to "innocent people", the text of the Security Council meeting said that "no one", not only innocent people, should suffer injustice [at roadblocks].¹⁴¹⁶⁵ Given the credible and consistent accounts of the above Prosecution witnesses, as to what happened at roadblocks in April, May and June 1994 in Butare préfecture, the Chamber does not find Reyntjens' interpretation of the Security Council Minutes to be credible.

5424. Defence witnesses provided testimony consistent with that of Prosecution witnesses regarding the targeting and killing of Tutsis at roadblocks. Defence witness Charles Karemano testified that one's physical features and identity card determined whether one could pass a roadblock.¹⁴¹⁶⁶ The witness was able to move around because he had papers indicating he was Hutu and his facial features made him recognisable as a Hutu.¹⁴¹⁶⁷ Defence Witness Bararwandika also testified that he presented his UNHCR identification card at the roadblocks, which indicated his nationality to be Burundian thus satisfying the people at the roadblocks that his ethnicity was Hutu, as most Burundian refugees in Rwanda were Hutus.¹⁴¹⁶⁸ Bararwandika also testified that Rwandans had to show identity cards that displayed their ethnicity at roadblocks; mere mention of one's ethnicity was not enough because officially, the checks were intended to limit the infiltration of the RPF combatants, although unofficially the roadblocks were used to determine ethnicity.¹⁴¹⁶⁹ The Chamber considers that both Witnesses Karemano and Bararwandika had no reason to give false testimony in this regard. They were able to provide detailed testimony corroborating the evidence that those manning roadblocks checked identity cards in order to ascertain the ethnicity of individuals. The Chamber finds these two witnesses to be highly credible.

5425. Other Defence witnesses provided consistent testimony that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks. Witnesses D-2-5-I and D-2-YYYY testified that they saw the dead body of the Tutsi lecturer Karenzi at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.¹⁴¹⁷⁰ Witness D-2-5-I said the soldiers had killed Karenzi.¹⁴¹⁷¹ Maurice Ntahobali testified that Karenzi had been murdered at the Hotel Faucon roadblock.¹⁴¹⁷² Charles Karemano testified that all the Tutsis lecturers who were on the university campus in Butare were killed immediately after 19 April 1994.¹⁴¹⁷³ Witness AND-72 testified that Tutsi civilians, including women and children, were killed at the roadblocks.¹⁴¹⁷⁴ Witness AND-16 averred that a roadblock erected at Sakindi was intended to stop members of the population from fleeing; one evening he saw corpses at that roadblock.¹⁴¹⁷⁵ The witness knew the perpetrators of those killings; he was told that Semunkima and Kagewje had stopped the people and killed them after having asked them to show them their identification cards.¹⁴¹⁷⁶ Reyntjens testified that most of the time people were not handed over to authorities but were killed on the spot.¹⁴¹⁷⁷ Witness D-2-20-F said that on one occasion where the conseiller tried to bring persons they had arrested to the authorities, soldiers intervened and shot persons down at the roadblock at the University Laboratory.¹⁴¹⁷⁸

5426. Considering the strong evidence that roadblocks were used to identify and kill Tutsis, the Chamber is convinced that those who were unable to produce identification were sometimes killed because they were thought to be Tutsis. The Chamber considers that these accounts from Defence witnesses buttress the evidence that those manning roadblocks were in fact looking for Tutsis, and not just the RPF.

5427. Some Defence witnesses testified that identification cards were checked at roadblocks but no one was harmed and all were allowed to pass.¹⁴¹⁷⁹ The Chamber however notes that the Defence witnesses who testified that they were not harmed or harassed at roadblocks were Hutus. If those at the roadblocks were looking for Tutsis, it is logical that Hutus would be permitted to pass. It is also plausible that some of these Defence witnesses did not see any dead bodies at roadblocks, as the evidence supported the fact that Tutsis were identified at roadblocks, but were sometimes taken to be killed elsewhere.¹⁴¹⁸⁰ The Chamber further considers that many of these Defence witnesses were not truthful and turned a blind eye to violence against Tutsis at roadblocks. For example, Witness CEM testified that she had no idea of the ethnicity of those manning roadblocks and had not observed any killings during the day or at roadblocks.¹⁴¹⁸¹ The Chamber does not find it credible that she could have lived through the events of April to July 1994 in Butare préfecture and not seen evidence of killings.

5428. Ntahobali testified that at a meeting at Huye Stadium on 26 April 1994 authorities told the population that gangsters or hoodlums, who were killing people, were working for the enemy. He said roadblocks were set up to prevent these hoodlums from killing.¹⁴¹⁸² In view of the killings that continued to occur at the EER, the BPO and the Groupe Scolaire, the Chamber does not find this account to be credible. In short, the Chamber is not convinced that roadblocks were set up to check identification and baggage, rather than to identify and kill Tutsis.

5429. Contrary to Prosecution evidence that Tutsis were selected and killed at roadblocks, Witness QBV testified that if he encountered Tutsis at his roadblock, he should report them to the authorities.¹⁴¹⁸³ In this regard, Witness WCNMC also testified that she did not witness any killings at the roadblocks, but that, one morning she saw three people being arrested at the Mukoni roadblock for not having any identity cards.¹⁴¹⁸⁴ Having considered the foregoing evidence, the Chamber is convinced that this was not the policy followed at roadblocks.

5430. In this regard, the Chamber notes the evidence of Witness AND-72, who testified that persons in charge of roadblocks were instructed to check foreigners who intended to enter the secteur, inspect their identity cards, and arrest wrong-doers and hand them over to the commune authorities.¹⁴¹⁸⁵ Nonetheless, he testified Tutsi civilians, including women and children, were killed at the roadblocks.¹⁴¹⁸⁶ Expert Witness Reyntjens also testified that most of the time people were not handed over to authorities but were killed on the spot.¹⁴¹⁸⁷ Moreover, the Chamber recalls the substantial evidence that Tutsis were killed at or near roadblocks and then transported elsewhere. The Chamber finds that Tutsis, once identified, were not handed over to authorities.

5431. In sum, the Chamber finds it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks in Butare préfecture.

3.7.10 Civil Defence

3.7.10.1 Introduction

5432. The Nteziryayo Indictment alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of Government, political leaders and civil servants conspired among themselves to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition so they could remain in power. The components of this plan included recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen, as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Nyiramasuhuko, Kanyabashi, Ndayambaje and Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.¹⁴¹⁸⁸

5433. The Nteziryayo Indictment further alleges that on 25 May 1994, the Interim Government adopted directives concerning the civil defence programme.¹⁴¹⁸⁹ Its purpose was to legalise the distribution of weapons to militiamen and to legitimise the massacres of the civilian population. The Interim Government appointed several military officers to lead "self-defence committees" established in each préfecture, some of which took an active part in the massacres, including Nteziryayo in Butare.¹⁴¹⁹⁰

5434. The Prosecution submits that the 25 May 1994 Directives of the Interim Government on civil defence demonstrate that the Interim Government was fully functioning and was reinforcing the actions needed to carry out civil defence against the enemy.¹⁴¹⁹¹ It submits Nteziryayo actively trained and armed civilians while giving them orders to kill Tutsis under the guise of civil defence.¹⁴¹⁹² Civil defence entailed organising as large a section of the population as possible to hunt down Tutsis, either to kill them on the spot or to hand them over to local authorities for execution, and Nteziryayo was de facto in charge of the programme.¹⁴¹⁹³

5435. It submits that Nteziryayo, as the authority figure in charge of civil defence for Butare, conspired with other government officials at a 20 May 1994 meeting to get the public more involved in the killing of Tutsis and that he spoke at a series of meetings along the communes bordering Burundi to spread this information, where he promulgated genocide under the guise of the civil self-defence programme.¹⁴¹⁹⁴ The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution case against Nteziryayo is premised almost entirely on his functions as the head of civil defence in Butare préfecture.¹⁴¹⁹⁵ It submits that the Prosecution failed to establish that a superior-subordinate relationship existed between Nteziryayo and the members of civil defence and/or other members of the population in Butare. It submits the Prosecution failed to identify the alleged subordinates of Nteziryayo, failed to show Nteziryayo was in a position of command, failed to show that he had the power to issue orders, and failed to show Nteziryayo was capable of taking disciplinary action against the perpetrators.¹⁴¹⁹⁶

5436. In particular, it argues the Prosecution failed to prove that despite Colonel Simba's evident position as the de jure head of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, Nteziryayo was the de facto head of civil defence in Butare.¹⁴¹⁹⁷

3.7.10.2 Preliminary Issues

Failure to Plead Time Frame of Civil Defence

5437. The Nteziryayo Defence submits Paragraphs 4.5, 4.6, 6.16, 6.29 and 6.31 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment are defective because they do not identify with specificity the time frame during which Nteziryayo was allegedly in charge of civil defence.¹⁴¹⁹⁸ It asserts the only paragraph to identify a time frame in relation to civil defence is Paragraph 6.16 which states that on 25 May 1994 the Interim Government adopted directives concerning civil defence. It argues that any factual evidence as to events prior to 25 May 1994 falls outside the temporal scope of this paragraph and should not be considered against Nteziryayo.¹⁴¹⁹⁹

5438. The Chamber recalls that an indictment must be read as a whole. Paragraph 4.5 states: "Nteziryayo held the office of Préfet of Butare from 17 June 1994 until he left Rwanda in July 1994. Before that, he was responsible for the Civil Defence of the préfecture of Butare." Paragraph 6.29 states: "In the days following the death of the President Habyarimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo went to Butare to take over his new assignment. Between April and June 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, supervised the training of the militiamen and distributed weapons to them, at least once with the assistance by Élie Ndayambaje.” When read together, these paragraphs make clear the Prosecution’s allegation that Nteziryayo was in charge of civil defence starting after the death of the President and until Nteziryayo became préfet of Butare. Although Paragraph 6.16 alleges the Interim Government adopted civil defence directives on 25 May 1994, this does not exclude the possibility that civil defence existed prior to that date. Therefore, the Chamber finds that the Nteziryayo and Nsabimana Indictment did not limit the scope of Nteziryayo’s alleged criminal conduct under the rubric of civil defence to conduct after 25 May 1994.

Transcript of 14 May 1994 University Meeting Speeches

5439. The Chamber admitted into evidence the transcripts of two audio recordings of speeches allegedly made at a 14 May 1994 meeting at the University attended by Prime Minister Kambanda and University authorities, including Maurice Ntahobali. These exhibits are Defence Exhibit 552 and Prosecution Exhibit 171.¹⁴²⁰⁰

5440. As to Defence Exhibit 552, the speech of Prime Minister Kambanda, adduced by the Nteziryayo Defence, Nteziryayo testified that he heard only the latter portion of Kambanda’s speech as it was broadcast on Radio Rwanda.¹⁴²⁰¹ Nteziryayo however did not testify as to the authenticity of the remainder of the audio recording. The Chamber made an oral ruling that Counsel had not established a sufficient basis to warrant the admission of the speech in its entirety into evidence. The Chamber disallowed questions as to earlier portions of the speech which were not in evidence.¹⁴²⁰² Therefore, the Chamber will only consider portions of the speech authenticated by Nteziryayo.

5441. As to Prosecution Exhibit 171, Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Maurice Ntahobali testified that he recognised his own voice in an audio-recorded speech he made in response to Kambanda’s remarks on 14 May 1994. Several other speeches of University lecturers were also on the same recording, admitted as Prosecution Exhibit 171.¹⁴²⁰³ Maurice Ntahobali did not attest to the authenticity of those portions of the recording. Considering those portions of the recording were not authenticated and that no questions were posed thereon, the Chamber will not consider the substance of those subsequent responses to Kambanda’s speech.

Disclosure and Reliance on Evidence Adduced Through Des Forges

5442. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence argues that allowing exhibits adduced through Des Forges to be considered as evidence in the case would violate Rule 94 bis, because the book and exhibits were not served on the Defence 14 days prior to Des Forges’ testimony.¹⁴²⁰⁴ As these exhibits are relevant to the issue at hand, the Chamber addresses Nyiramasuhuko’s argument here.

¹⁴²⁰⁴ T. 7 June 2004 p. 65 (Des Forges); Nyiramasuhuko Closing Brief, para. 395.

5443. The Chamber recalls the Nyiramasuhuko Defence filed a motion on 11 April 2000 seeking the disclosure of certain documents, including: (1) copies of all documents seized at the Butare préfecture office; and (2) the transcript of Nsabimana's interview with Human Rights Watch and Nsabimana's manuscript, The Truth About the Massacres in Butare.¹⁴²⁰⁵ In its Decision of 1 November 2000, the Chamber ordered the Prosecution to permit the Nyiramasuhuko Defence to inspect the documents seized at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber held that all the interviews with Nsabimana and his manuscript entitled The Truth About the Massacres in Butare were given by Nsabimana to Human Rights Watch. Therefore, it held that the Nyiramasuhuko Defence must seek those items from Nsabimana himself.¹⁴²⁰⁶

5444. In its Decision of 8 June 2001, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko's renewed request seeking discovery of the documents seized at the Butare préfecture office and ordered the Prosecutor to report back in 10 days on compliance with the order.¹⁴²⁰⁷ On 18 June 2001, the Prosecutor reported to the Chamber that the Legal Assistant to the Nyiramasuhuko Defence team conducted an inspection of the Butare préfecture documents on 16 June 2001 and that it had provided a courtesy copy of Exhibit 5 ("Butare Préfecture Documents") from the Prosecutor's list of Exhibits as filed on 30 April 2001.¹⁴²⁰⁸ The Nyiramasuhuko Defence did not object to this representation.

5445. Furthermore, during Des Forges' testimony the Prosecution sought to introduce as evidence documents seized at the Butare préfecture office. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence did not assert that the exhibits cited in Des Forges' report had not been disclosed to the Defence. In fact, none of the Defence teams made this argument.¹⁴²⁰⁹ Therefore, the Chamber finds no merit to Nyiramasuhuko's argument that the exhibits supporting Des Forges' testimony were not disclosed to the Defence.

5446. In a related matter, the Nyiramasuhuko Defence asserts the exhibits introduced through Des Forges were not admitted for the truth of their contents, but for the support they offer to Des Forges' report and evidence.¹⁴²¹⁰

5447. In this case, Des Forges testified that in conducting her research she found several documents at the Butare préfecture office which pertained to the Government's civil defence programme.¹⁴²¹¹ These included Prosecution Exhibits 115, 118, 119, 120, 121 and 122. In an oral ruling of 9 June 2004, the Chamber held that certain documents adduced through Des ¹⁴²⁰⁹ The Nyiramasuhuko Defence argued that Nsabimana's prior statements, Prosecution Exhibit 113, could not be introduced as evidence against Nyiramasuhuko because the alleged conspiracy was complete at the time of the statement. It further argued, as to Exhibit 114, that document was not authenticated because it was not signed and because the chain of custody was not established: T. 8 June 2004 pp. 55, 65; T. 9 June 2004 p. 8 (Des Forges).

Forges were admissible for limited purposes only.¹⁴²¹² The Chamber held that this evidence was admissible as evidence relied upon by Des Forges in forming her expert opinion and the weight to be accorded to these exhibits would be determined at the end of the trial taking into account all of the circumstances.¹⁴²¹³ The Chamber admitted these Exhibits to help substantiate Des Forges' opinion. The Chamber's deliberations on these matters necessarily implicate the weight and probative value to be attributed to Des Forges' opinion as well as the materials upon which she relied. The Exhibits were therefore admitted for their content. Furthermore, Nyiramasuhuko, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Maurice Ntahobali acknowledged the authenticity of these documents in their testimony.

3.7.10.3 Evidence

Prosecution Witness FAI

5448. Witness FAI, a Hutu civil servant in 1994, testified that towards the middle of May 1994, on the day before Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony [22 May 1994],¹⁴²¹⁴ Prime Minister Jean Kambanda issued a communiqué addressed to the nation, saying that it was necessary to put an end to the killing, that it was necessary that Rwandans stop killing one another, that the enemy was the RPF, that the accomplices were not all Tutsis, but only those who were associated with the RPF. However, Witness FAI testified that the policy communicated by Kambanda was intended to mislead the public because the massacres continued and people in power were aware of it.¹⁴²¹⁵ The announcement was put on the radio and documents containing the substance of the communiqué were circulated in secteurs and communes. Witness FAI testified that the words were not sincere because people who were hiding in the bushes came out in broad daylight and were eventually killed.¹⁴²¹⁶

5449. Witness FAI testified that in the afternoon of 22 May 1994, he attended the swearing-in ceremony of Mathieu Ndahimana, the new bourgmestre of Ntyazo commune.¹⁴²¹⁷ Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo was introduced as the person responsible for civil defence.¹⁴²¹⁸ Witness FAI stated that he learned on the day of Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony that Lieutenant Colonel Nteziryayo was a subordinate of Colonels Muvunyi and Simba.¹⁴²¹⁹ Colonel Simba was actually in charge of civil defence in both Butare and Gikongoro, but he was assisted in Butare préfecture by Nteziryayo.¹⁴²²⁰ Colonel Simba introduced himself to the population as the person responsible for civil defence for Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.¹⁴²²¹

The weight to be made out of that is - will be done at the end after the parties had been heard, cross-examination had been done. And for that reason, we are of the view that this document which is indicated to her has come from and obtained from a source known, is admissible for that limited extent. And as to weight, as we said in our previous decision, will have to be weighed and be determined at the end. And ... we are of the view that there is a marked distinction between this evidence here and what is being referred to by learned counsel with regard to factual witness who testified, or conduct of certain elements during the testimony of particular witnesses").

5450. Civil defence was the strategy put in place during the genocide, aimed at providing military training to youth and giving them weapons so that they could assist the military at the front and participate in the killing of Tutsis. There was no difference between these trained youths and the Interahamwe.¹⁴²²² The civil defence programme was strengthened by intensifying training with the intent of providing more importance to the army.¹⁴²²³ The offices of the civil defence programme were located in a social centre in Ngoma secteur.¹⁴²²⁴

5451. Witness FAI further testified that at a meeting at the BPO in early June 1994, Nteziryayo answered the call of two bourgmestres from Kibayi and Kigembe communes who requested help in controlling the influx of Tutsi refugees into their communes. Nteziryayo said that he had at his disposal youths who had undergone their training and that he would send them as soon as possible.¹⁴²²⁵ Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo sent some Ibisumizi to Kibayi to kill those Tutsis.¹⁴²²⁶ Witness FAI testified that he was present when Nteziryayo gave Célestin Harindintwari directives to transport the Ibisumizi to the Kibayi commune, so that they could help the Hutu inhabitants as requested.¹⁴²²⁷

5452. Witness RV, a Hutu civil servant in Rwanda and a detainee at the time of his testimony, testified that on about 5 May 1994, he attended a meeting in Kirarambogo chaired by Alphonse Nteziryayo.¹⁴²²⁸ It was attended, among others, by Colonel Muryunyi, the Butare commander, Jean Baptiste Ruzindaza, the Chairman of the Tribunal de Première Instance, and Dominique Ntawukulilyayo, the former sous-préfet of Gisagara sous-préfecture.¹⁴²²⁹ The witness testified that during this period, Nteziryayo was the chairman of the civil defence committee in the region.¹⁴²³⁰ According to Nteziryayo's speech during that meeting, Nteziryayo was responsible for sensitising the people about their training in the use of traditional weapons, i.e. bows and arrows, spears and other traditional weapons. Nteziryayo was also responsible for sensitising youth to get them to enrol in the army. He reminded the people that they should exterminate all the accomplices so that the Tutsis who had gone into exile would not have any witnesses to tell them what happened upon their return to the country.¹⁴²³¹

5453. In order to obtain petrol from April to June 1994, one had to ask Nsabimana for a fuel voucher. The fuel was stored at the BPO and the use of fuel was controlled by the army.¹⁴²³² Sometime in May 1994, Witness RV encountered Nsabimana at the BPO and asked for a fuel voucher. Nsabimana told Witness RV that Witness RV was no longer interested in security as he no longer participated in the programme of assaults against the Tutsis.¹⁴²³³

5454. Witness RV stated that he had not heard of civil defence before May 1994.¹⁴²³⁴ In June 1994, soldiers started to desert and they heard of the advance of the RPF over the radio. People were encouraged to train in the use of traditional weapons so that they could assist the soldiers. They told the population they would distribute weapons.¹⁴²³⁵ Nteziryayo had some relationship with the civil defence force; even if Nteziryayo was not responsible for this particular programme, he saw Nteziryayo at meetings dealing with the issue of personnel for the civil defence force.¹⁴²³⁶ The witness acknowledged his signature on a letter to the commander of the area, Colonel Muvunyi, dated 27 April 1994.¹⁴²³⁷ It listed the names of 14 candidates who had come forward to join the Rwandan army, including their dates of birth, secteurs of origin and levels of education.¹⁴²³⁸

Prosecution Witness TQ

5455. Witness TQ testified that Nteziryayo was de facto head of civil defence in Butare préfecture.¹⁴²³⁹ He collaborated with Colonel Simba in training and in maintaining civil defence, which included manning and executing the roadblock system.¹⁴²⁴⁰

5456. Witness TQ testified that around 20 April 1994, teachers from the Groupe Scolaire at Butare, such as Faustin Twagirayezu and Faustin Niyomzima and a person called Jean-Marie Diogene joined the civil defence group.¹⁴²⁴¹ Members of civil defence had guns and sometimes traditional weapons; civil defence was a well organised and hierarchical group with a leader and a deputy. According to the witness, they could be distinguished from Interahamwe, because members of Interahamwe were young people wearing MRND uniforms.¹⁴²⁴²

5457. Witness TQ was shown Prosecution Exhibit 115, a document dated 21 April 1994, signed by Colonel Muvunyi with the topic "recruitment of youths for popular defence."¹⁴²⁴³ The witness confirmed that the document referred to a request from higher officials, the ministry, to train young people for civil defence and that Area Commander Muvunyi suggested the organisation of a meeting with other officials, to organise that training programme.¹⁴²⁴⁴ The witness stated that civil defence existed long before 21 April 1994, organised by high Rwandan authorities; the training referred to in the letter only sought to reinforce the group that already existed.¹⁴²⁴⁵

5458. According to Witness TQ, among the perpetrators of the Groupe Scolaire attacks were "soldiers wearing a military uniform of the national army", and civilians wearing civilian clothing or MRND uniforms. There were about 50 assailants.¹⁴²⁴⁶ He testified that he recognised among the attackers several members of the civil defence, namely Faustin Niyonzima, Faustin Twagirayezu and André Bandora. He also recognised Jean-Marie, also known as Ovibar who carried a firearm, and a man called Mutereye.¹⁴²⁴⁷

5459. Witness TQ testified that he assisted with the evacuation of orphans from the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994.¹⁴²⁴⁸ The convoy evacuating the orphans was stopped at the roadblock at Nyakibanda Major Seminary by members of the civil defence group.¹⁴²⁴⁹ The witness said that he could differentiate between members of the population and members of the civil defence group at that roadblock, because civil defence was armed and more brutal. On asking people to show their identification papers, members of civil defence beat the people and called them Inkotanyi.¹⁴²⁵⁰

5460. Colonel Munyengango, whose family was also in the convoy,¹⁴²⁵¹ went to the front of the convoy so that the convoy would be let through, but members of the civil defence group refused to open the roadblock. Nteziryayo arrived and spoke to those who were at the roadblock.¹⁴²⁵² The witness added that they talked in an ordinary manner as if they knew each other.¹⁴²⁵³ Following a discussion with Nteziryayo, the civil defence group indicated that the children were to disembark from the vehicles and walk through the roadblock "one after the other".¹⁴²⁵⁴

Prosecution Expert Witness Alison Des Forges

5461. Alison Des Forges testified civil defence saw a single enemy to be attacked. This enemy was the RPF and Tutsis who were defined as part of the enemy because of their ethnicity and because of their presumed association with the RPF. Persons who did civil defence training were regularly deployed at the barriers, where they participated in selecting Tutsis from among those who attempted to pass and prevented their passage. The selected Tutsis were then either killed or delivered to authorities, who then participated in killing them. This effort worked under the guise of protecting civilians but was in fact a military organisation designed to attack other civilians, to make no distinction between combatants and non-combatants, and to identify the civilian targets by their ethnicity.¹⁴²⁵⁵

5462. October 1993 marked the official implementation of the civil defence system.¹⁴²⁵⁶ Aloys Simba was the head of civil defence for Butare and Gikongoro préfectures but Nteziryayo, whether formally ordered to or not, acted in some capacity in relation to civil defence.¹⁴²⁵⁷ In her interview with Nsabimana, Des Forges determined that Nsabimana did not have a concrete sense of Nteziryayo's role in Butare.¹⁴²⁵⁸

5463. Des Forges was told by Nsabimana that Nteziryayo was a fund-raiser for the civil defence programme, although she did not include this in her Report as she could not confirm its veracity.¹⁴²⁵⁹ Nsabimana and Simba gave pacification speeches at Nyakizu on 21 May 1994.¹⁴²⁶⁰ Despite a lack of documentation, Des Forges affirmed that Nteziryayo was "heavily involved" in the civil defence programme.¹⁴²⁶¹ Des Forges stressed that authorities wanting to hinder the genocide were not powerless; they had military guards and could have verified the information they were receiving at the time.¹⁴²⁶²

5464. Given Nteziryayo was director of commune police and was seconded from the Ministry of Defence to the Ministry of Interior and was the direct subordinate of Kalimanzira, Des Forges confirmed the statement contained in her Report that Nteziryayo was in charge of coordination with the civilian authorities regarding civilian defence.¹⁴²⁶³

5465. Colonel Simba was commonly spoken of as the head of the civil defence for both Butare and Gikongoro préfectures although his activities were more in the préfecture of Gikongoro. According to Simba's statement obtained by Des Forges, he did not wish to be involved in Butare because he found he had too much work to do in Gikongoro.¹⁴²⁶⁴

5466. Nteziryayo was in a position of power even before he became préfet since he continued to be attached to the Ministry of Interior and under the direct orders of Kalimanzira, who completely identified with the programme of the genocide and its implementation through civil defence.¹⁴²⁶⁵

Prosecution Exhibits 120 and 122

5467. Des Forges testified as to Prosecution Exhibit 120, a 15 May 1994 letter from the Minister of Defence, Augustin Bizimana, to Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba. The letter appoints Simba as conseiller for civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures and directs him to work with the préfets, bourgmestres and conseillers of all the secteurs to carry out the plan through the chain of command. The letter directs Simba to train 10 men from each secteur to organise civil defence. Simba appointed Emmanuel Rekeraho as his immediate subordinate. Des Forges testified that in her opinion, this document showed that the military was working together with the administrative hierarchy, including the préfet, bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur.¹⁴²⁶⁶

5468. As to Prosecution Exhibit 122, a letter dated 25 May 1994 from Édouard Karemera to the préfets of Rwanda on implementing the civil defence system, Des Forges noted that the personnel changes over time within the government administration indicated a continued commitment to eliminating the enemy Tutsi. This document indicates that they must keep an eye out for those people who are handicapping the programme. The real objective could be seen by the people who were hired and fired.¹⁴²⁶⁷

5469. Des Forges stated that while the army was important, the civil administration was essential for assuming the mobilisation of the civilian population, for the carrying out of massacres, and for organising roadblocks and patrols. Had the civilian administration refused to participate, the resources available to the military would never have sufficed to carry out a killing campaign on this scale.¹⁴²⁶⁸

5470. Des Forges testified that she spoke with Nsabimana by telephone on 3 April 1996. Nsabimana explained that civil defence funds were established in all the préfectures by a Directive from the Ministry of Interior. The funds were intended to provide refreshments "for the militia": the funds paid for arms and petrol, and provided beer and drugs to militia manning the barriers to keep them aggressive and reward them for their activities. In Butare, the fund was administered by Nteziryayo and Nyiramasuhuko.¹⁴²⁶⁹

5471. Des Forges testified that she received two documents from Nsabimana, including a manuscript drafted by Nsabimana entitled The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, introduced as Prosecution Exhibit 113, and the transcript of a journalist's interview of Nsabimana taken in October 1994, introduced into evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 114.

5472. Prosecution Exhibit 113, The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, was signed and attributed to Nsabimana. With regard to civil defence and roadblocks, Nsabimana stated:

While I [Nsabimana] struggled to restore order in town, while I chaired meetings in the communes to restore calm, there were meetings whose agenda I did not know taking place without my knowledge. Such meetings were convened and chaired by the Director of the Cabinet [and] Minister of the Interior and Community Development, Calleste [sic] Kalimanzira.

His ministry was responsible for the spreading of MRND propaganda, the erection of roadblocks and the establishment and operation of the so called Civilian Defence Force.

There were many roadblocks, especially in the communes and in town. Their purpose was evil (theft, injustices All the youth were converted into militiamen mainly [out] of fear. In the countryside, the roadblocks gave occasion for robberies.

In town, there were some killings at the roadblocks.¹⁴²⁷⁰

5473. Des Forges also testified as to the transcript of an interview sent to her by Nsabimana. The transcript of that interview was introduced into evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 114A and provided:

Already before April, maybe around January, we were aware of people being trained by the military. We were thinking that these militias had to be for use against the opposition. That was my feeling, that the militias were to be used against all the opposition parties. After the plane crash, of course, the Presidential Guard had already killed people from the opposition, then 2-3 days later began to kill people from the Tutsi group. At that time there were many people from the Presidential Guard and the militia. But my feeling at the time was that the militia was trained to kill people from the opposition first. Then when people from the opposition were eliminated, it was already out of human understanding but it was also very easy to determine who had done the killing. I think it was a strategy to kill Tutsis.

There were roadblocks. At the roadblocks, they decided if you would go through or not. Of course, if you were a Tutsi, you couldn't go. They checked identity cards. If you looked like a Tutsi, then they could kill you. I had to go to the roadblocks to tell people not to do that. The people on the roadblocks, I did not know them. Most of the time they were not from Butare. Maybe one or two from Butare, but most I think from Kigali. Trained people of course.

Militia and military, especially the Presidential Guard came to kill people at the churches. The plan was to kill Tutsis no matter where they were, in churches, the countryside, it didn't matter, anywhere, they must be killed.¹⁴²⁷¹

5474. Des Forges agreed that the RPF used agents behind the lines. They sent soldiers behind the lines to gather information and received information of a civilian nature rather than military nature from civilian supporters of the RPF political movement within the country.¹⁴²⁷²

She said an entire civil population defined by its ethnicity is not a reasonable definition of accomplices. Accomplices would have been perhaps numbered in the dozens, in the entire country. They could have been identified and arrested and tried according to legitimate legal procedures. They did not require the mobilisation of an entire population to unmask this group.¹⁴²⁷³

Prosecution Expert Witness André Guichaoua

5475. André Guichaoua testified that the civil defence programme included an awareness campaign, recruitment and training, distribution and making of modern or traditional weapons and finding sources of finance.¹⁴²⁷⁴ Patrols and roadblocks had to be organised and monitored and searches, seizures and umuganda were to be carried out under the auspices of the civil defence programme.¹⁴²⁷⁵ All of these operations were monitored by the bourgmestres and the préfet, who were in charge of organising the meetings regarding civil defence around 25 April 1994.¹⁴²⁷⁶ The civil defence programme was a pretext for what Guichaoua called the "killing machine" through which the organisers of the genocide mobilised individuals to take part in the killings under the auspices of "security". He pointed to the various benefits to be gained by individuals participating in the activities of the civil defence programme. In his view, robberies and rapes at roadblocks, occupation of lands, the stealing of tiles or of door or window frames before burning houses and the provision of alcohol were payments in kind for those participating in the killings.¹⁴²⁷⁷

5476. Guichaoua referred to some neighbourhoods of Ngoma commune where inhabitants had set up self-organised civilian defence groups in early May 1994 in order to protect themselves from any external attacks. This type of civilian defence group was non-political, was not in charge of roadblocks, and was not involved in matters of identification of the enemy. According to Guichaoua, those systems of civilian self-defence needed to be distinguished from the civil defence programme which was implemented by the authorities in Butare at the end of April 1994.¹⁴²⁷⁸

5477. Guichaoua testified that Nteziryayo had ups and downs during his career. He had impressive promotions at the beginning and then was cast aside. Nteziryayo's reputation was always sterling. On 6 April 1994 and the following days, different people stayed with Nteziryayo who were saved. However, Nteziryayo had a change of attitude when he went to Butare and when he was effectively under the orders of Callixte Kalimanzira. On 16 June 1994, Nteziryayo was chosen to replace Préfet Nsabimana because the Interim Government thought Nteziryayo was in a better position to apply the government's instructions.¹⁴²⁷⁹

¹⁴²⁷⁸ T. 29 June 2004 p. 42 (Guichaoua).
¹⁴²⁷⁹ T. 30 June 2004 p. 37 (Guichaoua).

5478. Further, Guichaoua stated in his Report that:

Callixte Kalimanzira, who, as Minister of Interior Ad Interim, until the appointment of Édouard Karemera, was in charge of civilian self-defence matters in liaison with a group of officers formed around Théoneste Bagosora. Both operationally and hierarchically, the civilian self-defence unit was not under the command of the highest ranking officer in Butare and Gikongoro area, Lieutenant Colonel Tharcisse Muvunyi. It was directly coordinated by the ministry of the interior outside the military chain of command. Even though the texts ... produced late by the Ministry of the Interior states that, the officer in charge of civilian self-defence of the préfectoral committee was under the préfet, there was no direct hierarchy relationship between this unit and the préfet at the local level.

Alphonse Nteziryayo directly reported to the authorities in charge of self-defence, both civilian and military at the national level. In view of this, the itinerary followed by Alphonse Nteziryayo to the post of préfet appears to be straight-forward. In his capacity as officer in charge of the civilian popular self-defence program for Butare, he had already been active in the massacres since the end of April. He only added the title of préfet to his prerogatives when civilian self-defence became the very essence of the Ministry of the Interior's security policy. According to several witness testimonies, Alphonse Nteziryayo is said to have accepted the promotion due to the will of and trust from Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, native of a neighbouring commune and of the same generation, and of Callixte Kalimanzira, who wanted to get rid of Sylvain Nsabimana as soon as possible.¹⁴²⁸⁰

25 May 1994 Directive

5479. Guichaoua commented on a letter dated 25 May 1994 from Prime Minister Jean Kambanda to all the préfets telling them how the civil defence should be organised (Prosecution Exhibit 121). It described the hierarchy and the implementation process for civil defence. It describes the entire hierarchy all the way down to the communes, with one heading that specifies the role of the area commander from the Armed Forces in that programme.¹⁴²⁸¹ Civil defence was put under the responsibility of the Minister of Interior, whether or not this was his official duty. The civil defence also fell under the Ministry of Defence, who would take care of the training, supply the weapons and even avail the officers or petty officers or troops. In the préfectures all forces were asked to participate to eradicate the enemy from within: soldiers, gendarmes, commune police officers, militiamen, committees set up by the officials, local Government officials and their recruits all worked together in a clear hierarchy.¹⁴²⁸²

Defence Expert Witness Filip Reyntjens

5480. Filip Reyntjens testified that he analysed the transcripts of Prime Minister Kambanda's 14 May 1994 speech at the university campus in Butare, admitted into evidence as Defence

Exhibit 574.¹⁴²⁸³ Reyntjens testified that in the speech, the Prime Minister addressed the audience, which included the rector, the préfet, the vice-rector, the sous-préfets, researchers, university employees and inhabitants of Butare; Kanyabashi was not present at that meeting.¹⁴²⁸⁴

5481. According to Reyntjens, Kambanda associated the commune authorities with the RPF in several passages of his speech. Kambanda stated in the speech:

*A conseiller, a member of the cellule committee, a préfet, a sous-préfet or any other official has the right to be an Inkotanyi. However, when we will be fighting the Inkotanyi we will fight him as well. ... Those who support the RPF shall join them and they shall assign him an RPF posts [sic]; they should not unjustly occupy our posts.*¹⁴²⁸⁵

Moreover, we know that some bourgmestres, here in Butare and elsewhere work for the RPF. ... So, do not be surprised if some ... bourgmestres are removed and replaced by others. They have to wait for the RPF and the new Government of national unity, including the RPF, to be put in place and then work with them. For the time being, they have to be removed and replaced by people who work for the good of Rwandans and the Rwandan Government.¹⁴²⁸⁶

5482. Kambanda announced the implementation of civil defence during his speech, although this programme was already in place.¹⁴²⁸⁷ Reyntjens referred to the following passage of Kambanda's speech: "As we have explained on the air, we are currently looking into ways of setting up a Civil Defence force.... A committee could be set up for that purpose for it will be useful to us at this moment."¹⁴²⁸⁸

5483. Reyntjens testified that the speech showed that Kambanda wanted the civil defence programme to be formalised and generalised throughout the country in compliance with the instructions he issued on 25 May 1994.¹⁴²⁸⁹ Kambanda blamed the Butare authorities, especially the bourgmestre of Ngoma urban commune, for his lack of commitment, as was evidenced by Kambanda saying "people are thinking that there is no war in Butare, no roadblocks have been set up", with the obvious threat towards those who would refuse to fully commit themselves to the policy.¹⁴²⁹⁰

Other Exhibits

5484. Reyntjens agreed Prosecution Exhibit 120 indicates that Colonel Simba was appointed as the civilian defence advisor for the préfectures of Butare and Gikongoro.¹⁴²⁹¹ Reyntjens agreed that the fact that Nsabimana received a civilian defence advisor showed that Nsabimana had some responsibility in civilian defence.¹⁴²⁹² Reyntjens agreed that the letter indicated that the advisor should work in collaboration with préfets, bourgmestres and conseillers to supervise civil defence training on how to prevent "infiltration of the ENI", which meant the enemy, i.e. the RPF Inkotanyi and its accomplices, or in other words the Tutsi.¹⁴²⁹³

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Maurice Ntahobali

5485. Maurice Ntahobali, the husband of Nyiramasuhuko and father of Shalom Ntahobali, testified that between April and July 1994, he did not learn that there were massacres in Butare préfecture.¹⁴²⁹⁴

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5486. Maurice Ntahobali testified that he did not leave the Hotel Ihuliro in April 1994.¹⁴²⁹⁵ However, he did leave the hotel and moved around in Butare between the end of April and the beginning of July 1994. He recalled Prime Minister Kambanda's visit at the invitation of MDR members of the university community in mid-May 1994 when his wife was also in Butare.¹⁴²⁹⁶

5487. The meeting was held at the Butare University campus, and the witness was informed of the meeting by the vice-rector, Jean Bacumas Nshimyumuremyi. The purpose of the meeting was to disseminate information regarding the political situation. The witness agreed that the date of the meeting was around 14 May 1994.¹⁴²⁹⁷ Nyiramasuhuko did not take part in the 14 May 1994 University meeting.¹⁴²⁹⁸ The audio recording of Kambanda's and Maurice Ntahobali's speeches broadcast on 15 May 1994 was admitted into evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 171A.¹⁴²⁹⁹

5488. At this meeting, Prime Minister Kambanda addressed pacification and also alluded to civil defence. Civil defence was a way of ensuring the security of the country. Kambanda did not suggest that those involved in civil defence should try to eliminate the Tutsis within the country.¹⁴³⁰⁰ He said Kambanda's speech stressed that the university population should cooperate and try to solve the problem relating to the war which Rwanda was waging against the RPF.¹⁴³⁰¹

5489. Maurice Ntahobali made a statement at the meeting expressing his and the university community's support for the institutions of the Republic, the President, and for the Government of Jean Kambanda. He talked about the Inkotanyi, who in English are referred to as RPF, and said they were people who sought to take power by force of arms. Maurice Ntahobali's statement also indicated that the university lecturers felt that the Arusha Accords were no longer of any value because the RPF had a lot of benefit from them. The lecturers also felt it necessary to sensitise members of the population so that they could find means to defend themselves, meaning civil defence.¹⁴³⁰²

Civilian Defence

5490. Maurice Ntahobali stated that he did not know before fleeing from Butare that Colonel Aloys Simba was in charge of civilian defence in Butare and Gikongoro.¹⁴³⁰³ He never knew that prior to his appointment as préfet, Alphonse Nteziryayo played any role whatsoever in civilian defence in Butare.¹⁴³⁰⁴

5491. Maurice Ntahobali heard about a committee for the funding of civilian defence between April and July 1994. He knew his name was included on the list of members of the committee, but he did not attend the committee's meetings or participate in its mission. It was an ad hoc committee, not a permanent entity, and, therefore, did not have its own premises. Whenever the committee had to meet, it was at the behest of the convener with resources that were made available by the préfecture office. Nobody invited the witness to attend a meeting until the end of June 1994.¹⁴³⁰⁵

5492. Maurice Ntahobali was shown Tables 14 and 15 in Guichaoua's Report. Table 14 contains a list of purported members of the civil defence supervision committee and the civil defence préfecture committee. Table 15 contains a list of names of purported members of the financial committee of civil defence. The witness could not confirm whether before 3 July 1994, they had indeed been members. The witness also could not state whether the people listed in Table 14 were members of the civil defence supervisory committee or of the civil defence préfecture committee.¹⁴³⁰⁶

5493. Charles Karemano testified that the University held a meeting around mid-May 1994 to which Prime Minister Kambanda was invited. At that meeting academics made heinous speeches in an effort to please the Government. They said that people from the other ethnic group, i.e. Tutsis, and Tutsi university lecturers should be shot down, although Karemano testified that most of them had already been shot down at that time. It was being said that in the university one should not let any enemies or people from the other race remain.¹⁴³⁰⁷ Tutsi lecturers who had already been killed included Professors Karenzi, Rumiya and Gaétan, but there were many more.¹⁴³⁰⁸

Nyiramasuhuko Defence Witness Eugène Shimamungu

5494. Eugène Shimamungu testified as to Defence Exhibit 288, a communiqué broadcast on Radio Rwanda and signed by Nsabimana. It stated: "The looting and massacres must cease immediately and the attackers who are armed with all sorts of weapons but who are not assigned to man any roadblock recognised by the authorities, must stop their activities."¹⁴³⁰⁹

Nyiramasuhuko

Civil Defence

5495. Nyiramasuhuko was shown Prosecution Exhibit 120, a document dated 15 May 1994 referring to the appointment of Aloys Simba as civil defence adviser of the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro.¹⁴³¹⁰ She explained that the Government had decided to set up a civil defence system. The officials implementing the system came under the Ministry of Defence, which appointed them.¹⁴³¹¹ She learned about Simba's appointment during the meeting of the enlarged Security Council, held in Butare on 16 May 1994, based upon what was said by Préfet Nsabimana.¹⁴³¹² Nyiramasuhuko did not know why Rekeraho attended the council meeting. She noted that he spoke and thought that he was there as a representative of a political party. She later learned that Rekeraho was Simba's assistant in the civil defence field.¹⁴³¹³

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5496. Nyiramasuhuko testified that she learned about a meeting in Butare on 14 May 1994 after the fact.¹⁴³¹⁴ She was told that Butare authorities had received the Prime Minister at this meeting. The authorities preparing the reception were the préfet of Butare and the vice-rector, Nshimyumuremyi. She thought that the meeting was held at the faculty of medicine at the National University of Rwanda, but was not sure. Nyiramasuhuko said that the director of the National University of Rwanda, Butare campus, was aware of the meeting with the Prime Minister, as both the vice-rector and préfet had informed him.¹⁴³¹⁵ The rector, Nyiramasuhuko's husband, attended the meeting.¹⁴³¹⁶

5497. Nyiramasuhuko stated that when she reached Butare, her husband told her that the Prime Minister had visited the Butare intellectuals. She did not take notes in her diary regarding the meeting, as she did not attend it.¹⁴³¹⁷ Nyiramasuhuko testified that there had been radio coverage of the meeting,¹⁴³¹⁸ that she had not listened to it, but she read a transcript of it and listened to a recording of it in Arusha.¹⁴³¹⁹

5498. Nyiramasuhuko stated that the Prime Minister's trip to Butare on 14 May 1994 had not been discussed previously in a Cabinet meeting, and that the ministers therefore did not know of this trip.¹⁴³²⁰

5499. Nyiramasuhuko testified that she went to Butare on 14 May 1994 because she was not feeling well.¹⁴³²¹ She also wanted to visit her family, and there was a state nurse among them. Given she was in Murambi on 13 May 1994, she had no way of knowing a meeting was going to be held on 14 May 1994 at the University campus in Butare. Her absence from the meeting was borne out by the absence of her name or any other minister's name in the transcripts of the radio broadcast, as well as by a letter from Kalimanzira which stated that she had been with him that evening.¹⁴³²²

25 May 1994 Directive from Jean Kambanda

5500. Nyiramasuhuko testified that Prosecution Exhibit 121, the directives and guidelines on the Government's civilian defence of 25 May 1994, had been examined by the Government prior to its issuance.¹⁴³²³ She did not remember the date on which the Government decided that the document of 25 May 1994 was satisfactory and fit for dissemination. When the ministers who were supposed to determine whether the document was ready did so, they forwarded it to the Prime Minister. He added what he deemed necessary, and signed it on 25 May 1994.¹⁴³²⁴

5501. Nyiramasuhuko testified that when she went to attend a meeting on 31 May 1994, she inquired in passing of Colonel Munyengango about the roadblocks she had seen in Butare town. Colonel Munyengango told her that he had been told that those who were manning roadblocks were people of good character known by the commune administration, and who had received some training. Munyengango further said that the roadblocks were part of the civilian defence and that there was a problem of soldiers, who were in the north of Butare préfecture since the Inkotanyi were already within the vicinity. In addition, she had been told that firearms had been distributed within the framework of civilian defence.¹⁴³²⁵

5502. Nsabimana testified that Prime Minister Kambanda visited Butare National University on 14 May 1994.¹⁴³²⁶ He testified that the vice-rector's invitation for this meeting was not sent to the préfet. The préfecture was informed of the visit belatedly, but he along with his sous-préfet in charge of administration attended. Nsabimana said that at the meeting the Prime Minister had discussions with the staff of the University.¹⁴³²⁷ He also said that there was no bourgmestre at this meeting.¹⁴³²⁸ Nsabimana did not know the speech had been broadcast and could not recall the contents of Kambanda's speech although he testified that Kambanda always had the same belligerent themes in his speeches.¹⁴³²⁹

5503. Nsabimana testified that Prosecution Exhibit 121, the Prime Minister's Directive on civil defence dated 25 May 1994, never got to his hands, though it reached the bourgmestres.¹⁴³³⁰ He testified that the Directive was not discussed during the préfets' meeting with the Prime Minister on 28 May 1994, and that he only saw the Directive when Des Forges was tendering her exhibits.¹⁴³³¹ He insisted the document was in the custody of certain persons but did not come from him.¹⁴³³²

5504. Nsabimana testified that in late May 1994, Kambanda went to the guest house of the National University of Rwanda, where he met with the vice-rector and there they discussed weapons for civilian defence.¹⁴³³³

5505. Nsabimana testified that he did not make any financial transactions with the bank accounts of the préfecture during his tenure as préfet.¹⁴³³⁴ Pursuant to a meeting of the Security Council on 15 June 1994, Nsabimana acknowledged that he had signed a letter to the Bank of Kigali to request an account for civil defence.¹⁴³³⁵ In his letter of request of 15 June 1994, Nsabimana had designated four account trustees who were required co-signatories for all withdrawals. That same day, Nsabimana received a letter from the vice-rector of the National University of Rwanda informing Nsabimana of the opening of a civil defence bank account with the Rwandan Bank of Commerce of Butare.¹⁴³³⁶ The vice-rector subsequently made a deposit in this latter bank. Nsabimana said the trustees of the account in the Rwandan Bank of Commerce into which the vice-rector deposited funds were not designated by Nsabimana.¹⁴³³⁷

5506. Nteziryayo testified that from September 1991 up until he was appointed préfet of Butare, he was director of commune police in the Ministry of Interior.¹⁴³³⁸ During that time, his superiors were the Minister of the Interior, Faustin Munyazesa, the Director-General Aloys Ngendahimana and the Director of Political and Administrative Affairs François Harerimana.¹⁴³³⁹ He was solely under the authority of the Minister of Interior, despite the fact that the Ministry of Defence still paid his salary.¹⁴³⁴⁰ In April, May and June 1994 he did not receive his salary, although in July 1994 he met the army accountant in Cyangugu and received his salary for all three months.¹⁴³⁴¹

5507. Nteziryayo testified that he did not exercise any authority on members of the commune police staff.¹⁴³⁴² He referred to Prosecution Exhibit 189 which contained substantive provisions of the organisation of the commune police. According to Article 104 (4) of the provisions laid down in Prosecution Exhibit 189, only the bourgmestre had powers to exercise authority over commune police staff.¹⁴³⁴³ Further, he did not possess the authority to pay the salary, to hire or to dismiss commune police officers.¹⁴³⁴⁴ Defence Exhibit 523, the Rwandan law pertaining to the organisation of commune police, confirmed that commune police were under the authority of the bourgmestre.¹⁴³⁴⁵ He testified that in 1994 there were many reservists of the Rwandan army within the commune police force, because they had priority over civilians in the event of recruitment of members for the commune police force.¹⁴³⁴⁶

5508. Regarding Defence Exhibit 522 concerning the division of the commune police within the Ministry of the Interior, Nteziryayo stated that even though according to the document the discipline of the commune police in Rwanda also fell under his responsibility as chief of the divisional commune police, Nteziryayo never carried out such controls of discipline because of a lack of information.¹⁴³⁴⁷ In addition, as director of the commune police division it was his responsibility to hand over the weapons – including guns and ammunition – from the Ministry of Defence to the bourgmestres when they came to receive them.¹⁴³⁴⁸

5509. Nteziryayo testified that his daughter was born on 30 March 1994. He took leave from his work in the Ministry of the Interior on 22 or 23 March 1994 to be of assistance to his pregnant wife.¹⁴³⁴⁹ The leave was to be due on 8 or 9 April 1994, but because fighting started after the events of 6 April 1994, he did not return to work, even though he was still officially

14350 serving at the Ministry of the Interior. Between 5 and 16 April 1994, he did not speak with anyone in the Ministry of the Interior or in army headquarters.¹⁴³⁵¹ The fighting in Kigali continued until Nteziryayo left on 15 April to Butare; therefore it was impossible for him and for other state civil servants to go to work between 7 and 15 April 1994, such that Nteziryayo stayed permanently at home.¹⁴³⁵² On their arrival in Butare his family went directly to the house of a friend in Ngoma commune and was accommodated there.¹⁴³⁵³ Because there was not enough room in the friend's home, Nteziryayo went to the Hotel Ibis.¹⁴³⁵⁴ He visited his family often, sometimes several times a day, and brought food and medical treatment for several sick persons.¹⁴³⁵⁵ On 18 April 1994 he organised the evacuation of Gatera and Gatera's wife to Burundi.¹⁴³⁵⁶

5510. During the period from 15 April to 21 June 1994, he was not engaged in any state activity or duties; he mainly took care of his family and the other persons lodging at a friend's house.¹⁴³⁵⁷ Despite his high rank in the army and the fact that the army had insufficient qualified staff and was recruiting people, he stayed in Butare because he had no occupation.¹⁴³⁵⁸ Nteziryayo denied that he remained in Butare because he held a position there; the Ministry existed but it was in Gitarama and all civil servants were on holiday.¹⁴³⁵⁹ Contrary to Guichaoua's Report, he did not set up an office as Director of the commune police in Butare and he did not carry out any activity that had to do with his duties as Director of commune police.¹⁴³⁶⁰ He testified that until 17 June 1994, he still considered himself as Chief of commune police in the Ministry of the Interior, which still existed at that period and had moved first to Gitarama and afterwards to Gisenyi.¹⁴³⁶¹ He did not go to Gitarama to ask the Minister of Interior Édouard Karemera for directives because the communiqué of the Minister of Defence on 7 April 1994 had stated that everyone should stay indoors until further notice so no one felt obliged to go to work.¹⁴³⁶²

5511. He stated that between 15 April and 3 July 1994 in Butare he always wore a military uniform for his security,¹⁴³⁶³ and generally carried his pistol with him.¹⁴³⁶⁴ In Butare he had some extra military uniforms.¹⁴³⁶⁵ In addition, members of his family who remained in Kigali brought him some military uniforms but no civilian clothes.¹⁴³⁶⁶

Appointment as Préfet

5512. Nteziryayo stated that he assumed that the Minister of Interior Édouard Karemera had proposed him as préfet, because he usually proposed names for the position of préfet.¹⁴³⁶⁷ The reason for his appointment was, as he learned later from the Minister of Interior during Nteziryayo's swearing-in ceremony, his position as a soldier. The Government hoped that a soldier could deal with the pressure of the RPF advancing on Butare and that he could cooperate with French and Rwandan soldiers simultaneously, as they intended to ask the French soldiers who were part of the Mission Turquoise to include Butare préfecture in the demilitarised zone. Finally, they thought Nteziryayo would be able to organise a possible necessary evacuation of the population.¹⁴³⁶⁸ He had not expected the appointment and was very surprised. He had spent a long time in Butare without any duties, and he was never asked or contacted by anyone beforehand.¹⁴³⁶⁹

5513. Nteziryayo confirmed that soldiers were under obligations to accept appointments from the Government in capacities other than that of a soldier.¹⁴³⁷⁰ He had no choice but to accept the post of préfet of Butare, in view of the gravity of the war. In view of his own weak position within the military, he saw it as an opportunity at least to become active after he had not done anything since 1994.¹⁴³⁷¹ He also wanted to be of service to the population in the difficult period.¹⁴³⁷²

5514. During the handover procedure on 20 June 1994 Nsabimana told him only generally about the financial aspect of civil defence.¹⁴³⁷³ Nteziryayo stated that prior to being préfet he did not have any information as to whether the Government, an organisation or citizens had allocated an amount of money for civil defence.¹⁴³⁷⁴ In cross-examination, Nteziryayo testified that during his tenure as préfet he knew only in a general manner about all the bank accounts belonging to Butare préfecture.¹⁴³⁷⁵

5515. Nteziryayo testified that he had access to the cash deposited in the safe, less than 1,000,000 in cash, but that he was not able to carry out any transactions from the circa 10 different bank accounts which the préfecture possessed at the Banque commerciale du Rwanda, the Rwandan commercial bank, and the Banque de Kigali in Butare.¹⁴³⁷⁶ This was because until the time he went into exile on 3 July 1994, he did not receive the necessary authorisation, i.e. the instrument of appointment, a letter signed by the President of the Republic, and countersigned by the Minister of Interior, announcing officially and in public that Nteziryayo was the new préfet of Butare.¹⁴³⁷⁷ Nteziryayo stated that he still was able to run the préfecture without funds because he was préfet in very extraordinary times when the administration did not function properly; especially from 27 June 1994 onwards, when Butare was flooded by displaced persons, Nteziryayo did not need to rely on funds in the bank to settle problems in the préfecture.¹⁴³⁷⁸

5516. Nteziryayo confirmed that as préfet his responsibilities also included civilian defence, as had been put down in the directives of the Minister of Interior; civil defence had already been implemented at the time Nsabimana had been préfet and Nteziryayo had discussed this subject with Nsabimana during the handover ceremony.¹⁴³⁷⁹

5517. Nteziryayo said that as préfet he had no rights to punish any soldiers or members of the gendarmerie who were also soldiers, irrespective of his rank, because the préfet had no such legal authority.¹⁴³⁸⁰

Civil Defence

5518. Nteziryayo testified that throughout his service in the Ministry of the Interior he was not involved in the organisation or execution of the civil defence project.¹⁴³⁸¹ Nteziryayo testified that he had heard about the concept referred to as “civil defence”, “popular self-defence” or “civilian defence” in 1992 while working in the Ministry of the Interior.¹⁴³⁸² The Rwandan Armed Forces and the Ministry of Defence had initiated civil defence to back up the Rwandan Armed Forces, to gain a better protection of the population and to defend it against the RPF’s “infiltration techniques.”¹⁴³⁸³ The RPF had started this “infiltration technique” around the end of 1991, applying a combination of guerrilla and conventional warfare. They first killed or expelled civilians from a territory to occupy it and to use it strategically for surprise attacks on the Rwandan Armed forces. Due to the attacks the population increasingly lost confidence in the Government.¹⁴³⁸⁴ Nteziryayo testified that around the end May 1994 the Interim Government implemented the “reorganisation of civil defence.”¹⁴³⁸⁵

14 May 1994 Meeting with Prime Minister Kambanda

5519. Nteziryayo testified that prior to his arrival in Butare he did not know if civil defence existed in Butare. He was told that Prime Minister Kambanda spoke at the National University of Rwanda on 14 May 1994 and said that civil defence was going to be established in Butare préfecture.¹⁴³⁸⁶

5520. Nteziryayo testified that between 1 January and 21 June 1994 he was not involved in the civil defence system.¹⁴³⁸⁷ Between 21 June and 3 July 1994, as préfet of Butare he was, in accordance with the instructions of the Prime Minister of 25 May 1994, ex-officio in charge of civil defence in that préfecture, but he did not promote civil defence.¹⁴³⁸⁸ Contrary to Des Forges' assertion, he did not get any support from Kalimanzira and Nyiramasuhuko for promoting civil defence.¹⁴³⁸⁹

5521. Nteziryayo testified that between April and 3 July 1994 Prime Minister Kambanda and his Government requested members of the population to participate in their own security. The Prime Minister issued directives for the Rwandan population and during several speeches and meetings he talked about civil defence, including on one occasion at the National University of Rwanda on 14 May 1994.¹⁴³⁹⁰

5522. Nteziryayo testified that he did not attend Kambanda's 14 May 1994 speech at the National University of Rwanda but he heard portions of Kambanda's speech on the evening of 14 May 1994 or during the next day over Radio Rwanda delivered in Kinyarwanda.¹⁴³⁹¹

5523. Nteziryayo agreed that Kambanda said during the speech that Aloys Simba was going to be in charge of civil defence for Butare and Gikongoro, and Colonel Gasake was in charge at the national level in Rwanda. Kambanda did not mention Nteziryayo in connection with the civil defence structure in his speech.¹⁴³⁹²

5524. Nteziryayo testified that Kambanda spoke about the need for civil defence. He urged the staff of the university to join civil defence and to undergo military training.¹⁴³⁹³ He said that the commune authorities of Ngoma commune had to recruit 100 persons, not specifically youth, for each secteur and that the organisation was under the responsibility of the bourgmestre, who would be assisted by commune policemen and reserve officers. The military operations commander of Butare had to draw up and to supervise the programmes.¹⁴³⁹⁴ During his speech, Kambanda said that training for civil defence had started and directives were being formulated.¹⁴³⁹⁵

5525. Nteziryayo confirmed that the speech of Prime Minister Kambanda contained the following remarks: that according to the intelligence service, the enemy was making attempts to infiltrate into that town, and that they should start to protect that town seriously because there were not enough roadblocks; that no one would have the right to move freely throughout Nteziryayo testified that he also heard the portions of the speech where the President said the RPF had distributed weapons everywhere and that they should not be afraid of those weapons); T. 18 June 2007 p. 5 (Nteziryayo) (Nteziryayo also read a portion of the speech where Prime Minister Kambanda said, in essence, that there weren't enough roadblocks in the town and asked those in charge of security in that préfecture and in the commune to create roadblocks that would be manned either by civilians, farmers, or members of the population in general. He also acknowledged having read the portion where the Minister encouraged all citizens to defend the town).

the town by giving directives serving the interest of the enemy, and those who so conducted themselves would also be considered as the enemy; and that someone who tells members of the population not to man roadblocks, not to protect their town, not to check the movements of persons entering into their town and exiting from their town, was an enemy of the country, in general, and in Butare.¹⁴³⁹⁶

5526. Nteziryayo testified that Kambanda did not say that the Tutsis should be eliminated. The main reason for the establishment of civil defence was to protect and defend the population. Therefore, Nteziryayo did not understand his speech as incitement to eliminate Tutsis.¹⁴³⁹⁷

5527. Nteziryayo testified that Colonel Simba, whom he met in Butare in 1994, told Nteziryayo that he was in charge of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.¹⁴³⁹⁸ Lieutenant Colonel Simba's appointment had been signed by the defence minister.¹⁴³⁹⁹

5528. Nteziryayo testified that during a meeting held on 22 May 1994 in Ntyazo commune, Simba told him that he had appointed senior warrant officer Rekeraho as his deputy.¹⁴⁴⁰⁰ Nteziryayo denied that he was ever the deputy of Lieutenant Colonel Simba in respect of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.¹⁴⁴⁰¹ He could not have been appointed because on 15 May 1994, he was not a reserve, non-commissioned or retired officer.¹⁴⁴⁰²

5529. Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 121 and testified that he had read it shortly after he took office as préfet.¹⁴⁴⁰³ In the Directive dated 25 May 1994 the Prime Minister stated that the objectives of civil defence were to protect the population, to gather information, to defend the population against hostile actions before the intervention of the armed forces and to function as a relay to the armed forces.¹⁴⁴⁰⁴ Nteziryayo testified that point two of the Directive dealt with the defence of the fatherland. According to point three the enemy was the attacker of Rwanda, i.e. the RPF, and everyone who assisted the attackers.¹⁴⁴⁰⁵ Nteziryayo said by "accomplices" the document was not referring to Tutsis.¹⁴⁴⁰⁶ He added that between April and July 1994, he did not hear that the enemy of Rwanda included both Tutsis from inside and Tutsis in the RPF.¹⁴⁴⁰⁷

5530. Nteziryayo testified that according to point 8 of Prosecution Exhibit 121 the civil defence committee was planned to function at various levels. Point 8 read: "To ensure better coordination of civil defence operations, the préfecture authorities are requested to point out the rapid putting in place of civil defence committees at the level of the secteurs, communes and préfectures."¹⁴⁴⁰⁸

5531. Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 122 which discussed the implementation of the Prime Minister's directives and was signed by the Minister of Interior, Édouard Karemera.¹⁴⁴⁰⁹ He read out paragraph four of Prosecution Exhibit 122, "[i]dentification of people resources, to train as small groups of civil defence members at the political and ideological level", and testified that this document dealt with the training sessions to be given to youth in different secteurs on civilian self-defence.¹⁴⁴¹⁰

5532. Nteziryayo testified that he learned between 15 April and 3 July 1994 that Faustin Twagirayezu was the chairman of the civil defence committee that was situated in Butare town; he lived in Butare town but operated within the whole of Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁴¹¹ Nteziryayo added that he never met Twagirayezu.¹⁴⁴¹² When he took office as préfet, this self-defence committee was already operating. It was chaired by Faustin Twagirayezu.¹⁴⁴¹³

5533. Contrary to Guichaoua's assertions, Nteziryayo had not been relocated into the army as a reserve officer at the request of Théoneste Bagosora to become a member of the civil defence committee. Bagosora, who fell under the Ministry of National Defence, had no authority over Nteziryayo, who had been under the authority of the Ministry of Interior.¹⁴⁴¹⁴

5534. Nteziryayo testified that he had never been in charge of the popular civil defence committee, be it a provisional committee or a fully-fledged committee contrary to the statement in Guichaoua's Report.¹⁴⁴¹⁵ Nteziryayo testified that contrary to Des Forges' Report he was not in charge of coordinating civil defence with the civilian authorities.¹⁴⁴¹⁶

5535. Nteziryayo testified that when he became préfet, he learned that civil defence in Butare préfecture was funded.¹⁴⁴¹⁷ He learned from documents in the préfecture that there were various funds earmarked for civil defence in Butare préfecture, among them funds earmarked by the staff of the National University of Rwanda.¹⁴⁴¹⁸ Nteziryayo stated that part of the money was kept in the safe of the préfecture, which he also used to store money, but the substantial part was kept in one of the banks in Butare, as he learned from documents handed over to him when he became préfet.¹⁴⁴¹⁹ Around 22 or 23 June 1994, he received 2,000,000 Rwandan francs earmarked for civil defence by the Ministry of Interior and commune development. Nteziryayo stated that he kept the money in the vault and left it there when he left the country. He did not know what happened to the money afterwards.¹⁴⁴²⁰

5536. Nteziryayo testified that he did not take part in the funding intended for organising civil defence.¹⁴⁴²¹ Between 6 April and 21 June 1994 he had no relations with the bank accounts of the civil defence in Butare.¹⁴⁴²² As préfet between 21 June and 3 July 1994 he was in charge of the accounts of civil defence, but he did not actively raise funds for civil defence.¹⁴⁴²³

5537. Nteziryayo testified that after 20 June 1994, the chairman of the civil defence committee in Butare, Faustin Twagirayezu, and the adjutant chef, Pierre Claver Ntirigira, were in charge of training for civil defence.¹⁴⁴²⁴ He added that Pierre Claver Ntirigira supervised the training programme in Ngoma commune.¹⁴⁴²⁵

5538. Nteziryayo testified that as préfet he saw from several documents that the training programme existed before Kambanda's speech on 14 May 1994.¹⁴⁴²⁶ Nteziryayo was shown Prosecution Exhibit 115, a letter dated from the end of April 1994 authored by the area commander and addressed to the commune authorities, and testified that it contained information about the recruitment and training of people for civilian defence and requested bourgmestres to do the recruitment.¹⁴⁴²⁷

5539. Nteziryayo testified that he was never concerned in any way with the recruitment of youth and that he never asked anybody to recruit youths to be trained for civil defence in 1994 in Rwanda.¹⁴⁴²⁸

5540. Witness AND-5, a Hutu civil servant and a detainee appealing a life sentence for crimes committed during the 1994 genocide at the time of his testimony, testified that between April and July 1994, a civil defence programme existed in Mugusa commune.¹⁴⁴²⁹ The office of the préfecture would write to the bourgmestre requesting them to select young people to be sent to Butare for training.¹⁴⁴³⁰ The youths were taken to Butare by the bourgmestre in a car and with a policeman as escort. Before 1994, recruitment for the army took place every six months. After the RPF took over Ntyazo during 15 to 30 May 1994, training was organised in Mugusa commune at the request of the bourgmestre to train young people to handle guns to fight the Inkotanyi at the front.¹⁴⁴³¹ According to Witness AND-5, the police force conducted the trainings themselves, and no one from outside the commune came to assist them.¹⁴⁴³² He stressed that they were not trained to kill Tutsis, as the training took place after the massacres.¹⁴⁴³³ Witness AND-5 believed Colonel Aloys Simba was in charge of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures at this time.¹⁴⁴³⁴

5541. Witness AND-44, a former Gendarmerie Camp Commander,¹⁴⁴³⁵ testified that towards the end of April 1994 and the beginning of May 1994 he heard a radio announcement by the government inviting soldiers to retreat and come take part in civil defence to identify disguised RPF infiltrators, who had come to kill members of the local population.¹⁴⁴³⁶ A number of retired soldiers were called up on the radio as recruits to the civil defence; the witness heard the names of Barahira from Butare, Aloys Simba from the southern region and Jean Damascene Ukurikiyeyezi from the centre of the country, all of whom had previously retired from the army; the witness never heard Nteziryayo's name mentioned in relation to the civil defence programme.¹⁴⁴³⁷

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-50

5542. Witness AND-50, a Hutu teacher from Kigali, testified that Nteziryayo was not responsible for civil defence in Butare between April and July 1994. According to the witness, Colonel Aloys Simba was responsible for civil defence.¹⁴⁴³⁸

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-60

5543. Witness AND-60, a Hutu accountant from Muyaga commune, testified that he never heard that Nteziryayo was the chairman of civil defence in Butare, but knew that Colonel Aloys Simba was responsible for civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro. The witness could not say anything as to Colonel Simba's responsibilities in civil defence or what civil defence entailed.¹⁴⁴³⁹

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-74

5544. Witness AND-74, a Hutu civil servant, testified that around 15 or 16 May 1994 there was a radio announcement calling all civil servants and officers to help with civil defence. At this time Jean Damascène Ukurikiyeyezi had been appointed to coordinate the civil defence activities for Gitarama préfecture and Colonel Aloys Simba had been appointed to coordinate the civil defence of Gikongoro.¹⁴⁴⁴⁰ The witness testified that civil defence was intended to help the civilian population ensure its own security in the face of RPF infiltration.¹⁴⁴⁴¹

Nteziryayo Defence Witness AND-75

5545. Witness AND-75, a Hutu farmer from Ntyazo commune, testified that he attended Mathieu Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony on 22 May 1994.¹⁴⁴⁴² After Nteziryayo, Colonel Simba took the floor and stated that he was the person in charge of civilian defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, and introduced his assistant for this task, Emmanuel Rekeraho. Simba did not introduce Nteziryayo as his assistant during this meeting.¹⁴⁴⁴³ Simba did not call upon the Hutu population to hunt down and kill Tutsis.¹⁴⁴⁴⁴ Simba stated that he was going to help the population to set up vigilante groups for self-defence.¹⁴⁴⁴⁵

Ndayambaje

5546. Ndayambaje testified that there were some RPF fighters who had infiltrated the country. He testified that accomplices included sympathisers who had taken up arms and attacked the country,¹⁴⁴⁴⁶ people who provided financial support to the RPF, and people who sent young people to swell the ranks of the RPF at the front. Among those, some returned to the hills. Training was given to some members of clandestine brigades of the RPF. These were all accomplices. Ndayambaje stated that innocent Hutu and Tutsi children were killed in the violence although Tutsi children were not accomplices.¹⁴⁴⁴⁷

25 May 1994 Directive

5547. Ndayambaje testified that he complied with several measures of civil defence, for example, not to disturb security and not to consider his neighbour as his enemy.¹⁴⁴⁴⁸ Ndayambaje testified that he respected the security measures that were given by Prime Minister Kambanda in the "Instructions to restore security in the country."¹⁴⁴⁴⁹ Some of the measures were within his scope and if the occasion were to arise, he might talk about them.¹⁴⁴⁵⁰

3.7.10.4 Deliberations

5548. As illustrated by the 25 May 1994 Directive, the objectives of civil defence were to:

- Make the people feel secure and encourage them to defend themselves against RPF attacks rather than abandon their homes;
- Protect infrastructure and other public property;
- Obtain information on the acts or presence of the enemy in the commune, cellule, or neighbourhood;
- Denounce infiltrators and enemy allies;
- Disrupt all enemy action before the intervention of the armed forces;
- Serve as antennae for the army and the Gendarmerie Nationale.¹⁴⁴⁵¹

5549. The objectives were to be achieved by setting up a hierarchy and training certain members of the population in the use of weapons.¹⁴⁴⁵²

5550. The Prosecution asserts that civil defence was composed of: an awareness campaign, recruitment and training, distribution and making of modern or traditional weapons and finding sources of finance.¹⁴⁴⁵³ Roadblocks were allegedly the essence of the civilian self-defence systems which controlled the movement of people. The policy of the Interim Government to install roadblocks was transmitted by the préfet to the communes.¹⁴⁴⁵⁴ Guichaoua likewise testified that patrols and roadblocks had to be organised and monitored and searches, seizures and umuganda (or community labour) were to be carried out under the auspices of the civil defence programme.¹⁴⁴⁵⁵ In short, he said that the civil defence programme was a pretext for what he called the "killing machine".¹⁴⁴⁵⁶

5551. According to Nteziryayo, the main reason for the establishment of civil defence was to protect and defend the population.¹⁴⁴⁵⁷ He said the RPF "infiltration technique" was a combination of guerrilla and conventional warfare. Nteziryayo stated that they first killed or expelled civilians from a territory to occupy it and to use it strategically for surprise attacks on the Rwandan Armed Forces.¹⁴⁴⁵⁸ Shalom Ntahobali testified that pacification involved the assistance of the public to set up roadblocks and participate in night patrols to prevent the hoodlums from committing criminal acts.¹⁴⁴⁵⁹ Maurice Ntahobali agreed that civil defence was a way of ensuring the security of the country.¹⁴⁴⁶⁰ There was some evidence to support the argument that there was a legitimate military threat of RPF incursions.

5552. In this regard, a 15 May 1994 letter from Minister of Defence Bizimana to Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba, appoints Simba to be “Civilian Defence adviser” to the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro préfectures. It charges Simba with training 10 men in each secteur on how to prevent the infiltration of the “ENI,” i.e. the enemy. It also urges him to prioritise the civil defence programme in the communes bordering Burundi to prevent infiltrations from Burundi.¹⁴⁴⁶¹ Therefore, the Minister of Defence was evidently concerned about the infiltration of the enemy and saw civil defence as a way to address it.

5553. In addition, Defence Exhibit 537B, a 2 July 1992 memorandum from Lieutenant Colonel Nsengiyumva to the Rwandan Army Chief of Staff regarding internal security, states: “Inyenzi infiltrators are increasingly settling in Kigali and elsewhere in the country.” It recommends: “Measures to track down the Inyenzi infiltrators should be implemented.” In particular, it names several members of the Rwandan army who were allegedly key players in a counterfeiting network and says that such funds were being used to recruit Inyenzi-Inkotanyi in Burundi. The memorandum does not cite any sources and merely recounts unconfirmed suspicions as to RPF infiltrators.¹⁴⁴⁶² The Chamber considers this only to support the fact that there was a climate of fear from 2 July 1992, within which members of the army suspected their colleagues of materially supporting the RPF.¹⁴⁴⁶³

5554. Des Forges also acknowledged the existence of RPF infiltrators in Rwanda. However, she said that the number of infiltrators was likely in the dozens and that it was unreasonable for the Interim Government to consider an entire ethnic group to be infiltrators.¹⁴⁴⁶⁴ In this connection, the Chamber examines the evidence as to the identity of the “accomplices” to the RPF.

3.7.10.4.1 Enemy/Accomplices

5555. The Chamber recalls its earlier finding that the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, adopted directives, including the 27 April 1994 Directive, and issued instructions during Cabinet meetings with an intent to encourage the population to hunt down and take action against the enemy and its accomplices, terms which referred to Tutsis in general (3.4.12.2).

¹⁴⁴⁶¹ Prosecution Exhibit 120 (Letter from Minister of Defence Bizimana to Lt.-Col. Aloys Simba, appointing Simba “Civilian Defence adviser” to the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, 15 May 1994).

¹⁴⁴⁶² Defence Exhibit 537B (Nteziryayo) (Memo from Lt.-Col. Nsengiyumva to the Rwandan Army Chief of Staff regarding internal security, 2 July 1992).

¹⁴⁴⁶³ Guichaoua stated in his Report that civil defence was the essence of the Ministry of the Interior’s security policy. Kalimanzira helped to elevate Nteziryayo to préfet because he wanted to dismiss Nsabimana: Prosecution Exhibit 136B (Guichaoua Expert Report, Vol. 1) p. 131. Kalimanzira’s supervisory role in civil defence was corroborated by Nsabimana: Prosecution Exhibit 113A (The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, by Nsabimana) p. K0016628. However, Nyiramasuhuko contradicted this account, testifying that the civil defence system came under the Ministry of Defence, which appointed the responsables: T. 10 October 2005 p. 49 (Nyiramasuhuko). The 25 May 1994 Directive indicates that both the Minister of Defence and the Minister of Interior had leadership roles in the civil defence system. It designates that the coordination committee at the national level shall be composed of the Minister of the Interior and Communal Development as its president, and the Minister of Defence as vice-president: Prosecution Exhibit 121B (Prime Minister’s Directive to Préfets on the Organization of Civil Defence, 25 May 1994) p. 5. Therefore, the Chamber is convinced that both Ministries had a role in civil defence.

¹⁴⁴⁶⁴ T. 6 July 2004 p. 44; T. 7 July 2004 p. 13 (Des Forges).

5556. The 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive identified the enemy, stating, “[t]he enemy who attacked Rwanda is well known: it is the RPF-INKOTANYI.”¹⁴⁴⁶⁵ However, as Des Forges noted, this Directive continues, stating: “Nevertheless, the population must remain watchful in order to unmask the enemy and his accomplices and hand them over to the authorities...”¹⁴⁴⁶⁶ Therefore, by issuing the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive, the public was being asked to be aware of the enemy and his accomplices.

5557. Des Forges testified that the enemy was defined as the RPF and “accomplices”. Thus, the effort under the guise of protecting civilians was, in fact, a military organisation to attack other civilians and to identify the civilian targets by their ethnicity.¹⁴⁴⁶⁷ According to Des Forges, the proof that someone was a real accomplice was sometimes simply the identity card that said a person was Tutsi.¹⁴⁴⁶⁸ Although she did not state a basis for this conclusion, the Chamber considers, based upon numerous Prosecution and Defence witnesses, that Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks based upon their ethnicity which was clearly marked on national identification cards (3.7.9.4.2).

5558. Reyntjens testified that in the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive, Kambanda said that the enemy was the RPF Inkotanyi; the enemy and accomplices included Tutsis as well as Hutus, although during that time, Tutsis as a whole were considered accomplices of the RPF.¹⁴⁴⁶⁹ Although Reyntjens’ opinion was that “accomplice” might include some Hutus, the majority were Tutsis. Contrary to the instructions in the Directive, suspected accomplices were not handed over to authorities, but instead were killed on the spot.¹⁴⁴⁷⁰ Therefore, Reyntjens agreed with Des Forges on this matter. Witness FAI stated in his testimony that he understood “accomplices”, as used in the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive, to be all Tutsis.¹⁴⁴⁷¹

5559. Nyiramasuhuko testified that accomplices were RPF infiltrators.¹⁴⁴⁷² She also said that Radio Muhabura announced regularly that the RPF was present everywhere.¹⁴⁴⁷³ It would have been redundant for the 27 April 1994 Kambanda Directive to name the RPF-Inkotanyi and its accomplices if “accomplice” simply meant RPF. The Chamber does not find Nyiramasuhuko’s testimony convincing on the definition of “accomplice”.

5560. Ndayambaje testified that there were some RPF fighters who had infiltrated the country. He testified that accomplices included sympathisers who had taken up arms and attacked the country,¹⁴⁴⁷⁴ people who provided financial support to the RPF and people who sent young people to swell the ranks of the RPF at the front.¹⁴⁴⁷⁵ Among those, some returned to the hills. Training was given to some members of clandestine brigades of the RPF. These were all accomplices. Ndayambaje stated that innocent Hutu and Tutsi children were killed in the violence although Tutsi children were not accomplices.¹⁴⁴⁷⁶

5561. Although Nsabimana did not clarify the definition of “accomplice” in his testimony, in his interview, admitted as Prosecution Exhibit 114, Nsabimana asserted:

This time [in 1994] nobody was protected because Interahamwe wanted a massacre and those who wanted a massacre were always in power. If you were a civilian and you decided to protect Tutsis, these people in power said you were working with Tutsis so you also had to be killed, you are an enemy. For them, if you were protecting Tutsis or doing any kind of work with them, you are an enemy to the country.¹⁴⁴⁷⁷

5562. Therefore, Nsabimana indicated in this interview, which he acknowledged reflected his own views,¹⁴⁴⁷⁸ that the Interahamwe considered anyone that helped Tutsi to be an enemy.

5563. Moreover, in his 14 May 1994 Speech at the University, Kambanda asserted, “[w]e have explained to them that it is inconceivable that seven million Rwandans have been displaced from the country by a group of Tutsis, most of who [sic] reside in Uganda and are an offshoot of the Inyenzi.”¹⁴⁴⁷⁹

5564. As to roadblocks, Kambanda stated: “According to the intelligence unit, the enemy is going to try to infiltrate this town. We request reinforcement for the town for we have come to realise that we do not have enough roadblocks.” This Directive was followed by the population as additional roadblocks were mounted in May 1994 (3.7.9.4). Tutsis were targeted and killed at these roadblocks (3.7.9.4.2).

5565. While RPF soldiers may have been legitimate military targets, and there was evidence that some RPF soldiers had infiltrated Rwanda, the Interim Government did not limit itself to RPF soldiers. It vilified accomplices which, according to Ndayambaje, included sympathisers who had taken up arms and attacked the country, and people who provided financial support to the RPF.¹⁴⁴⁸⁰ Nsabimana acknowledged in his interview (Prosecution Exhibit 114) that the Interahamwe considered all those who helped Tutsis to be the enemy. Des Forges and Witness FAI stated quite plainly that all Tutsis were considered accomplices. As Tutsis were targeted and killed at roadblocks throughout Butare préfecture, it is clear that the civil defence forces understood that Tutsis were to be targeted as accomplices of the enemy.

3.7.10.4.2 Beginning of Civil Defence

5566. The Nteziryayo Defence suggests that 25 May 1994 marked the beginning of the civil defence programme.¹⁴⁴⁸¹ However, numerous witnesses testified to the contrary. Witness TQ testified that on 20 April 1994 teachers from Groupe Scolaire joined the civil defence group, but that civil defence had existed long before 21 April 1994.¹⁴⁴⁸² Prosecution Exhibit 115, a document dated 21 April 1994 and signed by Colonel Muvunyi, refers to a request from higher officials, the ministry, to train young people for civil defence.¹⁴⁴⁸³

5567. Nteziryayo agreed that this document contained information about the recruitment and training of people for civilian defence and requested bourgmestres to do the recruitment.¹⁴⁴⁸⁴ Nteziryayo himself admitted that he had heard about civil defence in 1992 while working in the Ministry of the Interior.¹⁴⁴⁸⁵ He agreed with Reyntjens that there were documents that showed that the training programme existed prior to Kambanda's speech on 14 May 1994.¹⁴⁴⁸⁶

5568. Nsabimana stated in his interview, admitted as Prosecution Exhibit 114, that even before 25 May 1994, perhaps around January 1994, he was aware of people being trained by the military, that these militia were trained to kill people from the opposition first and then to continue by killing Tutsis.¹⁴⁴⁸⁷ Des Forges testified that October 1993 marked the official implementation of the civil defence system.¹⁴⁴⁸⁸ However she did not present documentary evidence in support of this assertion.

5569. Witness RV stated he had not heard of civil defence before May 1994,¹⁴⁴⁸⁹ but this does not obviate the existence of civil defence prior to that date.

5571. Based on this evidence, the Chamber is convinced that civil defence was organised long before April 1994. Thereafter, the 25 May 1994 Interim Government Directive solidified a formal hierarchical authority over civil defence.

3.7.10.4.3 Financing of Civil Defence

5572. The Chamber next addresses the issue of the financing of civil defence. Although the Indictment does not include a specific charge of financial support for civil defence, this evidence may be relevant to establish ties between Nteziryayo and the civil defence programme.

5573. Des Forges testified that she was told by Nsabimana that Nteziryayo was a fund-raiser for the civil defence programme.¹⁴⁴⁹⁰ She indicated the funds were used for arms and petrol, and provided beer and drugs to militia manning the barriers to keep them aggressive and reward them for their activities. She said this fund was administered by Nteziryayo and Nyiramasuhuko in Butare.¹⁴⁴⁹¹ Guichaoua corroborated the fact that civilian militiamen needed to be compensated in some way. In his view, robberies and rapes at roadblocks, occupation of lands, the stealing of tiles or of doors or window frames before burning houses and the provision of alcohol were payments in kind for those participating in the killings.¹⁴⁴⁹²

5574. Maurice Ntahobali testified that he heard about a committee for the funding of civilian defence between April and July 1994. He knew that his name was included on the list of members of that committee, but he did not attend the committee's meetings or participate in its mission.¹⁴⁴⁹³ He was unable to confirm or deny other members of the financing committee as suggested by Guichaoua's Report.¹⁴⁴⁹⁴

5575. Nteziryayo testified that he did not take part in the funding intended for organising civil defence.¹⁴⁴⁹⁵ Nteziryayo testified that between 6 April and 21 June 1994 he had no relations with the bank accounts of the civil defence in Butare.¹⁴⁴⁹⁶ As préfet between 21 June and 3 July 1994 he was in charge of the accounts of civil defence, but he did not actively raise funds for civil defence.¹⁴⁴⁹⁷ Nteziryayo testified that when he became préfet, he learned that civil defence in Butare préfecture was funded.¹⁴⁴⁹⁸ He learned from documents in the préfecture that there were various funds earmarked for civil defence in Butare préfecture, among them funds earmarked by the staff of the National University of Rwanda.¹⁴⁴⁹⁹ Nteziryayo stated that part of the money was kept in the safe of the préfecture, which he also used to store money in, but the substantial part was kept in one of the banks in Butare, as he learned from documents handed over to him when he became préfet.¹⁴⁵⁰⁰ Nteziryayo stated that he kept the civil defence money in the vault and left it there when he left the country. He did not know what happened to the money afterwards.¹⁴⁵⁰¹

5576. Based upon this evidence, the Chamber concludes that a committee existed to fund civil defence and that Nteziryayo left civil defence funds in the vault when he left the country.

3.7.10.4.4 Leadership of Civil Defence

5577. The parties do not dispute that Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba was formally appointed civil defence adviser to the préfets of Butare and Gikongoro préfectures. However, the parties dispute whether Nteziryayo had a de facto leadership role in civil defence.

5578. The evidence was consistent that Simba had de jure responsibility for civil defence in Gikongoro and Butare préfectures. Prosecution Exhibit 120 is a letter from Minister of Defence Augustin Bizimana to Lieutenant Colonel Aloys Simba, appointing him conseiller for civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures.¹⁴⁵⁰² Des Forges, Nyiramasuhuko and Reyntjens all agreed that this document showed that Colonel Simba was in charge of civil defence in Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁵⁰³ Nsabimana acknowledged that Colonel Simba came to his office to tell Nsabimana that Simba had been appointed to the post of responsable for civil defence.¹⁴⁵⁰⁴

5579. As to the leader of civil defence, Kambanda stated in his 14 May 1994 speech at the University:

Military leaders in charge of Civil Defence have been appointed; they are mainly retired officers with military experience. Their names will be communicated to you in the next few days but I believe that the Butare-Gikongoro area will be under Colonel Simba's command. At the national level, Colonel Gasake will be in charge of Civil Defence Operations. We are organizing ourselves in order to put in place this Civil Defence structure.¹⁴⁵⁰⁵

5580. Likewise, Nteziryayo testified that the only time he had responsibility with regard to civil defence was in accordance with the instructions of the Prime Minister of 25 May 1994 after he became préfet. At that time, he became ex-officio in charge of civil defence in that préfecture, but he did not promote civil defence.¹⁴⁵⁰⁶ Further he did not get any support from Kalimanzira and Nyiramasuhuko for promoting civil defence. He never spoke to either of them about civil defence.¹⁴⁵⁰⁷

5581. Des Forges testified that she did not see any documents at the BPO sent to or by Nteziryayo concerning civil defence.¹⁴⁵⁰⁸ Nonetheless, based on witness testimony, Des Forges testified it was probable that Nteziryayo, whether formally ordered to or not, acted in some capacity in relation to civil defence with Simba.¹⁴⁵⁰⁹ Des Forges testified that it was difficult to define Nteziryayo's role because documentation was not available. However, she confirmed the statement in her Report that Nteziryayo was in charge of coordination with the civilian authorities regarding civilian defence.¹⁴⁵¹⁰ Although Colonel Simba was de jure responsible for civil defence in Gikongoro and Butare, Des Forges testified that according to Simba's statement, he did not wish to be involved in Butare because he found he had too much work to do in Gikongoro.¹⁴⁵¹¹

5582. The Chamber notes the testimony of three witnesses who testified as to Nteziryayo's leadership role in civil defence for Butare préfecture. First, Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo was responsible for civil defence.¹⁴⁵¹² He testified that he learned on the day of Bourgmestre Ndahimana's swearing-in ceremony that Colonel Simba was actually in charge of civil defence in both Butare and Gikongoro, but he was assisted in Butare by Lieutenant Colonel Nteziryayo.¹⁴⁵¹³ He further testified that at a meeting at the BPO in early June 1994, Nteziryayo answered the call of two bourgmestres from Kibayi and Kigembe communes who requested help in controlling the influx of Tutsi refugees into their communes. Nteziryayo said that he had at his disposal youths who had undergone their training and that he would send them as soon as possible.¹⁴⁵¹⁴ Witness FAI testified that Nteziryayo sent some Ibisumizi to Kibayi to kill those Tutsis.¹⁴⁵¹⁵ Witness FAI testified that he was present when Nteziryayo gave Célestin Harindintwari directives to transport the Ibisumizi to Kibayi commune, so that they could help the Hutu inhabitants as requested.¹⁴⁵¹⁶

5583. Witness RV testified Nteziryayo was the chairman of the civil defence committee in the region.¹⁴⁵¹⁷ Nteziryayo had some relationship with the civil defence force; he saw Nteziryayo at meetings dealing with the issue of personnel for the civil defence force.¹⁴⁵¹⁸

5584. Witness TQ testified that Nteziryayo was de facto head of civil defence in Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁵¹⁹ Nteziryayo collaborated with Colonel Simba in training and in maintaining civil defence, which included manning and executing the roadblock system.¹⁴⁵²⁰ Witness TQ recounted how, during the evacuation of orphans to Burundi, Nteziryayo intervened with certain members of the civilian defence who were manning a roadblock. They talked in an ordinary manner as if they knew each other.¹⁴⁵²¹ Following a discussion with Nteziryayo, the civil defence group indicated that the children were to disembark from the vehicles and walk through the roadblock "one after the other".¹⁴⁵²²

5585. The Chamber recalls several findings in other sections of this Judgement which also support a conclusion that Nteziryayo had a leadership role in the civil defence programme. In

May 1994 for example, Nteziryayo trained civilians (3.7.2.4) and distributed weapons (3.7.6.4.2) at Kamena Stadium. Witness QAH stated that Nteziryayo addressed the group and asked them to make sure that there were no Tutsis among them before they began the training.¹⁴⁵²³ Nteziryayo told the recruits that the purpose of the training was to counter the enemy.¹⁴⁵²⁴ Nteziryayo taught them how to operate arms and urged them to kill the Tutsis.¹⁴⁵²⁵

5586. Furthermore, Nteziryayo did not dispute that he made speeches during the swearing-in ceremony of the Ntyazo bourgmestre, at meetings held in Kirarambogo, Muganza commune, and during meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi communes on 22 and 23 May and in mid-June 1994 respectively. Although the Chamber found that it was not proven that Nteziryayo made inciting remarks at the swearing-in ceremony of the bourgmestre of Ntyazo commune on 22 May 1994, nor at a meeting in Kirarambogo, Muganza commune, on 23 May 1994, the Chamber found that Nteziryayo incited the population during meetings held in Muyaga and Kibayi communes around mid-June 1994 (3.6.34.4).

5587. Finally, the Chamber has held that Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. He selected about 30 individuals, whom he believed to be Tutsi adults and forced them to remain in Rwanda. He and Ntahobali segregated and prevented the 30 people from crossing the border (3.6.45.4).

5588. Nteziryayo claims that between 15 April and 21 June 1994, when he was sworn-in as préfet of Butare, he was not engaged in any state activities or duties.¹⁴⁵²⁶ It is not contested that Nteziryayo was in Kigali from 6 April 1994 until 15 April 1994. He states that he mainly took care of his family who were residing in a friend's home in Ngoma commune.¹⁴⁵²⁷ However, he chose to live in the Hotel Ibis instead because there was insufficient room for him at the friend's home.¹⁴⁵²⁸ Although Nteziryayo claims to not have worked or to have sought direction from the Minister of the Interior in Gitarama, from April to 17 June 1994,¹⁴⁵²⁹ he accepted his salary for the months of May and June from the army accountant in Cyangugu (albeit belatedly).¹⁴⁵³⁰ He continued to consider himself the Chief of commune police in the Ministry of the Interior.¹⁴⁵³¹ Despite the fact that the army was understaffed and was recruiting people during this time, and Nteziryayo was, according to him, without an occupation, he claims he served no function in the Government or army in Butare in this time.¹⁴⁵³² Nonetheless, Nteziryayo testified that he always wore his military uniform and generally carried his pistol with him.¹⁴⁵³³ The Chamber does not find it credible that Nteziryayo was not serving the Government given that he intentionally separated himself from his family, continued to wear his military uniform, and accepted his salary for the months of May and June 1994.

5589. In sum, the Chamber is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the civil defence programme was created before April 1994 in order to protect against the infiltration of RPF agents, but also the enemy and their accomplices, which included Tutsis both within and without the country. From the evidence and from Nteziryayo's own conduct, such as his involvement in weapons distribution and training, and his activities in meetings the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo had a leadership role in civil defence in Butare préfecture.

CHAPTER IV: LEGAL FINDINGS

4.1 Criminal Responsibility

4.1.1 Article 6 (1) of the Statute

5590. Article 6 (1) of the Statute provides for individual criminal responsibility for anyone who planned, instigated, ordered, committed, or aided and abetted a crime falling within the Tribunal's jurisdiction.

5591. "Planning" requires that one or more persons design the criminal conduct constituting a statutory crime that is later perpetrated. It is sufficient to demonstrate that the planning was a factor substantially contributing to such criminal conduct. The mens rea entails the intent to plan the commission of a crime or, at a minimum, the awareness of the substantial likelihood that a crime will be committed in the execution of the acts or omissions planned.¹⁴⁵³⁴

5592. "Instigating" implies prompting another person to commit an offence. It is not necessary to prove that the crime would not have been perpetrated without the involvement of the accused; it is sufficient to demonstrate that the instigation was a factor substantially contributing to the conduct of another person committing the crime. The mens rea is the intent to instigate another person to commit a crime or, at a minimum, the awareness of the substantial likelihood that a crime will be committed in the execution of the act or omission instigated.¹⁴⁵³⁵

5593. A person in a position of authority may incur responsibility for "ordering" another person to commit an offence if the order has a direct and substantial effect on the commission of the illegal act. Responsibility is also incurred when an individual in a position of authority orders an act or omission with the awareness of the substantial likelihood that a crime will be committed in the execution of that order, and if that crime is effectively committed subsequently by the person who received the order. There is no requirement of a formal superior-subordinate relationship between the orderer and the perpetrator; it is sufficient that there is proof of a position of authority on the part of the accused that would compel another person to commit a crime following the accused's order.¹⁴⁵³⁶

5594. "Committing" covers, primarily, the physical perpetration of a crime (with criminal intent) or a culpable omission.¹⁴⁵³⁷ Physical perpetration can include physical killing, as well as other acts that constitute direct participation in the actus reus of the crime. "The question is whether an accused's conduct was as much an integral part of the genocide as were the killings which it enabled."¹⁴⁵³⁸

5595. "Aiding and abetting" entails carrying out acts or omissions specifically directed to assist, encourage, or lend moral support to the perpetration of a certain specific crime, which have a substantial effect on the perpetration of the crime. The assistance need not serve as condition precedent for the commission of the crime and may occur before, during or after the principal crime has been perpetrated. The requisite mental element is knowledge that the acts performed assist the commission of the specific crime of the principal perpetrator. Mens rea can also be established if the accused is aware that one of a number of crimes will probably be committed, and one of those crimes is in fact committed. Specific intent crimes, such as genocide, also require that the aider and abettor must know of the principal perpetrator's specific intent.¹⁴⁵³⁹

5597. Omission proper may lead to individual criminal responsibility under Article 6 (1) of the Statute where there is a legal duty to act. The actus reus of aiding and abetting by omission consists of the failure to discharge a legal duty, where that failure assisted, encouraged or lent moral support to the perpetration of the crime and had a substantial effect on the realisation of that crime. This implicitly requires that the accused had the ability to act, such that means were available to the accused to fulfil his or her duty. As for the mens rea, the aider and abettor must know that his or her omission assists in the commission of the crime of the principal perpetrator and must be aware of the essential elements of the crime which was ultimately committed by the principal.¹⁴⁵⁴²

5598. The Chamber will discuss these modes of liability, where applicable, in making its legal findings.

4.1.2 Article 6 (3) of the Statute

5599. The Prosecution charges all six Accused in this case with superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

4.1.2.1 Notice of Alleged Subordinates

5600. When the Prosecution seeks a conviction under Article 6 (3) of the Statute for superior-subordinate responsibility, the Indictment should plead: (1) that the accused is the superior of subordinates sufficiently identified; (2) the criminal conduct of those others for whom he or she is allegedly responsible; (3) the accused's conduct by which he or she may be found to have known or to have had reason to know that his or her subordinates were about to commit crimes or had committed them; and (4) the accused's conduct by which he or she may be found to have failed to take necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or to punish the persons who committed them.¹⁴⁵⁴³

5601. Although the Indictment must sufficiently identify the alleged subordinates of the accused, an alleged superior need not necessarily know the exact identity of his or her subordinates who perpetrate crimes in order to incur liability pursuant to Article 6 (3). Physical perpetrators of the crimes may be identified by category in relation to a particular crime site.¹⁴⁵⁴⁴

5602. The Chamber has made findings concerning the acts of the six Accused in this case, and of Interahamwe, soldiers, gendarmes, commune police, conseillers of Ngoma commune and civilians.

5603. The Chamber will now assess the extent to which the Prosecution charged each Accused with responsibility as a superior over these persons. In doing so, the Chamber will also determine whether the Accused received sufficient notice of their alleged subordinates.

5604. Regarding the other three elements required for notice of alleged superior responsibility, the Chamber will address these when discussing the acts of alleged subordinates in the appropriate section of the legal findings below.

4.1.2.1.1 Nyiramasuhuko

5605. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment charges Nyiramasuhuko with criminal responsibility as a superior in relation to various paragraphs of the Indictment.¹⁴⁵⁴⁵

5606. The Prosecution identifies numerous categories of persons over whom Nyiramasuhuko allegedly bears responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3), including Interahamwe, soldiers, gendarmes, Ntahobali, "prefects, bourgmestres and all of their subordinates", civilians and others.¹⁴⁵⁴⁶ The Chamber considers it clear that, even though the Prosecution does not ¹⁴⁵⁴⁴ Renzaho, Judgement (AC), para. 64; Muvunyi I, Judgement (AC), para. 55; Blagojević & Jokić, Judgement (AC), para. 287.

¹⁴⁵⁴⁵ These Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 6.20, 6.27, 6.30, 6.31, 6.33, 6.37, 6.38, 6.39, 6.47, 6.49, 6.50, 6.51, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55, 6.56.

¹⁴⁵⁴⁶ The Prosecution also alleges superior responsibility or effective control over staff of the Ministry of Family and Women's Development, civil leaders, responsables de cellule, other local authorities, the "Rwandan political administration", the armed forces, the Presidential Guard, militia, members of the civil defence, perpetrators, persons at the roadblock near her house and at the BPO, and "subordinates in the administrative political system of Rwanda who implemented the government's strategy of genocide and widespread or systematic attacks against explicitly mention commune police when alleging Nyiramasuhuko's superior responsibility, they could be encompassed as alleged subordinates of préfets and bourgmestres.¹⁴⁵⁴⁷

5607. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence refers to the submissions made in the Ntahobali Closing Brief concerning the joint Indictment. That Brief submits that the Indictment fails to specify the requisite elements for superior responsibility, and is thus defective. In particular, the Ntahobali Defence states that the Indictment fails to provide sufficient notice of the identity of alleged perpetrators and accomplices, of dates and places of alleged crimes, and of the factual allegations against the Accused that are capable of sustaining a conviction. These defects have not been cured and have impaired the Defences' ability to prepare themselves adequately, and therefore require an acquittal on all charges of superior responsibility.¹⁴⁵⁴⁸

5608. Although the Indictment lacks any paragraph specifically detailing Nyiramasuhuko's alleged subordinates, the Chamber recalls that the Indictment must be read as a whole.

5609. The Indictment charges Nyiramasuhuko with superior responsibility in relation to 17 paragraphs.¹⁴⁵⁴⁹ This information, coupled with a review of these paragraphs, would have provided the Nyiramasuhuko Defence with sufficient notice of her alleged subordinates. For example, Paragraph 6.30 – pled in support of Article 6 (3) responsibility – alleges that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali were “accompanied by Interahamwe militiamen ... and soldiers” in their visits to the préfecture office from April through June 1994.¹⁴⁵⁵⁰ The Chamber considers that this provided requisite notice that Nyiramasuhuko's alleged subordinates included Interahamwe and soldiers.

5610. Nyiramasuhuko is also charged as a superior in relation to Paragraphs 6.37, 6.47 and 6.53. Paragraph 6.37 identifies only Ntahobali.¹⁴⁵⁵¹ Because Nyiramasuhuko bears alleged responsibility as a superior for the acts alleged in this paragraph, the Chamber considers that she would have known that Ntahobali was pled as one of her subordinates. Paragraph 6.47 alleges that Nyiramasuhuko incited, and aided and abetted, “the population”¹⁴⁵⁵² which, in the Chamber's view, identifies civilians to be alleged subordinates of Nyiramasuhuko. Similarly, Paragraph 6.53 describes the alleged acts of “soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes”.¹⁴⁵⁵³ When considered alongside Nyiramasuhuko's alleged superior responsibility according to this paragraph, the paragraph provided notice that her alleged subordinates included soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes.¹⁴⁵⁵⁴

5611. Accordingly, a holistic reading of the Indictment demonstrates that numerous paragraphs pled in support of Article 6 (3) responsibility identify Nyiramasuhuko's alleged subordinates. These paragraphs provide that Nyiramasuhuko is alleged to be superior to Interahamwe, Ntahobali, soldiers, gendarmes and civilians.¹⁴⁵⁵⁵

5612. Even were this not the case, the Chamber notes that the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, filed after the operative Indictment,¹⁴⁵⁵⁶ specifically alleges that Nyiramasuhuko supervised Interahamwe, gendarmes and soldiers.¹⁴⁵⁵⁷ Similarly, the witness summaries appended to the Pre-Trial Brief confirm that Nyiramasuhuko was an alleged superior of Ntahobali and Interahamwe.¹⁴⁵⁵⁸

5613. Under these circumstances, the Chamber considers that Nyiramasuhuko received sufficient notice that she was charged with superior responsibility for the alleged acts of Interahamwe, Ntahobali, soldiers, gendarmes and civilians.

5614. The Prosecution also alleges Nyiramasuhuko's responsibility over préfets and bourgmestres. In this regard, the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.33 is pled in support of superior responsibility.¹⁴⁵⁵⁹ Because this paragraph alleges that "Nyiramasuhuko asked [Nsabimana] what those people [the Tutsis] were doing at the préfecture offices, and why they had not yet been killed",¹⁴⁵⁶⁰ the Chamber considers that Nyiramasuhuko would have known the subordinate over whom she was alleged to bear superior responsibility in that paragraph, was Nsabimana. The Chamber therefore finds that the paragraph provides sufficient notice that Nyiramasuhuko was charged as a superior to Nsabimana in regard to this specific allegation.

5615. Other paragraphs pled in support of Article 6 (3) refer to Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, but none allege the sort of relationship that could provide clear notice to ¹⁴⁵⁵⁴ Given the context, the Chamber considers it clear that the "militiamen" referenced in this Indictment would have been understood as Interahamwe, and that Nyiramasuhuko received sufficient notice of these alleged subordinates in this regard; see, e.g., Paras. 1.17 (conflating the militia and the Interahamwe), 3.10 (same), 4.4 (same), 4.5 (same), and 6.20 (same) of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁵⁶ The Prosecution filed the Nyiramasuhuko Indictment on 1 March 2001, and filed its Pre-Trial Brief on 11 April 2001. For the preference of post-indictment submissions when conducting a curing analysis, see generally Ntawukuliyayo, Judgement (TC), para. 47.

¹⁴⁵⁵⁷ Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, paras. 21, 29; see also Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, paras. 30-31.

¹⁴⁵⁵⁹ Para. 6.33 is pled in support of superior responsibility only in relation to the charge of genocide; see Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, Count 2.

¹⁴⁵⁶⁰ Para. 6.33 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

Nyiramasuhuko of an alleged superior-subordinate relationship over these persons.¹⁴⁵⁶¹ In this regard, the Indictment is defective. Moreover, the Chamber has not identified any form of timely, clear and consistent notice that would cure this defect, nor has the Prosecution referred to any possibly curative instrument.¹⁴⁵⁶² Accordingly, the Chamber considers that Nyiramasuhuko did not receive adequate notice that she was being charged with superior responsibility in relation to Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje.

5616. Finally, of the Indictment paragraphs pertaining to Nyiramasuhuko's alleged superior responsibility, none mention commune police. The Indictment is defective in omitting this information. While it is possible to remedy vagueness in an indictment, omissions cannot be remedied.¹⁴⁵⁶³ Accordingly, the Chamber concludes that Nyiramasuhuko did not receive adequate notice that she was being charged as a superior to commune police, and will not address any such responsibility below.

4.1.2.1.2 Ntahobali

5617. The Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment charges Ntahobali with superior responsibility under numerous Indictment paragraphs.¹⁴⁵⁶⁴

5618. The Prosecution alleges that Ntahobali bears responsibility as a superior over Interahamwe and soldiers.¹⁴⁵⁶⁵ Because Interahamwe and soldiers were potentially implicated in numerous factual findings, the Chamber will assess whether sufficient notice was provided to Ntahobali of his alleged responsibility over these categories of persons.

5619. As set out above (4.1.2.1.1), the Ntahobali Defence submits that the Indictment is defective in failing to specify the elements for superior responsibility, and that these defects have not been cured. According to the Ntahobali Defence, these uncured defects have resulted in prejudice to the Ntahobali Defence, and therefore require an acquittal on all charges of superior responsibility.¹⁴⁵⁶⁶

5620. The Chamber observes that the Indictment identifies Ntahobali as a leader of a group of Interahamwe during the events referred to in the Indictment, and alleges that he "exercised authority over Interahamwe militiamen in Butare préfecture".¹⁴⁵⁶⁷ Although the Indictment does not explicitly state that Ntahobali's subordinates included soldiers, numerous paragraphs ¹⁴⁵⁶¹ Paras. 6.39, 6.47, 6.52, 6.54, 6.56 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁶² The Prosecution appears to argue that, in addition to the Indictment, Nyiramasuhuko received adequate notice of her alleged subordinates through the testimony of witnesses: Prosecution Closing Brief, p. 124, para. 332. The Chamber is not convinced that witness testimony could provide timely notice, and the Prosecution does not elaborate on this argument.

¹⁴⁵⁶³ See Renzaho, Judgement (AC), para. 55; Karera, Judgement (AC), para. 293.

¹⁴⁵⁶⁴ The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 6.27, 6.30, 6.31, 6.34, 6.35, 6.37, 6.39, 6.49, 6.50, 6.51, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55 and 6.56.

¹⁴⁵⁶⁵ The Prosecution also alleges that Ntahobali bears superior responsibility over Jean Pierre. Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 156-163, 165-166, 171-172, 174, 176-178, 181-182, 184-190, 192, 197-198, 201-202, 204-205, 207, paras. 2-11, 13-14, 18, 21, 28-30, 42, 44, 47, 54-56, 63-64, 66, 71-73, 77-79, 84-85, 89, 95, 112-114, 122-125, 133, 135, 142; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 20 April 2009 pp. 37-40, 42-47; Prosecution Closing Rebuttal Argument, T. 30 April 2009 pp. 54, 57.

pled pursuant to superior responsibility allege a superior-subordinate relationship between the two.¹⁴⁵⁶⁸ Under these circumstances, the Chamber considers that the Indictment, when read as a whole, provides sufficient notice that Interahamwe and soldiers were among Ntahobali's alleged subordinates.

4.1.2.1.3 Nsabimana

5621. The Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment charges Nsabimana with responsibility as a superior under numerous Indictment paragraphs.¹⁴⁵⁶⁹

5622. The Prosecution submits a range of persons over whom Nsabimana allegedly bears superior responsibility, including soldiers, Interahamwe, Kanyabashi, Ndayambaje and conseillers of Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁵⁷⁰

5623. The Nsabimana Defence contends that the Indictment was defective in pleading each element of superior responsibility, and that no conviction can be based on this alleged responsibility.¹⁴⁵⁷¹

5624. The Chamber recalls that it has already found that the Indictment sufficiently informed Nsabimana that he was charged with superior responsibility regarding soldiers (3.6.20.2). As to the Interahamwe, the Chamber has concluded the Indictment was defective in pleading Article 6 (3) responsibility over them, and this defect was not cured (3.6.20.2).

5625. The Indictment alleges that Nsabimana exercised authority over his subordinates in his capacity as préfet of Butare, a post which he held from 19 April to 17 June 1994. According to the Indictment, the préfet "has hierarchical authority over all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur".¹⁴⁵⁷²

5626. As for Nsabimana's alleged superior responsibility over bourgmestres, the Indictment identifies Kanyabashi as a bourgmestre during the time when Nsabimana was préfet.¹⁴⁵⁷³ This suffices to identify Kanyabashi as an alleged subordinate of Nsabimana.

¹⁴⁵⁶⁹ The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 5.8, 6.21, 6.22, 6.25, 6.26, 6.28, 6.32, 6.33, 6.35, 6.36, 6.37, 6.38, 6.41, 6.51, 6.52, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55, 6.56, 6.57, 6.58 and 6.59. The Chamber recalls that it has already acquitted Nsabimana on the charges found in Para. 6.25; see Nyiramasuhuko et al., Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis (TC), 16 December 2004, p. 61. However, the Chamber, considers that this is not relevant in determining whether Nsabimana received adequate notice of the allegations against him.

¹⁴⁵⁷⁰ The Prosecution also alleges that Nsabimana was superior to, or had effective control over, "all the sous-préfets, bourgmestres ... and cell leaders in [Butare] prefecture", local authorities, and "others who were involved in killings and massacres of Tutsi throughout the Prefecture": Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 229-230, 233, 257-258, 262-263, 269-270, 273, 278-279, 282, 285-288, paras. 3-8, 19, 90-91, 102, 107, 127-130, 139, 162, 165-166, 176, 178, 188, 195, 199, 203; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 20 April 2009 pp. 60-63.

¹⁴⁵⁷² Paras. 3.3, 3.4, 4.2, 4.3 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁷³ Paras. 6.22, 6.37, 6.49 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

5627. As to Ndayambaje, the Indictment states that Ndayambaje was reappointed as bourgmestre on 20 June 1994, after Nsabimana was replaced as préfet.¹⁴⁵⁷⁴ Although the Indictment identifies Ndayambaje as the de facto bourgmestre while Nsabimana was préfet,¹⁴⁵⁷⁵ it gives no indication that Nsabimana's capacity as préfet would have included alleged superior responsibility over non-officeholders like Ndayambaje. The Indictment is thus defective in pleading that Ndayambaje was an alleged subordinate of Nsabimana. Because the Chamber has not identified any form of timely, clear and consistent notice that might have cured this defect, the Chamber will not consider below whether Nsabimana might bear responsibility as an alleged superior to Ndayambaje.

5628. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber considers that the Prosecution sufficiently pled Nsabimana's superior responsibility over soldiers, and over Kanyabashi and conseillers from the period of 19 April to 17 June 1994.

4.1.2.1.4 Nteziryayo

5629. The Chamber notes that the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment charges Nteziryayo with responsibility as a superior under various Indictment paragraphs.¹⁴⁵⁷⁶

5630. The Prosecution identifies various alleged subordinates of Nteziryayo, including bourgmestres, conseillers, Interahamwe, and certain civilians in Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁵⁷⁷

5631. The Nteziryayo Defence does not appear to claim that it received insufficient notice of this form of responsibility, though it highlights certain Indictment paragraphs that it considers to be vague and thus inadequately pled.¹⁴⁵⁷⁸

5632. The Indictment alleges that Nteziryayo was préfet of Butare from 17 June 1994 until he left Rwanda in July 1994, and that in this capacity he exercised authority over his subordinates, who included "all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur".¹⁴⁵⁷⁹ The Chamber considers this to provide sufficient notice to Nteziryayo of his alleged superior responsibility

¹⁴⁵⁷⁴ Paras. 6.34, 6.46 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁷⁵ Para. 6.43 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment. In its opening statement, the Prosecution also stated that Muganza commune fell under Ndayambaje's jurisdiction, including during the time that Nsabimana was préfet. However, there is no explicit reference to Nsabimana, and it does not appear that this statement was intended to expand the list of Nsabimana's alleged subordinates; see Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 85.

¹⁴⁵⁷⁶ The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 5.8, 5.12, 5.13, 6.16, 6.29, 6.30, 6.31, 6.33, 6.41, 6.51, 6.52, 6.53, 6.54, 6.55, 6.56, 6.57, 6.58 and 6.59.

¹⁴⁵⁷⁷ The Prosecution also alleges that Nteziryayo was a superior to members of the civil defence programme. As the Chamber has not found that these persons participated in any crimes, it will not address Nteziryayo's notice of alleged superior responsibility over them. Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 306-308, 320, 322, 327-330, 332-334, 337-339, 345, 348-349, 351-352, 365-367, 369, 371-372, 374-375, paras. 2-11, 52, 58, 73, 75-78, 80, 82, 87, 90-91, 100, 102-107, 109, 127, 139-140, 147, 150, 192-193, 197-198, 204, 213, 219, 226-227; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 20 April 2009 pp. 68-70, 72-74, 77, 79-80; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 21 April 2009 p. 3; Prosecution Closing Rebuttal Argument, T. 30 April 2009 pp. 54, 57.

over these persons, including Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje while they were bourgmestres, during the indicated time period starting on 17 June 1994.

5633. To the extent that the Prosecution pursues superior responsibility over these persons before 17 June 1994, the Chamber notes that the Indictment, read as a whole, does not provide adequate notice of such responsibility. Moreover, no instrument has been identified that might cure any defect in this regard. The Chamber will thus not consider whether, prior to 17 June 1994, Nteziryayo was superior to bourgmestres such as Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, or to conseillers.¹⁴⁵⁸⁰

5634. The Indictment also alleges that Nteziryayo was responsible for the civil defence of Butare préfecture, and that he thus "exercised authority over Interahamwe militiamen and certain civilians in the préfecture".¹⁴⁵⁸¹ Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber considers that this provided sufficient notice that Nteziryayo was allegedly responsible as a superior for Interahamwe and civilians in Butare préfecture throughout the relevant time period.

4.1.2.1.5 Kanyabashi

5635. Kanyabashi is charged with superior-subordinate responsibility pursuant to numerous paragraphs of his Indictment.¹⁴⁵⁸²

5636. The Prosecution alleges that various persons were subordinates of Kanyabashi, including soldiers, Interahamwe, commune police, conseillers and civilians.¹⁴⁵⁸³

5637. The Kanyabashi Defence does not appear to make any submissions concerning notice for 6 (3) responsibility.

5638. The Indictment alleges that Kanyabashi was bourgmestre of Ngoma commune from April 1974 until around 4 July 1994, and that he exercised authority over the civil servants posted in his commune, including conseillers and commune policemen.¹⁴⁵⁸⁴ Kanyabashi therefore received sufficient notice that he was being charged as a superior in relation to them.

¹⁴⁵⁸⁰ The Chamber also notes that the Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje was appointed bourgmestre on 20 June 1994: Para. 6.46 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁸¹ Paras. 4.5, 4.6 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁸² The relevant Indictment Paragraphs are 5.1, 6.28, 6.29, 6.30, 6.31, 6.32, 6.33, 6.34, 6.35, 6.37, 6.38, 6.41, 6.42, 6.43, 6.44, 6.45, 6.46, 6.57, 6.58, 6.60, 6.63, 6.64 and 6.65. The Chamber recalls that it has already acquitted Kanyabashi on the charges found in Para. 6.38, and has stated that Kanyabashi need not defend against a specific aspect of Para. 6.43: Nyiramasuhuko et al., Decision on Defence Motions for Acquittal under Rule 98 bis (TC), 16 December 2004, p. 62. The Chamber considers, however, that this is not relevant in determining whether Kanyabashi received adequate notice of the allegations against him.

¹⁴⁵⁸³ The Prosecution also considers that Kanyabashi was a superior to responsables de cellule, militiamen, Prosecution Witness FAM, and others: Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 385-387, 391, 403-405, 412-419, 422-425, 427, 430, 432, 449, paras. 3-8, 21, 67-72, 76, 100-120, 134-136, 139-140, 144, 152, 160, 169, 228; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 21 April 2009 pp. 17-18, 23-24, 28. The Chamber considers it clear, given the context, that the "militiamen" referenced in this Indictment would have been understood as Interahamwe, and that Kanyabashi received sufficient notice of these alleged subordinates in this regard; see, e.g., Paras. 1.17 (conflating the militia and the Interahamwe), 3.10 (same), 6.20 (same), and 6.40 (same) of the Kanyabashi Indictment.

¹⁴⁵⁸⁴ Paras. 4.2, 4.3, 6.32 of the Kanyabashi Indictment.

5639. A reading of the Indictment paragraphs pled in support of 6 (3) responsibility demonstrates that Kanyabashi also received sufficient notice that he was charged as a superior to soldiers, Interahamwe and civilians.¹⁴⁵⁸⁵

4.1.2.1.6 Ndayambaje

5640. Ndayambaje is charged with criminal responsibility as a superior in relation to various paragraphs of his Indictment.¹⁴⁵⁸⁶

5641. The Prosecution alleges that Ndayambaje is responsible as a superior over various groups of people, including soldiers, Interahamwe, gendarmes, conseillers, commune police and civilians.¹⁴⁵⁸⁷

5642. The Ndayambaje Defence submits that the Indictment was vague, and that essential information was lacking. This prevented investigations or an adequate rebuttal, and should result in an acquittal on all allegations under Article 6 (3) of the Statute.¹⁴⁵⁸⁸

5643. The Indictment alleges that Ndayambaje was bourgmestre of Muganza commune from 1983 to 1992, acted as a de facto bourgmestre starting on 19 April 1994, and was reappointed bourgmestre on 20 June 1994.¹⁴⁵⁸⁹ The Indictment alleges that as bourgmestre, Ndayambaje had "authority over the civil servants posted in his commune", and that Ndayambaje continued to exercise this authority even after 1992.¹⁴⁵⁹⁰

5644. Reading the Indictment as a whole, it is clear from the paragraphs pled in support of 6 (3) responsibility that Ndayambaje received sufficient notice that he was being charged as a superior to soldiers, Interahamwe, gendarmes and civilians, and to the conseillers and Muganza commune police.¹⁴⁵⁹¹

4.1.2.2 Superior-Subordinate Relationships

5645. For an accused to incur criminal responsibility under Article 6 (3) of the Statute, in addition to establishing beyond a reasonable doubt that his or her subordinate is criminally responsible, the following elements must be established beyond a reasonable doubt: (1) the ¹⁴⁵⁸⁷ The Prosecution also alleges that Ndayambaje was a superior over "subordinates in the commune office": Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 450-456, 466, 469, 477-479, 494-497, paras. 3-26, 59, 69, 100-102, 105, 149, 154, 160, 162, 165, 169; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 21 April 2009 pp. 37, 42; Prosecution Closing Rebuttal Argument, T. 30 April 2009 p. 55.

Given the context, the Chamber considers it clear that the "militiamen" referenced in this Indictment would have been understood as Interahamwe, and that Ndayambaje received sufficient notice of these alleged subordinates in this regard; see, e.g., Paras. 1.17 (conflating the militia and the Interahamwe), 3.10 (same), 6.20 (same), 6.44 (same) of the Ndayambaje Indictment.

existence of a superior-subordinate relationship and that the superior had effective control over this subordinate; (2) that the superior knew or had reason to know that his or her subordinate was about to commit a crime or had done so; and (3) that the superior failed to take necessary and reasonable measures to prevent or punish the commission of the crime by his or her subordinate. The accused need not have the same intent as the perpetrator of the criminal act.¹⁴⁵⁹²

5647. The threshold for a superior-subordinate relationship is established by showing that the accused had effective control over a subordinate at the time the offence was committed. Effective control requires that the accused had the material ability to prevent or punish criminal conduct. The superior must also have possessed power or authority over subordinates either de jure or de facto. The superior-subordinate relationship entails that the accused, by virtue of his or her position, is senior to the perpetrator in a formal or informal hierarchy.¹⁴⁵⁹⁴

5648. The Trial Chambers of the ICTY have established that a superior-subordinate relationship need not be of a permanent nature, but instead could arise on an ad hoc or temporary basis.¹⁴⁵⁹⁵ "To be held liable for the acts of [persons] who operated under [the Accused] on an ad hoc or temporary basis, it must be shown that, at the time when the acts charged in the Indictment were committed, these persons were under the effective control of that particular individual."¹⁴⁵⁹⁶

5649. A direct and individualised superior-subordinate relationship is not required for responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3). Effective control may descend from the superior to the subordinate culpable of the crime through intermediary subordinates.¹⁴⁵⁹⁷

5650. The Chamber recalls that although the possession of de jure powers may suggest a material ability to prevent or punish criminal acts of subordinates, it is not sufficient to prove

The Chamber notes that the Semanza Appeal Judgement uses similar language, albeit in the context of ordering pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute; see Semanza, Judgement (AC), para. 363 ("It should be recalled that authority creating the kind of superior-subordinate relationship envisaged under Article 6 (1) of the Statute for ordering may be informal or of a purely temporary nature.").

such ability. Even where de jure powers have been established, the Prosecution still bears the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused has effective control over his or her subordinates.¹⁴⁵⁹⁸

5651. Other factors indicative of effective control include the accused's position, the procedure for appointment, the actual tasks performed, his or her capacity to issue orders, the nature of such orders, and whether any orders were followed.¹⁴⁵⁹⁹ The Chamber recalls that although the authority to issue orders may be indicative of effective control over subordinates, it does not automatically establish such control.¹⁴⁶⁰⁰ Effective control can only be determined by looking at the evidence in its entirety on a case-by-case basis.¹⁴⁶⁰¹

4.1.3 Cumulative Convictions

5652. It is not appropriate to convict an accused on a particular count for the same conduct under both Article 6 (1) and Article 6 (3).¹⁴⁶⁰² Where the conduct of an accused constitutes a violation of both Article 6 (1) and Article 6 (3), the Chamber will enter a conviction on the basis of Article 6 (I) of the Statute alone and consider whether the superior position of the accused is an aggravating factor.¹⁴⁶⁰³ While a position of authority, even at a high level, does not automatically warrant a harsher sentence, it is the abuse of such authority which may serve as an aggravating factor in sentencing.¹⁴⁶⁰⁴

4.2.1 Conspiracy to Commit Genocide

4.2.1.1 Introduction

5653. All of the Indictments allege that the military, political leaders and civil servants conspired among themselves to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition so they could remain in power. The components of this plan included recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen and the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje elaborated, adhered to, and executed this plan.¹⁴⁶⁰⁵

5654. All of the Indictments also allege that the massacres and assaults were the result of a conspiracy adopted at the national as well as the local level by military and political leaders, including the Accused.¹⁴⁶⁰⁶ All but the Kanyabashi Indictment further provide that the Accused acted in concert with one another to participate in the planning, preparation, or execution of a common scheme, strategy, or plan, to commit the atrocities set forth in the Indictment.¹⁴⁶⁰⁷

4.2.1.2 Law

5655. Conspiracy to commit genocide is an agreement between two or more persons to commit the crime of genocide. The actus reus of the crime is the existence of such an agreement between individuals to commit genocide. As for mens rea, the individuals involved in the agreement must have the intent to destroy in whole or in part a national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such.¹⁴⁶⁰⁸

5656. Regarding the actus reus, the agreement can be proven by establishing the existence of planning meetings for the genocide, but it can also be inferred from circumstantial evidence. The concerted or coordinated action of a group of individuals can constitute evidence of an agreement. The qualifiers "concerted or coordinated" are important; it is not sufficient to show similarity of conduct or guilt by association. In certain cases, the existence of a conspiracy to commit genocide between individuals controlling institutions could be inferred from the interaction between these institutions. When based on circumstantial evidence, the finding of a conspiracy to commit genocide must be the only reasonable inference based on the totality of the evidence.¹⁴⁶⁰⁹

5657. The Ntahobali Defence submits, on behalf of Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, that the charge of conspiracy to commit genocide is not adequately pled in their Indictment and that the defects in this respect were not cured.¹⁴⁶¹⁰ It submits the Indictment paragraphs that are pled in support of conspiracy are inconsistent as to the identity of the co-conspirators, the applicable form of responsibility, and the time frame of the alleged conspiracy.¹⁴⁶¹¹

5658. The Nsabimana Defence contends that Paragraphs 5.1, 6.37 and 6.57 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment did not provide sufficient notice to enable it to investigate the allegation of conspiracy.¹⁴⁶¹² Paragraph 5.1 of the Ndayambaje Indictment fails to provide the essential elements of the alleged crime, while Paragraph 6.54 does not specify the strategy by which Tutsis were exterminated or the identities of individuals with whom Ndayambaje participated in that strategy.¹⁴⁶¹³ The Kanyabashi Defence submits that Paragraphs 5.1 and ¹⁴⁶¹³ Ndayambaje Closing Brief, para. 69.

6.62 of the Kanyabashi Indictment, which are pled in support of the conspiracy charge, are vague and imprecise.¹⁴⁶¹⁴

5659. The Prosecution submits that each of the Accused received notice of the paragraphs that would be relied on for the charge of conspiracy to commit genocide.¹⁴⁶¹⁵

5660. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 5.1 of each Indictment alleges that from late 1990 until July 1994 military personnel, political leaders, and civil servants conspired among themselves to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population. Each Indictment alleges the conspiracy was on the national as well as the local level,¹⁴⁶¹⁶ and that all of the Accused were part of this conspiracy.¹⁴⁶¹⁷ The Chamber therefore considers that the basic elements of the alleged conspiracy were set forth in Paragraph 5.1 of the Indictments.

5661. However, the Chamber notes there are a number of ambiguities with regard to the alleged conspiracy. Paragraph 5.1 states the Accused "elaborated, adhered to and executed" the plan. The Indictments later state the Accused planned, prepared, and executed the common scheme.¹⁴⁶¹⁸ This presupposes the existence of an agreement between certain individuals, but the Indictments do not identify the specific individuals who entered into this agreement. Nor do the Indictments state when and where the agreement was executed and when the conspiracy ended. For these reasons, the Chamber finds each of the Indictments to be defective in their charge of conspiracy.

5662. In its opening statement, the Prosecution further outlined the charge of conspiracy against the Accused. It referred to a plan that had been masterminded by the government to exterminate the Tutsi ethnic group with the assistance and participation of militiamen.¹⁴⁶¹⁹ It also asserted the Accused had clearly laid out functions and roles in this plan.¹⁴⁶²⁰ The Prosecution noted that the part of the plan regarding military authorities was lacking in this case.¹⁴⁶²¹ According to the Prosecution, the six Accused were civilian authorities who were all involved in the strategy in Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁶²²

¹⁴⁶¹⁹ Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 30-31.

¹⁴⁶²⁰ Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 31. It further stated that there was a Hutu plan to exterminate Tutsis through large-scale killings long before 1994: Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 47. This plan was evidenced by public speeches by extremists inciting hate, including one in November 1992 by the vice-chairman of the MRND and by radio broadcasts on Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTLM): Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 48-49. The plan was also evidenced by the distribution of weapons and military training of civilians from November 1993 to March 1994: Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 49-50.

¹⁴⁶²¹ Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 52.

¹⁴⁶²² Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 p. 59.

5663. As to the agreement, the Prosecution argued the Prime Minister and the Ministers of the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, dismissed Préfet Habyalimana and appointed Nsabimana in order to complete the killings that had started elsewhere. On 19 April 1994, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje listened to the speech of Sindikubwabo, understood it and expressed their desire to organise in Butare the killings that were occurring elsewhere based on the same strategy.¹⁴⁶²³

5664. The Chamber considers the Prosecution opening statement clarified the charge of conspiracy in the Indictments. The Prosecution alleges the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, masterminded a plan to kill Tutsis. The Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, removed the obstacle to killing in Butare, which was Préfet Habyalimana, and replaced him with Nsabimana in order to execute this plan. The agreement originated between the members of the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko. Therefore, the Chamber considers the Prosecution opening statement cured the defects in the Indictment with regard to the charge of conspiracy against Nyiramasuhuko.

5665. The Prosecution alleges Kanyabashi, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje were present at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in of Nsabimana. They understood the Interim Government's plan to kill Tutsis and agreed at that time to execute the killings in their respective areas of influence and therefore joined the conspiracy. Ntahobali identified venues where Tutsis would be killed and executed the killings.¹⁴⁶²⁴ Therefore, the Chamber considers the Prosecution opening statement also cured the defects in the Indictments with regard to the charge of conspiracy against each of the other Accused. They suffered no prejudice as a result.

4.2.1.4 Deliberations

4.2.1.4.1 Nyiramasuhuko

5666. The Prosecution submits that the meetings held by the Interim Government, the directives it issued, the words its members used, and its actions or lack of actions, lead to the only reasonable conclusion that there was an agreement to commit genocide through the perpetration of massacres of Tutsis and Hutu moderates.¹⁴⁶²⁵ It further submits that between April and July 1994 many people, including the six Accused, entered into an agreement to commit genocide of Tutsis in Butare. The Accused played a prominent role in implementing a plan that had been masterminded by the Interim Government.¹⁴⁶²⁶ The Prosecution submits there was an ongoing strategy designed to commit genocide which included the Interim

¹⁴⁶²³ Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 74, 75 ("Some of our accused were present at that [19 April 1994] ceremony. They include the minister, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, and the préfets and the bourgmestre, Joseph Kanyabashi."); ("The Prosecutor will show that the Butare authorities, and in the first place Sylvain Nsabimana and Joseph Kanyabashi, as well as the other bourgmestre, Elie Ndayambaje, for instance, and other bourgmestres who are not among the accused, understood the message of Sindikubwabo. But not only that, they did express their desire to organise in Butare the same activities that occurred in the other pr[é]fectures to comply with the demands of President Sindikubwabo's government; that is, to comply with their desires, and that is very important.").

Government's pacification programme, instructions to restore security, roadblocks, civil defence and the distribution of weapons to Hutus.¹⁴⁶²⁷

5667. The Nyiramasuhuko Defence submits that "pacification" was an attempt by the Interim Government to restore calm to the population and to stop the killings. The Interim Government knew that the population did not distinguish between the enemy RPF and the Tutsis within the country at the time of the hostilities, but it was unable to obtain information which would permit it to follow the development of the massacres.¹⁴⁶²⁸ It submits that the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, was without the necessary resources, but was looking for solutions to stop the killings at the same time as it defended itself against the RPF.¹⁴⁶²⁹

Cabinet Meetings (3.4)

5669. Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held during which ministers, including Nyiramasuhuko, were briefed on the situation vis-à-vis massacres of the civilian population. In particular, on 9 April 1994, Nyiramasuhuko was well aware that massacres of Tutsis were taking place.¹⁴⁶³⁰ During the Cabinet meeting of 21 April 1994, she again recognised the on-going nature of the massacres, stating in her diary: "Situation – Killings continue ... Rivers Mwongo and Nyabarongo strewn with bodies."¹⁴⁶³¹ Yet the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, did nothing to stop the massacres. Rather, the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, adopted directives and issued instructions which were designed to encourage the population to kill Tutsis. These included the Interim Government Directives of 27 April 1994 regarding the establishment of roadblocks which were used to identify and kill Tutsis.

Removal of Habyalimana and Swearing-in of Nsabimana (3.5)

5670. The Interim Government made the final decision to remove Habyalimana and replace him with Nsabimana at a 16-17 April 1994 Cabinet meeting. Nyiramasuhuko admits that she took part in this meeting and that the decision to remove Préfet Habyalimana was taken there.¹⁴⁶³² For these reasons, the Chamber found that Nyiramasuhuko, as a member of the Interim Government, participated in the decision to remove Préfet Habyalimana from office.

5671. Furthermore, the speeches delivered by Sindikubwabo and Kambanda at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and contained coded language that was understood by the attendees and the public. In particular, the term "enemy," as used in their speeches meant Tutsis and the word "work" (gukora) meant to kill Tutsis.

5672. At this time, Nyiramasuhuko was a member of the Interim Government. Her presence at the ceremony and her failure to dissociate herself from the statements made by the President effectively endorsed the President's inflammatory statements and the directives and instructions to the population contained therein.

5673. Finally, the removal of Préfet Habyalimana and the appointment of Nsabimana as préfet, were two factors that coincided with the commencement of widespread killings and large-scale massacres throughout Butare préfecture in the wake of these events, including in the large number of communes that had resisted such massacres until that time. The speeches of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda, endorsed by Nyiramasuhuko, along with the removal of Préfet Habyalimana and appointment of Nsabimana, contributed significantly in triggering the mass killings in Butare préfecture.

Roadblocks (3.4; 3.7.9)

5674. On 27 April 1994, Prime Minister Kambanda issued a Directive on behalf of the Interim Government, in which he called for commune, secteur and cellule authorities to set up roadblocks "in order to prevent the enemy from infiltrating".¹⁴⁶³³ The Chamber has found that language such as this was used to refer to Tutsis.

5675. In late April or May 1994, in response to encouragement from government leaders such as bourgmestres, conseillers de secteur and responsables de cellule, civilians started to mount and man roadblocks in Butare préfecture. Tutsis were targeted and killed at these roadblocks.

Conclusion

5676. From 9 April until 14 July 1994, and in particular between 9 April and 19 April 1994, Nyiramasuhuko agreed with other members of the Interim Government to issue directives to the population to encourage the population to hunt down and kill Tutsis. There was no distinction between the RPF invading force and Tutsis within the country, as the terms "enemy" and "accomplices" encompassed both groups. On 16 or 17 April 1994, Nyiramasuhuko agreed with the other members of the Interim Government to remove Habyalimana who had posed an obstacle to the killing of Tutsis and chose to replace him with Nsabimana. On 19 April 1994, she attended the swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana, lending further support to the Interim Government's decision. The Interim President and the Prime Minister used coded language to encourage the killing of Tutsis in Butare. Nyiramasuhuko listened to the inflammatory speeches of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda, and effectively endorsed these speeches. These events coincided with the commencement of large-scale killings in Butare préfecture.

5677. Furthermore, the Interim Government, including Nyiramasuhuko, issued a Directive on 27 April 1994, encouraging the population to mount and man roadblocks. The Interim Government's intent in issuing this Directive was to encourage the population to kill Tutsis. In fact, the roadblocks mounted throughout Butare préfecture were used to identify and kill ¹⁴⁶³³ Prosecution Exhibit 118B (Prime Minister Kambanda's instructions to restore security in the country, 27 April 1994) pp. 2-3.

Tutsis throughout Butare préfecture. This further evidences a prior-existing agreement among the members of the Interim Government to organise the killing of Tutsis in Butare préfecture.

5678. Considering all of these elements, the only reasonable conclusion is that Nyiramasuhuko entered into an agreement with members of the Interim Government on or after 9 April 1994 to kill Tutsis within Butare préfecture with the intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi ethnic group. As a member of the Interim Government, Nyiramasuhuko participated in many of the Cabinet meetings at which the massacre of Tutsis was discussed, and took part in the decisions which triggered the onslaught of massacres in Butare préfecture. There can be no other inference from these facts than that Nyiramasuhuko conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide against the Tutsis of Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁶³⁴

4.2.1.4.2 Ntahobali

5679. The Prosecution submits it can be inferred from the depth and extent of his participation in the killing campaign, combined with evidence that he worked in conjunction with his mother, Nteziryayo and national Interahamwe leaders, that Ntahobali agreed to participate in an effort to consolidate and strengthen the political power of the Interim Government by eliminating the Tutsi ethnic group.¹⁴⁶³⁵

5680. In its closing argument, the Prosecution submits that Ntahobali acted in concert with his mother. In addition, it submits that Ntahobali conspired with Nsabimana and Nteziryayo to execute a plan to destroy the Tutsis of Rwanda.¹⁴⁶³⁶ It later suggested the agreement was between "Ntahobali and one or more of the accused persons and/or other persons."¹⁴⁶³⁷ It submits the methodical and systematic nature of the attacks supports the conclusion that they were perpetrated according to a pre-existing plan or agreement.¹⁴⁶³⁸

5681. The Ntahobali Defence submits the Prosecution did not demonstrate the alleged conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsis. The only evidence regarding this allegation came in the form of statements and opinions by those who conceived this theory, namely Prosecution Expert Witnesses Des Forges and Guichaoua. The Ntahobali Defence submits that these witnesses were ¹⁴⁶³⁴ The Chamber notes that there appears to be a split of authority regarding whether convictions may be entered simultaneously for conspiracy to commit genocide and for genocide; see Gatete, Judgement (TC), paras. 654-662 (addressing this split and, after considering that the scenario was similar to that faced by the Trial Chamber in Popović et al., following the approach taken in that case); Popović et al., Judgement (TC), paras. 2117-2127 (discussing this split and concluding that it would be redundant to enter a conviction for conspiracy to commit genocide and for genocide, which had been committed through a joint criminal enterprise). The Chamber considers, however, that it does not need to address this issue because the conduct that serves as the basis for conspiracy to commit genocide (entering into an agreement with members of the Interim Government on or after 9 April 1994) is different from that which is addressed below as the basis for genocide (engaging in acts or omissions on or after 19 April 1994, generally with persons who were not members of the Interim Government). In any event, the Chamber notes its view that, because joint criminal enterprise does not feature as a form of commission in this case, conspiracy to commit genocide and genocide each contain a materially distinct element, and thus a conviction could be entertained on both charges under the present circumstances.

biased and that evidence of conspiracy cannot be based solely on the evidence of expert witnesses unless it is corroborated by other evidence, whether factual or documentary.¹⁴⁶³⁹

5682. The Chamber notes the apparent disconnect between the Prosecution's opening statement and closing argument. In its opening statement, the Prosecution asserted Ntahobali participated in a conspiracy with the other Accused by identifying venues where Tutsis would be sorted out. In its closing statement, the Prosecution was not clear as to the identity of Ntahobali's co-conspirators. It stated he conspired with his mother, then argued that he conspired with Nteziryayo and Nsabimana, before finally settling on "one or more of the accused and/or other persons." Although there was considerable evidence that Ntahobali participated in raping and killing Tutsis from April to July 1994, e.g. at the Butare préfecture office, there was no credible evidence that he participated in planning meetings, in particular with the co-Accused in this case. Further, it has not been established that, in furtherance of a plan, he identified locations where Tutsis should be killed.

5683. Ntahobali did participate in the attacks at the BPO and these attacks were methodical. Further, Ntahobali co-perpetrated these attacks at the BPO with Nyiramasuhuko, who was a member of the Interim Government which formulated a conspiracy to kill Tutsis in Butare préfecture. However, there was no clear-cut evidence that Ntahobali acceded to Nyiramasuhuko's agreement with the Interim Government. The only evidence that could lead to an inference that Ntahobali agreed to commit genocide was his participation in acts of genocide. However, the co-perpetration of genocide does not equate to a conspiracy to commit genocide. Without some evidence pointing to Ntahobali's awareness of, and accession to, the Interim Government's conspiracy, the inference that Ntahobali joined a pre-existing plan is not the only reasonable one from the evidence.

5684. The Prosecution must be held to the case it formulated, and the facts for which the Ntahobali Defence had notice, prior to trial.¹⁴⁶⁴⁰ The Prosecution did not allege prior to trial that the proof of Ntahobali's participation in the conspiracy would be based upon his participation in the attacks at the BPO. In any event, the Chamber considers there is no clear evidence to convict Ntahobali for conspiring with Nyiramasuhuko to commit the acts of genocide at the BPO.

5685. Considering the foregoing, as well as the evidence as a whole, the Chamber finds that it was not proven that Ntahobali joined the Interim Government's conspiracy to commit genocide.

4.2.1.4.3 Nsabimana

5686. The Prosecution submits that Nsabimana knew of the genocidal plan before April 1994 and helped carry out the plan by accepting the position of préfet. It argues Nsabimana was aware of a conspiracy to kill Tutsis and agreed to join it on 19 April 1994 when he accepted the appointment as préfet of Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁶⁴¹

5687. The Prosecution submits Nsabimana played a role in the conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsi population. The evidence cited by the Prosecution to support this submission includes that Nsabimana convened and attended meetings both at the préfecture office and in the communes, assisted the civil defence effort, supplied fuel to help transport youths, distributed weapons to the communes, encouraged youths to join the army, and encouraged others to join in the genocidal effort to kill the Tutsis. He was one of the persons who gave effect to the plan. By convening and attending meetings regularly, he oversaw the plan to exterminate the Tutsis.¹⁴⁶⁴²

5688. The Nsabimana Defence submits that the attacks which occurred during the events were not planned, as alleged by the Prosecution. The Defence asserts that everyone made himself a chief in his own area and dictated his own law.¹⁴⁶⁴³ It submits that the 27 April 1994 Directive issued by Nsabimana was a message to the inhabitants of Ngoma commune aimed at controlling the massacres. It clearly indicates that the population was prohibited from carrying out massacres and looting. Even if it is accepted that "accomplices" were Tutsis, the messages were intended to stem assaults on persons of the Tutsi ethnic group and to prevent members of the population from assaulting Tutsis.¹⁴⁶⁴⁴

Swearing-in of Nsabimana (3.5)

5690. As noted above, Sindikubwabo and Kambanda's speeches on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and encouraged the population to kill Tutsis. The Chamber found that Nsabimana was aware of a plan to kill Tutsis when he accepted the post of préfet.

20 April 1994 Meeting (3.6.2)

5691. The 20 April meeting primarily dealt with issues of safety, security, displaced persons, and measures to be taken in order to keep the situation under control. It was not established that the furtherance of the massacres was discussed. Furthermore, it was not proven that after the 20 April meeting the bourgmestres returned to their communes and ordered to kill, while those who refused to do so were dismissed. There was no established link between the massacres and this meeting. It was not established that the killings in Butare continued because Nsabimana failed to act during the 20 April meeting.

¹⁴⁶⁴³ Nsabimana Closing Argument, T. 24 April 2009 p. 10.

¹⁴⁶⁴⁴ Nsabimana Closing Brief, paras. 727-766.

26-28 April Meetings (3.6.14)

5692. While both Nsabimana and Prime Minister Kambanda issued a Directive on 27 April 1994,¹⁴⁶⁴⁵ there is insufficient evidence to find a relationship between the two Directives. It was not established that the purpose of Nsabimana's message to the people of Butare on 27 April 1994 was to implement the Interim Government's national policy on pacification.

Butare Préfecture Office (3.6.20)

5693. Nsabimana was presented with requests for assistance from the refugees and was aware that they were being abducted and killed at the BPO at night. He only posted soldiers to the BPO around 5-15 June 1994, long after the attacks started in May 1994.

Conclusion

5694. The Chamber notes that several elements cited by the Prosecution in support of the conspiracy charge against Nsabimana were not proven beyond a reasonable doubt. It was not proven that Nsabimana distributed fuel to bourgmestres to assist in the killing of Tutsis. It was not proven that Nsabimana assisted in the training of civilians or militiamen or that he distributed weapons to them. Likewise, there was insufficient evidence that Nsabimana encouraged the youth to join the army. These findings undercut the assertion that Nsabimana had a significant role in civil defence.

5695. The Prosecution's case therefore relies on Nsabimana's acceptance of the post of préfet on 19 April 1994 and his failure to prevent massacres throughout Butare during his tenure as préfet.

5696. It is not clear, however, that Nsabimana, by accepting the appointment as préfet, intended to join the conspiracy to kill Tutsis. In his acceptance speech, Nsabimana merely thanked the people who showed that they had confidence in him and called the bourgmestres and heads of department to attend a meeting which was held the following day on 20 April 1994.¹⁴⁶⁴⁶ Furthermore, when Nsabimana spoke was not clear from the evidence. Therefore, Nsabimana's address may not have been in direct response to either Sindikubwabo's or Kambanda's statements. It was not proven that Nsabimana discussed the furtherance of massacres at the 20 April 1994 meeting or encouraged bourgmestres to kill. Although the 27 April 1994 Interim Government Directive was issued with an intent to extend the killings, it was not proven that Nsabimana was aware of this Directive when he issued his own Directive of 27 April 1994. It was also not proven that Nsabimana sought to implement the Interim Government's pacification campaign in issuing his own Directive.

5697. The Chamber notes there are a number of other reasonable inferences that might be drawn from Nsabimana accepting the post of préfet and participating in the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony at which Kambanda and Sindikubwabo gave inflammatory speeches. Nsabimana may have accepted the post of préfet out of self-preservation, or for the power it would have given him to protect his own family, and potentially to facilitate their departure from Rwanda. He may also have accepted the position, as he suggested, to prevent a member of the MRND from accepting the post. In short, there is insufficient evidence to conclude that Nsabimana joined an on-going conspiracy to kill Tutsis. Therefore, Nsabimana's actions do not constitute the crime of conspiracy to commit genocide.

4.2.1.4.4 Nteziryayo

5698. The Prosecution submits Nteziryayo's role in the conspiracy was to assist in the planning of the genocide by attending meetings during which the genocidal machinery was fine-tuned, take responsibility for the civil self-defence programme in Butare, train youths in the manipulation of weapons, arm those youths with weapons, encourage the youths to join the army, and encourage others to join in the genocidal effort to kill the Tutsis.¹⁴⁶⁴⁷

5699. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution failed to prove that despite Colonel Simba's evident position as the de jure head of civil defence in Butare and Gikongoro préfectures, Nteziryayo was the de facto head of civil defence in Butare.¹⁴⁶⁴⁸ The Nteziryayo Defence submits that the Prosecution witnesses who testified as to Nteziryayo's authority over civil defence, and to his leadership role in training and the distribution of weapons, were not credible.¹⁴⁶⁴⁹

5700. The Chamber recalls the following factual findings which are the most relevant to the conspiracy charge against Nteziryayo.

Training and Distribution of Weapons (3.7.2; 3.7.6.4)

5701. Nteziryayo trained civilians at Kamena Stadium in May 1994 and distributed weapons at the stadium in early June 1994.

Border Meetings (3.6.34)

5702. Nteziryayo made speeches during the swearing-in ceremony of the Ntyazo bourgmestre on 22 May 1994, at a meeting held in Muganza commune on 23 May 1994 and at meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi communes around mid-June 1994. The Chamber found that, during the Muyaga and Kibayi commune meetings, Nteziryayo incited people to kill Tutsis.

Evacuation of Orphans (3.6.45)

5703. Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. He selected about 30 individuals, whom he believed to be Tutsi adults and forced them to remain in Rwanda. He and Ntahobali segregated and prevented the 30 people from crossing the border.

¹⁴⁶⁴⁹ Nteziryayo Closing Argument, T. 27 April 2009 pp. 43-45, 51, 60.

Ndayambaje's Swearing-in (3.6.4)

5704. At Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, Nteziryayo urged the population to "sweep the dirt" and instructed that those hiding Tutsis who refused to hand them over should be killed. Searches for Tutsis took place and killings followed the meeting.

Civil Defence (3.7.10)

5705. The evidence as a whole points to Nteziryayo's involvement in a programme to educate the population about a plan to identify Tutsis, to train and arm civilians and to locate infiltrators and "accomplices". Nteziryayo had a leadership role in the civil defence programme in Butare préfecture.

Conclusion

5706. The Indictment did not identify a particular moment when Nteziryayo joined a conspiracy to kill Tutsis. It notes that Nteziryayo came to Butare préfecture in April 1994 to take up his new post. However, it did not assert that taking up this new post constitutes agreeing to commit genocide.

5707. The Prosecution relies on Nteziryayo's leadership role in civil defence to show concerted and coordinated action which would support an inference that Nteziryayo joined the Interim Government's conspiracy to commit genocide in Butare préfecture. However, there was no clear-cut evidence that Nteziryayo joined the Interim Government's conspiracy. Although Nteziryayo participated in activities that were set forth in the Interim Government's directives, there was no credible evidence that Nteziryayo met with members of the Interim Government to discuss the killing of Tutsis or the methods by which to complete them. It was not shown that he was present at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana. Furthermore, there was evidence to suggest Nteziryayo was in Kigali until 15 April 1994¹⁴⁶⁵⁰ and would not have had any opportunity to meet with members of the Interim Government in Butare préfecture or in Murambi, Gitarama préfecture during this time period.

5708. Based on the evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that he must have agreed to join the Interim Government's conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsis in Butare préfecture. Because the allegation that Nteziryayo joined the conspiracy is not the only reasonable inference from the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established this crime beyond a reasonable doubt.

4.2.1.4.5 Kanyabashi

5709. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi's role in the conspiracy was to attend meetings, give instructions to clear the bush while being fully cognisant that "clearing the bush" was in fact a clarion call to kill any Tutsis who were in hiding, use his position and power to incite the population to join in the killings, and provide administration support for the training and arming of civilians in the context of the genocide.¹⁴⁶⁵¹

5710. The Kanyabashi Defence submits that there was no credible evidence as to Kanyabashi's involvement in a conspiracy to commit genocide.¹⁴⁶⁵² It submits that Kanyabashi's name is not found in the organising documents of civil defence and he was not involved in its organisation.¹⁴⁶⁵³ Kanyabashi did not have any semblance of control over what was happening in his commune.¹⁴⁶⁵⁴ His involvement with civil defence measures was minimal. Des Forges and Guichaoua testified as to the extent to which some may have taken advantage of the civil defence mechanism to kill Tutsis, but gave no concrete indication of any involvement of Kanyabashi in this "criminal" aspect of civil defence.¹⁴⁶⁵⁵

Swearing-in of Nsabimana (3.5)

5712. As noted above, Sindikubwabo's and Kambanda's speeches on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and encouraged the population to kill Tutsis. The presence of Kanyabashi at the ceremony and his failure to dissociate himself from the statements made by the President constituted tacit approval of the President's inflammatory statements and the directives and instructions to the population contained therein.

5713. More importantly, Kanyabashi's speech was in support of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda, and contained a commitment to execute the directives and instructions previously announced by the President and Prime Minister.

Training and Distribution of Weapons (3.7.1; 3.7.5)

5714. The Chamber found that Kanyabashi distributed weapons to conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994. The Chamber also found that Kanyabashi, in his capacity as bourgmestre, was responsible for recruiting men for civil defence training in Ngoma commune in May and June 1994. Lastly, the Chamber also found that firearms were distributed by soldiers at Kamena Stadium at end of May and/or early June 1994, but it was not proven that Kanyabashi was aware of these distributions.

Matyazo Clinic (3.6.16)

5715. In late April 1994, and following an initial attack by soldiers, Kanyabashi went to Matyazo clinic and ordered soldiers to open fire on the Tutsis who were sheltering inside.

¹⁴⁶⁵⁵ Kanyabashi Closing Brief, para. 551.

Megaphone Announcements (3.6.35)

5716. Around late May 1994, Kanyabashi drove through Butare town with a megaphone and instructed the population to search for the enemy among them. Around mid-June 1994, Kanyabashi used a megaphone to tell the population to clear bushes along the road in order to remove potential hiding places for the Inkotanyi, to flush out people who were hiding in the bushes, and to kill those found there, including children, old men, and women. Following Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements in mid-May 1994 and in June 1994, searches were conducted for Tutsis, and consequently, more Tutsis were killed.

Conclusion

5717. The key moment with regard to Kanyabashi's involvement in the Interim Government's conspiracy was his response to the inflammatory speeches of Sindikubwabo and Kambanda at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony. The Chamber has found that Kanyabashi's speech supported the Interim President and the Prime Minister and committed him to executing the directives and instructions announced by them. However, it was not clear that Kanyabashi intended to join the Interim Government's conspiracy to kill Tutsis. He may have felt pressure to voice support for the Government in order to ensure his own survival, or he may have made this speech in the hope of retaining his position as bourgmestre in order to protect his family.

5718. Kanyabashi made announcements over the megaphone encouraging the population to clear the bush and kill Tutsis. He was also responsible for recruiting men to the civil defence programme. However neither of these findings leads inevitably to the conclusion that Kanyabashi must have entered into an agreement with the Interim Government to kill Tutsis. Because the allegation that Kanyabashi joined the conspiracy is not the only reasonable inference from the evidence, and in the absence of additional evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide.

4.2.1.4.6 Ndayambaje

5719. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje's role in the conspiracy was to gather support for the genocide from 1993 and the early months of 1994, prepare people for the upcoming massacres, incite the population to commit killings, provide them with weapons, and order and supervise the killing of Tutsis.¹⁴⁶⁵⁶

5720. The Ndayambaje Defence submits the Prosecution failed to adduce any evidence as to the existence of a plan to kill Tutsis. It did not establish that Ndayambaje knew the military personnel, members of the Interim Government, and the other personalities cited. Lastly, there was no evidence to prove that there were meetings or encounters with these persons with the aim of preparing or executing a plan.¹⁴⁶⁵⁷

¹⁴⁶⁵⁶ Prosecution Closing Brief, p. 457, paras. 28-29.

¹⁴⁶⁵⁷ Ndayambaje Closing Brief, para. 985.

Swearing-in Ceremony of Nsabimana (3.5)

5722. As noted above, the Chamber has found that Sindikubwabo's and Kambanda's speeches on 19 April 1994 were inflammatory and encouraged the population to kill Tutsis. It was not proven that Ndayambaje was present at the swearing-in ceremony.

Mugombwa Church (3.6.4), Kabuye Hill (3.6.5) and Ndayambaje's Swearing-in (3.6.43)

5723. The Chamber recalls that Ndayambaje participated in the massacres at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill and that he made inciting statements at his swearing-in ceremony. In particular, a massacre took place at Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 and Ndayambaje was present at the church before the attacks. It further found that Ndayambaje transported attackers to Kabuye Hill, distributed weapons to the attackers and was present during the attacks against Tutsis at Kabuye Hill and that thousands were killed.

Conclusion

5724. In its opening statement, the Prosecution argued that Ndayambaje joined the conspiracy to kill Tutsis at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana by expressing a desire to organise in Butare the killings that were occurring elsewhere based on the same strategy.¹⁴⁶⁵⁸ The Chamber notes that Ndayambaje's presence at this ceremony was not established by the Prosecution. Therefore, it did not prove that Ndayambaje joined the Interim Government conspiracy at the 19 April 1994 meeting.

5725. In its closing brief, the Prosecution instead relies, inter alia, on various allegations, such as that Ndayambaje trained civilians, incited the population to commit killings, and armed militia groups.¹⁴⁶⁵⁹ In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the Prosecution did not establish that Ndayambaje trained militiamen. Therefore, this aspect of the Prosecution's case in support of the charge of conspiracy against Ndayambaje fails.

5726. The Chamber also notes that there was no direct evidentiary link between Ndayambaje's actions at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill, and the Interim Government's agreement to commit genocide. There are other reasonable inferences other than an inference that he joined the government conspiracy. He may have initiated these killings of his own accord. Because the allegation that Ndayambaje joined the conspiracy is not the only reasonable inference from the evidence, and in the absence of additional evidence, the ¹⁴⁶⁵⁸ Prosecution Opening Statement, T. 12 June 2001 pp. 74, 75 ("Some of our accused were present at that [19 April 1994] ceremony. They include the minister, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, and the prefets and the bourgmestre, Joseph Kanyabashi."); ("The Prosecutor will show that the Butare authorities, and in the first place Sylvain Nsabimana and Joseph Kanyabashi, as well as the other bourgmestre, Elie Ndayambaje, for instance, and other bourgmestres who are not among the accused, understood the message of Sindikubwabo. But not only that, they did express their desire to organise in Butare the same activities that occurred in the other pr[é]fectures to comply with the demands of President Sindikubwabo's government; that is, to comply with their desires, and that is very important.").

¹⁴⁶⁵⁹ Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 456-469, paras. 26-70.

Chamber cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide.

4.2.1.5 Conclusion

5727. In sum, the Chamber finds the only reasonable inference based on the evidence of Nyiramasuhuko's participation in Cabinet meetings and decisions of the Interim Government is that she conspired with the Interim Government to commit genocide against the Tutsi population in Butare préfecture between 9 April 1994 and 14 July 1994. The Chamber therefore finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of committing conspiracy to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 2 (3)(b) of the Statute.

5728. As to Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, the Chamber finds that there are reasonable inferences other than the inference that they joined an Interim Government conspiracy to commit genocide against the Tutsi population in Butare préfecture. The Chamber therefore acquits them of this charge.

4.2.2.1 Introduction

5729. The Accused are charged with genocide under Article 2 (3)(a) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 2 of each Indictment.

4.2.2.2 Law

5730. A person commits the crime of genocide if he or she commits one of the acts enumerated in Article 2 (2) of the Statute with the specific intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such. The existence of a personal motive does not preclude the perpetrator from also having the specific intent to commit genocide.¹⁴⁶⁶⁰

5731. The acts enumerated in Article 2 (2) include “[k]illing members of the group”, and “[c]ausing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group”. For this latter category to support a conviction for genocide, the bodily or mental harm inflicted on members of a group must be of such a serious nature as to threaten its destruction in whole or in part.¹⁴⁶⁶¹ The Appeals Chamber has described rape as a “quintessential” example of serious bodily harm,¹⁴⁶⁶² and has stated that serious mental harm includes “more than a minor or temporary impairment of mental faculties such as the infliction of strong fear or terror, intimidation or threat”.¹⁴⁶⁶³

¹⁴⁶⁶⁰ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 175; Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 492; Gacumbitsi, Judgement (AC), para. 39; Ntakirutimana & Ntakirutimana, Judgement (AC), para. 304; Niyitegeka, Judgement (AC), paras. 52-53; Krnjelac, Judgement (AC), para. 102; Jelisić, Judgement (AC), para. 49; Kayishema & Ruzindana, Judgement (AC), para. 161.

¹⁴⁶⁶¹ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46.

¹⁴⁶⁶² Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46; see also Kunarac et al., Judgement (AC), para. 150 (stating, in its discussion of torture, that “[s]exual violence necessarily gives rise to severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental”); Akayesu, Judgement (TC), para. 731 (with regard to “rape and sexual violence, the Chamber wishes to underscore ... [that] they constitute genocide in the same way as any other act as long as they were committed with the specific intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a particular group, targeted as such. Indeed, rape and sexual violence certainly constitute infliction of serious bodily and mental harm on the victims”).

¹⁴⁶⁶³ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46.

The Appeals Chamber has also noted that “nearly all convictions for the causing of serious bodily or mental harm involve rapes or killings”.¹⁴⁶⁶⁴

5732. The jurisprudence accepts that, in most cases, genocidal intent will be proved by circumstantial evidence. Such intent may be inferred from a number of facts and circumstances, including the general context, the perpetration of other culpable acts systematically directed against the same group, the scale of the atrocities committed, the systematic targeting of victims on account of their membership of a particular group, or the repetition of destructive and discriminatory acts. Evidence of limited and selective assistance towards a few individuals does not generally preclude a reasonable finding of the requisite intent to commit genocide. When based on circumstantial evidence, any finding that the accused had genocidal intent must be the only reasonable inference from the totality of the evidence.¹⁴⁶⁶⁵

4.2.2.3.1 Cabinet Meetings, 9 April – 14 July 1994

5733. Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held by the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member. The Interim Government adopted directives and issued instructions during these meetings, with the intention of encouraging the population to hunt down and take action against Tutsis (3.4.12).

5734. The Chamber, however, has not found what role, if any, Nyiramasuhuko played at these Cabinet meetings. It has not been established, for instance, that Nyiramasuhuko was assigned responsibility for “pacification” in Butare (3.4.12).

5735. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Nyiramasuhuko bears criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute in relation to these Cabinet meetings.

4.2.2.3.2 Removal of Préfet Habyalimana and Swearing-in Ceremony of Préfet Nsabimana, 17-19 April 1994

Nyiramasuhuko

5736. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko, as a member of the Interim Government, participated in the decision to remove Préfet Habyalimana from office for reasons other than maintaining peace (3.5.4.2). Habyalimana was a major force in limiting killings within Butare préfecture, and his removal was one of the events that triggered the start of mass-killings in Butare (3.5.5).

5737. On 19 April 1994, Nsabimana was sworn in as préfet. Due to the political context, the existence of war, and the attendance of high-profile government officials, this was a very important occasion. At the time of this ceremony, the people of Butare were looking for guidance from the Interim Government (3.5.4.4).

5738. The Chamber has found that the speeches made at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony by Prime Minister Kambanda and President Sindikubwabo were inflammatory and called on the audience and the public to identify and kill Tutsis and their accomplices (3.5.4.4; 3.5.4.5).

5739. The Chamber further found that the presence of Nyiramasuhuko, Nsabimana and Kanyabashi at the ceremony, and their failure to dissociate themselves from the statements made by the Prime Minister and President, constituted tacit approval of these inflammatory statements and the directives and instructions to the population contained therein (3.5.4.8; 3.5.4.9; 3.5.4.10; 3.5.4.11).

5740. In addition, the Chamber has found that Kanyabashi's speech was in support of Kambanda and Sindikubwabo, and contained a commitment to execute the directives and instructions as set forth in the speeches of Kambanda and Sindikubwabo (3.5.4.8).

5741. Finally, the Chamber has found that widespread killings of Tutsis did not occur in Butare préfecture prior to 18 or 19 April 1994. The Chamber has found that the inflammatory nature of the speeches delivered at the swearing-in ceremony on 19 April 1994 contributed to, and endorsed, the instigation of widespread killings and large-scale massacres in Butare préfecture (3.5.4.12; 3.5.5).

5742. The Chamber recalls its finding that, after the swearing-in ceremony, massacres and attacks took place at various locations in Butare, including Mugombwa Church (3.6.4.4), Kabuye Hill (3.6.5.4), Kabakobwa Hill (3.6.8.4) and Matyazo Clinic (3.6.16.4).

Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana – Article 6 (1) Responsibility

5743. The Prosecution has charged Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana with genocide pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute in relation to this ceremony.

5744. The Chamber has made numerous findings of fact in relation to these events. The Chamber does not consider these facts to be sufficient to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko's or Nsabimana's actions constituted the planning, instigating, ordering, or committing of genocide.

5745. The Chamber will assess below whether Nyiramasuhuko's or Nsabimana's actions constitute the aiding and abetting of genocide.

5746. As described above, the Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana tacitly approved of Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches. As set out above, Nyiramasuhuko's participation in the Interim Government's conspiracy was further evidenced, inter alia, by her presence at the ceremony, and her effective endorsement of the message of the President and the Prime Minister (4.2.1.4.1). However, although Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches contributed to the instigation of widespread killings and large-scale massacres in Butare préfecture, the Chamber recalls that approval may constitute aiding and abetting of a crime such as genocide only if the Prosecution proves that the Accused's conduct substantially contributed to a crime (4.1.1). Here, the Prosecution has adduced insufficient evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko's and Nsabimana's conduct contributed to later crimes in a substantial manner.

5747. Accordingly, the Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko and Nsabimana's tacit approval of the speeches substantially contributed to the killings that followed. The Chamber therefore does not consider it proven that they are responsible for aiding and abetting genocide in relation to these events. The Chamber notes, however, that it will consider Nyiramasuhuko's and Nsabimana's conduct elsewhere in determining whether they possessed the requisite intent for genocide.

Nsabimana – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5748. The Prosecution also charges Nsabimana with superior responsibility in relation to his swearing-in ceremony.¹⁴⁶⁶⁶ In particular, Paragraph 6.22 of his Indictment appears to allege that, after Nsabimana became préfet, Kanyabashi spoke in support of Sindikubwabo's call to begin the massacres. This paragraph identifies Kanyabashi as a bourgmestre.¹⁴⁶⁶⁷

5749. It is clear that Nsabimana, under Rwandan law and in his capacity as préfet, was granted authority over bourgmestres in Butare préfecture,¹⁴⁶⁶⁸ including Kanyabashi. When préfet, Nsabimana thus held de jure authority over Kanyabashi. The Chamber recalls that it has not made a finding as to whether Nsabimana became préfet before or after Kanyabashi's speech (3.5.4). The Chamber is therefore unable to conclude that Nsabimana exercised de jure authority over Kanyabashi at the time of his speech.

5750. In any event, there is also insufficient evidence that might establish that Nsabimana exercised de facto authority or effective control over Kanyabashi when he spoke on 19 April 1994.

5751. The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not established a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and Kanyabashi at the time of Kanyabashi's speech on 19 April 1994. Because this alleged superior relationship has not been established, the Chamber finds that Nsabimana is not responsible as a superior for the events at his swearing-in ceremony.

Kanyabashi

5752. After Kambanda and Sindikubwabo spoke on 19 April 1994 and asked the audience to search for and kill Tutsis, Kanyabashi gave his own speech in which he supported their message and committed to carrying out their instructions.

¹⁴⁶⁶⁶ Paras. 6.21 and 6.22 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (pled in support of all counts, except direct and public incitement to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute).

5753. The Chamber has also found that widespread killings of Tutsis did not occur in Butare préfecture prior to 18 or 19 April 1994. After the ceremony at which Kanyabashi spoke on 19 April 1994, large-scale massacres took place in Butare that constituted genocide (see, e.g., 4.2.2.3.3; 4.2.2.3.4; 4.2.2.3.6). The Chamber has found that the inflammatory nature of the speeches contributed to these genocidal killings. While the Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches were inflammatory, the Chamber has not found that Kanyabashi's speech was inflammatory. In light of these findings and the evidence in its totality, the Chamber does not find that Kanyabashi's speech substantially contributed to the genocide that followed.

4.2.2.3.3 Mugombwa Church Massacres, 20-21 April 1994

5754. The Chamber has found it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on the morning of 20 April 1994 Ndayambaje spoke with various community leaders at Bishya, after which they told members of the population that Ndayambaje was ordering all those present in Bishya to go to Mugombwa Church. At about noon that day Ndayambaje came to Mugombwa Church. Ndayambaje showed the refugees in the church a picture of President Habyarimana and told them that those in the church were going to be killed because they were accomplices of the Inkotanyi who had killed the President. Ndayambaje also spoke to a group of armed people posted outside the church. He told them that since the people in the church were now gathered together, their work would no longer be very difficult. He told the attackers that some of them should stay and watch those in the church and others should go and look for those that were hiding in ditches and in bushes. After this, many people left and some stayed behind at the church. Ndayambaje remained there for about 15 minutes and left. At around 4.00 p.m., the armed people launched an attack against the Tutsis sheltering in the church (3.6.4.4).

5755. The following morning, 21 April 1994, Ndayambaje came back at around 10.00 a.m. He addressed the crowd outside the church, stating that he could see they were interested in the Tutsis' cows and asking them what they would pay if the Tutsi owners of the cattle escaped. He then left, but returned to the church for a second time around 10.30 a.m. At about 3.00 p.m., people outside the church threw grenades at the church and set it on fire. Refugees escaping the church were attacked and killed in the courtyard. The attacks on the Mugombwa Church during the two days resulted in the death of hundreds, if not thousands, of Tutsis who sought refuge there (3.6.4.4).

Ndayambaje – Article 6 (1) Responsibility

5757. In the circumstances, the Chamber is convinced that the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that Ndayambaje came to Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 to encourage the civilians in their attacks, and in this way substantially contributed to the perpetration of the attacks on the Tutsi refugees at Mugombwa Church. The Chamber notes that Ndayambaje exercised considerable moral authority over the population in Muganza commune at the time. As such, the Chamber considers that Ndayambaje's presence at Mugombwa Church before each attack encouraged the attacks, and the Chamber is satisfied that Ndayambaje knew that his presence would be considered by the assailants as tacit approval of the attack. Given the circumstances as a whole, the Chamber has no doubt that Ndayambaje knew that the assailants possessed genocidal intent, and that he substantially contributed to their attacks.

5758. As such, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsi refugees on 20 and 21 April 1994 at Mugombwa Church under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Ndayambaje – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5759. The Chamber next addresses Ndayambaje's potential Article 6 (3) superior responsibility over the civilian perpetrators of the massacre at Mugombwa Church, for possible consideration in sentencing.

5760. The Prosecution alleges that Ndayambaje, as former bourgmestre of Muganza commune for a period of 11 years, was seen as a key authority figure by the population. The Prosecution submits that even after leaving office in 1993, Ndayambaje continued to be respected and obeyed, and was, in effect, a de facto bourgmestre. It alleges that he continued to exercise authority over commune office personnel, such as conseillers and commune police, since they had been appointed during his tenure, and that he continued to play a role in commune administration. Further, the Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje was an active and influential figure within his commune due to the other positions he held on various boards and committees.¹⁴⁶⁶⁹

5761. The Ndayambaje Defence denied that Ndayambaje played the role of a de facto bourgmestre after he left office. It submits that Ndayambaje had no authority over commune personnel and policemen after he left office, ceased all activities related to his office as bourgmestre of Muganza commune after his resignation, and did not resume such activities until he was sworn in on 22 June 1994.¹⁴⁶⁷⁰

5763. The Chamber accepts that Ndayambaje, as former bourgmestre of Muganza commune for a period of 11 years, and the holder of a number of other offices, was a well-known authority figure and was influential within his commune. However, irrespective of how substantial Ndayambaje's influence in Muganza commune may have been from 6 April 1994 until 22 June 1994, Ndayambaje will not incur responsibility under Article 6 (3) unless he also exercised effective control over any subordinates.¹⁴⁶⁷²

5764. The Chamber notes that the Prosecution failed to lead sufficient evidence that Ndayambaje had effective control over the civilians who participated in the attacks at Mugombwa Church. The Chamber is of the view that Ndayambaje's influence, if any, over civilians in Muganza commune does not meet the threshold of effective control necessary for the imposition of criminal responsibility for the acts of this group.

5765. The Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje was in a superior-subordinate relationship over civilians at Mugombwa Church. Accordingly, the Chamber does not find that Ndayambaje bears superior responsibility for their crimes. The Chamber thus will not take Ndayambaje's alleged superior responsibility into account in sentencing.

4.2.2.3.4 Kabuye Hill, 20-24 April 1994

Arrest and Transportation of Tutsis to Kabuye Hill, 20 April 1994

5766. The Chamber has found it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on 20 April 1994, Ndayambaje travelled to Ngiryi Bridge in Gisagara, Ndora commune, with several armed soldiers and commune policemen where they arrested fleeing Tutsi refugees, fired shots in the air and threatened them with their guns and forced them to return to Gisagara marketplace. Thereafter, soldiers and policemen escorted the refugees on foot to Kabuye Hill (3.6.5.4.1).

5767. The Chamber cannot discern any identifiable act of genocide involved in the arrest and forced movement of the refugees to Kabuye Hill. The Chamber does not find that the interception or forced escorting of the refugees to Kabuye Hill itself constitutes genocide. While the Chamber accepts that their arrest by armed soldiers and commune policemen, the firing of guns and their forced return to Gisagara and Kabuye may have caused them significant fear and mental suffering in view of the context at the time, the Chamber does not consider it proven that the mental harm suffered was more than minor or temporary.¹⁴⁶⁷³

5768. As such, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of any responsibility, under either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3), for the interception and forced movement of the Tutsi refugees from Ngiryi Bridge to Kabuye Hill under Count 2.

Attack on Kabuye Hill, 22-24 April 1994

5769. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that on 22 April 1994, Ndayambaje was present during an attack at Kabuye Hill where soldiers and commune policemen with guns, as well as civilians armed with traditional weapons attacked Tutsi refugees gathered on the hill, resulting in the death of thousands of Tutsis. That night survivors of the attack at Kabuye Hill were guarded and prevented from escaping (3.6.5.4.2).

¹⁴⁶⁷² Delalić et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 258, 266, 300, 306; Orić, Judgement (TC), para. 311; Karera, Judgement (TC), para. 564.

¹⁴⁶⁷³ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46.

5770. Considering Ndayambaje, along with armed soldiers and commune policemen arrested the same fleeing Tutsi refugees in Gisagara and escorted them to Kabuye hill two days earlier, on 20 April 1994, in addition to the planned and protracted nature of the attack carried out on 22 April 1994, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Kabuye Hill.

5771. Further, in view of the forced return of the Tutsi refugees to Kabuye Hill, the fact that after the attack the surviving Tutsi refugees were guarded to prevent their escape, and events unfolding simultaneously at Mugombwa Church, the Chamber is satisfied that the assailants at Kabuye Hill possessed genocidal intent at the time of their attack on 22 April 1994, and that Ndayambaje knew of this intent.

5772. The Chamber has found it established beyond a reasonable doubt that on 23 April 1994 Ndayambaje distributed weapons including rifles and grenades at both the Muganza commune office and Kabuye Hill, which were later used in the massacres at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994. Ndayambaje further transported soldiers, civilians and commune policemen to Kabuye Hill where they participated in attacks against Tutsis. Finally, Ndayambaje was present during the attacks against Tutsis at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994, and thousands of deaths resulted from these attacks (3.6.5.4.3).

5773. Having regard to the planned nature of the attack, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994. As such, the Chamber is of the view that Ndayambaje and the assailants also possessed the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group at the time of the attacks on 23 and 24 April 1994, and that Ndayambaje again knew of the principal perpetrators' specific intent.

5774. The Chamber has found that Ndayambaje was present during the attack at Kabuye Hill on 22 April 1994 (3.6.5.4.2). The Chamber recalls that Ndayambaje exercised considerable moral authority over the population in his commune at the time (4.2.2.3.3). As such, the Chamber finds that Ndayambaje's presence at Kabuye Hill during the attack encouraged and substantially contributed to the attack at Kabuye Hill, and the Chamber is satisfied that Ndayambaje knew that his presence would be considered by the assailants as tacit approval of the attack.

5775. It is the Chamber's finding that Ndayambaje's acts of distributing weapons at both the Muganza commune office and Kabuye Hill on 23 April 1994, weapons which were used in the subsequent attacks at Kabuye Hill, as well as transporting soldiers, civilians and commune policemen to Kabuye Hill, substantially contributed to the commission of the crimes at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994. Ndayambaje was also present during the attacks at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994, which in the Chamber's view encouraged the same attacks. The Chamber is satisfied that Ndayambaje knew that his positive acts substantially contributed to the commission of the attacks at Kabuye Hill on 23 and 24 April 1994 and knew that his presence would be considered by the assailants as tacit approval of the attack.

5776. The Chamber has also considered whether Ndayambaje crossed the line separating aiding and abetting from committing genocide, and thus whether he became a principal perpetrator of the crime itself.¹⁴⁶⁷⁴ While Ndayambaje played a role in events surrounding the killings, and substantially contributed to them, the Chamber does not find that his conduct was as much an integral part of the genocide as the killings themselves.¹⁴⁶⁷⁵ The Chamber therefore considers that aiding and abetting is the mode of responsibility that best captures Ndayambaje's role in the attacks.

5777. The Chamber finds it established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Ndayambaje is guilty of aiding and abetting genocide for his role in the attacks at Kabuye Hill on 22 through 24 April 1994.

Ndayambaje – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5778. The Chamber next addresses Ndayambaje's potential 6 (3) superior responsibility over the perpetrators of the massacre at Kabuye Hill, for any possible consideration in sentencing.

5779. Notwithstanding the prominent role that Ndayambaje played in contributing to the attacks at Kabuye Hill, and the fact he was often together with soldiers, commune police, and civilians, the Prosecution failed to lead any evidence that Ndayambaje had effective control over these perpetrators or over Interahamwe. For example, there was no evidence that any of these perpetrators were acting pursuant to Ndayambaje's orders, that soldiers reported back to him, or that Ndayambaje had any authority or ability to prevent or punish offences committed by them.

5780. In the circumstances the Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje held a de facto superior position as a civilian over soldiers, commune police, civilians, or Interahamwe present and participating in the events preceding, or the attacks at, Kabuye Hill between 22 and 24 April 1994.

5781. As the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Ndayambaje and the soldiers, commune policemen, civilians, and Interahamwe at Kabuye Hill, the Chamber will not take this element into account in sentencing.

4.2.2.3.5 IRST Massacre, 21 April 1994

Ntahobali

5782. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that on 21 April 1994, Ntahobali participated in the abduction of approximately 40 Tutsis at the "Rugira roadblock", and that he ordered the Interahamwe present to take them to a place between the IRST and the Laboratory. It was further found that once at the IRST, Ntahobali issued orders to the Interahamwe to kill the Tutsis that had been arrested. Ntahobali's orders were followed and approximately 200 Tutsis were killed at the IRST on 21 April 1994 (3.6.6.4).

5783. The Chamber has found that genocide was committed in Butare préfecture against the Tutsi population (see, e.g., 4.2.2.3.3; 4.2.2.3.4; 4.2.2.3.6). In the present circumstances, the Chamber observes that the victims of the abduction and killings at the IRST were of Tutsi ethnicity. In light of the background and context to this event, the Chamber finds that it constituted the crime of genocide. There is no doubt that the Interahamwe possessed genocidal intent when they killed the Tutsis.

5784. Further, the Chamber is satisfied that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from Ntahobali's actions in this event is that he possessed the specific intent to destroy the Tutsi ethnic group by killing the Tutsis abducted from the "Rugira roadblock", along with the other Tutsis that had already been arrested and transported to the IRST. Ntahobali's instructions in this regard were clear.

5785. The Chamber further considers that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from the fact that Ntahobali's orders to kill were followed by the Interahamwe is that he possessed authority over them.

5786. Therefore, the Chamber finds Ntahobali is responsible as a principal perpetrator, for ordering genocide through the underlying act of killing.

5787. The Chamber recalls that Ntahobali was also charged with superior responsibility in relation to the Interahamwe (4.1.2.1.2), and that he received sufficient notice of his responsibility for the IRST incident (3.6.6.2).

5788. In discussing the notice received by Ntahobali for this incident, the Chamber highlighted the curative effect of the summary of Witness QCB's intended testimony, annexed to the Pre-Trial Brief (3.6.6.2). The Chamber notes, however, that the summary does not provide that Ntahobali supervised Interahamwe with relation to the events at the IRST.¹⁴⁶⁷⁶ Accordingly, the Chamber concludes that Ntahobali did not receive sufficient notice of the alleged criminal conduct of the Interahamwe over whom he was allegedly responsible.

¹⁴⁶⁷⁶ Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief – Appendix; Witness QCB (52) (in support of Counts 1-3, 5-6, 8-11 against Ntahobali).

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

5789. The Chamber notes that Nsabimana and Nteziryayo also appear to be charged with 6 (3) responsibility as to these events.¹⁴⁶⁷⁷ The Chamber further notes that Paragraph 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment mentions only Ntahobali as the alleged perpetrator. As noted above, in its closing submissions, the Prosecution does not specify Ntahobali as an alleged subordinate of either Nsabimana or Nteziryayo (4.1.2.1.3; 4.1.2.1.4). The Chamber therefore concludes that neither Nsabimana nor Nteziryayo is responsible as a superior for these events. The Indictment also charges Nsabimana and Nteziryayo with 6 (1) responsibility as to these events.¹⁴⁶⁷⁸ The Prosecution has failed to satisfy its burden as to these allegations.

4.2.2.3.6 Kabakobwa Hill, 21-24 April 1994

5790. On the morning of 21 April 1994, Kanyabashi gave a speech at Rango market stating that Tutsis should be "allowed to go through" to Kabakobwa. On the same day various local authorities as well as members of the Interahamwe directed Tutsis to Kabakobwa, while other individuals were directed to go to Kabakobwa to guard the Tutsis. The Chamber has not found it established that Kanyabashi ordered his subordinates to direct Tutsis towards Kabakobwa under the guise of protection (3.6.8.4.2).

5791. On 22 April 1994, 200-250 people from nearby secteurs, armed with traditional weapons, surrounded at least 500 and up to 10,000 mostly Tutsi refugees at Kabakobwa Hill. Hutus present at Kabakobwa were told to leave and one Nsanzabahizi, a commune driver and former commune policeman told the refugees "[y]our hour has come". Sometime shortly before noon both Interahamwe and soldiers came to Kabakobwa Hill and, upon seeing the number of refugees there, left to report to Kanyabashi and Muvunyi respectively to get reinforcements for the attack. At around 2.00 or 3.00 p.m. soldiers opened fire on the refugees and civilians attacked with traditional weapons. Ngoma commune police and Nsanzabahizi participated in the killings at Kabakobwa on 22 April 1994. At least hundreds, if not thousands, of refugees were killed. Some of the attackers returned to Kabakobwa on 23 April 1994 to finish off the survivors and loot their property. It was not established that Kanyabashi was present at Kabakobwa on 22 or 23 April 1994 (3.6.8.4).

5793. The Prosecution only charged Kanyabashi with superior responsibility for the attack at Kabakobwa under Article 6 (3).¹⁴⁶⁷⁹ The perpetrators of the attacks at Kabakobwa Hill included soldiers, civilians/Interahamwe, and Ngoma commune employees, including police officers. The Chamber recalls that it has already found that the Indictment sufficiently informed Kanyabashi that he was charged with superior authority over these categories of persons (4.1.2.1.5), such that the Chamber will consider whether a superior-subordinate relationship existed between Kanyabashi and these groups during the period in question.

Kanyabashi – Soldiers

5794. The Chamber refers to its finding elsewhere that Kanyabashi is responsible as a superior of soldiers for the massacre at Matyazo dispensary (4.2.2.3.9). Although testimony in that instance suggests a certain relationship between Kanyabashi and soldiers, in the Chamber's view it is not a sufficient basis upon which to conclude Kanyabashi also had de facto authority over soldiers at Kabakobwa.

5795. Considering the evidence as a whole, and in particular in relation to the events at Kabakobwa, the Chamber cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi exercised effective control over the soldiers at Kabakobwa Hill.

Kanyabashi – Civilians/Interahamwe

5797. The Chamber did not find it necessary to determine whether the civilian attackers at Kabakobwa were part of the official Interahamwe, namely the MRND's youth wing, although the witnesses' testimony evidenced that the term "Interahamwe" was used to refer to all civilians participating in the attack (3.6.8.4.4.3). No evidence was led that Kanyabashi had effective control over the official Interahamwe. As such the evidence is insufficient to establish that a de jure superior-subordinate relationship existed between Kanyabashi and the Interahamwe. Similarly, Kanyabashi did not exercise de jure authority over civilians.

5798. The Chamber recalls that a group of Interahamwe came to Kabakobwa and then left, saying that "they were going to announce to the bourgmestre that people at Kabakobwa were sufficient in number". The Interahamwe said they would return to confront those in Kabakobwa, and they later returned armed and with commune police (3.6.8.4.3.2). Although this testimony suggests a certain relationship between Kanyabashi and the Interahamwe in this instance, it is not a sufficient basis upon which to conclude that Kanyabashi had de facto control over the civilians/Interahamwe in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.

5799. As such, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt the alleged superior-subordinate relationship between Kanyabashi and the civilians/Interahamwe. Accordingly, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi is not responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for their acts at Kabakobwa.

Kanyabashi – Ngoma Commune Policemen

5800. The Chamber recalls its finding that the evidence established beyond a reasonable doubt that Ngoma commune police were present at and participated in the killings that occurred at Kabakobwa on Friday 22 April 1994.

5801. The Chamber further recalls its earlier finding that Kanyabashi received notice of his alleged superior responsibility over commune police (4.1.2.1.5), and notes that the Indictment clearly pleads their role in relation to the events at Kabakobwa.¹⁴⁶⁸⁰ The Chamber considers that Kanyabashi received adequate notice of these allegations.

5802. Rwandan law provided that bourgmestres wielded legal authority over commune police. Bourgmestres had power over the hiring, suspension, and termination of commune police officers.¹⁴⁶⁸¹ Although it appears that these powers could be exercised only after consultation with the commune counsel and the Minister of the Interior,¹⁴⁶⁸² Rwandan law also provided that “the bourgmestre has sole authority over the members of the commune police”.¹⁴⁶⁸³ As bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi enjoyed de jure authority over the commune police of Ngoma.

5803. The Chamber notes that it has found that Kanyabashi arranged for police officers to force refugees onto a bus to transfer them from the BPO to Nyange (3.6.40.4.8).

5804. The Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi exercised effective control over the police within his commune. In addition to his de jure authority, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi maintained effective control over the commune policemen, in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.¹⁴⁶⁸⁴

5805. The Chamber must now determine whether Bourgmestre Kanyabashi knew or had reason to know that Ngoma commune police were about to or had committed criminal acts at Kabakobwa. The Chamber recalls: the day before the attack, Kanyabashi gave a speech during which he stated that Tutsis should be “allowed to go through” to Kabakobwa, and thus was fully aware of the presence of refugees and of their plight at Kabakobwa; various commune authorities, including a conseiller and a responsable de cellule, and Interahamwe directed Tutsis to Kabakobwa; Interahamwe came to Kabakobwa Hill before noon the next morning and, upon seeing the number of refugees there, left to report to Kanyabashi, before returning to commence the attack that afternoon (3.6.8.4.2; 3.6.8.4.3.2).

5806. Further, the Chamber recalls Witness D-2-YYYY testified that Kanyabashi chaired a police meeting at the commune office on the very morning of the attack, at 8.30 a.m. where the bourgmestre raised the issue of the killing of Tutsis and in turn the policemen reported what they had seen in relation to the killing of Tutsis, for example, the death of one Karanganwa at Mukura bridge on 21 April 1994.¹⁴⁶⁸⁵ Moreover, during the course of 22 April 1994, both Witness D-2-YYYY and Witness D-2-5-I were at the commune office and testified they could hear gunshots from Kabakobwa.¹⁴⁶⁸⁶ Considering the testimony of Witnesses D-2-5-I,¹⁴⁶⁸⁷ and D-2-YYYY¹⁴⁶⁸⁸ that Kanyabashi left the commune office around 4.30 or 5.00 p.m. that day, and the proximity between the commune office and Kabakobwa Hill,¹⁴⁶⁸⁹ the Chamber concludes Kanyabashi was present at the commune office and should similarly have been able to hear the gunshots. The Chamber also recalls Witness D-2-14-D's description of the attack as "remarkable" and testimony that his conseiller de secteur and Kanyabashi would have heard of it, considering Kabakobwa was within Ngoma commune and under Kanyabashi's jurisdiction.¹⁴⁶⁹⁰

5807. Lastly, the Chamber recalls Defence Witness D-2-YYYY's evidence that in April 1994, there were approximately 25 to 30 Ngoma commune police officers.¹⁴⁶⁹¹ Given the relatively small number of policemen in Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi's control over the policemen, and the fact that he remained in regular contact with these policemen by regular meetings, several of whom were stationed at his house on the weekend of the Kabakobwa attacks, the Chamber does not accept that Kanyabashi had no knowledge of the participation of any of the Ngoma commune police in such a systematic, large-scale attack. To this end, the Chamber also recalls that Witness D-2-14-W testified about a meeting at Huye Stadium around 25 or 26 April 1994, where Kanyabashi publicly condemned killings that had occurred in Kabakobwa, Butare town, Buye, the Matyazo school centre, and the dispensary and said that the perpetrators of those killings had to be punished.¹⁴⁶⁹²

5808. Considering the circumstances in which the Kabakobwa attack took place, the Chamber is satisfied that Kanyabashi knew or had reason to know about the attack and the participation of his subordinates therein. Even accepting that one Semwiza was arrested in the days after the Kabakobwa attack for his role in the attacks, the Chamber considers that the totality of the evidence establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi took no steps to prevent the attack or to punish any Ngoma commune policeman for participating in the attack at Kabakobwa on 22 April 1994.

5809. Therefore, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi guilty of genocide under Article 6 (3) for the crimes committed by Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994.

Kanyabashi – Ngoma Commune Personnel

5810. Rwandan law for the period covered by the Indictment provided that the administration of Ngoma commune was under the direct authority of the bourgmestre.¹⁴⁶⁹³ More specifically, after consultation with the commune council and the Minister of the Interior, the bourgmestre had power over the hiring, suspension, and termination of commune personnel.¹⁴⁶⁹⁴ In light of the bourgmestre's powers to suspend or terminate employment, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi, as bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, enjoyed a de jure superior-subordinate relationship over Ngoma commune personnel.

5811. With respect to Kanyabashi's de facto control over Ngoma commune personnel,¹⁴⁶⁹⁵ the Chamber notes that Kanyabashi made no attempt to refute that he had effective control over Ngoma commune personnel. While the burden of proof nonetheless remains on the Prosecution, the Chamber is satisfied that the evidence establishes that in addition to his de jure authority, Kanyabashi maintained effective control over the commune personnel, in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.¹⁴⁶⁹⁶

5812. It was not disputed that Mathias Nsanzabahizi was a driver for Ngoma commune, and former commune policeman, who participated in attacks at Kabakobwa (3.6.8.4.4.2).

5813. The Kanyabashi Defence acknowledges that a former commune policeman named Nsanzabahizi was a driver for the commune and an attacker at Kabakobwa, but submits Kanyabashi was not driven by this man.¹⁴⁶⁹⁷ The Chamber considers that as a commune employee, there existed a formal hierarchical relationship between Nsanzabahizi and Kanyabashi from which flowed Kanyabashi's ability to punish Nsanzabahizi.

5814. However, the Prosecution did not adduce sufficient evidence that Kanyabashi knew or had reason to know that commune drivers or Nsanzabahizi were about to, or had, committed criminal acts at Kabakobwa. Similarly, the Chamber cannot conclude that Kanyabashi was informed of these acts at any time. As such, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi is not responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for the acts of commune drivers or Nsanzabahizi at Kabakobwa.

4.2.2.3.7 Mutunda Stadium Killings, Around 25-27 April 1994

5815. After about 3,000 Tutsis gathered at Mutunda Stadium, many were killed there around 25 through 27 April 1994. The Chamber has found, however, that the Prosecution has not established Nyiramasuhuko's presence during the attack (3.6.13.4.2). Similarly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven that Nyiramasuhuko or Nsabimana bear criminal responsibility for these events, pursuant to either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute.

4.2.2.3.8 Save Roadblock, April 1994

5816. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi came to a roadblock in Save in April 1994. He asked the people who manned this roadblock to search for a Tutsi lecturer and offered a reward for whoever found him (3.6.25.4). There is no evidence as to what occurred after this request.

5817. As there is insufficient evidence to establish that Kanyabashi's words at the roadblock substantially contributed to any subsequent crime, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi not guilty of genocide with respect to this allegation.

4.2.2.3.9 Matyazo Clinic, Late April 1994

5818. In late April 1994, following an initial attack by soldiers, Kanyabashi went to Matyazo Clinic. He addressed the Tutsis who were sheltering in the clinic and then ordered soldiers to open fire on the Tutsis, resulting in many deaths (3.6.16.4).

5819. The Chamber notes that although Paragraph 6.34 of the Kanyabashi Indictment alleges that "Kanyabashi ordered soldiers to open fire on the refugees" at Matyazo clinic, the Prosecution does not charge Kanyabashi with this crime pursuant to ordering or another mode of responsibility under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.¹⁴⁶⁹⁸ In the Chamber's view, this is a serious omission on the part of the Prosecution.

5820. The Prosecution instead charges Kanyabashi with superior responsibility for the events at Matyazo Clinic.¹⁴⁶⁹⁹ Accordingly, the Chamber will only consider whether Kanyabashi is responsible as a superior for the role of his alleged subordinates at Matyazo Clinic.

5821. As discussed above (3.6.16.2), the Chamber has concluded that Kanyabashi received sufficient notice of his alleged superior responsibility in relation to the soldiers' actions at Matyazo Clinic. The Chamber will now assess whether the Prosecution has proved this allegation beyond a reasonable doubt.

5822. Although the Prosecution alleges that Kanyabashi exercised de jure authority over the soldiers,¹⁴⁷⁰⁰ it identifies no possible source for such authority. Considering the evidence in its totality, the Chamber concludes that Kanyabashi did not have de jure authority over the soldiers at Matyazo Clinic in late April 1994.

5823. The Chamber recalls, however, that Kanyabashi ordered the soldiers to shoot at the Tutsis sheltering at Matyazo Clinic in late April 1994, and that the soldiers obeyed this order (3.6.16.4). Based on this fact, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi exercised effective control over these soldiers on an ad hoc or temporary basis, and that he was in a superior-subordinate relationship over them. The Chamber also considers that Kanyabashi acted with genocidal intent, which was further evidenced by his conduct at the 19 April 1994 swearing-in ceremony (3.5.4.8).

5824. The Chamber likewise finds that Kanyabashi's orders demonstrate that he knew that soldiers were about to commit a crime and that he failed to prevent their crimes. Similarly, Kanyabashi knew afterwards that the soldiers had committed a crime. Based on the evidence, the only reasonable inference is that Kanyabashi also failed to punish them for obeying his order to shoot the Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic.

5825. Given the context and the totality of the evidence, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the soldiers, in shooting at the Tutsis, possessed the genocidal intent to destroy the Tutsi ethnic group. Many Tutsis died as a result. There is no doubt that the soldiers committed genocide.

5826. Accordingly, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt (J. Ramaroson dissenting), that the soldiers committed genocide of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic in late April 1994, and that Kanyabashi bears responsibility as a superior for genocide.

4.2.2.3.10 Ngoma Parish Church Massacre, Late April 1994

5827. In relation to the Prosecution allegation that numerous Tutsis were massacred at the Ngoma Parish Church at the end of April 1994, the Chamber has concluded that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi played any role in this attack (3.6.15.4). The Chamber therefore finds that Kanyabashi does not bear criminal responsibility for this event.

4.2.2.3.11 Hotel Ihuliro Roadblock, Late April 1994

Notice of Rape as Genocide

5828. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.27 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, which pertains to the allegations at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, and which was pled in support of the count of genocide, does not allege that rape was perpetrated during the abductions and killings of Tutsis at this location. This Indictment paragraph was not pled in support of the count alleging rape as a crime against humanity or outrages upon personal dignity.¹⁴⁷⁰¹

5829. Paragraph 6.53 of the Indictment, pled in support of both genocide and rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity, alleges that rapes were widely committed throughout Rwanda. However this paragraph does not identify any location in Butare préfecture where these alleged rapes occurred.¹⁴⁷⁰²

5830. The crime of rape features prominently in Paragraph 6.37 of the Indictment, which alleges that Ntahobali kidnapped and raped Tutsi women. Given this allegation, the Chamber considers it significant that it was not pled in support of genocide, but was instead pled in support of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity.¹⁴⁷⁰³

5831. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber cannot conclude that the Prosecution pled rapes in support of genocide. In particular, the Chamber notes that the paragraph concerning the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock omitted any reference to rape. Moreover, the paragraph that explicitly ties Ntahobali to rape was not pled as genocide. The Indictment is therefore defective in failing to plead rape as genocide.

5832. The Chamber recalls that defects in the Indictment can be cured if the Prosecution provides information that is timely, consistent and clear (2.5.4). Although the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and opening statement make reference to rape as genocide,¹⁴⁷⁰⁴ these indications do not clarify whether the Prosecution intended to pursue this allegation against the Accused.

5833. Similarly, the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief provides witness summaries that are pled in support of genocide and that allege various rapes and killings, but there is no clear indication of whether the rapes themselves are intended to support this charge in addition to the killings.¹⁴⁷⁰⁵

5834. The Chamber also recalls that on 17 August 1998 the Prosecution filed a request for leave to amend the Indictment a second time. In its request, the Prosecution submitted that "[t]he new charges contained in the proposed amended indictment, accurately reflect the totality of the accused[']s alleged criminal conduct and allows the Prosecutor to present the full scope of available, relevant evidence".¹⁴⁷⁰⁶ This proposed Indictment added various charges, including rape as a crime against humanity pled against Nyiramasuhuko. No mention was made of pleading rape as genocide.¹⁴⁷⁰⁷ The Chamber granted the Prosecution request on 10 August 1999.¹⁴⁷⁰⁸

5835. While there is ample notice that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali were being charged with rapes under the counts of rape as crime against humanity, and of outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, the Prosecution provided insufficient notice of its intention to pursue rape as genocide.

5836. Under the present circumstances, the Chamber concludes that the Prosecution did not provide sufficient notice that could be capable of curing the defects in the Indictment. Because it would be prejudicial to hold the Accused responsible for a charge of which they had insufficient notice, the Chamber will not enter a conviction for genocide on the basis of any rapes that occurred at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.

5837. The Chamber notes, however, that it will mention rapes in the course of its legal findings on genocide. This will be done to convey the entire set of facts in a coherent fashion, and will not be taken into account by the Chamber in assessing genocide. Instead, they will be considered when assessing the counts of rape as a crime against humanity, and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.¹⁴⁷⁰⁹

Notice of Alleged Responsibility

5838. Regarding Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility over soldiers and Interahamwe (4.1.2.1.2), the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.27 of his Indictment is pled in support of such responsibility. This paragraph identifies soldiers as allegedly assisting Ntahobali at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro, and the Chamber therefore finds that it pleads Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility over soldiers in relation to the incidents there.¹⁴⁷¹⁰

5839. This Indictment paragraph, however, makes no mention of Interahamwe as alleged subordinates of Ntahobali. The Indictment is defective in this regard. Notably, however, this paragraph also mentions "other unknown persons".¹⁴⁷¹¹ This phrase lends itself to curing, as an exceptional measure, through the provision of timely, clear and consistent notice.¹⁴⁷¹²

5840. The Chamber recalls that the Appendix to the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief contains a summary of Witness QCB's anticipated testimony pertaining to the events at this roadblock (3.6.23.2). A review of this summary reveals that Ntahobali was alleged to be in a superior-subordinate relationship with the Interahamwe at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro.¹⁴⁷¹³ Moreover, this witness' statement alleges that the Interahamwe played a role in the attack on Ruvurajabo.¹⁴⁷¹⁴ The Chamber finds that the defect in the Indictment was cured and that there was no prejudice to Ntahobali, who received sufficient notice of his alleged superior responsibility over Interahamwe for their actions at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including the attack on Ruvurajabo.

¹⁴⁷⁰⁹ For similar reasons, the Chamber will not address rapes when considering persecution and other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity, and violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

The roadblock was opposite Ntahobali's parents' house, The Interahamwe and civilians wearing military vests were checking identification cards ... QCB's acquaintance's [sic] refused to join the Tutsi group and Ntahobali ordered his killing and he was immediately killed").

¹⁴⁷¹⁴ 7 April 1999, Statement of Witness QCB, disclosed 1 October 2001.

5841. Given that Ntahobali was alleged to have been present during the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, and was alleged to have been a superior there, the Chamber finds that Ntahobali received sufficient notice of his alleged superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.¹⁴⁷¹⁵

Responsibility

5842. In April 1994 Ntahobali manned the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro. With the assistance of soldiers and other unknown persons he utilised the roadblock to abduct and kill members of the Tutsi population. Towards the end of April 1994, Ntahobali personally raped and murdered one Tutsi girl, and instructed the Interahamwe to kill Léopold Ruvurajabo, who was subsequently killed, at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro. It was established that various crimes, in particular beatings, rapes and killings, were carried out mostly against Tutsis at this roadblock during the relevant time period (3.6.23.4).

5843. The Chamber recalls that it will not take into account rapes when assessing genocide. Instead, they will be considered when assessing the counts of rape as a crime against humanity, and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

5845. The Chamber finds that these events constitute the crime of genocide. It further finds Ntahobali guilty as a principal perpetrator, for committing and ordering genocide, through the underlying acts of murder and causing serious bodily and mental harm. The Chamber will now address Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility over soldiers and Interahamwe, for possible consideration in sentencing.

5846. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali received assistance from soldiers, but has not concluded that he gave them any orders (3.6.23.4.3). There is insufficient evidence that would permit the Chamber to conclude that Ntahobali exercised a superior-subordinate relationship over the soldiers. The Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established this alleged relationship beyond a reasonable doubt.

5847. As for the Interahamwe, the Chamber has found that Ntahobali instructed them to kill Ruvurajabo. They subsequently killed him as ordered (3.6.23.4.6). The Chamber considers that the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that Ntahobali exercised effective control over the Interahamwe present at the roadblock. As such, Ntahobali was in a superior-subordinate relationship to them, on an ad hoc or temporary basis, when they killed Ruvurajabo.

¹⁴⁷¹⁵ See also Para. 6.55 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

5848. Given Ntahobali's presence at the roadblock when this crime took place, the Chamber finds that he knew the crime was being committed and failed to take any measure to stop the Interahamwe or to punish them. Therefore, the Chamber also finds Ntahobali bears superior responsibility over the Interahamwe for the killing of Ruvurajabo.

5849. The Chamber considers that this killing falls within the context of the genocide committed by members of the Interahamwe over whom Ntahobali bears superior responsibility (4.2.2.3.13; 4.2.2.3.14). The Chamber will take this into account in sentencing.

Nyiramasuhuko

5850. Because the Prosecution has not established beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko was present at the time when any specific crime was actually perpetrated, the Chamber cannot conclude that Nyiramasuhuko played any direct role in relation to the mentioned crimes. Similarly, the Prosecution has adduced insufficient evidence to establish that Nyiramasuhuko was in a superior-subordinate relationship with anyone involved in these crimes at the time they occurred. The Chamber therefore acquits Nyiramasuhuko on this allegation under the Indictment pursuant to Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

5851. The Chamber notes that Nsabimana and Nteziryayo are charged with Article 6 (3) responsibility for the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock.¹⁴⁷¹⁶ The Chamber further notes that Paragraph 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment mentions only Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali as alleged perpetrators. In its closing submissions, however, the Prosecution does not specify either Nyiramasuhuko or Ntahobali as alleged subordinates of Nsabimana or Nteziryayo (4.2.1.4.3; 4.2.1.4.4). The Chamber therefore concludes that neither Nsabimana nor Nteziryayo is responsible as a superior for the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. The Indictment also charges Nsabimana and Nteziryayo with Article 6 (1) responsibility as to these events. The Prosecution has failed to satisfy its burden as to these allegations.

4.2.2.3.12 Rwamukwaya Family, Around 29-30 April 1994

Ntahobali

5852. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that, given the narrow time frames involved between Ntahobali's threat pronounced against the Rwamukwaya family, the sighting of their bodies, and the first sightings of Ntahobali in Rwamukwaya's vehicle, Ntahobali is responsible for killing Rwamukwaya and his family, on or about 29 or 30 April 1994. The Chamber also found that the Rwamukwaya family was of Tutsi ethnicity (3.6.24.4).

5853. It was established that genocide was committed in Rwanda, in this period against members of the Tutsi population (see, e.g., 4.2.2.3.3; 4.2.2.3.5; 4.2.2.3.11).

5854. In light of the background to this crime, and considering the totality of the evidence, the Chamber finds that only one reasonable inference is open to it: that the principal perpetrators killed the Rwamukwaya family with genocidal intent, and that Ntahobali was aware of this intent.

¹⁴⁷¹⁶ Para. 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

5855. Therefore, the Chamber finds this event constitutes the crime of genocide. In view of Ntahobali's announcement of his intention to have the Rwamukwaya family killed, the Chamber considers Ntahobali substantially contributed to the commission of the Rwamukwayas' death. The Chamber therefore finds that Ntahobali is guilty of aiding and abetting the killing of the Rwamukwaya family. As for Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility, the Chamber does not find this to have been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

Nsabimana and Nteziryayo

5856. The Chamber notes that Nsabimana and Nteziryayo appear to be charged with Article 6 (3) responsibility as to the killing of the Rwamukwaya family.¹⁴⁷¹⁷ The Chamber further notes that Paragraph 6.51 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment mentions only Ntahobali as the alleged perpetrator. As noted above, in its closing submissions, the Prosecution does not specify Ntahobali as an alleged subordinate of either Nsabimana or Nteziryayo (4.1.2.1.3; 4.1.2.1.4). The Chamber therefore concludes that neither Nsabimana nor Nteziryayo is responsible as a superior for these events. The Indictment also charges Nsabimana and Nteziryayo with Article 6 (1) responsibility as to the killing of the Rwamukwaya family. The Prosecution has failed to satisfy its burden in this regard.

4.2.2.3.13 Butare Préfecture Office ("BPO"), End of April – First Half of June 1994

Notice of Rape as Genocide

5857. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment which pertains to the allegations at the Butare préfecture office, and which was pled in support of the count of genocide, does not allege that rape was perpetrated during the attacks, abductions, and killings of Tutsis there. This Indictment paragraph was not pled in support of the count alleging rape as a crime against humanity or outrages upon personal dignity.¹⁴⁷¹⁸

5858. As discussed above (4.2.2.3.11), Paragraph 6.53 of the Indictment, pled in support of both genocide and rape as a crime against humanity and or outrages upon personal dignity, alleges that rapes were widely committed throughout Rwanda. However this paragraph does not identify any location in Butare préfecture where these alleged rapes occurred.¹⁴⁷¹⁹

5859. The crime of rape features prominently in Paragraph 6.37 of the Indictment, which alleges that Ntahobali kidnapped and raped Tutsi women. Given this allegation, the Chamber considers it significant that it was not pled in support of genocide, but was instead pled in support of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity.¹⁴⁷²⁰

¹⁴⁷¹⁹ Para. 6.53 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁷²⁰ Para. 6.37 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

5860. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber cannot conclude that the Prosecution pled rapes in support of genocide. In particular, the Chamber notes that the paragraphs concerning the Butare préfecture office omitted any reference to rape. Moreover, the paragraph that explicitly ties Ntahobali to rape was not pled as genocide. The Indictment is therefore defective in failing to plead rape as genocide.

5861. The Chamber recalls that defects in the Indictment can be cured if the Prosecution provides information that is timely, consistent and clear (2.5.4). Although the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief and opening statement make reference to rape as genocide,¹⁴⁷²¹ these indications do not clarify whether the Prosecution intended to pursue this allegation against the Accused. Similarly, the Appendix to the Pre-Trial Brief provides witness summaries that are pled in support of genocide and that allege various rapes and killings, but there is no clear indication of whether the rapes themselves are intended to support this charge in addition to the killings.¹⁴⁷²²

5862. The Chamber also recalls that, on 17 August 1998, the Prosecution filed a request for leave to amend the Indictment a second time. In its request, the Prosecution submitted that “[t]he new charges contained in the proposed amended indictment, accurately reflect the totality of the accused[’s] ... alleged criminal conduct and allows the Prosecutor to present the full scope of available, relevant evidence ...”.¹⁴⁷²³ This proposed Indictment added various charges, including rape as a crime against humanity pled against Nyiramasuhuko. No mention was made of pleading rape as genocide.¹⁴⁷²⁴ The Chamber granted the Prosecution request on 10 August 1999.¹⁴⁷²⁵

5863. While there is ample notice that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali were being charged with rapes under the counts of rape as crime against humanity, and of outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, the Prosecution provided insufficient notice of its intention to pursue rape as genocide.

5864. Under the present circumstances, the Chamber concludes that the Prosecution did not provide sufficient notice that could be capable of curing the defects in the Indictment. Because it would be prejudicial to hold the Accused responsible for a charge of which they had insufficient notice, the Chamber will not enter a conviction for genocide on the basis of any rapes that occurred.

5865. The Chamber notes, however, that it will mention rapes in the course of its legal findings on genocide. This will be done to convey the entire set of facts in a coherent fashion, including that the intensity and repeated nature of the attacks provides evidence that rape was, in fact, utilised as a form of genocide. The Chamber will not take this into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider this for the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.¹⁴⁷²⁶

Mid-May 1994 Attack

5866. As an introduction, the Chamber notes that, as the violence in other parts of Rwanda pushed people to seek refuge in places they considered safe like churches and government offices, numerous already traumatised, mainly Tutsi, civilians went to the Butare préfecture office seeking refuge. Hoping to find safety and security, they instead found themselves subject to abductions, rapes and murder. The evidence presented by these survivors, and accepted by the Chamber, is among the worst encountered by this Chamber; it paints a clear picture of unfathomable depravity and sadism.

5867. Between mid-May and mid-June 1994 Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Interahamwe and soldiers went to the BPO to abduct hundreds of Tutsis; the Tutsi refugees were physically assaulted and raped; and were killed in various locations throughout Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁷²⁷ In mid-May 1994, Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and about 10 Interahamwe came to the BPO aboard a camouflaged pickup. Nyiramasuhuko pointed out Tutsi refugees to the Interahamwe, ordering them to force the refugees onto the pickup (3.6.19.4.6; 3.6.19.4.11). Ntahobali also gave the Interahamwe orders, telling them to stop loading the truck because it could not accept anymore dead.¹⁴⁷²⁸ The refugees were taken to other locations in Butare to be killed. Therefore, both Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali were responsible for ordering the killings of numerous Tutsi refugees who were forced on board the pickup.

5868. Furthermore, Witness TA and two other women were raped during this mid-May attack. The Chamber notes that rape is one of the quintessential examples of serious bodily or mental harm.¹⁴⁷²⁹ To support a conviction for genocide, the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on members of a group must be of such a serious nature as to threaten its destruction in whole or in part.¹⁴⁷³⁰ Witness TA was brutally raped by a gang of about eight Interahamwe in addition to Ntahobali. At least two other Tutsi women were raped on this occasion by the Interahamwe. This was the first of many such attacks from mid-May until mid-June 1994 during which Tutsi women, including Witness TA were raped (3.6.19.4.6; 3.6.19.4.11). Considering the brutality and repetitive nature of these attacks, the vulnerable nature of the population seeking refuge at the BPO and the fact that they were Tutsis, there can be no question that the bodily and mental harm inflicted by Ntahobali and the Interahamwe on the Tutsi women at the BPO was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group. The Chamber recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

¹⁴⁷²⁶ For similar reasons, the Chamber will not take rapes into account when considering persecution and other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity, and violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being or persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

¹⁴⁷²⁷ Para. 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁷²⁹ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46.

¹⁴⁷³⁰ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 46.

5869. There was no evidence of Nyiramasuhuko's direct involvement in ordering the rape of Witness TA or the other Tutsi women on this occasion in mid-May 1994. Nonetheless, the Interahamwe were acting under the orders of Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko to load the truck with people. The Interahamwe accompanied Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko who were in the cabin of the vehicle as it transported the Interahamwe to the BPO. This assisted, encouraged or lent moral support to the perpetration of the rapes and had a substantial effect on the realisation of these crimes. Therefore, Nyiramasuhuko, by her presence and position of authority, is guilty of aiding and abetting the rapes at the BPO.¹⁴⁷³¹ As discussed above, the Chamber considers the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on the Tutsi refugees at the BPO was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group.

5870. Moving to the mens rea of genocide, it was clear that those staying at the BPO were Tutsis and this fact was widely known throughout the préfecture. The Interahamwe were armed and forced the defenceless Tutsi refugees to board a Toyota Hilux. Those who refused were killed on the spot. Furthermore, there was a pattern of killing at the BPO itself. There were pits dug which contained those killed at the BPO. The Interahamwe were armed with traditional weapons. Ntahobali instructed them to spare no one. Likewise, Nyiramasuhuko issued instructions to rape the women.

5871. In evaluating Nyiramasuhuko's mens rea at the BPO, the Chamber also considers Nyiramasuhuko's conduct at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony on 19 April 1994 (3.5.4.9; 3.5.4.11), where she tacitly approved of the inflammatory speeches of President Sindikubwabo and Prime Minister Kambanda, and also her distribution of condoms in June 1994 (3.6.47.4), where she urged Hutus to rape Tutsi women. These actions can only be understood as intending to eliminate this group of persons. By attacking this group of wounded and sick Tutsi refugees, and in light of the evidence as a whole, the only reasonable conclusion is that Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko and the other Interahamwe assailants possessed the intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

Last Half of May 1994 Attack

5872. During the last half of May 1994, Ntahobali and Interahamwe came to the BPO on two more occasions. Ntahobali violently raped Witness TA, hitting her on the head. Interahamwe following the orders of Ntahobali raped six other women. In a subsequent attack during this same time period, Ntahobali ordered about seven other Interahamwe to rape Witness TA (3.6.19.4.11). As discussed above, the Chamber considers the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on the Tutsi refugees at the BPO in the perpetration of these rapes was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group. These Tutsis were entirely helpless and consisted mainly of women and children. The only reasonable conclusion is that Ntahobali and his co-perpetrators possessed genocidal intent in committing these rapes. However, as stated above, the Chamber will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

¹⁴⁷³¹ Para. 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

End of May/Beginning of June 1994 Attack

5873. Around the end of May to the beginning of June 1994, Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko and Interahamwe came to the BPO on board a camouflaged pickup on three occasions in one night.¹⁴⁷³² They abducted Tutsi refugees each time, some of whom were forced to undress, and took them to other sites in Butare préfecture to be killed. Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape refugees (3.6.19.4.7; 3.6.19.4.11). This evidences Nyiramasuhuko's intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi group. The Interahamwe beat, abused and raped many Tutsi women. As discussed above, the Chamber considers the bodily harm or the mental harm inflicted on the Tutsi refugees at the BPO in the perpetration of these rapes was of such a serious nature as to threaten the destruction in whole or in part of the Tutsi ethnic group. They were all committed with genocidal intent. Therefore, the acts of Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali constitute genocide. The Chamber again recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

First Half of June 1994 Attack

5874. In the first half of June 1994, Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsi women at the BPO and as a result numerous women were raped at that location.¹⁴⁷³³ Ntahobali, injured soldiers, and Interahamwe came to the BPO to rape women and abduct refugees. During at least one of these attacks, Ntahobali again handed Witness TA over to about seven Interahamwe to rape Witness TA (3.6.19.4.9; 3.6.19.4.11). Each of these attacks constitutes the actus reus of genocide. Likewise, as discussed above, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali possessed genocidal intent.

5875. Moreover, the Chamber finds that Ntahobali aided and abetted the rapes of Witness TA. The Interahamwe who raped Witness TA on this occasion possessed genocidal intent, and Ntahobali knew of their intent. He specifically acted to assist and encourage their rape of Witness TA, and his actions substantially contributed to these rapes. Regardless of this conclusion, the Chamber recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for charges that were properly pled.

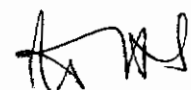

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali - Article 6 (1) Responsibility

5876. Based upon the above, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali responsible for ordering killings. The Chamber has no doubt that these killings constituted genocide for which Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1).

5877. The Chamber also finds that the evidence establishes that Ntahobali committed rapes, that Nyiramasuhuko aided and abetted rapes, and that they both ordered rapes. However, for the reasons explained above, the Chamber will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide, but instead will consider them for the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

¹⁴⁷³² Para. 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁷³³ Para. 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Article 6 (3) Responsibility

5878. The Chamber recalls its earlier finding that Nyiramasuhuko received notice of her alleged superior responsibility over Ntahobali, Interahamwe and soldiers (3.6.19.2). The Chamber also finds that pursuant to Paragraph 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, Ntahobali received notice that he was being charged as a superior to Interahamwe and soldiers at the BPO. Reading this Indictment Paragraph along with Paragraphs 6.31, 6.53, 6.55 and 6.56, the Chamber finds that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali received sufficient notice of their alleged superior responsibility.

Nyiramasuhuko – Ntahobali

5879. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali went to the Butare préfecture office together between April and June 1994 (3.6.19.4.11). Witness testimony describes them arriving together in a vehicle with Interahamwe,¹⁴⁷³⁴ but little additional evidence is available concerning any interactions between the two.

5880. In this regard, the Chamber notes that Witness TA, when specifically asked to identify who was superior to whom at the BPO in late April 1994, stated her view that Nyiramasuhuko was in charge. The witness appeared to explain this view by saying that Nyiramasuhuko pointed at three refugees who had been cut up and ordered that they be loaded onto the vehicle, after which they were taken away.¹⁴⁷³⁵ The Chamber notes, however, that Witness TA also testified that Ntahobali ordered Interahamwe to stop killing refugees, as the number of dead people were in excess to what could be loaded in the vehicle. Moreover, the witness testified that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali did not speak to each other, and that they both led the Interahamwe at the scene.¹⁴⁷³⁶ While the witness' impression that Nyiramasuhuko was in charge of Ntahobali carries some evidential value, it does not suffice to make findings beyond a reasonable doubt.

5881. Witness FAP, by contrast, described the events of late May or early June 1994 at the Butare préfecture office. She ascribed various orders to Nyiramasuhuko, and testified that afterwards, Ntahobali and Interahamwe walked towards their eventual victims. Later that evening, according to the witness, Ntahobali joined the Interahamwe in loading Tutsis onto a vehicle. When asked what prompted this action, Witness FAP said that Nyiramasuhuko had encouraged it.¹⁴⁷³⁷

¹⁴⁷³⁴ See T. 25 October 2001 pp. 29-30 (Witness TA); T. 29 October 2001 pp. 45, 51-52 (Witness TA); T. 31 October 2001 pp. 41, 43 (Witness TA); T. 6 November 2001 p. 57 (Witness TA); T. 20 May 2002 pp. 73-75, 95-98 (Witness TK); T. 24 February 2003 pp. 19, 21 (Witness RE); T. 3 March 2003 pp. 48-49 (Witness SS); T. 11 March 2003 pp. 48, 50, 56, 60 (Witness FAP); T. 12 March 2003 p. 52 (Witness FAP); T. 3 February 2004 pp. 10, 21-22, 63 (Witness QBQ). In making its factual findings concerning the Butare préfecture office, the Chamber has relied on the testimony of these witnesses for either its substance or its corroborative value.

¹⁴⁷³⁵ The Chamber notes that while the transcripts for 29 October 2001 are equivocal as to whether Nyiramasuhuko saved three people from being taken away or ordered three people be taken away: T. 29 October 2001 p. 48; T. 29 October 2001 p. 53 (Witness TA) (French), the transcripts for two other trial dates indicate that the three people Nyiramasuhuko pointed out were subsequently taken away: T. 6 November 2001 p. 56; T. 8 November 2001 p. 43 (Witness TA).

5882. The Chamber acknowledges that Witness FAP's testimony gives the impression that Ntahobali was obeying the orders of Nyiramasuhuko, and thus may have been a subordinate of hers. The Chamber recalls, however, that it has not found that Nyiramasuhuko issued any orders to Ntahobali (3.6.19.4.11).

5883. In view of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber considers that the relationship between Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali in 1994 was complex, owing in part to the familial and interpersonal relationship shared by these two Accused. This complexity, however, cannot be confused for a superior-subordinate relationship. Cognisant that the burden of proof falls on the Prosecution to establish this element, the Chamber finds that there is insufficient evidence to enter a finding of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali beyond a reasonable doubt.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Interahamwe

5884. As set out above, throughout the events at the BPO, Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali issued orders to Interahamwe and the Interahamwe complied with these orders and perpetrated the acts asked of them, which included abductions, rapes and killings. In view of these findings, and considering the evidence in its entirety, the Chamber has no doubt that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali wielded effective control over the Interahamwe at the BPO. The only reasonable conclusion is that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali had a superior-subordinate relationship over these Interahamwe.

5885. The Chamber likewise finds that their orders demonstrate that they knew that the Interahamwe were about to commit a crime and had later done so, and that they failed to prevent the crimes. It is also clear from that evidence that they did not punish the Interahamwe for obeying their orders.

5886. Accordingly, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali bear superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (3) for the acts of the Interahamwe at the BPO, including their abductions, rapes and killings. As the Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are criminally responsible pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, their superior responsibility will only be considered in sentencing, and the Chamber will not enter a conviction based on their superior responsibility for these actions.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali – Soldiers

5887. Although the Chamber has found that soldiers played a role in the events at the BPO, no evidence has been led to establish any relationship between the soldiers and Nyiramasuhuko or Ntahobali. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali do not bear superior responsibility for the acts of soldiers at the BPO.

Nsabimana

5888. The Chamber recalls its earlier finding that Nsabimana did not have notice that he was being charged with Article 6 (3) responsibility for the crimes perpetrated by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Interahamwe, including at the BPO (3.6.20.2; 4.1.2.1.3). Furthermore, as discussed elsewhere in the Legal Findings, Nsabimana did not have a superior-subordinate relationship with soldiers in Butare (4.2.2.3.14). Therefore, the Chamber will restrict its analysis to Article 6 (1) responsibility.

5889. The Chamber further recalls that it will not take rapes into account in assessing genocide.

5890. The evidence does not support an argument that Nsabimana committed, planned, ordered, or instigated the crimes perpetrated at the BPO. The Chamber will therefore address only whether he aided and abetted these crimes. An accused may be responsible for aiding and abetting in two different manners: (1) by positive acts including, providing tacit approval and encouragement; or (2) by omission, namely failing to discharge a legal duty to act.¹⁴⁷³⁸ Aiding and abetting by tacit approval and encouragement appears to require the presence of the accused at or near the scene of the crime.¹⁴⁷³⁹ Here, it was not contested that Nsabimana was absent from the BPO at night when the attacks were perpetrated by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Interahamwe. Therefore, aiding and abetting by tacit approval or encouragement is inapplicable to Nsabimana's conduct.

5891. However, aiding and abetting by omission may serve as a basis for liability even where the accused is not present at or near the scene of the crime.¹⁴⁷⁴⁰ Pursuant to this form of responsibility, the failure to discharge a legal duty must assist, encourage or lend moral support to the perpetration of a crime and have a substantial effect on the realisation of that crime.¹⁴⁷⁴¹ This implicitly requires that the accused had the ability to act, such that the means were available to the accused to fulfil his or her duty.¹⁴⁷⁴² The aider and abettor must know that his or her omission assists in the commission of the crime of the principal perpetrator and must be aware of the essential elements of the crime which was ultimately committed by the principal perpetrator.¹⁴⁷⁴³

5892. The Prosecution argues that Nsabimana is responsible for the abductions, rapes and killings at the BPO when those taking refuge there should have been under his protection.¹⁴⁷⁴⁴ The Prosecution referred to the Rwandan Organic Law which, it argued, gives the préfet a legal duty to ensure the peace, public order and security of persons and property, including those taking refuge at the BPO.¹⁴⁷⁴⁵

Legal Duty to Act

5893. A prerequisite of criminal liability for aiding and abetting by omission is a legal duty to act.¹⁴⁷⁴⁶ The Chamber notes that the Rwandan Penal Code imposes an obligation on every Rwandan citizen to provide assistance to persons in danger where it would not cause risk to oneself, and failure to do so is a criminal offence.¹⁴⁷⁴⁷ This obligation was considered by the Trial Chamber in Rutaganira at sentencing.¹⁴⁷⁴⁸ Although the Rwandan Penal Code provides a justification for failure to act, namely where there is risk to oneself, the Rutaganira Trial Chamber held that “[v]iolence to physical well-being suffered by thousands of people during the said events affects the very fundamental interests of Humanity as a whole, and the protection of such interests cannot be counterbalanced by the mere personal risk that may have been faced by any person in a position of authority who failed to act in order to assist people whose lives were in danger.”¹⁴⁷⁴⁹ In Rutaganira, the Chamber considered that the accused in that case “was under a duty to provide assistance to people in danger.”¹⁴⁷⁵⁰ Likewise, in the present case, the Chamber finds that Préfet Nsabimana was under a duty to provide assistance to people in danger, pursuant to Article 256 of the Rwandan Penal Code.

5894. Further, under Rwandan domestic law, Nsabimana had an obligation to ensure the tranquillity, public order, and security of people and property within his préfecture.¹⁴⁷⁵¹ The Appeals Chamber in the Ntagerura et al. case held that the Blaskić Appeal Judgement did not address, and it had not been settled at that time, whether the legal obligation to act must stem

¹⁴⁷⁴⁶ Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), para. 49; Orić, Judgement (AC), para. 43.

¹⁴⁷⁴⁷ Defence Exhibit 582 (Ntahobali) (Law of 18 August 1977, Rwandan Penal Code) p. 409, Art. 256, paras. 1-2 (“Article 256 : Sera puni d’un emprisonnement de deux mois à cinq ans et d’une amende de dix mille francs au maximum, ou de l’une de ces peines seulement :

1. quiconque pouvant empêcher par son action immédiate, sans risque pour lui ou pour les tiers, soit un fait qualifié crime, soit un délit contre l’intégrité corporelle de la personne, s’abstient volontairement de le faire;
2. quiconque s’abstient volontairement de porter à une personne en péril l’assistance que, sans risque pour lui ni pour les tiers, il pouvait lui prêter, soit par son action personnelle, soit en provoquant un secours.”) (emphasis added).

¹⁴⁷⁴⁸ In Rutaganira, the Trial Chamber, in sentencing the accused after a guilty plea, identified several sources of legal duties to act, including the Rwandan Penal Code: Rutaganira, Judgement (TC), paras. 80-82. This Judgement was not appealed.

¹⁴⁷⁴⁹ Rutaganira, Judgement (TC), para. 81 (citing Erdemović I, Judgement (TC), para. 19: “With regard to a crime against humanity, the Trial Chamber considers that the life of the accused and that of the victim are not fully equivalent. As opposed to ordinary law, the violation here is no longer directed at the physical welfare of the victim alone but at humanity as a whole.”).

¹⁴⁷⁵⁰ Rutaganira, Judgement (TC), para. 82.

¹⁴⁷⁵¹ Defence Exhibit 468 (Nsabimana) (Law of 11 March 1975, Structure and Functioning of the Préfecture), Art. 8(2) (“En tant que principal responsable de l’administration et du développement de la préfecture, le préfet a, notamment, pour mission de: ... 4) assurer la tranquillité, l’ordre public et la sécurité des personnes et des biens.”). The Chamber notes that the Trial Chamber in the Ntagerura et al. case stated that because this legal duty was not mandated by a rule of criminal law, it would not impose criminal liability; see Ntagerura et al., Judgement (TC), para. 660. The Chamber does not consider this statement to be binding authority, and notes in particular the Appeals Chamber’s similar pronouncements, as detailed in the next footnote. In any event, the Chamber considers that it does not need to resolve this issue, given that Nsabimana enjoyed a legal duty from additional, and distinct, sources of law.

from a rule of criminal law, or whether any legal obligation is sufficient. In the circumstances of that case, the Appeals Chamber found that it was not necessary for it to decide the issue.¹⁴⁷⁵²

5895. The Chamber further notes that a legal duty to act may also be imposed by the laws and customs of war.¹⁴⁷⁵³ In Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, the ICTY Appeals Chamber held that Article 13 of Geneva Convention III imposes a duty to protect prisoners of war.¹⁴⁷⁵⁴ Likewise, the Blaškić Appeals Judgement noted that Article 27 of Geneva Convention IV imposes a legal duty to protect civilians against acts of violence.¹⁴⁷⁵⁵ More specifically, it held that Blaškić was under a duty imposed by the laws or customs of war to care for protected persons put in danger, and to intervene and alleviate that danger.¹⁴⁷⁵⁶

5896. Article 13 of Geneva Convention III and Article 27 of Geneva Convention IV are limited in application to armed conflict of an international nature. However, Additional Protocol II to the Geneva Conventions contains similar obligations and is applicable to non-international armed conflicts.¹⁴⁷⁵⁷

5897. The Chamber notes that Article 7 of Additional Protocol II to the Geneva Conventions provides: "All the wounded, sick and shipwrecked, whether or not they have taken part in the armed conflict, shall be respected and protected."¹⁴⁷⁵⁸ In addition, Article 13 of Additional Protocol II states:

1. The civilian population and individual civilians shall enjoy general protection against the dangers arising from military operations. To give effect to this protection, the following rules shall be observed in all circumstances.
2. The civilian population as such, as well as individual civilians, shall not be the object of attack. Acts or threats of violence the primary purpose of which is to spread terror among the civilian population are prohibited.¹⁴⁷⁵⁹

¹⁴⁷⁵² Ntagerura et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 334-335 (The Appeals Chamber found that even if the failure to fulfil such a duty to protect the population could entail criminal responsibility, the Prosecution had not shown what means were open to Bagambiki to fulfil his duties under the Rwandan domestic law). The Chamber notes the Appeals Chamber in Mrkšić & Šljivančanin did not address this issue, although it was contended by the Parties, since the Appeals Chamber considered that the duties imposed on Šljivančanin arose from the laws and customs of war; see Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), paras. 148-151.

¹⁴⁷⁵³ Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), para. 151; see also Article 13 of Geneva Convention III ("[P]risoners of war must at all times be protected, particularly against acts of violence or intimidation and against insults and public curiosity.").

¹⁴⁷⁵⁴ Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgement (AC), para. 151; Blaškić, Judgement (AC), para. 663, fn. 1384.

¹⁴⁷⁵⁶ Blaškić, Judgement (AC), para. 668.

¹⁴⁷⁵⁷ Below (4.4.2.1), the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that a non-international armed conflict existed on Rwandan territory during the relevant period covered by the Indictments.

¹⁴⁷⁵⁸ Article 7 (1) of Additional Protocol II (emphases added).

¹⁴⁷⁵⁹ Article 13 of Additional Protocol II (emphases added).

5898. It was clear that the Tutsis taking refuge at the BPO were civilians and that many of them were sick and injured.

5899. Although these provisions do not explicitly reference individual criminal liability, the Chamber considers they are applicable to the situation prevailing at the BPO from the end of April to mid-June 1994. The Chamber recalls the ICTY Appeals Chamber's holding that "customary international law imposes criminal liability for serious violations of common Article 3, as supplemented by other general principles and rules of protection on the protection of victims of internal armed conflict".¹⁴⁷⁶⁰ The Chamber considers the criminalisation of individual conduct, includes, but is not limited to Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions. As the ICTY Appeals Chamber held in Delalić et al.: "Common Article 1 thus imposes upon State parties, upon ratification, an obligation to implement the provisions of the Geneva Conventions in their domestic legislation. This obligation clearly covers the Conventions in their entirety and this obligation thus includes common Article 3."¹⁴⁷⁶¹ In the Chamber's view, the criminalisation of individual conduct encompasses the Geneva Conventions in their entirety, including Articles 7 and 13 of Additional Protocol II. Therefore, these provisions impose a legal duty on the Accused to protect civilians, including the wounded and sick, against acts or threats of violence.

Assistance to, and Substantial Effect on, the Perpetration of Crimes

5900. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Interahamwe and soldiers were responsible for raping numerous Tutsi women and for killing hundreds of Tutsi refugees abducted from the BPO from mid-May until mid-June 1994. Nsabimana was the préfet of Butare during this time period. Although many people took refuge at the BPO precisely because they thought the préfet would protect them, Nsabimana refused to help.¹⁴⁷⁶² His attitude in this respect was evidenced by Witness TQ who approached Nsabimana at the BPO asking for help in burying the bodies of orphans that had been killed at the school complex. Nsabimana told Witness TQ that he was a madman.¹⁴⁷⁶³ By refusing to take action in the midst of the continuing attacks at the BPO, Nsabimana assisted Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and the Interahamwe in the perpetration of their attacks. Further, his failure to act had a substantial effect on the realisation of these crimes. Witness SS described an incident in which soldiers prevented attacks at the BPO.¹⁴⁷⁶⁴ Had Nsabimana posted gendarmes or soldiers sometime prior to 5-15 June 1994, he could have prevented the mass killing and rape, at least in part, at the BPO.

¹⁴⁷⁶¹ Delalić et al., Judgement (AC), para. 164 (emphasis added); see also Delalić et al., Judgement (AC), para. 171 ("The Appeals Chamber is unable to find any reason of principle why, once the application of rules of international humanitarian law came to be extended (albeit in an attenuated form) to the context of internal armed conflicts, their violation in that context could not be criminally enforced at the international level.").

The Chamber notes that at least three witnesses testified to persons going to Nsabimana's office to seek assistance; see T. 14 October 2002 p. 83 (Witness SU) (Three women go to Nsabimana's office to tell him about the security situation); T. 10 March 2003 p. 15 (ICS) (Witness SS) (same); T. 27 February 2003 pp. 5-7 (Witness RE) (A man and a woman went to see Nsabimana).

Ability to Act

5901. Pursuant to Rwandan Law, the préfet has the power to request the intervention of the Armed Forces to restore public order.¹⁴⁷⁶⁵ In addition, the préfet may verbally request the intervention of the National Gendarmerie pursuant to the Rwandan Law on the creation of the Gendarmerie.¹⁴⁷⁶⁶

5902. Nsabimana in fact requisitioned forces around 5-15 June 1994. At that time, 5-6 soldiers were seconded to the BPO under the command of a female lieutenant. The evidence establishes that these soldiers forestalled attacks against those taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office.¹⁴⁷⁶⁷ This shows that Nsabimana, pursuant to his powers as préfet, had the ability to requisition forces that could forestall the attacks.

5903. Despite this, Nsabimana failed to take any steps to prevent the ongoing attacks at the BPO for a significant period between the end of April and mid-June 1994. Even if the soldiers' presence may not have been able to stop the attacks altogether, the evidence establishes that their presence would have alleviated the situation of recurring abductions, rapes and killings. These means were available to Nsabimana to fulfil his duty and to forestall these harms, but he did nothing.

Knowledge and Awareness

5904. Nsabimana knew that those taking refuge at the BPO were Tutsis and on multiple occasions, they asked him directly for protection from the ongoing attacks. He knew that they were being abducted, raped and killed. Nsabimana admitted that he was aware of a plan to kill Tutsis, that Tutsis were being killed, and that the militia had been trained for this purpose.¹⁴⁷⁶⁸ Therefore, he was aware of the perpetrators' genocidal intent.

¹⁴⁷⁶⁸ See Prosecution Exhibit 113A (The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, by Nsabimana) pp. K0016623, K0016626 ("In everybody's opinion the final whistle was blown by the architects of the plan [A]mong those victimized for being Tutsi and well respected persons were the businessmen Semanzi, Rangira, Kayiranga, and Deogratias."); Prosecution Exhibit 114A (Interview with Nsabimana) pp. K0120067, K0120073 ("But my feeling at the time was that the militia was trained to kill people from the opposition first. Then when people from the opposition were eliminated, it was already out of human understanding but it was also very easy to determine who had done the killing. I think it was a strategy to kill Tutsis. ...The people planning this were intelligent. But this plan was a bad plan. The planners were specialists. To say people went crazy is false, people were not crazy. I had always thought this kind of killing was a possibility although maybe not on this scale.").

5905. Furthermore, the Chamber concludes that Nsabimana also knew that his failure to act assisted in the commission of the crimes. Nsabimana knew the attacks were occurring at night when he was not at the BPO and when there were likely to be fewer witnesses. Moreover, he testified that after he learned of the massacres, he would go home at night fearing that the refugees would not be at the BPO when he returned in the morning.¹⁴⁷⁶⁹ Yet, the perpetrators of these attacks were given free reign to repeatedly attack the BPO for a significant period between the end of April and mid-June 1994.

5906. In sum, Nsabimana failed to take action to stop the massacres at the BPO during his tenure as préfet. Although Nsabimana posted gendarmes or soldiers at the BPO around 5-15 June 1994, he was responsible for aiding and abetting genocide for failing to discharge his duty to protect civilians until that time. Noting that Nsabimana was charged with this culpable omission,¹⁴⁷⁷⁰ the Chamber finds him guilty of aiding and abetting genocide.¹⁴⁷⁷¹

5907. The Chamber notes that Nteziryayo is charged with Article 6 (1) responsibility for the events at the BPO.¹⁴⁷⁷² There was no evidence to support a finding implicating Nteziryayo personally in these events. Therefore, the Prosecution has failed to meet its burden of proof.

5908. The Prosecution also charges Nteziryayo with Article 6 (3) responsibility for these events.¹⁴⁷⁷³ Although Paragraph 6.41 of the Indictment mentions Interahamwe and soldiers as perpetrators of this event and Paragraph 4.6 asserts Nteziryayo exercised authority over Interahamwe militiamen, there is insufficient evidence to establish that Nteziryayo had effective control over the perpetrators at the BPO. The Chamber therefore concludes that Nteziryayo does not bear 6 (3) responsibility for the events at BPO, as alleged by the Prosecution.

4.2.2.3.14 École Évangéliste du Rwanda ("EER"), Mid-May – Early June 1994

5909. The Chamber found that Préfet Nsabimana ordered the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to the EER pursuant to a Security Council decision and that soldiers thereafter escorted the refugees to the EER (3.6.36.4.4). Refugees at the BPO were transferred to the EER between 15 and 20 May 1994 (3.6.36.4.1). There were at least 200 refugees at the EER during late-May 1994. Those who took refuge at the EER were predominantly Tutsis (3.6.36.4.2).

¹⁴⁷⁶⁹ T. 9 October 2006 pp. 80-81 (Nsabimana) ("And from the moment you get such information [that massacres were taking place], you cannot be at peace with yourself, because you can go home in the evening, and in the morning you come and you cannot find them. Those were the thoughts that were in my mind at the time...").

¹⁴⁷⁷⁰ See Paras. 6.36-6.38, 6.41 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment (pled in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 against Nsabimana, which include that he was being charged for "the acts or omissions described in paragraphs 5.1 to 6.59"). See generally Mrkšić & Šljivančanin, Judgment (AC), paras. 140-141 (Indictment paragraphs that reference "by these acts and omissions" sufficed to plead the nature of the charges against the Accused with regard to aiding and abetting by omission).

¹⁴⁷⁷¹ The fact that Nsabimana later discharged his legal duty to act around 5-15 June 1994 may serve as a fact in mitigation of his sentence.

¹⁴⁷⁷² Para. 6.41 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

¹⁴⁷⁷³ Para. 6.41 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment.

5910. During the refugees' stay at the EER between mid-May and the beginning of June 1994, Ntahobali led Interahamwe in carrying out attacks against the Tutsi refugees at the EER. Ntahobali and Interahamwe abducted refugees from the EER and killed them in the woods near the EER school complex. Soldiers were also present at the EER and participated in the attacks and killings at or near the EER; they also raped women and young girls there (3.6.36.4.3).

Notice of Rape as Genocide

5911. The Chamber notes that the paragraph of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment that concerns the EER, Paragraph 6.30, is the same as that concerning the Butare préfecture office.¹⁴⁷⁷⁴ For the same reasons as explained above (4.2.2.3.13), the Chamber will not enter a conviction for genocide on the basis of any rapes that occurred at the EER. Instead, these rapes will be considered in the sections addressing rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

Ntahobali

5912. There was no direct evidence that Ntahobali was personally responsible for killing any of the abducted refugees. The Chamber is nevertheless satisfied that his presence alongside Interahamwe and soldiers at the EER amounted to tacit approval and encouragement of the acts of Interahamwe and soldiers at the EER.

5913. The Chamber also recalls Ntahobali's prior conduct in working alongside Interahamwe and soldiers in abducting hundreds of refugees from the BPO who were physically assaulted and raped and thereafter killed in various locations throughout Ngoma commune, and that he personally committed genocide at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock (3.6.19.4.11; 4.2.2.3.11; 4.2.2.3.13). As such, Ntahobali's presence at the EER alongside Interahamwe and soldiers, when considered together with his prior conduct, leads the Chamber to conclude that Ntahobali's conduct at the EER amounted to his sanctioning of the acts of the Interahamwe and soldiers, and thereby substantially contributed to the commission of these crimes.¹⁴⁷⁷⁵ The Chamber recalls that it will not consider rapes when assessing genocide, but will instead take them into account when assessing charges that were properly pled.

5914. Recalling that those who took refuge at the EER were predominantly Tutsis, the Chamber thus finds it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali committed the actus reus of aiding and abetting genocide, through the acts of killing members of the group.

5915. Viewing these attacks in the context of the widespread killing of Tutsis occurring throughout Rwanda, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the soldiers and Interahamwe who participated in various killings at or near the EER did so with the intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group. Having regard to the events that surrounded the abductions, and the situation in Rwanda generally, the Chamber is also satisfied that Ntahobali must have known of the soldiers' and Interahamwe's intent¹⁴⁷⁷⁶ and knew that he was substantially assisting them in the commission of their crimes.

¹⁴⁷⁷⁴ Para. 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁷⁷⁵ See Muvunyi I, Judgement (AC), para. 80.

5916. As such, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsi refugees abducted from the EER under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

5917. The Chamber has already found that Ntahobali had de facto authority over Interahamwe, for which reason the Chamber also finds Ntahobali responsible under Article 6 (3) for these same underlying acts of genocide committed at or near the EER.¹⁴⁷⁷⁷ Since the Chamber has found Ntahobali guilty under Article 6 (1) of the Statute, it will only consider Ntahobali's superior position as an aggravating circumstance for the purpose of sentencing.¹⁴⁷⁷⁸

5918. The Chamber recalls it declined to make a finding against Nsabimana on the basis of Paragraph 6.39 as it was not charged in support of counts. As noted above (3.6.36.2; 3.6.36.4.4), however, the Chamber will consider whether Nsabimana bears superior responsibility for the allegations contained in Paragraph 6.38.

5919. Paragraph 6.38 identifies only Kanyabashi and soldiers as alleged subordinates of Nsabimana. The Chamber recalls that it has already found that the Indictment sufficiently informed Nsabimana that he was charged with superior authority over soldiers (3.6.20.2; 4.2.1.4.3). The Chamber also recalls that it has already determined that the Indictment was defective with regard to pleading a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and Interahamwe (4.2.1.4.3). Further, the Prosecution did not cure the defect in the Indictment for failing to plead a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and the Interahamwe. As such, the Chamber will only consider Nsabimana's responsibility under Article 6 (3) for the criminal acts of soldiers at or near the EER between mid-May and June 1994.

5920. The Chamber found that Préfet Nsabimana ordered the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to the EER pursuant to a Security Council decision and that soldiers thereafter escorted the refugees to the EER.

5921. A review of Rwandan Organic Law of 11 March 1975, Structure and Functioning of the Préfecture, shows that Article 8 (2) makes the préfet responsible for "[e]nsuring peace, public order and the security of persons and property". To this end, Article 9 provides that "[i]n the accomplishment of his mission, the Préfet shall be able to draw on the State services within the prefecture." Article 11 empowers the préfet "to request the intervention of the Armed Forces to restore public order" in accordance with the Legislative Decree on the ¹⁴⁷⁷⁶ See generally Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 56; Ntakirutimana & Ntakirutimana, Judgement (AC), paras. 500-501.

¹⁴⁷⁷⁷ The Chamber considers that Ntahobali had sufficient notice of his alleged Article 6 (3) responsibility over Interahamwe with regard to the events at EE; see Paras. 6.30, 6.55 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment.

¹⁴⁷⁷⁸ See Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 487-488; Kajelijeli, Judgement (AC), paras. 81-82, 318-319; Bagosora et al., Judgement (TC), paras. 2161, 2189, 2197, 2216, 2223, 2248.

Creation of the Gendarmerie.¹⁴⁷⁷⁹ Thus, as préfet at the time of this transfer, Nsabimana exercised policing duties and could request the intervention of the army.¹⁴⁷⁸⁰ Notwithstanding this power, the Chamber is not satisfied that this law equally gave Nsabimana de jure authority to give orders to soldiers or to discipline soldiers. The Chamber is equally not satisfied that there is sufficient reliable evidence to indicate that Nsabimana had de facto authority over the soldiers in the sense that he either issued orders to or commanded soldiers who obeyed him. While there is evidence that Nsabimana requisitioned soldiers to provide security at various sites, such as the BPO, there is insufficient evidence that he maintained any control over how these soldiers carried out their tasks.

5922. Notwithstanding his ability to request the use of and instruct soldiers, the Chamber is of the view that Nsabimana, even in his position as préfet, did not exercise effective control over soldiers, in the sense of having the material ability to prevent or punish their criminal conduct.¹⁴⁷⁸¹

5923. As the Prosecution did not establish the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and the soldiers in Butare, it is unnecessary under Article 6 (3) of the Statute to consider whether he knew or had reason to know about the criminal acts of these principal perpetrators or whether he failed to take the necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or to punish the perpetrators.

5924. As such, the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Nsabimana was responsible as a superior under Article 6 (3) for killings carried out by soldiers at or near the EER. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Nsabimana of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

Nyiramasuhuko

5925. No evidence was led to support Nyiramasuhuko's alleged involvement in events at the EER (3.6.36.4.5). The Chamber therefore finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko bears responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute.

Kanyabashi

5926. The Chamber recalls that no evidence was led with respect to Kanyabashi's involvement in events at the EER (3.6.36.4.6). In the circumstances, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi's alleged involvement in these events, pursuant to Article 6 (1), has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

5927. The Chamber also recalls that resulting from the orders he issued to soldiers at Matyazo Clinic, Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for their actions. The Chamber finds that concerning the events at EER, the Prosecution has failed to adduce sufficient evidence to establish Kanyabashi's superior responsibility over soldiers and Interahamwe.

4.2.2.3.15 Announcements by Megaphone, May and June 1994

5928. Around late May 1994 Kanyabashi drove through Butare town with a megaphone and instructed the population to search for the enemy among them. In June 1994 Kanyabashi again used a megaphone to announce to the population to clear bushes along the road in order to remove potential hiding places for the Inkotanyi, to flush out people who were hiding in the bushes, and to kill those found there, including children, old men and women. The term "enemy" when used by Kanyabashi, referred to Tutsis in general.

5929. The Chamber has found that following Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements in mid-May and June 1994, searches were conducted for Tutsis and, consequently, more Tutsis were killed (3.6.35.4.2).

5930. Notwithstanding evidence led through Witnesses QJ, TK and QI of general searches and killings subsequent to Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements, there is limited evidence of any specific acts committed by members of the population subsequent to Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements. Because there is insufficient evidence to establish that Kanyabashi's announcements substantially contributed to the subsequent killings,¹⁴⁷⁸² the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi is not guilty of instigating, ordering or aiding and abetting genocide in relation to his announcements.

5931. As such, the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi is responsible for genocide as a result of killings committed after his megaphone announcements. The Prosecution also failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi was responsible as a superior for the killing of any Tutsis after Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements in mid-May and June 1994. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

4.2.2.3.16 Transfer of Refugees to Nyange, Early June 1994

5932. In the first few days or week of June 1994, Nsabimana ordered the transfer of Tutsi refugees from the BPO to Nyange, Nyaruhengeri commune. Kanyabashi provided Nsabimana with two commune policemen to help with the transfer. The commune policemen forced the refugees to board the buses, beat them during boarding, and thereafter accompanied them on the bus to Nyange. The transfer was carried out over two consecutive days: Tutsi refugees at the BPO boarded at least two ONATRACOM buses on day one that went to Nyange, and a third bus departed on day two, but did not reach Nyange and returned to the BPO with its passengers on board. The Tutsi refugees who left the BPO on day two aboard the third bus were refused passage by Interahamwe at a roadblock between Kibilizi and Nyange secteurs, who claimed they did not want to bury any more dead bodies, such that the third bus returned to the BPO. The Tutsi refugees who left the BPO by bus on day one were attacked by Interahamwe at Nyange and all but a handful of those refugees were killed (3.6.40.4).

¹⁴⁷⁸² See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 76-77; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116 (stating, before overturning a conviction for instigating and aiding and abetting murder as a crime against humanity, that "it is [also] not established whether the persons who were instigated by the Appellant on 20 May 1994 were those who killed [the victim] on 26 May 1994").

5933. Having regard to the organised nature of the attack and the Interahamwe's words, namely that they were tired of killing, the Chamber finds that the assailants intentionally killed members of the Tutsi ethnic group at Nyange. Further, in view of the large number of Tutsi victims at Nyange, the ongoing attacks against Tutsis at the BPO, in addition to the extensive evidence of the targeting of members of this group in Butare préfecture since the swearing-in ceremony of Préfet Nsabimana on 19 April 1994, the Chamber is satisfied that the assailants possessed the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

Nsabimana

5934. The Chamber found Nsabimana ordered the transfer of the refugees from the BPO to Nyange (3.6.40.4.7). Notwithstanding the foregoing findings, the Chamber lacks sufficient reliable evidence to determine that Nsabimana gave orders to, or otherwise directed Interahamwe at Nyange or anyone else, that the refugees on board the buses should be killed.

5935. As such, the Chamber does not find Nsabimana responsible pursuant to Article 6 (1) for ordering, instigating, aiding and abetting, or otherwise participating in the killing of Tutsi refugees at Nyange. As the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and Interahamwe, the Chamber acquits Nsabimana of responsibility under Article 6 (3) on the basis of the current allegation for the acts committed by Interahamwe at Nyange. Accordingly, the Chamber finds Nsabimana not guilty of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

5936. As noted, Kanyabashi provided Nsabimana with two commune policemen to help with the transfer but was not present during the boarding of the buses. The commune policemen beat the refugees, forced them to board the buses, and escorted the refugees to Nyange where they were killed (3.6.40.4.8). However, the Prosecution has failed to adduce sufficient evidence for the Chamber to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi knew the purpose of the transfer, or that he was aware the refugees on board the buses would be killed at Nyange.

5937. As such, the Chamber does not find Kanyabashi responsible pursuant to Article 6 (1) for aiding and abetting, or otherwise participating in the killing of Tutsi refugees at Nyange. The Chamber will not make any finding as to Kanyabashi's superior responsibility for the crimes of policemen, or other assailants, at Nyange pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute since such charge was neither adequately pled in the Kanyabashi Indictment, nor subsequently cured (3.6.40.2). Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

4.2.2.3.17 Distribution of Condoms, Early June 1994

5938. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. The Chamber further found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the woman to whom she distributed the condoms to: "Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands" (3.6.47.4).

5939. The Chamber lacks sufficient reliable evidence to show a link between Nyiramasuhuko's actions in distributing the condoms on this occasion, in addition to her utterances evincing her clear intent to target Tutsi women, and actual rapes committed against said Tutsi women. Therefore, the requirement of the commission of the actual crime, namely the rapes as a result of this distribution, has not been met in this instance. The Chamber is not satisfied that the evidence reasonably supports the Prosecution charge of genocide.

4.2.2.3.18 Rango Forest, June 1994

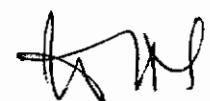

5941. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that in June 1994, approximately 250-300 mainly Tutsi refugees were forcibly transferred to Rango Forest by Kanyabashi with the assistance of the Interahamwe. Upon arrival, the refugees were confined in an enclosure, were subject to mistreatment and deplorable conditions, and as a result some of them died or otherwise suffered severe consequences (3.6.48.4).

5942. In light of the context and background to this allegation, a reasonable inference may be drawn that the refugees were targeted for transfer on the basis of their Tutsi ethnicity. However, the Prosecution did not establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the transfer to Rango Forest was carried out with the purpose to kill these refugees or otherwise to bring about their destruction. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that these events constitute the crime of genocide.

4.2.2.3.19 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

5943. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali was present at the Groupe Scolaire on 5 June 1994, accompanied by Interahamwe and civilian militiamen, and together they perpetrated violent acts as an attempt to hinder the evacuation of orphans. Nteziryayo knew of the evacuation prior to 5 June 1994, and he joined Ntahobali in attempting to prevent the evacuation to Burundi of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. Nteziryayo and Ntahobali selected about 30 adults, whom they believed to be Tutsis, and forced them to remain in Rwanda (3.6.45.4).

5944. As there is insufficient evidence as to what happened to the 30 persons who were forced to remain in Rwanda, the Chamber does not find that these events constitute the crime of genocide.

4.2.2.3.20 Border Meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi Communes, Mid- to Late June 1994

5946. Notwithstanding the evidence of killings which occurred after the speeches, there is limited evidence of any specific acts committed by members of the population subsequent to Nteziryayo's speeches. As there is insufficient evidence to establish that Nteziryayo's words at these meetings substantially contributed to any subsequent crime,¹⁴⁷⁸³ the Chamber finds that Nteziryayo is not criminally responsible for genocide, under either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute, with respect to this allegation.

5947. Similarly, the Chamber finds that Nsabimana does not bear criminal responsibility, under either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3), for genocide in relation to this event.

4.2.2.3.21 Ndayambaje's Swearing-In Ceremony and the Ensuing Abduction of Tutsi Girls, 22 June 1994

5948. On 22 June 1994, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje told the population to continue with their "work" and urged them to "sweep the dirt outside" in reference to the killing of Tutsis. To this end, the Chamber accepted that after the swearing-in ceremony searches for Tutsis took place and killings of Tutsis followed (3.6.43.4).

5949. The Chamber found it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that a group of Tutsi women and girls from Mugombwa secteur, Muganza commune, were abducted by assailants from Saga after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony of 22 June 1994 including one Nambaje who was abducted from a home. During the abduction, Ndayambaje came to the Statue of the Virgin Mary and made it clear that the abductors were free to do what they wanted with the girls, and the abducted women and girls were subsequently taken to a brick factory at Gasenyi where they were killed (3.6.44.4).

5950. The abduction and killing of these Tutsi girls was not part of the Prosecution's case against Nteziryayo who did not defend against this allegation. Further, other testimony, to the effect that killings occurred after Ndayambaje's swearing-in, was general and devoid of any detail.

¹⁴⁷⁸³ See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 76-77; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116 (stating, before overturning a conviction for instigating and aiding and abetting murder as a crime against humanity, that "it is [also] not established whether the persons who were instigated by the Appellant on 20 May 1994 were those who killed [the victim] on 26 May 1994").

5951. As such, the Chamber finds there is insufficient evidence of any specific acts committed by members of the population subsequent to Nteziryayo's utterances at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony, for the Chamber to conclude that Nteziryayo's utterances substantially contributed to the subsequent killing of Tutsis.¹⁴⁷⁸⁴

5952. The Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo was responsible, personally or as a superior, for any acts that occurred after Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of genocide on the basis of this allegation.

5953. Noting that proof is required of a causal connection between the instigation and the actus reus of the crime,¹⁴⁷⁸⁵ the Chamber recalls its finding that the assailants came to search for the girls because they had attended Ndayambaje's swearing-in where they were told to search for and throw out dirt. As such, the Chamber is satisfied there is a causal connection between Ndayambaje's words at the swearing-in ceremony, and the abduction and killing of these Tutsi girls, including one Nambaje, in the days following the ceremony.

5954. In view of the widespread killing of Tutsis throughout Rwanda as well as the fact that the assailants who abducted Nambaje came to a house claiming to look for Tutsis, the Chamber concludes that the assailants participated in the attacks with the intent to destroy, in whole or in substantial part, the Tutsi group.

5955. Because the Chamber also finds that Ndayambaje's words prompted the assailants to perpetrate these crimes, the Chamber finds it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje committed the actus reus of instigating genocide.

5956. The Chamber has found that by encouraging attendees at the swearing-in ceremony to "sweep the dirt outside" and "to work", Ndayambaje had the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi ethnic group. It is also clear that Ndayambaje intended to prompt others to act. Accordingly, the Chamber also finds it proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje had the requisite mens rea to instigate genocide.

¹⁴⁷⁸⁴ See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 76-77; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (TC), para. 466.

¹⁴⁷⁸⁵ See, e.g., Karera, Judgement (AC), para. 317 ("It is not necessary to prove that the crime would not have been perpetrated without the involvement of the accused; it is sufficient to demonstrate that the instigation was a factor substantially contributing to the conduct of another person committing the crime."); Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 116.

5958. Having regard to the events that preceded the abductions, and the situation in Rwanda generally, considering the assailants asked Ndayambaje what they should do with the abducted Tutsi women, Ndayambaje must have known of the assailants' intent. Further, the Chamber is convinced that Ndayambaje could not have been unaware that his words to the assailants would likely lead them to kill the abducted Tutsi girls and Ndayambaje. In view of the foregoing, the Chamber is satisfied that the Prosecution has proved beyond a reasonable doubt Ndayambaje knew he was assisting in the deaths of the abducted Tutsi girls and Ndayambaje.

5959. As such, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for instigating the killings of Tutsis, including the girl Ndayambaje, in Butare under Article 6 (1) of the Statute. However, the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje was responsible for the acts of the assailants as a superior under Article 6 (3) for these same killings.

4.2.2.3.22 Training, Arming and Civil Defence

5960. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that civil defence was organised before April 1994 (3.7.10.4.2).

5961. It was also established beyond a reasonable doubt that in May and June 1994, recruitment of men for civil defence training was undergoing in some communes in Butare préfecture. During the same period, when the RPF were advancing on Butare, firearms were distributed to the recruits.

5962. Nteziryayo was an official in charge of civil defence (3.7.10.4.4). It was proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo facilitated the training of civilians at Kamena Stadium in May 1994 (3.7.2.4). Nteziryayo also distributed weapons to the recruits (3.7.6.4.2).

5963. Kanyabashi, in his capacity as bourgmestre, was responsible for recruiting men for civil defence training in Ngoma commune, in May and June 1994 (3.7.1.4). Kanyabashi also distributed weapons to the conseillers in Ngoma commune in May 1994 (3.7.5.4).

5964. The Chamber has further found that the civil defence forces understood that Tutsis were to be targeted as accomplices of the enemy, namely the RPF (3.7.10.4.1). The Chamber notes, however, that it has not found that Nteziryayo or Kanyabashi was responsible for inculcating this understanding among the civil defence forces.

5965. Nonetheless, in the Chamber's view, these facts give rise to an inference that the civil defence forces targeted Tutsis, and that Nteziryayo and Kanyabashi are responsible for any such attacks. The question for the Chamber, however, is whether this is the only reasonable inference under the circumstances.

5966. The Chamber considers it significant that the training of recruits and the distribution of weapons overlapped with the advance of the RPF into Butare. This raises the possibility that Nteziryayo and Kanyabashi trained and armed the civil defence forces in order to forestall the RPF advance. The Chamber finds this possibility to be a reasonable one under the circumstances.

5967. Therefore, the Chamber cannot conclude that the only reasonable inference is that Nteziryayo and Kanyabashi are responsible for any attacks by the civil defence forces that targeted Tutsis. In any event, the Chamber recalls that it has not made any findings that civil defence forces targeted or killed Tutsis.

5968. Cognisant that the burden of proof falls upon the Prosecution to prove its case beyond a reasonable doubt, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi and Nteziryayo are not responsible for genocide in relation to these allegations.

4.2.2.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

5969. Nyiramasuhuko ordered the killings of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office, which constituted genocide.

5970. The Chamber therefore finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute. Nyiramasuhuko's responsibility as a superior in relation to these events will be taken in account in sentencing.

Ntahobali

5971. Ntahobali killed Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock and ordered the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo. Ntahobali also ordered the killing of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST and of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office. In addition, Ntahobali aided and abetted both the killing of the Rwamukwaya family and the killing of Tutsis abducted from the EER. All of these acts constituted genocide. The Chamber therefore finds Ntahobali guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute. His responsibility as a superior at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, in relation to the Butare préfecture office and at the EER will be considered in sentencing.

Nsabimana

5972. As préfet of Butare, Nsabimana had a legal duty to act, and he failed to discharge his duty. His failure both provided assistance to the perpetration of the crime of genocide, and had a substantial effect on the realisation of this crime. Nsabimana had the ability to act, but he did nothing, despite his awareness of the perpetrator's genocidal intent and his knowledge of the ongoing genocide at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber therefore finds Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting genocide.

Nteziryayo

5973. Because the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo is responsible for genocide pursuant to either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute, the Chamber acquits him of this charge.

Kanyabashi

5974. Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for soldiers' genocide of Tutsis at Matyazo clinic in late April 1994 (J. Ramaroson dissenting), and for the genocide committed by Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994.

5975. The Chamber therefore finds Kanyabashi guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

Ndayambaje

5976. Ndayambaje aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 and at Kabuye Hill from 22 through 24 April 1994. Ndayambaje also instigated the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. All of these acts constituted genocide.

5977. The Chamber therefore finds Ndayambaje guilty of genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.2.3 Complicity in Genocide4.2.3.1 Introduction

5978. The Accused are charged with complicity in genocide under Article 2 (3)(e) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 3 of each Indictment.

5979. According to their Indictments, Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Kanyabashi are charged with complicity in genocide as an alternative to genocide.¹⁴⁷⁸⁶ Nsabimana, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje are also charged with this crime in the alternative, as clarified by the Prosecution Closing Brief.¹⁴⁷⁸⁷

4.2.3.2 Law

5980. The jurisprudence of this Tribunal has treated complicity in genocide as the aiding and abetting, instigating, or procuring of genocide. Complicity in genocide by aiding and abetting requires knowledge of the specific genocidal intent of the principal perpetrators, while the other forms of complicity may require proof that the accomplice shared that specific intent. The accomplice's criminal participation may occur before or after the act of the principal perpetrator, and the accomplice need not be present during the commission of the crime.¹⁴⁷⁸⁸

4.2.3.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

5981. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje guilty of genocide in relation to various allegations. Because the Prosecution pleads complicity in genocide as an alternative to genocide, the Chamber dismisses this count in respect to these allegations.

5982. In respect of the other allegations of genocide which the Prosecution has failed to establish beyond a reasonable doubt, for the same reasons, the Chamber acquits the Accused of complicity in genocide.

5983. The Chamber therefore dismisses this charge in relation to Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje, all of whom are guilty of genocide. The Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of complicity in genocide.

4.2.4 Direct and Public Incitement to Commit Genocide

4.2.4.1 Introduction

5984. Nyiramasuhuko, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje are charged with direct and public incitement to commit genocide under Article 2 (3)(c) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 4 of each of their Indictments.

4.2.4.2 Law

5985. A person may be found guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide if he or she directly and publicly incited the commission of genocide, and had the intent to directly and publicly incite others to commit genocide. Such intent in itself presupposes a genocidal intent.¹⁴⁷⁸⁹

5986. "Direct" incitement to commit genocide requires that the speech is a direct appeal to commit an act referred to in Article 2 (2) of the Statute. It must be more than a vague or indirect suggestion, and an accused cannot be held accountable for this crime based on hate speech that does not directly call for the commission of genocide. However, even when a speech contains no explicit appeal to commit genocide, it may still constitute direct incitement to commit genocide in a particular context, so long as the speech is not considered ambiguous within that context. In order to determine the speech's true meaning, it may be helpful to examine how it was understood by the intended audience. In the context of Rwanda, the culture and nuances of the Kinyarwanda language should be considered when determining what constitutes direct incitement to commit genocide.¹⁴⁷⁹⁰

¹⁴⁷⁸⁹ Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), para. 155; Bikindi, Judgement (AC), para. 135; Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 677.

and communications made through a public address system over a broad public area".¹⁴⁷⁹¹ Moreover, the Appeals Chamber has taken into account the travaux préparatoires of the Genocide Convention, which confirm that "public" incitement to genocide pertains to mass communications. Conversely, the travaux préparatoires indicate that "private" incitement—understood as more subtle forms of communication such as conversations, private meetings, or messages—was specifically removed from the Convention.¹⁴⁷⁹²

4.2.4.3 Deliberations

4.2.4.3.1 Cabinet Meetings, 9 April – 14 July 1994

5988. Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, the Interim Government, of which Nyiramasuhuko was a member, held numerous Cabinet meetings at which it adopted directives and issued instructions. The intention was to encourage the population to hunt down and take action against the Tutsis (3.4.12).

5989. The Chamber, however, has not been able to determine what role, if any, Nyiramasuhuko played at these Cabinet meetings. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not established, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Nyiramasuhuko bears criminal responsibility for any direct and public incitement to commit genocide in relation to these meetings.

4.2.4.3.2 Removal of Préfet Habyalimana and Swearing-in Ceremony of Préfet Nsabimana, 17-19 April 1994

5990. The Chamber has found that the speeches made by Prime Minister Kambanda and President Sindikubwabo at Nsabimana's swearing-in ceremony were inflammatory and called on the population to identify and kill Tutsis. In particular, Kambanda and Sindikubwabo used coded language that was understood by the attendees to refer to the killing of Tutsis (3.5.4.4; 3.5.4.5; 3.5.4.11).

Nyiramasuhuko

5991. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko does not bear criminal responsibility for genocide in relation to these events (4.2.2.3.2). Similarly, insofar as there was no evidence that her tacit approval/presence at the ceremony substantially contributed to the incitement pronounced by Kambanda and Sindikubwabo, the Chamber does not find it established beyond a reasonable doubt that she bears responsibility for direct and public incitement to commit genocide arising out of this ceremony.

Kanyabashi

5992. After Kambanda's and Sindikubwabo's speeches advocating and inciting genocide, Kanyabashi addressed the audience. He supported their speeches and his address contained a commitment to execute the directives and instructions announced by Kambanda and Sindikubwabo (3.5.4.8; 3.5.4.11).

¹⁴⁷⁹¹ Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 155-156. In making this statement, the Appeals Chamber noted that the Kalimanzira Trial Judgement was an exception, and went on to reverse this conviction: Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 156, 165, 243.

¹⁴⁷⁹² Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), para. 158.

5993. The Chamber recalls that “when [an accused] is indicted [for direct and public incitement to commit genocide], he cannot be held accountable for hate speech that does not directly call for the commission of genocide”.¹⁴⁷⁹³ Although Kanyabashi stated his support and commitment for the preceding speeches, the Chamber cannot conclude that conduct rose to the level of directly inciting genocide. Nor has the Prosecution adduced sufficient evidence to support that Kanyabashi substantially contributed to any incitement made by Kambanda, Sindikubwabo, or other speakers at this event.

5994. The Chamber, therefore, finds that Kanyabashi does not bear criminal responsibility for direct and public incitement to commit genocide in relation to this incident.

4.2.4.3.3 Mugombwa Church Massacres, 20-21 April 1994

5995. The Chamber has found that on 20 April 1994, Ndayambaje came to Mugombwa Church, showed a picture of President Habyarimana to those taking refuge inside, and told them that they would be killed. He then spoke to a group of armed people outside Mugombwa Church. He told them that since the people in the church were now gathered together, their work would no longer be very difficult. He also told the attackers that some of them should stay and watch those in the church and others should go and look for those that were hiding in ditches and in bushes. After this speech, many people left, whereas some stayed behind at the church. Later that day, the armed people launched an attack against the Tutsis sheltering in the church (3.6.4.4).

5996. The next morning, Ndayambaje again addressed the crowd outside the church. He stated that he could see they were interested in the Tutsis' cows, and he asked them what they would pay if the cattle's Tutsi owners escaped. That afternoon, the crowd set the church on fire and, as those taking refuge inside escaped from the church, the crowd attacked and killed them (3.6.4.4).

5997. The Chamber has no doubt that Ndayambaje's addresses to the attackers were public and that he intended to make these statements publicly.

5998. The Chamber recalls that even when a speech contains no explicit appeal to commit genocide, it may still constitute direct incitement to commit genocide in a particular context.¹⁴⁷⁹⁴

5999. The Chamber considers it significant that before Ndayambaje addressed the crowd on 20 April 1994, he first told those taking refuge inside the church that they would be killed. This context, combined with Ndayambaje's speech that the crowd's work would no longer be difficult, establishes that Ndayambaje possessed the requisite intent to directly incite the commission of genocide.

¹⁴⁷⁹³ Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 693.

¹⁴⁷⁹⁴ Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 703; see also Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 700-701.

6000. Moreover, after Ndayambaje spoke to the crowd on both 20 and 21 April 1994, the armed people there attacked the Mugombwa Church. The Chamber considers that this provides circumstantial evidence that Ndayambaje's speeches were understood by his intended audience as direct calls to commit genocide.¹⁴⁷⁹⁵

6001. In light of this context, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje directly incited the commission of genocide at Mugombwa Church, and that he had the requisite intent to do so.

6002. Accordingly, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of direct and public incitement on the basis of this allegation under Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.2.4.3.4 Kabakobwa Hill, 21-24 April 1994

6003. The Prosecution charged Kanyabashi with responsibility under Article 6 (1) for incitement, presumably before the attack at Kabakobwa.¹⁴⁷⁹⁶

6004. The Chamber has already found that Kanyabashi gave a speech at Rango market on the morning of Thursday 21 April 1994, during which he stated that Tutsis should be "allowed to go through" to Kabakobwa. The Chamber accepted those words led Witness QCB to believe that the safety of these refugees would be protected (3.6.8.4.2).

6005. Notwithstanding this finding, the Chamber is not satisfied that these words were such as to incite others to commit the crime of genocide such that they could amount to direct and public incitement. As such, the Prosecution has failed to prove the actus reus of this crime.

6006. As such, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide on the basis of the speech he gave at Rango market on 21 April 1994.

4.2.4.3.5 Save Roadblock, April 1994

6007. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi came to a roadblock in Save in April 1994. He asked the people who manned this roadblock to search for a Tutsi lecturer and offered a reward for whoever found him (3.6.25.4).

6008. The evidence establishes that Kanyabashi directed his speech to individuals manning a roadblock, but not that he directed his remarks towards anyone else. The Appeals Chamber has specified that statements made only to individuals manning a roadblock are not sufficiently public to satisfy this element of the crime.¹⁴⁷⁹⁷ As the Prosecution did not establish that Kanyabashi directed his remarks towards anyone other than the individuals at the roadblock, the Chamber considers that Kanyabashi did not possess the mens rea for direct and public incitement to commit genocide. The Chamber thus acquits Kanyabashi of this charge in relation to this allegation.

¹⁴⁷⁹⁵ See generally Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 700 ("[I]t may be helpful to examine how a speech was understood by its intended audience in order to determine its true message.").

¹⁴⁷⁹⁶ Para. 6.32 of the Kanyabashi Indictment (in support of Counts 1-3, 5-9 pursuant to Article 6 (3) and Count 4 pursuant to Article 6 (1) responsibility).

¹⁴⁷⁹⁷ Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), para. 161; see also Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 862.

4.2.4.3.6 Announcements by Megaphone, May and June 1994

6009. Around late May 1994 Kanyabashi drove through Butare town with a megaphone and instructed the population to search for the enemy among them. Further, around mid-June 1994 Kanyabashi used a megaphone to tell the population to clear bushes along the road in order to remove potential hiding places for the Inkotanyi, to flush out people who were hiding in the bushes, and to kill those found there, including children, old men and women. After both of Kanyabashi's announcements in mid-May and June 1994 searches were conducted for Tutsis, and consequently, more Tutsis were killed (3.6.35.4.2).

6010. The Chamber recalls that after hearing Kanyabashi's announcements by megaphone in May and June 1994, the public understood that the "enemy" and "Inkotanyi" were Tutsis and they were to be killed, as further evidenced by the fact that after both megaphone announcements searches were conducted and more Tutsis were killed. The Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that these announcements constituted direct incitement to commit genocide.

6011. Further, because Kanyabashi circulated throughout Butare town addressing the general population, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi's announcements by megaphone in May and June 1994 were "public".

6012. The Chamber also considers Kanyabashi's spoken words encouraging the population to search for the "enemy" and "clear bushes", being references to killing Tutsis, evidences Kanyabashi had the requisite intent to destroy, in whole or in part, the Tutsi ethnic group.

6013. The Chamber finds that in so encouraging the population on two occasions in May and June 1994 Kanyabashi is individually criminally responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for inciting the population to cause the death and serious bodily and mental harm of Tutsi refugees in Butare, as provided in Article 2 (3)(c). Accordingly, the Chamber finds Kanyabashi guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

4.2.4.3.7 Distribution of Condoms, Early June 1994

6014. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko came to Cyarwa-Sumo secteur, Ngoma commune, in the beginning of June 1994 and distributed condoms for the Interahamwe, to be used in the raping and killing of Tutsi women in that secteur. The Chamber further found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the woman to whom she distributed the condoms to: "Go and distribute these condoms to your young men, so that they use them to rape Tutsi women and to protect themselves from AIDS, and after having raped them they should kill all of them. Let no Tutsi woman survive because they take away our husbands" (3.6.47.4).

6015. The Chamber observes that this is not a vague or indirect suggestion and cannot be considered ambiguous within the context of the rapes and parallel large-scale massacres being committed throughout Butare préfecture and Rwanda at this time.¹⁴⁷⁹⁸

¹⁴⁷⁹⁸ Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 692-693.

6016. However, the Chamber is not satisfied that the “public” element of this crime has been established. The evidence shows that Nyiramasuhuko directed her speech to one woman, in the presence of four other men. In order to possess the requisite mens rea for the crime of direct and public incitement, the audience must be much broader than that found in the present circumstance.¹⁴⁷⁹⁹ Here, Nyiramasuhuko’s statements are more akin to a “conversation”, consistent with the definition of private incitement found in the travaux préparatoires of the Genocide Convention.¹⁴⁸⁰⁰ There is no indication in the record that anyone other than those cited was present.

6017. The Chamber is therefore not satisfied that the evidence reasonably supports the Prosecution charge of direct and public incitement.

4.2.4.3.8 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

6019. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals, whom they believed to be Tutsi adults, and forced them to remain in Rwanda (3.6.45.4).

6020. There is insufficient evidence, however, that Nteziryayo incited genocide in relation to this event. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not discharged its burden of proof as to this charge of the Indictment.

6021. As for Ntahobali, the Chamber recalls that the Prosecution did not charge him with direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

4.2.4.3.9 Border Meetings in Muyaga and Kibayi Communes, Mid- to Late June 1994

6022. The Prosecution charges Nteziryayo with direct and public incitement to commit genocide, based on his speeches at the Muyaga and Kibayi commune meetings. Nteziryayo urged the audience to hunt down, flush out and kill Tutsis without any distinction. At the Kibayi commune meeting, Nteziryayo specifically incited the population to kill the remaining Tutsi survivors in the commune. As a result of the speeches, members of the population carried out searches and killed surviving Tutsis (3.6.34.4.3; 3.6.34.4.4). In light of this evidence, and considering the context of the killings in Butare préfecture at that time, the Chamber considers that Nteziryayo’s speeches constituted a direct appeal to kill Tutsis and could not have been considered ambiguous.

¹⁴⁸⁰⁰ Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), para. 159 (citing Nahimana et al., Judgement (TC), paras. 718-719).

6023. Nteziryayo made these speeches to large, fully public assemblies.

6024. The Chamber considers that Nteziryayo intended to directly and publicly incite members of the population in Muyaga commune and Kibayi commune to commit genocide, as confirmed by his encouraging words, spoken at these large gatherings. This in turn establishes Nteziryayo's genocidal intent.¹⁴⁸⁰¹

6025. The Chamber, therefore, finds Nteziryayo guilty of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide, for inciting the killing of Tutsis at the Muyaga commune and Kibayi commune meetings.

4.2.4.3.10 Ndayambaje's Swearing-in Ceremony and the Ensuing Abduction of Tutsi Girls, 22 June 1994

Swearing-in Ceremony

6026. On the occasion of Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, an event attended by the general population, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje told the population to continue with their "work" and urged them to "sweep the dirt outside", a reference to the killing of Tutsis, after which searches for Tutsis took place and killings followed (3.6.43.4).

6027. When considered in the context of the inter-ethnic killings prevalent in Rwanda in 1994, the war between the Tutsi-dominated Rwandan Patriotic Front rebels and the Hutu-dominated Rwandan Army, as well as considering the culture and language of Rwanda, the Chamber is satisfied that the audience understood the words of both Accused, namely "to work" and "sweeping dirt", to mean they needed to kill Tutsis. This was further evidenced by searches conducted and the killing of Tutsis after the ceremony. For this reason, the Chamber finds the Accused's words at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony were direct incitements to commit genocide. Given that these inciting statements were made at a ceremony attended by the population, the Chamber has no doubt that Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje made them publicly.

6028. In light of the substance of these statements, the context in which they were made, and the evidence as a whole, the Chamber has no doubt that both Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje possessed genocidal intent when they addressed the population. The Chamber is also satisfied that they intended to incite the population to commit genocide.

6029. The Chamber finds that in urging the population "to work" and "to sweep dirt outside" at Ndayambaje's swearing in ceremony, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje are criminally responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for inciting the population to cause the death and serious bodily and mental harm of Tutsi refugees in Butare. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje are guilty of committing direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

¹⁴⁸⁰¹ Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), para. 155; Bikindi, Judgement (AC), para. 135; Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 677.

Abduction of Tutsi Girls

6030. During the ensuing abduction of Tutsi girls, Ndayambaje came to the Statue of the Virgin Mary during the abduction and made it clear that the abductors were free to do what they wanted with the girls. According to Witness QAR's account, which the Chamber found to be credible, the abductors had waited for some time for Ndayambaje to arrive (3.6.44.4).

6031. The Chamber recalls that it has found Ndayambaje's actions at this event to constitute the instigation of genocide (4.2.2.3.21).

6032. The Chamber, however, cannot conclude that Ndayambaje's conduct satisfies the "public" element of the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide. In particular, the Chamber notes that Ndayambaje addressed only the abductors and not the general public.¹⁴⁸⁰² That the abductors specifically waited for Ndayambaje's instructions also provides evidence that they were not members of the general public, and that Ndayambaje would not have perceived them this way.

6033. Because this element of the crime has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of direct and public incitement to commit genocide in relation to this event.

4.2.4.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6034. Because the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko is responsible for direct and public incitement to commit genocide pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, the Chamber acquits her of this charge.

Nsabimana

6035. The Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nsabimana is responsible, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, for direct and public incitement to commit genocide. The Chamber therefore acquits him of this charge.

Nteziryayo

6036. For his speeches at the Muyaga and Kibayi commune meetings in June 1994, as well as for his speech at Ndayambaje's swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994, the Chamber finds Nteziryayo guilty of committing the crime of direct and public incitement to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

¹⁴⁸⁰² See Kalimanzira, Judgement (AC), paras. 159-165 (engaging in a conversation with persons at roadblocks did not qualify as "public", even in a circumstance where members of the general public were present); Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 862 (message intended only for individuals manning roadblocks, instead of for the general public, did not qualify as direct and public incitement to commit genocide).

Kanyabashi

6037. The Chamber has concluded that Kanyabashi's megaphone announcements on two occasions in May and June 1994, constituted direct and public incitement to commit genocide. Accordingly, the Chamber finds him guilty of committing this crime, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Ndayambaje

6038. Ndayambaje directly incited a crowd outside of Mugombwa Church to commit genocide on 20 and 21 April 1994. He also directly and publicly incited genocide at his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. The Chamber therefore finds Ndayambaje guilty of committing direct and public incitement to commit genocide, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3 Crimes Against Humanity4.3.1 Introduction

6039. The Accused are charged with extermination, murder, persecution and other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity under Article 3 (a), (b), (h) and (i) of the Statute. In addition, Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with rape as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (g) of the Statute. These charges comprise Counts 5 to 9 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Counts 5 to 8 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Kanyabashi Indictment and the Ndayambaje Indictment.

4.3.2 Widespread and Systematic Attack

6040. In order to constitute a crime against humanity under Article 3 of the Statute, the acts of an accused must be part of a widespread or systematic attack against any civilian population on national, political, ethnic, racial or religious grounds. An "attack against a civilian population" means the perpetration against a civilian population of a series of acts of violence, or of the kind of mistreatment referred to in subparagraphs (a) to (i) of Article 3. "Widespread" refers to the large-scale nature of the attack and the number of victims, whereas "systematic" refers to the organised nature of the acts of violence and the improbability of their random occurrence.¹⁴⁸⁰³

grounds" does not necessarily mean that the accused must have a discriminatory intent when committing the act.¹⁴⁸⁰⁴

6042. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber recalls that it has taken judicial notice that widespread or systematic attacks directed against a civilian population based on Tutsi ethnic identification occurred in Rwanda between April and July 1994 (2.9).¹⁴⁸⁰⁵ As mentioned above, however, this does not shift the burden of proof, which remains with the Prosecution.¹⁴⁸⁰⁶

6043. The Chamber has considered the evidence in its totality, especially as it relates to the ethnic composition of the persons who sought refuge throughout Butare préfecture, and who were targeted for attack. In the wake of the events of 19 April 1994 (3.5.4), Tutsis were either separated from Hutus prior to being attacked, or else were singled out and targeted in areas where Hutus were present. This attack continued for more than two months, and overwhelmed large segments of Butare and its inhabitants. The Chamber is convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that, starting on 20 April 1994, there was a widespread and systematic attack in Butare against Tutsis on the basis of their ethnicity.

6044. Given that many of these Tutsis were taking refuge, and considering the evidence as a whole, the Chamber is satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that this attack was directed against the civilian population.

6045. The Chamber also finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the acts perpetrated in relation to the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, IRST, BPO, Rwamukwaya Family, EER, Matyazo Clinic (J. Ramarason dissenting), Kabakobwa Hill, Mugombwa Church, Kabuye Hill, Ndayambaje's Swearing-in, the abduction of Tutsi girls, and the distribution of condoms constituted part of this widespread and systematic attack.

6046. Finally, taking into account the specific nature and duration of the attack, the Chamber has no doubt that the six Accused and the principal perpetrators of this prolonged attack knew that their acts formed part of this attack.

4.3.3 Extermination

4.3.3.1 Introduction

6047. The Accused are charged with extermination as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (b) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 6 of each Indictment.

¹⁴⁸⁰⁴ Gacumbitsi, Judgement (AC), paras. 86 (quoting Gacumbitsi, Judgement (TC), para. 302), 103; Semanza, Judgement (AC), paras. 268 (quoting Akayesu, Judgement (AC), para. 467), 269; Kordić & Čerkez, Judgement (AC), paras. 99-100; Blaškić, Judgement (AC), paras. 124, 126; Kunarac et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 102-103.

¹⁴⁸⁰⁶ Semanza, Judgement (AC), para. 192.

4.3.3.2 Law

6048. The crime of extermination is the act of killing on a large scale. The expression "on a large scale" does not, however, suggest a numerical minimum. The actus reus consists of any act, omission, or combination thereof which contributes directly or indirectly to the killing of a large number of individuals. The mens rea requires that the accused intend, by his or her acts or omissions, to kill or subject a number of people to conditions of living that would inevitably lead to death.¹⁴⁸⁰⁷

4.3.3.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6049. The Chamber has found that between 19 April and late June 1994, Nyiramasuhuko went to the Butare préfecture office to abduct hundreds of Tutsis. Tutsis taking refuge there were later killed in various locations throughout Ngoma commune (3.6.19.4.11). The Chamber considers that these killings occurred on a large scale.

6050. The Chamber has also found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of genocide for ordering the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office (4.2.2.3.13). Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds that the principal perpetrators possessed the intent to commit extermination, that Nyiramasuhuko knew of this intent, was in a position of authority when she ordered the killings, and that she intended that extermination be committed.

6051. The Chamber therefore finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nyiramasuhuko is guilty of ordering extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

6052. As for the allegation of superior responsibility in relation to these killings, the Chamber will take this into account in sentencing.

Ntahobali

6053. The Chamber has found Ntahobali guilty of genocide for: killing Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including a Tutsi girl who he had first raped (4.2.2.3.11); ordering the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo (4.2.2.3.11); ordering the killing of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST (4.2.2.3.5); ordering the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office (4.2.2.3.13); aiding and abetting the killing of the Rwamukwaya family (4.2.2.3.12); and aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsis abducted from the EER (4.2.2.3.14).

6054. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds that Ntahobali intended to commit extermination, and knew that other principal perpetrators also possessed this intent. The Chamber also considers that these killings, taken by themselves or collectively, occurred on a large scale.

¹⁴⁸⁰⁷ Rukundo, Judgement (AC), para. 185; Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 189; Brđanin, Judgement (AC), paras. 471, 476 (citing Brđanin, Judgement (TC), para. 395); Gacumbitsi, Judgement (AC), para. 86; Ndindabahizi, Judgement (AC), para. 135; Ntakirutimana & Ntakirutimana, Judgement (AC), paras. 516, 522.

6055. The Chamber therefore finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali is guilty of committing, ordering and aiding and abetting extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

6056. The Chamber will take Ntahobali's alleged superior responsibility into account in sentencing.

Nsabimana

6057. The Chamber has found that, after 19 April 1994, Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office were abducted by the hundreds and killed (3.6.19.4.11). The Chamber considers that these killings occurred on a large scale.

6058. The Chamber has found Nsabimana guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting by omission the killings that occurred at the Butare préfecture office (4.2.2.3.13). Based on this reasoning, the Chamber finds that the principal perpetrators intended to commit extermination, that Nsabimana knew of this intent, and that he substantially contributed to the extermination that occurred by failing to discharge his duty.

6059. The Chamber therefore finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Nsabimana is guilty of aiding and abetting by omission extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Nteziryayo

6060. The Chamber has acquitted Nteziryayo of genocide (4.2.2.4). For the same reasons, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo is responsible for extermination as a crime against humanity pursuant to either Article 6 (1) or 6 (3) of the Statute. The Chamber therefore acquits Nteziryayo of this crime.

Kanyabashi

6061. The Chamber has found that as a result of Kanyabashi's orders at Matyazo Clinic, many deaths occurred (4.2.2.3.9). Hundreds, if not thousands, of Tutsis were killed in the attack at Kabakobwa Hill (4.2.2.3.6). These killings undoubtedly occurred on a large scale.

6062. In relation to these killings of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic and at Kabakobwa Hill, the Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of genocide pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute (4.2.2.3.6; 4.2.2.3.9). Based on the same reasons, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility over soldiers at Matyazo Clinic in late April, and over Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994, and that his subordinates acted with the intent to exterminate Tutsis.

6063. Therefore, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Kanyabashi is guilty of extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

Ndayambaje

6064. The Chamber has found Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for aiding and abetting the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church (4.2.2.3.3) and Kabuye Hill (4.2.2.3.4), and instigating the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony (4.2.2.3.21).

6065. Based on this reasoning, the Chamber finds that Ndayambaje knew that other principal perpetrators possessed genocidal intent. The Chamber considers that these killings, taken by themselves or collectively, occurred on a large scale.

6066. Therefore, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje is guilty of instigating and aiding and abetting extermination as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3.4 Murder

4.3.4.1 Introduction

6067. The Accused are charged with murder as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (a) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 5 of each Indictment.

4.3.4.2 Law

6068. For the crime of murder to be established, it must be shown that a victim died and that the victim's death was caused by an act or omission. To satisfy the mens rea for murder, it is required that there was an act or omission, with the intention to kill or to inflict grievous bodily harm, in the reasonable knowledge that it might lead to death.¹⁴⁸⁰⁸

4.3.4.3 Cumulative Convictions

6069. Multiple criminal convictions based on the same conduct, but entered under different statutory provisions, are permissible only if each statutory provision involved has a materially distinct element not contained in the other.

6070. When comparing the crimes against humanity of murder and of extermination, the Appeals Chamber has found that murder as a crime against humanity does not contain a materially distinct element from extermination as a crime against humanity.¹⁴⁸⁰⁹ Accordingly, where the Chamber has entered a conviction for extermination as a crime against humanity, it will not consider the same underlying conduct as a basis for a conviction for murder as a crime against humanity.¹⁴⁸¹⁰

¹⁴⁸⁰⁸ Dragomir Milošević, Judgement (AC), para. 108 (quoting Dragomir Milošević, Judgement (TC), para. 931); see also Bagosora et al., Judgement (TC), para. 2169, fn. 2351.

¹⁴⁸⁰⁹ Ntakirutimana & Ntakirutimana, Judgement (AC), para. 542. The Appeals Chamber explained that the only element that distinguishes these offences is the requirement of extermination that the killings occur on a mass scale.

¹⁴⁸¹⁰ The Chamber has also taken into account the jurisprudence on cumulative convictions for other crimes; see, e.g., Stakić, Judgement (AC), paras. 359, 361-364 (persecution as a crime against humanity is not cumulative of the crimes against humanity of murder, extermination, and other inhumane acts); Semanza, Judgement (AC), paras. 368-369 (convictions for genocide, crimes against humanity, and serious violations of Article 3 common to

6071. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje guilty of extermination as a crime against humanity. In particular, the Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Nsabimana guilty of extermination in relation to the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber has also found Ntahobali guilty of extermination for: his role in the killing of Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including Léopold Ruvurajabo and a Tutsi girl who he first raped; at the IRST; of the Rwamukwaya family; and of Tutsis abducted from the EER. Kanyabashi is guilty of extermination in relation to the killing of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic and at Kabakobwa Hill. Ndayambaje is guilty of extermination for his role in the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church, at Kabuye Hill, and after his swearing-in ceremony (4.3.3.3).

6072. The Chamber therefore considers that Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje would also be responsible, in relation to these events, for murder as a crime against humanity. Recalling the law on cumulative convictions, however, the Chamber dismisses this charge as to these five Accused.

6073. As for Nteziryayo, the Chamber has found him not guilty of genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (4.3.3.3). For the same reasons, the Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of murder as a crime against humanity.

4.3.5 Rape

4.3.5.1 Introduction

6074. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with rape as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (g) of the Statute. Although Ntahobali is charged pursuant to both Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) of the Statute, Nyiramasuhuko is charged pursuant only to Article 6 (3) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 7 of their Indictment.

4.3.5.2 Law

6075. The actus reus of rape involves the non-consensual penetration, however slight, of the vagina or anus of the victim by the penis of the perpetrator or any other object used by the perpetrator, or of the mouth of the victim by the penis of the perpetrator. Consent for this purpose must be given voluntarily, as a result of the victim's free will, assessed in the context of the surrounding circumstances. The mens rea is the intention to effect this sexual penetration, and the knowledge that it occurs without the consent of the victim. Force or threat of force provides clear evidence of non-consent, but force is not an element per se of rape.¹⁴⁸¹¹ the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II, are not cumulative because each has a materially distinct element); Kordić & Čerkez, Judgement (AC), paras. 1032-1033, 1035-1044; Rutaganda, Judgement (AC), paras. 582-583; Musema, Judgement (AC), paras. 366-367; Delalić et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 412-413.

¹⁴⁸¹¹ Gacumbitsi, Judgement (AC), para. 151 (quoting Kunarac et al., Judgement (AC), paras. 127-129).

4.3.5.3 Deliberations

4.3.5.3.1 Hotel Ihuliro Roadblock, Late April 1994

6076. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto (4.2.2.3.11).

Ntahobali

6077. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali personally raped one Tutsi girl at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro, around the end of April 1994 (3.6.23.4.5). The Chamber is satisfied that Ntahobali intentionally committed this crime. Further, the Chamber considers the circumstances surrounding this offence, namely that before perpetrating the rape Ntahobali dragged the girl into the woods. It was also established that her dead body was later found with vaginal injuries.

6078. The Chamber is satisfied this event occurred without the consent of the victim. The Chamber also finds that Ntahobali intended to effect the sexual penetration in the knowledge that it occurred without this consent.

6079. The Chamber has already found that there was a widespread or systematic attack against the civilian population and that the Accused knew that their acts formed part of this attack (4.3.2).

6080. Therefore, the Chamber finds this offence constitutes rape as a crime against humanity, and that Ntahobali is responsible as a principal perpetrator for committing it.

6081. The Chamber recalls that it was also proven beyond a reasonable doubt that during the time when Ntahobali manned the roadblock, other crimes including rapes were committed against members of the Tutsi population (3.6.23.4.7).

6082. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali bore superior responsibility over the Interahamwe at this roadblock (4.2.2.3.11). However, because there is insufficient evidence to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the Interahamwe committed rapes at or near this roadblock, the Chamber does not find that Ntahobali is responsible as a superior for the rapes that occurred near this roadblock. This alleged responsibility, therefore, will not be taken into account in sentencing.

6083. The Chamber has also found that Nyiramasuhuko was present at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro on occasions during the period of time when crimes were carried out, but recalls that she was not found to be present when any crime was perpetrated there (3.6.23.4.8). Moreover, the evidence is insufficient to conclude that she played any role in relation to the rapes there, or that she bears superior responsibility for them.

6084. Therefore, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko not guilty of rape as a crime against humanity, in relation to the rapes carried out at the roadblock near Hotel Ihuliro.

4.3.5.3.2 Butare Préfecture Office (“BPO”), End of April – First Half of June 1994

6085. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at the Butare préfecture office for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto (4.2.2.3.13).

6086. The Chamber is satisfied that the rapes of Witness TA and many other unnamed Tutsi women at the BPO were conducted on ethnic grounds. The Chamber finds that Ntahobali bears responsibility as a principal perpetrator for committing these acts, for ordering Interahamwe to commit rapes, and also for aiding and abetting rapes. Similarly, the Chamber considers that Ntahobali bears superior responsibility for the rapes committed by the Interahamwe, and will take this into account in sentencing.

6087. Nyiramasuhuko was only charged with rape as a crime against humanity pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, which the Chamber considers to be a serious omission on the part of the Prosecution. The Chamber has already found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsi women at the BPO (3.6.19.4.11).

6088. Nyiramasuhuko had a superior-subordinate relationship with the Interahamwe who accompanied her to the BPO. Her effective control over them was evidenced by the fact that she brought them to the BPO with her son Ntahobali and the fact that her orders to rape were obeyed. She knew of, and failed to prevent or punish, these rapes. Therefore, Nyiramasuhuko bears responsibility as a superior for the rapes perpetrated by the Interahamwe at the BPO.

6089. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at or near the EER for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto (4.2.2.3.14).

6090. The Chamber has found that soldiers raped women and girls at or near the EER (3.6.36.4.3.6). Although Ntahobali was implicated in some of the attacks at the EER, it has not been established that he is responsible for rapes that occurred during this general time period. The Chamber has also found that Nyiramasuhuko’s alleged involvement in the events at the EER, including rapes, has not been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

4.3.5.3.4 Distribution of Condoms, Early June 1994

6091. The Chamber lacks sufficient reliable evidence to show a link between Nyiramasuhuko’s actions in distributing the condoms, and actual rapes committed against said Tutsi women. Therefore, the requirement of the commission of the actual crime, namely the rapes as a result of this distribution, has not been met in this instance. Therefore, the Chamber is not satisfied that the evidence reasonably supports the Prosecution charge of rape as a crime against humanity.

6092. Therefore, the Chamber does not find that these events constitute rape as a crime against humanity.

4.3.5.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6093. Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis at the Butare préfecture office, and bears responsibility as a superior for their rapes. The Chamber therefore finds her guilty of rape as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute.

Ntahobali

6094. Ntahobali raped a Tutsi girl near the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. He also raped Tutsi women at the Butare préfecture office, ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis, and aided and abetted the rapes of a Tutsi. For these acts, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting rape as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3.6 Persecution

4.3.6.1 Introduction

6095. The Accused are charged with persecution as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (h) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 8 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 7 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi, and Ndayambaje Indictments.

4.3.6.2 Law

6096. Persecution consists of an act or omission which discriminates in fact and which denies or infringes upon a fundamental right laid down in international customary or treaty law, and was carried out deliberately with the intention to discriminate on one of the protected grounds. This discriminatory intent requirement amounts to dolus specialis. But not every act of discrimination will constitute the crime of persecution; the underlying acts, considered in isolation or in conjunction with other acts, must be of gravity equal to the crimes listed under Article 3 of the Statute.¹⁴⁸¹²

6097. The enumerated grounds of discrimination for persecution in Article 3 (h) of the Statute do not expressly include ethnic grounds, which is included in the list of discriminatory grounds for the attack contained in the chapeau of Article 3. Notwithstanding, the Appeals Chamber in the Nahimana et al. case held that discrimination on ethnic grounds could constitute persecution if the accompanying violation of rights was sufficiently serious, such as killings, torture and rape. It affirmed a conviction for persecution based on the supervision of roadblocks where Tutsis were killed.¹⁴⁸¹³

4.3.6.3 Deliberations

4.3.6.3.1 Killings

6098. The Chamber has found that Nyiramasuhuko ordered the killings of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office, which constitutes genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (4.2.2.3.13; 4.3.3.3).

6099. Based on similar reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the principal perpetrators carried out their acts with discriminatory intent, and that Nyiramasuhuko knew of their intent. Nyiramasuhuko was in a position of authority when she ordered the killings, and she substantially contributed to them. These killings were serious violations of fundamental rights. The Chamber therefore finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

Ntahobali

6100. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali killed Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, including a Tutsi girl who he first raped; that he ordered the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo, the killing of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST, and the killing of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office; and that he aided and abetted the killing of the Rwamukwaya family and of Tutsis abducted from the EER. These acts constitute genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3).

6101. Based on this reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali and the principal perpetrators acted with discriminatory intent, and that the facts establish the various requirements for committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting these serious violations of fundamental rights. The Chamber therefore finds Ntahobali guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

Nsabimana

6102. The Chamber has found that Nsabimana aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at the Butare préfecture office by failing to discharge his duty. This constitutes genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (4.2.2.3.13; 4.3.3.3).

6103. Based on its earlier reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the principal perpetrators of these crimes acted with discriminatory intent, that Nsabimana knew of their discriminatory intent, and that his failure to discharge his duty substantially contributed to these killings. These crimes were serious violations of fundamental human rights, and the Chamber therefore finds Nsabimana guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

Nteziryayo

6104. Because the Chamber has found that Nteziryayo is not criminally responsible for any killings (4.2.2.4; 4.3.4.4), it will not consider whether he bears responsibility for persecution for these acts.

Kanyabashi

6105. The Chamber has found that Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for the killing of Tutsis at Matyazo Clinic by soldiers, and at Kabakobwa Hill by Ngoma commune police. These crimes constitute genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3).

6106. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility over soldiers at Matyazo clinic in late April, and over Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill on 22 April 1994, and that his subordinates acted with discriminatory intent. These crimes also amount to serious violations of fundamental human rights, and the Chamber therefore finds Kanyabashi guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

Ndayambaje

6107. The Chamber has found that Ndayambaje aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill, and instigated the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony. These crimes constitute genocide and extermination as a crime against humanity (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3).

6108. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that Ndayambaje and the principal perpetrators acted with discriminatory intent, and that the facts establish the various requirements for instigating and aiding and abetting the killings. These killings constitute serious violations of fundamental rights, and the Chamber finds that Ndayambaje is guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity.

4.3.6.3.2 Kabuye Hill, 20-24 April 1994

6109. The Chamber has already taken account of the killings that occurred at Kabuye Hill, and will now address whether Ndayambaje is also criminally responsible for the arrest and transportation of Tutsis to Kabuye Hill that preceded the attack.

6110. The Chamber has found that Ndayambaje, several armed soldiers and commune policemen arrested fleeing Tutsi refugees at Ngiryi Bridge and obliged them to return to Gisagara marketplace, and thereafter soldiers and policemen escorted the refugees on foot to Kabuye Hill (3.6.5.4.1). The Chamber considers that the interception and forced return of the refugees to Gisagara and then Kabuye Hill, when many refugees were trying to flee to Burundi, constitutes a denial of the right to freedom of movement, as cited by the Trial

Chamber in Bikindi.¹⁴⁸¹⁴ The right to freedom of movement both within one's country, and the right to leave one's country, are basic fundamental rights.¹⁴⁸¹⁵ The Chamber is further of the view that the forced return of the fleeing refugees may have violated their right to security.¹⁴⁸¹⁶

6111. While the Chamber recognises the importance of these rights, the Chamber recalls that, to qualify as persecution, their violation must be of similar gravity to other crimes against humanity enumerated in the Statute.

6112. Other crimes against humanity, pursuant to Article 3 of the Statute, include murder, extermination, enslavement, deportation, imprisonment, torture and rape.

6113. The Chamber is unable to conclude that the specific circumstances at issue here rise to a similar gravity as these other crimes against humanity. Because the arrest and later transportation of the Tutsis to Kabuye Hill, while serious, are not of comparable gravity to these enumerated crimes against humanity, the Chamber finds that they do not constitute persecution as a crime against humanity.

6114. In making this finding, the Chamber recalls that it has considered the killings of Tutsis at Kabuye Hill separately, and has found that these killings constitute persecution as a crime against humanity (4.3.6.3.2).

4.3.6.3.3 Rango Forest, June 1994

6115. As outlined above (4.2.2.3.6), the Chamber has determined that Kanyabashi did not possess de facto authority over the Interahamwe and thus a superior-subordinate relationship was not established. Further, the Chamber has found that the Prosecution failed to establish that Kanyabashi knew of the beatings and mistreatment of the refugees at Rango Forest and he was therefore not in a position to take measures to prevent or punish the perpetrators for the commission of such crimes (3.6.48.4.5).

6116. Therefore, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi does not bear superior responsibility over the Interahamwe for the persecution of the Tutsi refugees at Rango Forest.

4.3.6.3.4 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

6117. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals, whom they believed to be Tutsi adults, and forced them to remain in Rwanda (3.6.45.4).

6118. As discussed above (4.2.2.3.19), however, the Chamber has not heard any evidence of killings or other acts that may have been related to this incident.

6119. Without any further evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that the act of requiring 30 persons to remain in Rwanda is of similar gravity to other crimes against humanity listed in the Statute. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that this incident qualifies as persecution as a crime against humanity, or that Ntahobali or Nteziryayo are responsible for it.

4.3.6.4 Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6120. The Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of ordering persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Ntahobali

6121. The Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Nsabimana

6122. For failing to discharge his duty, the Chamber finds Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

Nteziryayo

6123. Because the Prosecution has not proven that Nteziryayo is criminally responsible for persecution as a crime against humanity, the Chamber acquits him of this charge.

Kanyabashi

6124. The Chamber finds Kanyabashi guilty of persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute for superior responsibility.

Ndayambaje

6125. The Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of instigating and aiding and abetting persecution as a crime against humanity, pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute.

4.3.7 Other Inhumane Acts

4.3.7.1 Introduction

6126. The Accused are charged with other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity under Article 3 (i) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 9 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 8 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi, and Ndayambaje Indictments.

4.3.7.2 Law

6127. The crime of other inhumane acts was deliberately designed as a residual category for sufficiently serious acts which are not otherwise enumerated in Article 3 of the Statute. For an act or an omission to be "inhumane" under this Article, the victim must have suffered serious bodily or mental harm or must have been the subject of a serious attack on human dignity. Moreover, the suffering must be the result of an act or omission of the accused or his or her subordinate, and the accused or subordinate must have been motivated by the intent to inflict serious bodily or mental harm upon the victim when the offence was committed.¹⁴⁸¹⁷

4.3.7.3 Deliberations

6128. The Chamber considers that many of the criminal acts in this case either fall squarely within other crimes against humanity enumerated above, or do not constitute crimes against humanity. The Chamber will address below only those events which might fall under the rubric of other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity.

4.3.7.3.1 Kabuye Hill, 20-24 April 1994

6129. The Chamber has found that on the night of 22 April 1994, after the attack that resulted in the death of a large number of Tutsi refugees, survivors of the attack at Kabuye Hill were guarded and prevented from escaping (3.6.5.4.2).

6131. However the Prosecution failed to lead any evidence as to Ndayambaje's role in the guarding of the Tutsi refugees on the night of 22 April 1994. As such, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of responsibility for the occurrence of other inhumane acts as crimes against humanity under Article 6 (1) on the basis of the current allegation. As the Prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Ndayambaje and the soldiers, commune policemen, civilians and Interahamwe at Kabuye Hill, the Chamber acquits Ndayambaje of responsibility under Article 6 (3) on the basis of the current allegation. In any event, the Prosecution also failed to lead any evidence that Ndayambaje knew or should have known of the acts of his alleged subordinates in this specific instance.

4.3.7.3.2 École Évangéliste du Rwanda ("EER"), Mid-May – Early June 1994

6132. The Chamber has found beyond a reasonable doubt that Ntahobali, soldiers and Interahamwe frequented the EER at night during the period from mid-May to the beginning June 1994, from where they abducted refugees and took them to a nearby forest where they were killed (3.6.36.4.3). Considering that the Interahamwe told the refugees "it was over for the Tutsis" and that very few of the abducted refugees returned to the EER, the Chamber considers the regular nightly visits and abductions inflicted great fear and psychological trauma among the refugees. The Chamber further accepted that at least some of the abducted refugees had been killed with clubs and machetes while they were naked, and that some bodies were decapitated (3.6.36.4.3.4). The Chamber finds this constituted serious bodily and mental harm.

¹⁴⁸¹⁷ Bagosora et al., Judgement (TC), para. 2218; Galić, Judgement (AC), paras. 155, 157; Stakić, Judgement (AC), paras. 315-316, 362; Kordić & Čerkez, Judgement (AC), para. 117.

Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali

6133. The Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.30 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, pled in support of the charge of other inhumane acts, alleges that “[t]he survivors [of attacks at the préfecture offices] were taken to various locations in the préfecture to be executed, notably in the woods next to the [EER]”.¹⁴⁸¹⁸ This paragraph provides no further information about any inhumane acts at the EER.

6134. Paragraph 6.31, also pled in support of other inhumane acts, alleges that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali “often forced [their victims] to undress completely before forcing them into vehicles and taking them to their deaths”.¹⁴⁸¹⁹ In the Chamber’s view, this serves as an example of sufficient notice that would suffice for the charge of other inhumane acts.

6135. Reading the Indictment as a whole, the Chamber concludes that the Indictment provides notice that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali allegedly forced their victims to undress, and that this constituted another inhumane act. To the extent the Prosecution intended to charge other acts against Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, the Chamber finds the Indictment to be defective by omitting these charges.

6136. The Chamber recalls that while it is possible to cure the vagueness of an indictment, omitted charges cannot be remedied.¹⁴⁸²⁰

6137. Therefore, the Chamber considers only the allegation that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali forced their victims to undress. As the Prosecution has not adduced sufficient evidence to support this allegation, the Chamber finds that Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali do not bear criminal responsibility in relation to these events.

Nsabimana

6138. The Chamber recalls Nsabimana is only charged with responsibility for acts that occurred at the EER pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute. As the Prosecution failed to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of a superior-subordinate relationship between Nsabimana and soldiers, the Chamber acquits Nsabimana of other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity on the basis of this allegation.

Kanyabashi

6139. The Chamber has found that the Prosecution failed to establish beyond a reasonable doubt Kanyabashi’s involvement, if any, in killings at the EER between mid-May and the beginning of June 1994. Consequently, the Chamber acquits Kanyabashi of any superior responsibility pursuant to Article 6 (1) and 6 (3) on the basis of this allegation.

4.3.7.3.3 Rango Forest, June 1994

6140. As outlined above, the Chamber has determined that Kanyabashi did not possess de facto authority over the Interahamwe and thus a superior-subordinate relationship was not established (4.2.2.3.6). Further, the Chamber has found that the Prosecution failed to establish that Kanyabashi knew of the beatings and mistreatment of the refugees at Rango Forest and he was therefore not in a position to take measures to prevent or punish the perpetrators for the commission of such crimes (3.6.48.4.5).

6141. Therefore, the Chamber finds that Kanyabashi does not bear superior responsibility over the Interahamwe for inhumane acts committed against the Tutsi refugees at Rango Forest.

4.3.7.3.4 Ntahobali and Nteziryayo Prevented the Evacuation of Tutsis, Mid-June 1994

6142. The Chamber has found that Ntahobali and Nteziryayo attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors and selected about 30 individuals, whom they believed to be Tutsi adults, and forced them to remain in Rwanda (3.6.45.4).

6143. As discussed above (4.3.6.3.4), the Chamber has not heard any evidence of killings or other acts that may have been related to this incident.

6144. Without further evidence, the Chamber cannot conclude that the act of requiring 30 persons to remain in Rwanda led to serious bodily or mental harm, or constituted a serious attack on human dignity. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that this incident qualifies as an inhumane act as a crime against humanity, or that Ntahobali or Nteziryayo are responsible for it.

4.3.7.4 Conclusion

6145. The Chamber finds that the Prosecution has not proven, beyond a reasonable doubt, that any of the Accused bear criminal responsibility for other inhumane acts as a crime against humanity. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits all six Accused of this charge.

4.4 Serious Violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II Thereto

4.4.1 Introduction

6146. The Accused are charged with violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, under Article 4 (a) of the Statute. In addition, Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, pursuant to Article 4 (e) of the Statute. These charges comprise Counts 10 and 11 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 9 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo Indictment, the Kanyabashi Indictment and the Ndayambaje Indictment.

4.4.2 Threshold Elements

6147. In connection with crimes within the scope of Article 4 of the Statute, the Prosecution must prove, as a threshold matter, the following elements: (1) the existence of a non-international armed conflict; (2) the existence of a nexus between the alleged offence and the armed conflict; and (3) that the victims were not taking any active part in the hostilities at the time of the alleged violation, and that the perpetrator knew or should have been aware of this.¹⁴⁸²¹

6148. The Ndayambaje Closing Brief, quoting the Akayesu Trial Judgement, contends that the Prosecution must also prove that the Accused acted as “a member of the armed forces under the military command of either of the belligerent parties”.¹⁴⁸²²

6149. The Chamber recalls, however, that the Appeals Chamber disagreed with this statement when the Judgement was appealed.¹⁴⁸²³ Accordingly, the Ndayambaje Defence’s contention is unfounded in law, and the Chamber will not consider it below.

4.4.2.1 Non-International Armed Conflict

6150. Preliminarily, the Chamber recalls that it has taken judicial notice that there was an armed conflict not of an international character in Rwanda between 1 January 1994 and 17 July 1994 (2.9). As stated above, the judicial notice of facts does not shift the burden of proof, which remains with the Prosecution.¹⁴⁸²⁴

6151. The Chamber has also taken judicial notice of the fact that the President of the Republic of Rwanda was killed when his plane was shot down on 6 April 1994 (2.9),¹⁴⁸²⁵ and has found that the Interim Government held numerous Cabinet meetings beginning on 9 April 1994 and lasting through 14 July 1994 (3.4.12.1).

6152. After considering the totality of evidence in this case, the Chamber has no doubt that a non-international armed conflict existed on Rwandan territory during the relevant period covered by the Indictments.

4.4.2.2 Nexus

6153. A nexus exists between the alleged offence and the armed conflict when they are closely related. The existence of an armed conflict must, at a minimum, have played a substantial part in the perpetrator’s ability to commit the offence, his or her decision to commit

¹⁴⁸²³ See Akayesu, Judgement (AC), paras. 431-445 (quoting the same language as quoted in the Ndayambaje Closing Brief, and concluding that “[i]n the opinion of the Appeals Chamber, it does not follow that the perpetrator of Article 3 must of necessity have a specific link with one of the above-mentioned Parties” and found that the “Trial Chamber erred ... by restricting the application of common Article 3 to a certain category of persons”).

it, the manner in which it was committed, or the purpose for which it was committed. If it can be established that the perpetrator acted in furtherance of or under the guise of the armed conflict, it would be sufficient to conclude that his or her acts were closely related to the armed conflict.¹⁴⁸²⁶

6154. In discussing the nexus requirement, the Appeals Chamber has stated that this element “would not be negated if the crimes were temporarily and geographically remote from the actual fighting. It would be sufficient, for instance, ... that the alleged crimes were closely related to hostilities occurring in other parts of the territories controlled by the parties to the conflict.”¹⁴⁸²⁷

6155. The Chamber has found that widespread killings of Tutsis did not occur in Butare préfecture prior to 19 April 1994, when Nsabimana was sworn in as préfet in a public ceremony (3.5.4.12). This ceremony featured inflammatory speeches which underlined the existence of war. In the context of the armed conflict with the RPF, words like “enemy” linked the speeches to the conflict. The speeches urged the people of Butare to take action against the “enemy” and their accomplices, which the Chamber has found referred to Tutsis. These speeches contributed to the commencement of widespread killings and large-scale massacres in Butare (3.5.4.12; 3.5.5). All of the events at issue occurred after this ceremony, and the Chamber considers that they all took place in the context of these inflammatory speeches, which in turn had referred to the armed conflict with the RPF.

6156. The Chamber also notes the near-universal role played by soldiers in the events. Soldiers are implicated in the events at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock (3.6.23.4.3), Matyazo Clinic (3.6.16.4), IRST (3.6.6.4), Kabakobwa Hill (3.6.8.5), Kabuye Hill (3.6.5.4), the Butare préfecture office (3.6.19.4.11) and the EER (3.6.36.4.3.6). Soldiers also manned various roadblocks throughout Butare, including the one near the corpses of the Rwamukwaya family (3.6.6.4; 3.6.24.3; 3.7.9.4.1). The Chamber considers that the implication of soldiers in these events provides further corroboration of the nexus to the armed conflict.

6157. Although it has not been established whether soldiers played any role in the attack on Mugombwa Church, the Chamber notes that prior to the attack, Ndayambaje told those taking refuge inside that they would be killed because they were accomplices of the Inkotanyi (3.6.4.4). The Chamber considers that this statement also corroborates that the ensuing attack on Mugombwa Church was linked to the armed conflict.

6158. The Chamber also considers that other events provide further context as to the nexus to the armed conflict. For example, the Interim Government held Cabinet meetings between 9 April and 14 July 1994, during which they issued instructions to encourage the population to take action against the “enemy” and its “accomplices”, both of which referred to Tutsis in general (3.4.12.2). Widespread killings and massacres commenced throughout Butare préfecture only after the swearing-in ceremony of Nsabimana on 19 April 1994, which featured inflammatory speeches referring to Tutsis as the “enemy” (3.5.4). The civil defence programme was used to train and arm civilians to locate infiltrators and accomplices, referring to Tutsis (3.7.10.4). Kanyabashi also used the terms “enemy” and “Inkotanyi” during his megaphone announcements in May and June 1994, which others understood to refer to Tutsis (3.6.35.4.2).

6159. After considering the evidence in its totality, the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference to be drawn is that the Accused and the perpetrators who committed these crimes in Butare préfecture after 19 April 1994 were either acting in furtherance of the armed conflict or under its guise. Accordingly, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the alleged violations of Article 4 of the Statute had the requisite nexus to the armed conflict.

4.4.2.3 Victims

6160. Many of the victims in this case, at the time they were killed or raped, were taking refuge throughout Butare préfecture. This includes the victims at the Matyazo Clinic (3.6.16.4), Mugombwa Church (3.6.4.4), Kabakobwa Hill (3.6.8.4.2.5; 3.6.8.5), Kabuye Hill (3.6.5.4.1), the Butare préfecture office (3.6.19.3.1) and the EER (3.6.36.4.2).

6161. Other victims were killed or raped near roadblocks. These include the victims at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock (3.6.23.4.5; 3.6.23.4.6) and those who were taken to the IRST to be massacred (3.6.6.4). The corpses of the Rwamukwaya family were also sighted near a roadblock (3.6.24.4).

6162. The Chamber considers that these victims were primarily civilians. Considering the evidence in its totality, the Chamber finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the victims were not taking an active part in the hostilities at the time of the alleged violations of Article 4 of the Statute.

4.4.3 Violence to Life, Health and Physical or Mental Well-Being of Persons

4.4.3.1 Introduction

6163. The Accused are charged with violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, under Article 4 (a) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 10 of the Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali Indictment, and Count 9 of the Nsabimana and Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi, and Ndayambaje Indictments.

4.4.3.2 Law

6164. Article 4 (a) of the Statute provides that the Tribunal has the power to prosecute persons who committed or ordered serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, including “[v]iolence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, in particular murder as well as cruel treatment such as torture, mutilation or any form of corporal punishment”.

6165. Murder requires an act or omission intended to kill or inflict grievous bodily harm, in the reasonable knowledge that it might lead to death, and that caused the death of another person.¹⁴⁸²⁸

4.4.3.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

Nyiramasuhuko

6166. Nyiramasuhuko ordered the killings of Tutsis who were taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber has found that this constitutes genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (4.2.2.3.13; 4.3.3.3; 4.3.6.3.1).

6167. The Chamber likewise finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty of ordering violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Ntahobali

6168. Ntahobali killed Tutsis at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblocks, including a Tutsi girl who he first raped; ordered the killing of a Tutsi named Léopold Ruvurajabo, of about 200 Tutsis at the IRST and of Tutsis taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office; and aided and abetted the killing of the Rwamukwaya family and the killing and serious bodily and mental harm of Tutsis abducted from the EER. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3; 4.3.6.4).

6169. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

6170. By failing to discharge his duty, Nsabimana aided and abetted the killings at the Butare préfecture office. The Chamber has found that this constitutes genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3; 4.3.6.4).

6171. Based on similar reasoning, the Chamber finds Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Nteziryayo

6172. The Prosecution has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Nteziryayo is criminally responsible for any killings or other acts of violence. Accordingly, the Chamber acquits Nteziryayo of the charge of violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Kanyabashi

6173. Kanyabashi bears superior responsibility for the killings of Tutsis by soldiers at Matyazo Clinic, and by Ngoma commune policemen at Kabakobwa Hill. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3; 4.3.6.4).

6174. The Chamber likewise finds Kanyabashi guilty, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, of violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Ndayambaje

6175. Ndayambaje aided and abetted the killing of Tutsis at Mugombwa Church on 20 and 21 April 1994 and at Kabuye Hill from 22 through 24 April 1994, and instigated the killing of Tutsis after his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute genocide and the crimes against humanity of extermination and persecution (4.2.2.4; 4.3.3.3; 4.3.6.4).

6176. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds Ndayambaje guilty of instigating and aiding and abetting violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons, as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

4.4.4 Outrages Upon Personal Dignity

4.4.4.1 Introduction

6177. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali are charged with outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, pursuant to Article 4 (e) of the Statute. This charge comprises Count 11 of their Indictment.

4.4.4.2 Law

6178. Article 4 (e) of the Statute provides that the Tribunal has the power to prosecute persons who committed or ordered serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, including “[o]utrages upon personal dignity, in particular humiliating and degrading treatment, rape, enforced prostitution and any form of indecent assault”.

6179. Outrages upon personal dignity are constituted by any act or omission which would be generally considered to cause serious humiliation, degradation or otherwise be a serious attack on human dignity. The mens rea requires only knowledge of the possible consequences of the charged act or omission.¹⁴⁸²⁹

4.4.4.3 Deliberations and Conclusion

6180. The Chamber recalls that it would not consider rapes at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, the Butare préfecture office, or the École Évangéliste du Rwanda for the count of genocide, but that it would address them under the counts of rape as a crime against humanity and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto (4.2.2.3.11; 4.2.2.3.13; 4.2.2.3.14).

6181. The Chamber also recalls that it did not find that Nyiramasuhuko was responsible for rapes at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock (4.3.5.3.1), and that neither Nyiramasuhuko nor Ntahobali were criminally responsible for the rapes committed by soldiers at the EER (4.3.5.3.3). The Chamber considers that the same reasoning applies here.

Nyiramasuhuko

6182. Nyiramasuhuko ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis at the Butare préfecture office (3.6.19.4.11). Although this could have been charged pursuant to Article 6 (1) of the Statute, the Chamber notes that Paragraph 6.37, concerning rapes, was pled only in support of Nyiramasuhuko's superior responsibility.¹⁴⁸³⁰ Under these circumstances, and taking into account the Chamber's discussion of this paragraph and of notice, above (4.2.2.3.13), the Chamber will only consider whether Nyiramasuhuko bears superior responsibility for events at the Butare préfecture office.

6183. The Chamber has found, in the context of rape as a crime against humanity, that Nyiramasuhuko bears superior responsibility for these events (4.3.5.3.2). For the same reasons, the Chamber finds Nyiramasuhuko guilty, pursuant to Article 6 (3) of the Statute, of outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

Ntahobali

6184. Ntahobali raped a Tutsi girl near the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock. He also raped Tutsi women at the Butare préfecture office, ordered Interahamwe to rape Tutsis there, and aided and abetted the rapes of a Tutsi there. The Chamber has found that these acts constitute rape as a crime against humanity (4.3.5.4).

6185. Based on the same reasoning, the Chamber finds Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

CHAPTER VI: SENTENCING

6.1 Introduction

6187. Having found Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje guilty of crimes under the jurisdiction of the Tribunal, the Chamber must determine appropriate sentences.

6.2 Law

6188. All crimes under the Tribunal's Statute are serious violations of international humanitarian law.¹⁴⁸³¹ When determining a sentence, a Trial Chamber has considerable, though not unlimited, discretion on account of its obligation to individualise penalties to fit the individual circumstances of an accused and to reflect the gravity of the crimes for which the accused has been convicted.¹⁴⁸³²

6189. The gravity of the offences committed is the deciding factor in the determination of the sentence.¹⁴⁸³³ Gravity entails the particular circumstances of the case, the form and degree of the participation of the accused in the crimes, and the number of victims.¹⁴⁸³⁴ It is not relevant, for the purpose of assessing gravity, that the crimes were committed in the accused's own préfecture, rather than at the national level.¹⁴⁸³⁵

6190. The Appeals Chamber has stated that "sentences of like individuals in like cases should be comparable".¹⁴⁸³⁶ However, similar cases do not provide a legally binding benchmark for sentences. Although assistance can be drawn from previous decisions, such assistance is often limited, as each case contains a multitude of variables.¹⁴⁸³⁷ In light of this, the Appeals Chamber has recognised that "[d]ifferences between cases are often more significant than similarities and different mitigating and aggravating circumstances might dictate different results".¹⁴⁸³⁸

6191. Pursuant to Article 23 of the Statute, and Rule 101 (B) of the Rules, the Chamber shall take into account the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of Rwanda, any aggravating circumstances, any mitigating circumstances, and the extent to which the convicted person has already served any penalty imposed by a court of any State for the same act. These factors are not exhaustive.¹⁴⁸³⁹

¹⁴⁸³⁹ Seromba, Judgement (AC), para. 228; Nahimana et al., Judgement (AC), para. 1038; Kajelijeli, Judgement (AC), para. 290.

6192. Under Rwandan law, similar crimes as those at issue here carry the possible penalty of life imprisonment, depending on the nature of the accused's participation.¹⁴⁸⁴⁰

6193. Aggravating circumstances need to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.¹⁴⁸⁴¹ The Chamber may only consider aggravating circumstances that are pled in the indictment,¹⁴⁸⁴² and any circumstance that is included as an element of the crime for which an individual is convicted will not be considered as an aggravating factor.¹⁴⁸⁴³

6194. The Appeals Chamber has listed various factors which, if proven beyond a reasonable doubt, may qualify as aggravating circumstances. These include the position of the accused, the length of time during which the crime continued, premeditation, the active participation of a superior in the criminal acts of subordinates, the sexual and violent nature of the acts, the vulnerability of the victims, the status of the victims, and the circumstances of the offences generally.¹⁴⁸⁴⁴

6195. A particularly large number of victims can also be an aggravating circumstance. This is true even for extermination as a crime against humanity, which requires "killing on a large scale", so long as the extent of the killings exceeds that required for extermination.¹⁴⁸⁴⁵

6196. In circumstances where the Chamber has not found alleged superior responsibility beyond a reasonable doubt, the Chamber may consider an individual's influence as an aggravating circumstance.¹⁴⁸⁴⁶ Similarly, while a position of authority does not automatically warrant a harsher sentence, the abuse of such a position may constitute an aggravating factor. This remains the case even where the Chamber has taken this authority into account in finding responsibility as a superior.¹⁴⁸⁴⁷

victims.¹⁴⁸⁴⁹ Selective assistance of Tutsis may be given only limited weight as a mitigating factor.¹⁴⁸⁵⁰

6198. An absence of mitigating factors does not require the maximum sentence,¹⁴⁸⁵¹ while the existence of mitigating factors does not preclude a life sentence where the gravity requires that the maximum sentence be imposed.¹⁴⁸⁵² There is no category of case where a life sentence is required, nor a category where a life sentence is barred.¹⁴⁸⁵³

6199. Rule 86 (C) of the Rules states that “[t]he parties shall also address matters of sentencing in closing arguments”, and it is therefore the accused’s prerogative to identify any mitigating circumstances at the time. As a general rule, if an accused fails to put forward relevant information at the appropriate time, the Chamber is not under an obligation to seek out such information.¹⁴⁸⁵⁴ The Defence teams generally declined, to various extents, to make submissions concerning sentencing.¹⁴⁸⁵⁵ Nevertheless, the Chamber will consider any mitigating circumstances in the interests of justice.

6.3 Nyiramasuhuko

6200. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of conspiracy to commit genocide, genocide, rape as a crime against humanity, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and two separate counts of serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

6.3.1 Submissions

6201. The Prosecution submits that Nyiramasuhuko’s crimes place her in the category of the most serious offenders.¹⁴⁸⁵⁶ The Prosecution requests that Nyiramasuhuko be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.¹⁴⁸⁵⁷ It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.¹⁴⁸⁵⁸

6202. The Prosecution argues that Nyiramasuhuko held one of the highest positions in the country as Minister for Family and Women’s Affairs in the Interim Government during the events. One of her roles was to protect the population. Instead, she caused an inconceivable number of deaths in Butare préfecture as result of her direct participation in elaborating and executing the plan of genocide.¹⁴⁸⁵⁹ It stresses that the crimes in which Nyiramasuhuko took part were heinous.¹⁴⁸⁶⁰

6203. The Prosecution underscores that there are no mitigating circumstances for Nyiramasuhuko that would justify a lesser sentence than the maximum penalty.¹⁴⁸⁶¹

6204. The Defence submits that Nyiramasuhuko has been unreasonably detained for the last 12 years in Arusha and that this fact should be taken into account while determining her sentence in case of conviction.¹⁴⁸⁶²

6.3.2 Gravity of the Offences

6205. The Chamber has found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of conspiracy to commit genocide. The Chamber has also found Nyiramasuhuko guilty of genocide, crimes against humanity and serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto, with respect to her involvement in various crimes including rape, abduction and killing of Tutsis committed at the Butare préfecture office between 19 April 1994 and late June 1994. The Chamber notes in particular the seriousness and atrocity of crimes repetitively perpetrated at the Butare préfecture office throughout a period of time where hundreds of Tutsis were abducted, raped and killed.

6.3.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6206. The Chamber considers the vast number of victims, far in excess of the threshold for extermination as a crime against humanity, to be an aggravating circumstance.

6207. The Appeals Chamber has held that an accused's abuse of his or her superior position or influence may be considered as an aggravating factor.¹⁴⁸⁶³ In the Chamber's view, Nyiramasuhuko's position as Minister for Family and Women's Affairs during the events made her a person of high authority, influential and respected within the country and especially in Butare préfecture from where she hails. Instead of preserving the peaceful co-existence between communities and the welfare of the family, Nyiramasuhuko, on a number of occasions, used her influence over Interahamwe to commit crimes such as rape and murder. This abuse of general authority vis-à-vis the assailants is an aggravating factor.

¹⁴⁸⁶³ Simba, Judgement (AC), paras. 284-285.

¹⁴⁸⁶⁴ Semanza, Judgement (AC), paras. 337-338.

6209. The Chamber has considered Nyiramasuhuko's background and individual circumstances. In mitigation, the Chamber notes Nyiramasuhuko's service as a Government minister since 1992.¹⁴⁸⁶⁵ The Chamber notes as well her long service in the Ministry of Health.¹⁴⁸⁶⁶ These mitigating factors are, however, of a very limited weight, given the gravity of the crimes committed by Nyiramasuhuko.

6.4 Ntahobali

6210. The Chamber has found Ntahobali guilty of committing, ordering, and aiding and abetting genocide, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and violence to life, health and physical or mental well-being of persons as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber has also found Ntahobali guilty of committing and ordering rape as a crime against humanity, and outrages upon personal dignity as a serious violation of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto.

6.4.1 Submissions

6211. The Prosecution submits that Ntahobali's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.¹⁴⁸⁶⁷ The Prosecution requests that Ntahobali be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.¹⁴⁸⁶⁸ It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.¹⁴⁸⁶⁹

6212. The Prosecution submits that the crimes that Ntahobali and his subordinates committed were of the most serious gravity. They were deliberate, unprovoked and brutal; they were aimed at vulnerable Tutsi civilians who were not participating in any hostilities.¹⁴⁸⁷⁰

6214. The Defence submits that the absence of cooperation between the Accused and the Prosecution and the gravity of the crime, among others, should not be considered as aggravating factors. In any event, Ntahobali's acceptance to be interviewed suffices as an indicator of his desire or will to cooperate.¹⁴⁸⁷⁴

¹⁴⁸⁷⁴ Ntahobali Closing Argument, T. 23 April 2009 p. 54.

6.4.2 Gravity of the Offences

6217. The Chamber considers that these crimes are of the utmost gravity. These crimes were not isolated instances, but occurred in various parts of Butare préfecture, throughout a significant period of time. In particular, the Chamber notes the seriousness and atrocity of crimes repetitively perpetrated at the Butare préfecture office, where hundreds of Tutsis were abducted, raped and killed.

6.4.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6218. The Chamber considers the vast number of victims, far in excess of the threshold for extermination as a crime against humanity, to be an aggravating circumstance.

6220. The Chamber also recalls that Ntahobali's responsibility as a superior at the Hotel Ihuliro roadblock, in relation to the Butare préfecture office, and at the EER are to be considered in sentencing.

6221. The Chamber notes Ntahobali's young age during the events, the fact that he is father of three young children, and any good character before these events can be considered as mitigating factors in his favour. The Chamber concludes, however, that these are of very limited weight. Of greater weight as a mitigating circumstance is that Ntahobali voluntarily surrendered himself to the jurisdiction of the Tribunal.

6222. Despite the weight accorded to these mitigating circumstances, the Chamber considers that they pale in comparison to the sheer gravity of Ntahobali's crimes, even before aggravating circumstances are taken into account.

¹⁴⁸⁷⁵ Ntahobali Closing Argument, T. 23 April 2009 pp. 54-55, 57-58.

6.5 Nsabimana

6223. The Chamber has found Nsabimana guilty of aiding and abetting genocide, crimes against humanity, and serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must now determine an appropriate sentence.

6.5.1 Submissions

6224. The Prosecution submits that Nsabimana's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.¹⁴⁸⁷⁶ The Prosecution requests that Nsabimana be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.¹⁴⁸⁷⁷ It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.¹⁴⁸⁷⁸

6225. According to the Prosecution, aggravating factors include Nsabimana's position as préfet, his breach of trust, the vulnerability and suffering of the victims, the duration of the offences, and his abuse of authority by failing to utilise his power under the law to protect and defend the people of Butare préfecture.¹⁴⁸⁷⁹

6226. The Prosecution further submits that any mitigating factors are countered by Nsabimana's self-serving demeanour. His assistance of persons taking refuge and his evacuation of orphans should be seen as a further aggravating factor as they show that Nsabimana had the power to save lives and simply chose to save a few. There are also no mitigating factors. Accordingly, the Prosecution argues that he should be sentenced to life imprisonment on each count in his Indictment.¹⁴⁸⁸⁰

6227. The Nsabimana Defence submits that mitigating factors include the circumstances surrounding Nsabimana's appointment as préfet of Butare and his obligation to accept the post, his attempt to stem the wave of killings, and the evidence that he never participated actively in the killings.¹⁴⁸⁸¹ The Defence submits that albeit with enormous difficulties, Nsabimana conceived and enabled the evacuation to Burundi of close to a thousand, if not more, Tutsis and other persons, including children and that he organised several other discrete and individual evacuations with foreign dignitaries. He protected some Tutsi individuals and their families in his home and elsewhere in the préfecture, helping and providing better protection for the lives of some Rwandan Tutsis and Hutus alike through food, medical facilities and drugs.¹⁴⁸⁸² The Defence submits that he deserves extensive mitigating circumstances, as he was able to save several human lives irrespective of ethnicity in an atmosphere of terror and at risk to his own life.¹⁴⁸⁸³

¹⁴⁸⁸³ Nsabimana Closing Brief, paras. 1879, 1997, 2000.

6228. Furthermore, the Interim Government placed Nsabimana on its list of accomplices and he was consequently dismissed under humiliating conditions. The Defence submits that Nsabimana expressed regrets, that he wilfully presented himself for trial, where his conduct was good as he did not obstruct justice in any way, that he has exhibited exemplary conduct in detention, and that he condemned the massacres that were committed.¹⁴⁸⁸⁴

6.5.2 Gravity of the Offences

6229. The Chamber has determined that, between 19 April 1994 and 17 June 1994, Nsabimana was préfet of Butare, and as such was the highest authority in the préfecture. In this regard, there is no doubt that he was a very prominent person in Butare préfecture at this time. For a period of almost two months, numerous persons participated in a campaign of abductions, rapes and slaughter that targeted Tutsi civilians, including those who were particularly vulnerable, taking refuge at the Butare préfecture office.

6230. The Chamber has not found that Nsabimana was a direct perpetrator in any massacre or killing perpetrated in Butare préfecture, or that he ordered or was in any other way directly associated with any given attack. Nevertheless, the magnitude of human devastation could only have occurred because he failed to discharge his legal duty. Nsabimana's position as préfet imposed upon him a duty to act to protect those vulnerable people within his realm. His omission in this regard at the Butare préfecture office, despite his knowledge that these acts were occurring around him, was central to the crimes that resulted.

6.5.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6231. The victims of the attacks at the Butare préfecture office were particularly vulnerable. The Chamber considers this as an aggravating circumstance. The Chamber notes, however, that other potentially aggravating factors have not been proven in Nsabimana's case, including any active criminal participation and premeditation.

on different occasions during the relevant time, including facilitating the evacuation of approximately 600 children from Group Scolaire.¹⁴⁸⁸⁷

6233. The Chamber further considers Nsabimana's expression of remorse¹⁴⁸⁸⁸ and his comportment in detention.¹⁴⁸⁸⁹

6.6 Nteziryayo

6234. The Chamber has found Nteziryayo guilty of committing direct and public incitement to commit genocide.

6.6.1 Submissions

6235. The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.¹⁴⁸⁹⁰ The Prosecution requests that Nteziryayo be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.¹⁴⁸⁹¹ It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.¹⁴⁸⁹²

6236. The Prosecution submits that Nteziryayo was a person of considerable influence in Butare préfecture. He made it to the higher ranks of military command in the Rwandan Armed Forces, which would have commanded respect and even awe. Instead of harnessing this influence to put an end to the killings, he actively trained, armed and led civilians so they could be more effective killers.

6237. The Prosecution submits Nteziryayo was directly responsible for the killing of innocent people, who had entrusted their lives to him as their préfet. His premeditation and his direct participation as a perpetrator, should serve as aggravating factors. It submits that there are no mitigating circumstances, as any assistance he may have proffered to Tutsis was overshadowed by his self-serving motives to evacuate his own family and by his failure to garner his power to save more. Accordingly, the Prosecution submits that he should be sentenced to imprisonment for the remainder of his life.¹⁴⁸⁹³

6238. The Nteziryayo Defence submits that Nteziryayo's actions in saving Tutsis and protecting ordinary citizens, nuns, monks, bishops and others, should be considered in mitigation. It asserts that Nteziryayo has been detained for over 11 years and that his health problems should be factored into his sentencing as mitigation.¹⁴⁸⁹⁴

6239. The Chamber has found that Nteziryayo incited the population to kill Tutsis at meetings. He was not a direct perpetrator in any massacre or killing perpetrated in Butare préfecture.

6240. The Chamber has determined that Nteziryayo had a leadership role in the civil defence programme in Butare préfecture, and that he was later sworn in as préfet of Butare, on 17 June 1994. As such, he exerted considerable authority and power in Butare préfecture at this time. During this period, soldiers and civilian militiamen participated in a widespread and systematic campaign of slaughter and targeted Tutsi civilians, including those who were particularly vulnerable, as well as Hutu moderates.

6.6.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6241. In aggravation, the Chamber has considered Nteziryayo's role as leader of the civil defence programme and his position as préfet of Butare préfecture. Given his high profile position, Nteziryayo's active incitement and encouragement of the public to commit genocide demonstrates the abuse of his position.¹⁴⁸⁹⁵ This constitutes an aggravating factor.

6242. The Chamber has already discussed the background and individual circumstances of Nteziryayo. It has taken into account his selective assistance to some Tutsis in Butare préfecture during this period, including Egide Gatera and his wife Rose Umulisa, who he welcomed into his house and helped evacuate to Burundi, as well as, among others, six seminarians of Mbazi, in cooperation with Father Vieckoslav.¹⁴⁸⁹⁶ The Chamber has assessed his efforts to facilitate the evacuation of orphans on 18 June 1994 and 3 July 1994 respectively. It is mindful of Nteziryayo's endeavours in relation to the protection of Bishop Gahamanyi, a Tutsi, and other priests, Tutsi nuns and monks at the Karubanda minor seminary, and religious personalities in Save, including the Tutsi parish of Father Calver Rahundi and the Mother Superior of the Benebikira sisters, where many Tutsi refugees had sought sanctuary.¹⁴⁸⁹⁷ In the Chamber's view, this selective assistance carries only limited weight as a mitigating factor.

6243. The Chamber has assessed these mitigating factors presented. However, helping a handful of Tutsi civilians does not outweigh the gravity of the crimes for which Nteziryayo has been charged.¹⁴⁸⁹⁸ In the Chamber's view, the gravity of the crimes and the aggravating factors negate any mitigating factors.

6244. The Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of genocide, direct and public incitement to commit genocide, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity and serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

6.7.1 Submissions

6245. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.¹⁴⁸⁹⁹ The Prosecution requests that Kanyabashi be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.¹⁴⁹⁰⁰ It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.¹⁴⁹⁰¹

6246. The Prosecution submits that Kanyabashi's crimes constitute the most serious offences known to law. They were committed in a cold, premeditated and brutal manner; they were directed against thousands of vulnerable and innocent people, who had entrusted their lives to Kanyabashi as he was their bourgmestre.¹⁴⁹⁰²

6247. The Prosecution submits that, as the bourgmestre of one of the most modern and powerful communes of Rwanda, Kanyabashi wielded powers and influence by virtue of his position. He held de jure powers over the conseillers and policemen in Ngoma commune, and de facto powers over soldiers and commune police. Kanyabashi abused his position to encourage and instigate his subordinates to commit the most atrocious crimes upon their fellow citizens, and he betrayed the confidence and trust of his own people by leading the killers and organising the massacres.¹⁴⁹⁰³

6248. The Prosecution submits that evidence adduced at trial demonstrates that Kanyabashi planned, led and directly participated in the killings carried out at various locations in Ngoma commune, including Kabakobwa and Matyazo Clinic. Kanyabashi wilfully and knowingly ordered the killing of thousands of innocent civilians based solely on their ethnicity.¹⁴⁹⁰⁴

6249. The Prosecution underscores that Kanyabashi did not surrender to the Tribunal. It further submits that Kanyabashi has not, at any time, cooperated with the Prosecution, has not shown any remorse or acknowledged his guilt for the crimes committed. Therefore, no evidence of mitigating circumstances exists in the case of Kanyabashi.¹⁴⁹⁰⁵

6250. The Kanyabashi Defence does not make any submission in relation to sentencing,¹⁴⁹⁰⁶ however, throughout its Closing Brief it refers to a series of factors that might be considered as mitigating circumstances by the Chamber in determining a sentence against Kanyabashi.

¹⁴⁹⁰⁵ Prosecution Closing Brief, pp. 546-547, paras. 110-111.

¹⁴⁹⁰⁶ Kanyabashi Closing Brief, para. 666.

6251. The Kanyabashi Defence underscores Kanyabashi's purported good character. It submits that in 1991, Kanyabashi earned the nickname of Kanyabatutsi because he was considered a friend of the Tutsis and he did not have any discriminatory tendency.¹⁴⁹⁰⁷

6252. The Kanyabashi Defence submits there is clear evidence of Kanyabashi's efforts to stop the killings and call for peace on several occasions between April and June 1994. In particular, it submits that Kanyabashi's actions show that he did everything in his power to forestall the massacres from spreading to Ngoma commune, by establishing blockades at the commune's periphery; by organising meetings with civilians, bringing together the entire population; and also meetings with policemen, where they were instructed not to take part in the killings, to resist the assailants, to collaborate with the population without any distinction, to provide security and assistance to the entire population, to help and rescue targeted persons and allow refugees into the commune.¹⁴⁹⁰⁸

6253. The Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of genocide pursuant to Article 6 (3) for the massacres at Matyazo Clinic and Kabakobwa Hill. Based upon these events, the Chamber has also found Kanyabashi guilty of extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and of serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. Finally, the Chamber has found Kanyabashi guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide for his megaphone announcements in May and June 1994. The Chamber considers that all these crimes are of an obvious gravity resulting in a significant number of casualties in terms of death and injuries.

6.7.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6254. The Chamber considers the number of victims resulting from the killings at Matyazo and Kabakobwa as an aggravating factor in relation to Kanyabashi's conviction.¹⁴⁹⁰⁹ In addition, the Chamber considers Kanyabashi's direct role in the Matyazo massacres, along with the position of authority he held over the physical perpetrators. The Chamber notes that Kanyabashi abused his position of authority in committing this crime, which amounts to an aggravating factor.

6255. The Chamber notes as well that as bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Kanyabashi was an influential, respected figure in Butare. This aggravating factor is particularly significant in light of Kanyabashi's convictions for direct and public incitement to commit genocide. Rather than using his influence to stem the tide of the massacres occurring in his commune, Kanyabashi used his status and influence to further these tremendous crimes. The Chamber considers this abuse of authority as an aggravating factor.

6256. The Chamber has considered Kanyabashi's background and individual circumstances. It takes into account Kanyabashi's purported good character and his 20 years of service as a bourgmestre. It further considers the evidence indicative of Kanyabashi's efforts, on occasions, to stop the massacres from spreading and to assist the refugees. However, these mitigating elements are of limited weight compared to the gravity of the crimes for which Kanyabashi has been convicted.

6.8 Ndayambaje

6257. The Chamber has found Ndayambaje guilty of genocide, direct and public incitement to commit genocide, extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity and serious violations of Article 3 Common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber must determine an appropriate sentence.

6.8.1 Submissions

6258. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje's crimes place him in the category of the most serious offenders.¹⁴⁹¹⁰ The Prosecution requests that Ndayambaje be sentenced to the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for each count of the Indictment upon which a finding of guilt is based.¹⁴⁹¹¹ It submits that by imposing a sentence on each count, the Chamber will assist in deterring other potential offenders.¹⁴⁹¹²

6259. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje was directly responsible for the killing of thousands of innocent people. He committed these crimes in a cold, pre-meditated, and brutal manner. He abused the authority that was entrusted to him to protect and defend the people of Muganza. He had the ability to prevent and punish the perpetrators, however he chose not to, and instead he was in the forefront in the organisation of the killings and directing them.¹⁴⁹¹³

6260. The Prosecution further submits that Ndayambaje had tremendous influence over Muganza commune in his capacity as de jure bourgmestre for so many years and then as de facto bourgmestre who was later reappointed. He used his political powers by virtue of his position to encourage and instigate his subjects to commit the most atrocious crimes upon their fellow citizens, and spearheaded massacres against Tutsis.¹⁴⁹¹⁴

6261. As aggravating circumstances, the Prosecution suggests Ndayambaje's position as bourgmestre and his breach of trust, his premeditation, his direct participation as a perpetrator, the violent and humiliating nature of his acts and the vulnerability of the victims, and the duration of the offences and suffering of his victims.¹⁴⁹¹⁵

6262. The Prosecution argues that an influential person in the community such as Ndayambaje should be held to a higher standard because he violated the trust placed in him.¹⁴⁹¹⁶ The Prosecution contends that Ndayambaje betrayed the confidence and trust of his people by leading the killers and organising the massacres. According to the Prosecution, such betrayal constitutes a gravely aggravating factor.¹⁴⁹¹⁷

¹⁴⁹¹⁰ Prosecution Closing Brief, p. 3, para. 7.

6263. The Prosecution submits that Ndayambaje was a willing participant who knowingly ordered the killing of thousands of innocent civilians based solely on their ethnicity. Ndayambaje not only planned the massacres but also directly participated in some of them. This is a seriously aggravating factor. The Prosecution underscores that the Tutsi victims of Ndayambaje's crimes were killed in the most atrocious manner.¹⁴⁹¹⁸

6264. The Prosecution concludes that no evidence of any mitigating circumstances exists in the case of Ndayambaje. He did not cooperate with the Prosecution, did not show any remorse for his crimes and did not surrender.¹⁴⁹¹⁹

6265. The Defence submits that in case of conviction, Ndayambaje should benefit from the broadest mitigating circumstances, taking into account everything that emerged from this trial relating to his personality and the circumstances under which he experienced the extremely difficult events from April to June 1994.¹⁴⁹²⁰

6.8.2 Gravity of the Offences

6266. The Chamber has found Ndayambaje guilty of genocide for his direct participation in the massacres at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill in April 1994, and for his role in the ensuing killings of Tutsis in Muganza commune following an inciting speech he made during his swearing-in ceremony on 22 June 1994. Based upon his participation in these events, the Chamber has also found Ndayambaje guilty of extermination and persecution as crimes against humanity, and of serious violations of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II thereto. The Chamber has also found Ndayambaje guilty of direct and public incitement to commit genocide at Mugombwa Church and at his swearing-in ceremony. It is difficult to find befitting words to describe the gravity of these offences which led to a loss of life on a massive scale and caused immense human suffering.

6.8.3 Individual, Aggravating and Mitigating Circumstances

6267. The Chamber considers that the number of victims, which far surpasses the threshold for extermination, is an aggravating factor.¹⁴⁹²¹ The Chamber recalls that hundreds, if not thousands, of predominantly Tutsis who took refuge at Kabuye Hill and at Mugombwa Church perished following days of intensified attacks.

6268. The Chamber notes as well that Ndayambaje was an influential, respected figure in Butare. Ndayambaje had been bourgmestre of Muganza commune between 1983 and 1992, prior to his participation in the attacks at Mugombwa Church and Kabuye Hill. Furthermore, he committed genocide and incitement to commit genocide both before and after his reinstatement as bourgmestre in June 1994. Ndayambaje used his status and influence to further these grave crimes. The Chamber considers this abuse of authority as an aggravating factor.

¹⁴⁹²⁰ Ndayambaje Closing Brief, para. 1025.

6270. The Chamber has considered Ndayambaje's background and individual circumstances. The Chamber notes in particular the propriety of Ndayambaje's first tenure as bourgmestre between 1983 and October 1992. Witnesses described him as an honest man who was concerned about the welfare of the people and the agricultural sector. At that time, there was no ethnic tension in Muganza commune and no favouritism towards any specific ethnic group.¹⁴⁹²² The Chamber also notes that during the events in May 1994, Ndayambaje accommodated two Tutsis in his home.¹⁴⁹²³ However, the Chamber accords these mitigating circumstances very limited weight in view of the gravity of Ndayambaje's crimes and the nature of his involvement in them.

6.9 Conclusion

6271. The Chamber has the discretion to impose a single sentence, and it chooses to do so in this case.

Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Pauline Nyiramasuhuko to life imprisonment.

Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Shalom Ntahobali to life imprisonment.

Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Sylvain Nsabimana to 25 years' imprisonment.

Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Alphonse Nteziryayo to 30 years' imprisonment.

Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Joseph Kanyabashi to 35 years' imprisonment.

Considering all the relevant circumstances discussed above, the Chamber SENTENCES Élie Ndayambaje to life imprisonment.

ANNEX A: PROCEDURAL HISTORY

1.1 Pre-Trial Proceedings

1.1.1 Arrest Through Initial Appearance

1.1.1.1 Joseph Kanyabashi (1995 – 1999)

6276. Joseph Kanyabashi was arrested in Belgium on 28 June 1995.¹⁴⁹²⁵ On 11 January 1996, Trial Chamber II (the “Chamber”) issued a Decision requesting that the Kingdom of Belgium defer any pending criminal proceedings against Kanyabashi in favour of the competence of the Tribunal.¹⁴⁹²⁶

6277. On 11 July 1996, the Prosecution proffered an Indictment against Kanyabashi.¹⁴⁹²⁷ On 15 July 1996 Judge Yakov Ostrovsky confirmed the Indictment¹⁴⁹²⁸ and issued an Order directing the Kingdom of Belgium to transfer Kanyabashi to the United Nations Detention Facility (“UNDF”).¹⁴⁹²⁹ He was transferred to the UNDF on 8 November 1996.¹⁴⁹³⁰

6278. On 29 November 1996, Kanyabashi made his initial appearance before the Chamber. In default of a pleading by Kanyabashi, on the basis that he lacked legal representation of his choosing, the Chamber entered pleas of not guilty to all five counts against him,¹⁴⁹³¹ issued an Order for the continued detention of Kanyabashi, and set 8 April 1997 as the date for his trial.¹⁴⁹³²

6279. On 6 March 1997, the Chamber granted a motion by the Prosecution and ordered protective measures for victims and witnesses.¹⁴⁹³³

6280. On 18 June 1997, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Kanyabashi which challenged the jurisdiction of the Tribunal.¹⁴⁹³⁴

¹⁴⁹³³ Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi, Case No. ICTR-96-15-T, Decision on the Prosecutor’s Motion for the Protection of Witnesses and Victims, 6 March 1997.

¹⁴⁹³⁴ Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi, Case No. ICTR-96-15-T, Decision on the Defence Motion on Jurisdiction, 18 June 1997. Kanyabashi filed a Notice of Appeal with respect to this decision, but it was dismissed by the Appeals Chamber as it did not set forth the grounds of the appeal. Although the Appeals Chamber granted Kanyabashi an extension of time within which to file a new notice of appeal, Kanyabashi withdrew his appeal without re-filing the notice: Kanyabashi v. Prosecutor, Case No. ICTR-96-15-AR72, Scheduling Order, 29 July 1997; Kanyabashi v. Prosecutor, Case No. ICTR-96-15-AR72, Order by Appeal Chamber, 19 August 1997.

6281. On 29 October 1997, the Chamber granted both Kanyabashi's request for the withdrawal of his Lead Counsel and the oral request of then Lead Counsel for Kanyabashi to withdraw from the case.¹⁴⁹³⁵ On 28 October 2003, the Registrar withdrew the assignment of Michel Boyer as Co-Counsel for Kanyabashi.¹⁴⁹³⁶

6282. On 25 November 1997, the Chamber granted witness protection measures sought by the Kanyabashi Defence.¹⁴⁹³⁷

6283. On 24 September 1998, the Chamber issued an oral Decision on Kanyabashi's objection to an ex parte amendment to the Indictment and ruled that the confirming judge must approve the amendment after confirmation, and the Chamber must approve the amendment, inter partes, after the initial appearance.¹⁴⁹³⁸

6284. On 12 August 1999, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to amend the Indictment against Kanyabashi.¹⁴⁹³⁹ The Prosecutor proffered an Amended Indictment the same day, which added four new counts. At his appearance on the Amended Indictment on 12 August 1999, Kanyabashi pled not guilty to all nine counts against him.¹⁴⁹⁴⁰

6328. On 8 September 2000,¹⁵⁰¹¹ 25 April 2001,¹⁵⁰¹² and 8 June 2001,¹⁵⁰¹³ the Chamber rejected Nsabimana, Ndayambaje and Ntahobali's respective motions for separate trials.

6329. On 8 September 2000, the Chamber ordered the disclosure to the Prosecution and Defence of a confidential Security Council memorandum regarding the 6 April 1994 plane crash which killed Rwandan President Habyarimana and Burundian President Ntaryamira.¹⁵⁰¹⁴

6330. On 12 October 2000, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to exclude certain evidence and to return seized property. However, the Chamber ordered that property not required for the Prosecution be returned to Nyiramasuhuko and that the remaining seized property be sealed.¹⁵⁰¹⁵

6331. On 23 October 2000, the Registry issued an order withdrawing Calvin Saunders as Nteziryayo's Co-Counsel.¹⁵⁰¹⁶

6332. On 1 November 2000, the Chamber granted in part an amended preliminary motion by Ntahobali and ordered the Prosecution to modify its Amended Indictment.¹⁵⁰¹⁷ It also granted in part an amended preliminary motion by Nyiramasuhuko and ordered the Prosecution to modify the Amended Indictment.¹⁵⁰¹⁸ On 14 February 2001, the Chamber denied Nyiramasuhuko's motion for review of its 1 November 2000 Decision.¹⁵⁰¹⁹

¹⁵⁰¹⁴ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Decision on the Defence Motion for Disclosure of Evidence, 8 September 2000. Judge Güney filed a separate and dissenting opinion to this decision, noting that the memorandum was not the result of an official inquiry, and that the Defence therefore could not establish its exculpatory value. Furthermore, none of the charges against Nyiramasuhuko referred to her individual responsibility for the attack against President Habyarimana. Consequently, Judge Güney would not have provided a copy of the memorandum to the parties: *see Prosecutor v. 6333. On 21 February 2001 the Chamber dismissed Kanyabashi's motion for provisional release.¹⁵⁰²⁰ On 13 June 2001, the Appeals Chamber dismissed Kanyabashi's motion for leave to appeal the 21 February 2001 Decision.¹⁵⁰²¹

6334. On 1 March 2001, the Registrar affirmed a request by Ndayambaje for withdrawal of his Co-Counsel, Robert Giacometti.¹⁵⁰²²

6335. On 20 March 2001, 27 March 2001 and 3 April 2001, the Chamber granted protective measures for potential Defence and Prosecution witnesses.¹⁵⁰²³

6336. On 2 February 2001, a pre-trial conference was held before Judge Laïty Kama, Judge William Sekule and Judge Mehmet Güney. The Chamber set the trial date for 14 May 2001.¹⁵⁰²⁴ On 19 April 2001, a pre-trial conference was held before Judge William Sekule and Judge Mehmet Güney, in the absence of Judge Kama who was ill. The Chamber ordered the Prosecutor to file a list of the exhibits by 30 April 2001.¹⁵⁰²⁵ On 6 May 2001, Judge Kama passed away.¹⁵⁰²⁶

6337. On 30 May 2001, the Chamber granted in part a motion by the Prosecution and declared that the English version of the oral Decision of 12 August 1999 was authoritative. The Chamber held that the Amended Indictment of 12 August 1999 was the valid charging document against the Accused, and directed the Registry to issue a Corrigendum to the French transcript of 12 August 1999.¹⁵⁰²⁷

6338. On 8 June 2001, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ntahobali which sought a declaration that statements made by Ntahobali at the time of his arrest should not be admitted as evidence. The Chamber stated that he could only object to the admissibility of the statements if and when the Prosecution sought to use them as evidence.¹⁵⁰²⁸

6340. On 11 June 2001, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to vary the order in which it intended to call its witnesses,¹⁵⁰³¹ dismissed Ntahobali's motion for the disclosure of the particulars of identification,¹⁵⁰³² and granted a Prosecution motion to amend Kanyabashi's Indictment.¹⁵⁰³³

1.2 Trial Proceedings

1.2.1 The Prosecution Phase

6341. The joint trial of Ndayambaje, Kanyabashi, Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana and Nteziryayo began on 12 June 2001 before Trial Chamber II (the "Chamber"), which was composed of Judge William Sekule, presiding, Judge Winston Maqutu and Judge Arlette Ramarason.¹⁵⁰³⁴

6342. On 15 June 2001, the Chamber convened to hear Ntahobali's urgent motion for the withdrawal of his Lead Counsel, René St-Léger, and his Co-Counsel, James Michael Bailey, which was granted in a written decision issued one week later.¹⁵⁰³⁵

6343. On 26 June 2001, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko's motion to exclude as evidence excerpts of videotape in lieu of the original footage.¹⁵⁰³⁶ On 25 June 2001, the Chamber denied a Prosecution motion that the hearing with respect to charges of contempt of court be held in camera.¹⁵⁰³⁷

6344. On 27 June 2001, at the end of a scheduled trial session, the Chamber adjourned to 22 October 2001 for the continuation of trial.¹⁵⁰³⁸

¹⁵⁰²⁹ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on the Full Disclosure of the Identity and Unredacted Statements of the Protected Witnesses, 8 June 2001.

¹⁵⁰³⁷ T. 25 June 2001 pp. 106-107.

¹⁵⁰³⁸ Minutes, T. 27 June 2001.

6345. During the trial phase of Nyiramasuhuko et al., Trial Chamber II composed of Judges Sekule, Maqutu and Ramaroson, also presided over Prosecutor v. Kajelijeli and Prosecutor v. Kamuhanda.¹⁵⁰³⁹ From 4 July 2001 until 25 July 2001, Trial Chamber II presided over the proceedings in Kajelijeli.¹⁵⁰⁴⁰

6346. On 10 July 2001, the Chamber granted in part the Prosecutor's request for harmonisation of the protective measures afforded to its witnesses. However, it dismissed the Prosecutor's request for investigations on allegations of contempt and conflict of interest with regard to members of the Defence team, and issued a warning pursuant to Rule 46 (A) for the Prosecution Counsel's improper and reckless conduct.¹⁵⁰⁴¹

6347. On 13 July 2001, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Kanyabashi for leave to file a supplementary document in support of its response to the Prosecutor's motion for an investigation of contempt of the Tribunal.¹⁵⁰⁴² On 19 July 2001, in response to the Prosecution's ex parte motion regarding further allegations of contempt, the Chamber ordered that the motion be translated and served on the Defence; that the Prosecutor make all necessary applications should certain witnesses require protection; and authorised the Prosecution to use pseudonyms where necessary, and to issue redacted statements in relation to such witnesses.¹⁵⁰⁴³ On 30 November 2001, the Chamber dismissed the Prosecutor's further allegations of contempt.¹⁵⁰⁴⁴

6348. On 24 July 2001, the Chamber granted in part a Prosecution motion for leave to add Witnesses FAW and RV to the Prosecution Witness list, and for the transfer of 27 detained witnesses.¹⁵⁰⁴⁵

6349. From 3 September 2001 until 25 September 2001, Trial Chamber II presided over the proceedings in Kamuhanda.¹⁵⁰⁴⁶ Then from 1 October 2001 until 5 October 2001, the Chamber presided over the proceedings in Kajelijeli.¹⁵⁰⁴⁷

6350. On 18 September 2001, the Chamber ordered, in part, the disclosure to Nsabimana and Nteziryayo of documents requested in a Defence motion.¹⁵⁰⁴⁸ It also granted, in part, a motion by Nteziryayo for protective measures for witnesses, and dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for the disclosure of statements or other documents relating to the judicial proceedings of certain Prosecution witnesses detained in Rwanda.¹⁵⁰⁴⁹

6351. On 22 October 2001, the hearing of the trial resumed. The Chamber denied Counsel for Ntahobali's motion to adjourn proceedings in order to be given more time to prepare his defence.¹⁵⁰⁵⁰

6352. On 23 October 2001, the Chamber dismissed a request by Nyiramasuhuko to be allowed to cross-examine on matters not arising from the examination-in-chief.¹⁵⁰⁵¹

6353. On 25 October 2001, the Chamber held that Ndayambaje's refusal to attend his trial constituted a waiver of his right to be present, and that the trial would continue.¹⁵⁰⁵²

6354. On 12 November 2001, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to add Witness QBX to the witness list and ordered the transfer of that detained witness.¹⁵⁰⁵³

6355. On 13 November 2001, the Chamber granted motions by Nyiramasuhuko, Ndayambaje and Kanyabashi, and ordered the Prosecution to fully disclose to all Accused the identity and unredacted statements of witnesses expected to testify at trial.¹⁵⁰⁵⁴ Two days later the Chamber granted Ndayambaje's and Nsabimana's motion for full disclosure of statements made by detained witnesses.¹⁵⁰⁵⁵

6356. On 21 November 2001, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion for the extension of the time that Witnesses FAM, QBV and QBC could remain at UNDF prior to their testimony in these proceedings, and noted that the prior statement by Witness QAR if available should be disclosed to the Defence.¹⁵⁰⁵⁶

6357. From 26 November 2001 until 13 December 2001, Trial Chamber II again presided over the proceedings in Kajelijeli.¹⁵⁰⁵⁷

6381. On 21 October 2002, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ndayambaje seeking his provisional release.¹⁵⁰⁸³

6382. On 24 October 2002, the Chamber denied two oral Prosecution motions: one related to the use of a specific statement unrelated to the subject of the cross-examination and not recognised by Witness SU,¹⁵⁰⁸⁴ and the other concerned the submission of prior statements to show that Witness SU was consistent.¹⁵⁰⁸⁵

6383. On 13 November 2002, the Chamber overruled a Prosecution objection to the admission of a statement made by Witness QAQ to the Belgian authorities, and adjourned the Proceedings to 24 February 2003.¹⁵⁰⁸⁶

6384. From 18 November 2002 until 12 December 2002, Trial Chamber II presided over the proceedings in Kajelijeli.¹⁵⁰⁸⁷

6385. On 20 November 2002, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for access to her investigators and their assistants in the absence of her Counsel.¹⁵⁰⁸⁸

6386. From 13 January 2003 until 30 April 2003, Trial Chamber II presided over the proceedings in Kamuhanda.¹⁵⁰⁸⁹ In addition, from 31 March 2003 until 24 April 2003, Trial Chamber II presided over the proceedings in Kajelijeli.¹⁵⁰⁹⁰

6387. On 22 January 2003 the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to remove five deceased witnesses from their witness list, but denied a motion to admit into evidence the witness statements of four of those witnesses.¹⁵⁰⁹¹

6388. On 26 March 2003, at the end of a scheduled trial session, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 9 June 2003.¹⁵⁰⁹²

6389. From 5 May 2003 until 15 May 2003, Trial Chamber II presided over the proceedings in Kamuhanda.¹⁵⁰⁹³

1.2.2 Replacement of Judge Maqutu

6390. On 26 June 2003, the Chamber, composed of Judge William H. Sekule, presiding, and Judge Arlette Ramaroson only, ordered the Parties to present written submissions on the issue of continuing the Butare Trial with a substitute judge pursuant to Rule 15 bis (D), given Judge Maqutu's departure.¹⁵⁰⁹⁴ On 15 July 2003, the Chamber decided to continue the Trial with a substitute judge on the basis of the existing trial record and decisions in the case.¹⁵⁰⁹⁵

6391. All six Accused filed appeals on this issue.¹⁵⁰⁹⁶ On 24 September 2003, the Appeals Chamber dismissed the Defence appeals.¹⁵⁰⁹⁷

6392. On 20 October 2003 Judge Solomy Balungi Bossa joined Trial Chamber II. On 5 December 2003 she certified her familiarisation with the proceedings prior to her appointment to the Chamber.¹⁵⁰⁹⁸

1.2.3 Resumption of Proceedings

6393. The proceedings resumed on 26 January 2004.¹⁵⁰⁹⁹

6394. On 28 and 30 January 2004, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings for the day because Ndayambaje, Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nteziryayo and their respective Defence teams were not present.¹⁵¹⁰⁰ On 29 January 2004, the Chamber ruled that if the Accused chose not to be present, they would be deemed to have waived their right under Article 20 (4)(d) of the Statute.¹⁵¹⁰¹ On 30 January 2004, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to allow Counsel to go to UNDF to meet with their clients.¹⁵¹⁰²

6395. On 16 February 2004, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to declare inadmissible parts of the evidence of Witnesses RV and QBZ.¹⁵¹⁰³ It also ordered the Prosecution to ensure that the documents were made available to the Parties involved in a timely manner.¹⁵¹⁰⁴ The next day, the Chamber urged the Prosecution to follow up on alleged confession statements made by detained witnesses before Rwandan authorities and to bring the statements before the Chamber.¹⁵¹⁰⁵

6396. On 20 February 2004, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Kanyabashi for a continuation of the trial before Judge Sekule, Judge Maqutu and Judge Ramaroson and for a termination of proceedings.¹⁵¹⁰⁶

6397. Also on 20 February 2004, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for a stay of proceedings and abuse of process based on continuation with a substitute judge.¹⁵¹⁰⁷

Kanyabashi*, Case No. ICTR-96-15-T, Decision on Defence Motion for Trial to Proceed Before Trial Chamber II, Composed of Judges Sekule, Maqutu, and Ramaroson and for Termination of Proceedings, 20 February 2004. Trial Chamber II dismissed Kanyabashi's motion for certification to appeal this decision, as it was filed out of time: Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi, Case No. ICTR-96-15-T, Decision on Defence Motion Requiring Authorisation to Appeal, 19 March 2004.

¹⁵¹⁰⁷ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR97-21-T, Decision on Defence Motion for a Stay of Proceedings and Abuse of Process, 20 February 2004. The Trial Chamber refused to certify an appeal of this decision and refused to reconsider this decision: Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Decision on Defence Motion for Certification to Appeal the "Decision on Defence Motion for a Stay of Proceedings and Abuse of Process", 19 March 2004; Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T,

On the same day, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ntahobali for a stay of proceedings and for an order on the non-applicability of Rule 15 bis (D), noting that the gravity of the charges against the Accused and the complexity of the case did not render the length of proceedings unreasonable.¹⁵¹⁰⁸

6398. On 23 February 2004, the Chamber refused Ntahobali's oral motion for postponement of Witness QBZ's testimony.¹⁵¹⁰⁹

6399. On 3 March 2004, the Chamber ordered the Prosecution to follow-up with respect to statements mentioned by Witness FAC, and to disclose the statements to the Defence once they had been obtained.¹⁵¹¹⁰ It also dismissed motions by Kanyabashi to exclude evidence by Witness FAC and ruled that the facts contained therein were sufficiently pled.¹⁵¹¹¹

6400. On 30 March 2004, the Chamber granted the Prosecution motion to add Witnesses FA, FCC and Evariste Ntakirutimana to its witness list and to delete 30 witnesses. The Chamber ordered the Prosecution to immediately disclose the unredacted statements of the new witnesses, and to call them at the end of its case.¹⁵¹¹²

6401. On 16 April 2004, the Chamber denied Nyiramasuhuko's motion to declare the evidence of Witness FAS inadmissible.¹⁵¹¹³

Subsequently, on 20 April 2004, the Trial Chamber issued a Corrigendum recognising that the Prosecution had in fact filed its response to Nyiramasuhuko's motion on 22 March 2004, but that the response did not have any effect on the outcome of the Decision already rendered: Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Corrigendum to the Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion to Declare the Evidence of Witness FAS Inadmissible Against Her, 20 April 2004. On 27 April 2004, the Trial Chamber denied Nyiramasuhuko's motion to delay the testimony of Witness FAS pending a decision on the certification to appeal the 16 April 2004 Decision: T. 27 April 2004 pp. 7-8. However, on 6 May 2004, Trial Chamber II granted Nyiramasuhuko's motion for certification to appeal the Decision, noting that the instant motion met the same merits as the Accused's former motion for certification and that the request fell within the purview of Rule 73 (B) of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence. Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Decision on Ntahobali's and Nyiramasuhuko's Motions for Certification to Appeal the "Decision on the Defence Urgent Motion to Declare Parts of the Evidence of Witnesses RV and QBZ Inadmissible", 18 March 2004; Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion for Certification to Appeal the "Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion to Declare the Evidence of Witness FAS Inadmissible Against Her", 6 May 2004. On 23 July 2004, Judge Meron of the Appeals Chamber issued an order delineating the composition of the Appeals Chamber for an extension of time in which to file an interlocutory appeal in relation to the Decision on Witness FAS: Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko, Case No. ICTR-98-42-AR73, Order of the Presiding Judge Assigning Judges, 23 July 2004.

6402. On 27 April 2004, the Chamber dismissed two motions by Nyiramasuhuko, one objecting to the Prosecution's use of a diary, seized from Nyiramasuhuko during her arrest on 18 July 1997, which had been placed under seal,¹⁵¹¹⁴ and the other seeking to forbid parties in other trials from using the diary.¹⁵¹¹⁵

6403. On 30 April 2004, the Chamber held a Status Conference.¹⁵¹¹⁶ The Chamber granted the Defence additional time to prepare its case by scheduling trial to resume on 7 June 2004, instead of 24 or 31 May 2004 as proposed by the Prosecution.¹⁵¹¹⁷

6404. On 6 May 2004, the Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to recall Witnesses TA, QJ, TK, SJ, SU, SS, QBP, RE, FAP, SD and QY, or alternately for a disjunction of trial or a stay of proceedings against the Accused.¹⁵¹¹⁸ The Chamber granted a motion by Ndayambaje to recall Witness TO¹⁵¹¹⁹ and denied motions to recall Witnesses QAQ and QAR.¹⁵¹²⁰

6405. On 7 June 2004, the Chamber ruled that witness Dr. Alison Des Forges was qualified to testify as an expert on the history of Rwanda up to and including the events of 1994, and as an expert in the analysis and research of the human rights situation in Rwanda up to and including the events of 1994.¹⁵¹²¹

6406. On 8 June 2004, the Chamber ruled that The Truth About the Massacres in Butare, written by Nsabimana, was admissible and could be admitted through Expert Witness Alison

Des Forges.¹⁵¹²² The Chamber also held that an interview with Nsabimana from 1 October 1994 was admissible.¹⁵¹²³

6407. On 9 June 2004, the Chamber ordered that Nyiramasuhuko would be the first to cross-examine Prosecution witnesses; the other Accused would follow in the order that they are listed in the style of cause.¹⁵¹²⁴

6408. On 18 June 2004, the Chamber granted a motion by Ndayambaje and Nteziryayo to recall Witness FAG following the disclosure of a new statement.¹⁵¹²⁵

6409. On 23 June 2004, the Chamber ruled that Professor André Guichaoua was qualified to testify as an expert witness in the field of political science.¹⁵¹²⁶

6410. On 24 June 2004, the Chamber overruled Kanyabashi's objection to the admission of Volume I: Guichaoua's Expert Report and to the admission of Volume II: Guichaoua's analysis of the alleged diary of Nyiramasuhuko.¹⁵¹²⁷ On 25 June 2004, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to unseal and admit Nyiramasuhuko's diary into evidence¹⁵¹²⁸ and sustained objections by Ndayambaje and Nyiramasuhuko to the admission of documents on the basis that relevance had not been adequately established.¹⁵¹²⁹

6411. On 28 June 2004, the Chamber overruled Nyiramasuhuko's objection to the admission of a document comprised of a compilation of expert reports,¹⁵¹³⁰ and Kanyabashi's objection to the admission of a document from an "unknown source" during the testimony of Expert Witness Guichaoua.¹⁵¹³¹

6412. On 29 June 2004, the Chamber denied Ntahobali's motion to recall witnesses TA, SJ, QCB, TK, TN, FAP, SS, QY, RE, Ghandi Shukry, QBP, QJ and SU,¹⁵¹³² and ruled that it is not bound by expert opinion, but may assess it along with other evidence.¹⁵¹³³

6413. On 12 July 2004, the Chamber denied Ndayambaje's motion to suppress references to him in Des Forges' Expert Report.¹⁵¹³⁴ The next day, the Chamber granted in part Nyiramasuhuko's motion to further cross-examine Expert Witness Des Forges and to conduct further cross-examination on certain specific issues.¹⁵¹³⁵

6414. On 14 July 2004, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 6 September 2004.¹⁵¹³⁶

6415. On 15 July 2004, the Chamber dismissed Ntahobali's motion objecting to the testimony of Prosecution Witness TQ and held that this witness could testify against any of the Butare Accused.¹⁵¹³⁷

6416. On 6 September 2004, the Chamber granted two oral motions by Ntahobali on the issue of notice regarding witness statements and will-say statements of Witness TQ.¹⁵¹³⁸

6417. On 13 September 2004, the Chamber qualified Dr. Ntakirutimana as an expert in social linguistics, discourse analysis, lexicology, semantics and language planning.¹⁵¹³⁹

6418. On 23 September 2004, the Chamber granted the Prosecution's ex parte motion for leave to disclose closed session transcripts of Professor Guichaoua's testimony from the Rutaganda case in the Butare case.¹⁵¹⁴⁰

6419. On 24 September 2004, Trial Chamber I granted Ntahobali's request for disclosure of confidential material from the Bagosora trial.¹⁵¹⁴¹

6420. On 1 October 2004, the Chamber refused to admit various written documents. The Chamber also declined to request the verification of a diary that the Prosecution alleged belonged to Nyiramasuhuko.¹⁵¹⁴²

6421. On 4 October 2004, the Chamber ordered the Prosecutor to disclose Expert Witness Guichaoua's testimony in the Rutaganda case to the Defence as requested.¹⁵¹⁴³

6422. On 14 October 2004, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion for leave to add Antipas Nyanjwa, a handwriting expert, to their witness list¹⁵¹⁴⁴ and denied a Prosecution motion to admit affidavits relating to the chain of custody of a diary.¹⁵¹⁴⁵ The Chamber also ruled that Ndayambaje's questions to Expert Witness Guichaoua on prison conditions in Rwanda were not relevant and would not be permitted.¹⁵¹⁴⁶

6423. On 18 October 2004, the Chamber refused to admit certain documents relating to Witness TQ tendered by the Defence, including a Rwandan judgement.¹⁵¹⁴⁷ That day the Prosecutor acknowledged that her case was complete, with the exception of the evidence of Antipas Nyanjwa, the handwriting expert.¹⁵¹⁴⁸ Accordingly, the Chamber ordered that, apart from this matter, the Prosecution case was closed.¹⁵¹⁴⁹ The Chamber had planned to start the Defence cases on 17 January 2005.¹⁵¹⁵⁰ Upon the request of Defence counsel, the Chamber scheduled the Defence cases to start on 31 January 2005 in order to give the Defence an additional two weeks to prepare its case.¹⁵¹⁵¹

6424. The Chamber ordered that the Pre-Defence Briefs and other documents be filed by 31 December 2004 and that Nyiramasuhuko would be the first Accused to present her case.¹⁵¹⁵² The Chamber also ordered that the identity of Defence witnesses be disclosed to the Chamber, the Prosecution and the other Accused 21 days before the witness testified.¹⁵¹⁵³

6425. On 21 October 2004, the Chamber denied motions by Ndayambaje and Nyiramasuhuko for an extension of time to file a motion for judgement of acquittal.¹⁵¹⁵⁴

6426. On 25 October 2004, the Chamber dismissed a motion to exclude the testimony of Witnesses FAG, FAL, FAU, QAF, QBZ and RV.¹⁵¹⁵⁵

On 4 November 2004, the Chamber qualified Antipas Nyanjwa as an expert in the analysis of handwriting and heard his testimony.¹⁵¹⁵⁶ The next day, after Nyanjwa had finished testifying, the Chamber confirmed that the Prosecution case was complete.¹⁵¹⁵⁷ In total, the Prosecutor called 59 witnesses over 212 days.¹⁵¹⁵⁸

6428. On 5 November 2004, the Chamber adjourned proceedings to 31 January 2005.¹⁵¹⁵⁹

6429. On 23 November 2004, the Chamber partially granted Kanyabashi's motion to meet Prosecution Witnesses SW and FAT and all those whose identities had not been disclosed to the Defence.¹⁵¹⁶⁰

6430. On 30 November 2004, the Chamber denied the Prosecution motion for disclosure of evidence for the Defence and harmonisation of protective measures for victims and witnesses.¹⁵¹⁶¹ On 4 February 2005, the Chamber further denied the Prosecution motion for certification to appeal the 30 November 2004 Decision.¹⁵¹⁶²

6431. On 1 December 2004, the Chamber denied a Prosecution motion for extension of time to file a consolidated response to the Defence Rule 98 bis application and for official translation of Defence replies.¹⁵¹⁶³

6432. On 16 December 2004, the Chamber dismissed Nyiramasuhuko's, Ntahobali's and Ndayambaje's motions for judgement of acquittal in their entirety and partially acquitted Kanyabashi and Nsabimana on one charge.¹⁵¹⁶⁴ The Chamber also dismissed the Prosecutor's motion for an order of disclosure of closed session transcripts and sealed Prosecution exhibits.¹⁵¹⁶⁵

1.2.4 The Defence Phase

1.2.4.1 Nyiramasuhuko Defence Case (31 January 2005 – 24 November 2005)

6433. On 31 January 2005, Nyiramasuhuko opened her case, presented an opening statement,¹⁵¹⁶⁶ and called Witness WFGS as her first witness.¹⁵¹⁶⁷ That same day the Chamber denied an oral request by Ntahobali to stay proceedings and established a procedure through which Ntahobali could defer questioning until the motion with respect to a separate trial had been determined.¹⁵¹⁶⁸ The Chamber ordered that Ntahobali must deliver any opening statement before Nyiramasuhuko called any joint witnesses¹⁵¹⁶⁹ and invited all Accused to reduce the number of witnesses expected to testify.¹⁵¹⁷⁰ The Chamber also granted Kanyabashi's motion to return un-redacted documents that had been mistakenly given to the Prosecution.¹⁵¹⁷¹

6434. On 2 February 2005, the Chamber denied Ntahobali's motion for a separate trial.¹⁵¹⁷²

6435. On 3 February 2005, the Chamber granted an oral Prosecution request for a handwriting sample from Witness WMCZ.¹⁵¹⁷³

6436. On 4 February 2005, the Chamber granted in part a request by Nteziryayo to meet with Witness FAT.¹⁵¹⁷⁴

6437. On 16 February 2005, the Chamber issued a formal warning to Ms Bergevin, Counsel for Nyiramasuhuko, for being disrespectful to the Chamber.¹⁵¹⁷⁵

6438. On 18 February 2005, the Chamber ordered Nyiramasuhuko to immediately comply with the Chamber's Order of 18 October 2004, to disclose the identities of all Defence witnesses 21 days before the testimonies of the witnesses, and to disclose to all parties a summary of the facts about which each witness would testify.¹⁵¹⁷⁶

6439. On 1 March 2005, the Chamber ordered the Defence to make any necessary disclosures regarding the defence of alibi.¹⁵¹⁷⁷ It also denied an ex parte motion by Nyiramasuhuko for

¹⁵¹⁷⁷ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on the Confidential Prosecutor's Motion to be Served with Particulars of Alibi Pursuant to Rule 67 (A)(ii)(a), 1 March 2005. The Chamber additional protective measures for Witnesses WBNC, WBND, WFMG, WHNC, BN and NEM, but granted Witnesses BN and NEM a limited immunity from prosecution or detention for acts or convictions falling within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal.¹⁵¹⁷⁸

6440. On 1 March 2005, the Chamber denied Ntahobali's oral motion to stay the evidence of Witness WKNKI.¹⁵¹⁷⁹

6441. On 14 March 2005, the Chamber granted in part a Prosecution motion for reciprocal inspection of Nyiramasuhuko and Ndayambaje's materials and directed the Ntahobali Defence to comply with Rule 67 (C).¹⁵¹⁸⁰ The Chamber also granted a Prosecution motion to delay the testimony of Witness WZNA to allow the Prosecution and the other parties the opportunity to prepare any cross-examination of that witness¹⁵¹⁸¹ and stated that the late disclosure of will-say statements by Ms. Bergevin, counsel for Nyiramasuhuko, amounted to a flouting of the Rules.¹⁵¹⁸²

6442. On 15 March 2005, the Chamber recognised Dr. Eugène Shimamungu as an expert witness in: linguistic science; grammar in the Kinyarwanda language; political information; political information communication; lexicography; terminology; translation in Kinyarwanda and French; and analysis of oral and written political discourse.¹⁵¹⁸³

6443. On 22 March 2005, the Chamber ruled that the translation of original tapes could be used, but that other Parties could contest the accuracy of the translation.¹⁵¹⁸⁴

6444. On 1 April 2005, the Chamber denied Ntahobali's request for further cross-examination of Dr. Shimamungu.¹⁵¹⁸⁵

6445. On 6 April 2005, the Chamber granted Kanyabashi's objection to evidence implicating him which was not disclosed in the will-say statements of Witness WMKL.¹⁵¹⁸⁶ declined to enter an order that the Defence call only those witnesses that would not testify to alibi evidence until such a time as the Prosecutor had been served with an alibi notice and particulars.

6446. On 13 April 2005, the Chamber held that Mr. Edmond Babin was not qualified to testify as an expert in crime scene analysis, but that he could testify as a factual witness.¹⁵¹⁸⁷

6447. On 21 April 2005, the Chamber ruled that written summaries of DVD recordings would not be admitted.¹⁵¹⁸⁸

6448. On 25 April 2005, the Chamber ruled that questions could be posed about the circumstances of a confidential conversation between Ntahobali, his Counsel and agents, but not the content of that conversation.¹⁵¹⁸⁹

6449. On 26 April 2005, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 30 May 2005 for the continuation of the Defence case.¹⁵¹⁹⁰

6450. On 30 May 2005, the Chamber ruled that Counsel remain assigned to the Defence team of Ntahobali.¹⁵¹⁹¹

6451. On 1 June 2005, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko's request to remove Serge Desouter and Remigius Kintu as experts from their list of witnesses, and replace them with a new expert, Baributsa Maniragaba.¹⁵¹⁹²

6452. On 6 June 2005, Judge Mose of Trial Chamber I, acting in his capacity as President, dismissed Ntahobali's appeal filed against the Registrar's refusal to permit a confidential interview with Georges Rutaganda.¹⁵¹⁹³

6453. On 9 June 2005, the Registrar issued a decision ordering the withdrawal of Mr. Duncan Mwanyumba as Lead Counsel for Ntahobali.¹⁵¹⁹⁴ The Chamber ruled that notwithstanding a lack or insufficiency of notice with respect to a potential defence of alibi, Witness Denise Ntahobali's testimony was permitted though the Chamber reserved the right to consider lack of notice when deliberating.¹⁵¹⁹⁵

6454. On 15 June 2005, the Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for additional protective measures for Witnesses BK and WBNM, but granted an order for safe conduct, so that the witness could testify in Arusha.¹⁵¹⁹⁶

6455. On 16 June 2005, the Chamber held a Status Conference¹⁵¹⁹⁷ and adjourned to 15 August 2005 for the continuation of the Defence case.¹⁵¹⁹⁸

6456. On 4 July 2005, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Nyiramasuhuko which sought reconsideration of the Chamber's decision with respect to additional protective measures for Witness WBNM and allowed Witness WBNM's testimony to be heard via video-link from Belgium.¹⁵¹⁹⁹

6457. On 19 August 2005, the Chamber directed Ntahobali to abide by all disclosure obligations so that his defence could proceed in a smooth and uninterrupted manner on or after 29 August 2005.¹⁵²⁰⁰

6458. On 23 August 2005, the Chamber granted a confidential Prosecution motion, ordered Ntahobali to file 10 redacted will-say statements and reiterated its 27 March 2001 Order that pseudonyms be used for Prosecution Witnesses.¹⁵²⁰¹

6459. On 26 August 2005, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Ntahobali to modify his witness list and directed the Defence to disclose all identifying information for the additional permitted witnesses once protective measures were put into place.¹⁵²⁰² The Chamber also

¹⁵²⁰² Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Decision on the Defence Motion to Modify the List of Defence Witnesses for Arsène Shalom Ntahobali (Rule 73ter (E), Rules of Procedure and Evidence), 26 August 2005. On 21 September 2005, Trial Chamber II denied a motion by Ntahobali for certification to appeal the 26 August 2005 Decision in relation to a select number of witnesses. The Chamber ruled that the motion was filed out of time and therefore was time barred. On 12 October 2005, the Chamber later denied a motion by Ntahobali for reconsideration of the 21 September 2005 Decision. The Chamber denied an additional request to reconsider the 26 August 2005 decision, with respect to certain witnesses, on 27 January 2006. Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, Case No. ICTR97-21-T, Decision on Arsène Shalom Ntahobali's Motion for Certification to Appeal the "Decision on the Defence Motion to Modify the List of Defence Witnesses for Arsène Shalom Ntahobali" (Article 73 (sic) of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence), 21 denied a motion by Ntahobali to enter into evidence the written report of investigator Ralph Lake, in lieu of oral testimony.¹⁵²⁰³

6460. On 29 August 2005, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to temporarily unseal documents seized from Nyiramasuhuko and to permit the Prosecution to study the seized property in the presence of all parties.¹⁵²⁰⁴ The Chamber denied Nyiramasuhuko's motion to delay her testimony until after Witness WBMN testified, and reiterated its Order that she take the stand immediately if Witness WBMN was unavailable.¹⁵²⁰⁵

6461. On 30 August 2005, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko's request for time to examine the unsealed documents.¹⁵²⁰⁶ The Chamber also dismissed a motion by Ntahobali to admit additional statements by Witnesses QBQ and QY, holding that this motion had been rendered moot by its 26 August 2005 Decision.¹⁵²⁰⁷

6462. On 31 August 2005, Nyiramasuhuko began testifying in her own defence.¹⁵²⁰⁸

6463. On 5 September 2005, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to compel disclosure of documents used by the Defence and ruled that once an accused person elects to testify on his own behalf, the obligations that attach to the testimony of an ordinary witness will also apply.¹⁵²⁰⁹

6464. On 12 September 2005, the Chamber granted Witness WNBW's request to testify in his own name, Maurice Ntahobali, in full open session.¹⁵²¹⁰

6466. On 19 September 2005, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to declare an audio tape inadmissible, as there was no foundation to establish that it contained Nyiramasuhuko's voice.¹⁵²¹²

6467. On 22 September 2005, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to extend the deadline for filing an expert report but proprio motu ordered that it be filed within two weeks.¹⁵²¹³ It also dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for the Prosecution to disclose a document entitled "After Gatabazi's Death."¹⁵²¹⁴

6468. On 23 September 2005, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali to initiate an investigation into the alleged false testimony given by Prosecution Witness QY.¹⁵²¹⁵

6469. On 6 October 2005, the Chamber denied Ntahobali's request to change the order in which the Defence teams would conduct cross-examination of Nyiramasuhuko.¹⁵²¹⁶ That day, Nyiramasuhuko filed the Expert Report of Balibutsa Maniaragaba, along with an urgent motion seeking an additional extension to the deadline, which had expired the previous day.¹⁵²¹⁷ On 13 October 2005, the Chamber denied this motion but admitted the report. The Chamber issued a formal warning to the Defence for Nyiramasuhuko for exceeding time frames again and instructed the Defence not to repeat this conduct.¹⁵²¹⁸

6470. At the close of proceedings on 13 October 2005, the Chamber adjourned the trial session to 25 October 2005.¹⁵²¹⁹

6471. On 2 November 2005, the Chamber overruled an objection by Nyiramasuhuko to the admission of a document tendered by Kanyabashi.¹⁵²²⁰

6472. On 7 November 2005, the Chamber sustained an objection by Nyiramasuhuko to the use of a document in Kinyarwanda disclosed two hours prior to the attempted use in court.¹⁵²²¹ The Chamber ruled that documents used during cross-examination must be disclosed with sufficient time for the Parties to translate and understand them.¹⁵²²²

6473. On 24 November 2005, Trial Day 320, the re-examination of Nyiramasuhuko was completed¹⁵²²³ and the Chamber declared her case closed, with the exception of one final expert witness, Baributsa Maniragaba.¹⁵²²⁴ Nyiramasuhuko called 25 witnesses, including herself.¹⁵²²⁵

1.2.4.2 Ntahobali Defence Case (28 November 2005 – 26 June 2006)

6474. On 28 November 2005, the Defence for Ntahobali opened its case.¹⁵²²⁶ The Defence had already made an opening statement on 12 April 2005, prior to calling Witness Babin, a common witness between Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko.¹⁵²²⁷

6475. On 1 December 2005, the Chamber granted a request by Ntahobali to reserve the right to recall Witness H1B6.¹⁵²²⁸ On 6 December 2005, the Chamber granted a motion by Nsabimana to re-cross examine Witness H1B6.¹⁵²²⁹

6476. On 12 December 2005, the Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to use a photo of a televised program.¹⁵²³⁰

6477. On 14 December 2005, the Chamber ordered that: Ntahobali's defence case resume on 23 January 2006; Ntahobali and Nsabimana comply with all disclosure obligations in a timely fashion; the Registry ensure that all subsequent filings by Ntahobali be translated as a matter of priority; Ntahobali file with the Registry his detailed list of witnesses for the next trial session by 23 December 2005; Ntahobali ensure that his defence be completed in a timely fashion; Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko liaise with respect to the scheduling of Witness Maniragaba and keep the Chamber informed; all five remaining defendants file concise, precise, and complete will-say statements for the witnesses they intend to call; the remaining five defendants review their witness lists with a view to reducing both the total number of witnesses and the number of witnesses called to prove the same facts; and that they file an updated precise list of witnesses by 23 January 2006.¹⁵²³¹

6478. On 23 January 2006, Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nteziryayo and Ndayambaje did not appear for the start of proceedings or after an adjournment to permit Defence Counsel to contact these Accused and advise them that if they failed to appear they would be taken to waive their right to be present at trial that day.¹⁵²³² As Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Ndayambaje had not mandated their counsel to proceed in their absence, the Chamber directed the Registry to assign counsel for these Accused, effective immediately.¹⁵²³³

6479. On 27 January 2006, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Ntahobali to add Georges Rutaganda and Witness WDUSA to his witness list, and to expand the scope of Witness MJ110's testimony.¹⁵²³⁴ The Chamber later ordered that Witness WDUSA testify via videoconference from The Hague.¹⁵²³⁵

6480. On 31 January 2006, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ntahobali for disclosure of certain requested documents but ordered the Prosecution to allow the Defence to inspect them.¹⁵²³⁶

6481. On 14 February 2006, the proceedings were adjourned to 20 February 2006 for the continuation of the Defence case as no witnesses were available until that date.¹⁵²³⁷

6482. On 15 February 2006, the Registrar withdrew the assignment of Claude Desrochers as Co-Counsel for Ndayambaje.¹⁵²³⁸

6483. On 20 February 2006, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko's request to withdraw Expert Witness Balibutsa Maniragaba.¹⁵²³⁹

6484. On 28 February 2006, the Chamber ruled that factual witnesses do not have the right to protect their sources in the same manner as expert witnesses.¹⁵²⁴⁰

6485. On 3 March 2006, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ntahobali for greater access by Defence Counsel to Ntahobali at UNDF.¹⁵²⁴¹ It also granted in part a motion by Ntahobali to

On 6 February 2006 Trial Chamber II issued a corrigendum to this decision which acknowledged that Ntahobali filed responding materials in a timely manner. The Chamber deleted Paragraph 19 from the Decision of 27 January 2006 and reiterated that decision in all other respects: Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali, Case No. ICTR-97-21-T, Corrigendum to the Decision on Arsène Shalom Ntahobali's Motion to Amend his Witness List and to Reconsider the Decision of 26 August 2005 entitled: "Decision on the Defence Motion to Modify the List of Defence Witnesses for Arsène Shalom Ntahobali" Dated 27 January 2006, 6 February 2006.

recall Witness QY for further cross-examination, but denied the motion with regard to Witnesses TN and QBQ.¹⁵²⁴²

6486. On 7 March 2006, the Bureau composed of Judge Erik Møse, President, and Judge Khalida Rachid Khan, Presiding Judge of Trial Chamber III, denied a motion by Ntahobali seeking the disqualification of Judges Sekule, Ramaroson and Bossa.¹⁵²⁴³

6487. On 8 March 2006, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali for the suspension of his testimony pending a decision on Nyiramasuhuko's motion for a separate trial.¹⁵²⁴⁴ It also adjourned the proceedings until 3 April 2006.¹⁵²⁴⁵

6488. On 3 April 2006, the Chamber granted the Parties' request to reserve their rights to re-cross-examine Witness WUNBJ.¹⁵²⁴⁶

6489. On 7 April 2006, the Chamber denied Nyiramasuhuko's motion for severance, a new trial, and a stay of proceedings in all respects. The Chamber held that counsel for Nyiramasuhuko had attempted to re-litigate matters decided in 2003, and imposed sanctions pursuant to Rule 73 (F).¹⁵²⁴⁷

6490. On 15 May 2006, the Chamber ruled admissible interviews of Ntahobali conducted by the Prosecution in 1997. The Chamber granted in part a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to cross-examine Ntahobali, despite having waived her right to do so, but refused to change the order in which cross-examinations are normally conducted.¹⁵²⁴⁸

6491. On 17 May 2006, the Chamber overruled an objection by Ntahobali to a question relating to a conversation between Ntahobali and his wife, holding that there is no "spousal privilege" under the Tribunal's Rules.¹⁵²⁴⁹

6492. On 30 May 2006, the Chamber allowed Nyiramasuhuko to cross-examine Ntahobali on his statements to Prosecution Investigators in 1997.¹⁵²⁵⁰

6493. On 1 June 2006, the Chamber reached the end of the trial session, and adjourned the proceedings to 19 June 2006.¹⁵²⁵¹

6494. On 13 June 2006, the Registrar withdrew the assignment of Charles Tchakoute Patie as Co-Counsel for Nsabimana.¹⁵²⁵²

6495. On 22 June 2006, the Chamber sustained, in part, Ntahobali's objections to the admissibility of one portion of a video.¹⁵²⁵³

6496. Ntahobali closed his case on 26 June 2006, Trial Day 389, after calling 22 witnesses, including himself.¹⁵²⁵⁴

1.2.4.3 Nsabimana Defence Case (27 June 2006 – 28 November 2006)

6497. Nsabimana opened his case on 27 June 2006.¹⁵²⁵⁵

6498. On 29 June 2006, the Chamber denied a Prosecution motion for disclosure of unredacted witness statements from Nsabimana's defence.¹⁵²⁵⁶ The Chamber granted a motion by Nsabimana to vary the order in which he called witnesses.¹⁵²⁵⁷

6499. On 5 July 2006, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ndayambaje (supported by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Nteziryayo) to delay the resumption of the trial session.¹⁵²⁵⁸

6500. On 12 July 2006, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 21 August 2006 for the continuation of the Defence Case.¹⁵²⁵⁹

6501. On 13 July 2006, the Registrar withdrew the assignment of Frédéric Palardy as Co-Counsel for Ndayambaje.¹⁵²⁶⁰

6502. On 14 July 2006, the Chamber granted in part Nteziryayo's requests to modify his witness list by deleting 22 witnesses and adding 12 witnesses and urged him to significantly reduce his witness list. The Chamber also allowed Nsabimana to remove several witnesses from his witness list, and to add Witness AGWA, who would be called near the end of its case, to allow other counsel sufficient time to prepare.¹⁵²⁶¹

¹⁵²⁶¹ Prosecutor v. Nsabimana, Case No. ICTR-97-29A-T, Decision on Sylvain Nsabimana's Extremely Urgent Motion to Drop and Add Witnesses, 14 July 2006.

6503. On 17 August 2006, the Chamber denied a motion by Nsabimana to have Witness AGWA testify via video link,¹⁵²⁶² but granted his motion to delete three witnesses from his list, and to add Witness DEDE. The Chamber again ordered Nsabimana to call this newly added witness towards the end of his case.¹⁵²⁶³ The Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for an extension of time to file responses to various motions on the grounds that it was frivolous and directed the Registry to deny all fees associated with its preparation.¹⁵²⁶⁴

6504. The proceedings resumed on 21 August 2006.¹⁵²⁶⁵ The Chamber overruled an objection by Nyiramasuhuko to an alleged lack of notice with respect to portions of Witness BURU's proposed testimony which referred to Nyiramasuhuko.¹⁵²⁶⁶ The Chamber found it was improper for Kanyabashi to have contacted Nsabimana's witness and stated that once the identity of a witness is known, and it is clearly indicated that the witness is going to testify for a particular party, then all other teams must avoid contact with that witness unless a formal request has been made.¹⁵²⁶⁷

6505. On 23 August 2006, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to admit evidence from another case before the Tribunal and held that proper procedure required that a motion be made to the Chamber seized of the other trial.¹⁵²⁶⁸ The Chamber also refused to admit into evidence a book written by Witness Karemano.¹⁵²⁶⁹

¹⁵²⁶² Prosecutor v. Nsabimana, Case No. ICTR-97-29-T, Decision on Sylvain Nsabimana's Extremely Urgent – Strictly Confidential – Under Seal – Motion to Have Witness AGWA Testify via Video-Link, 17 August 2006.

¹⁵²⁶³ The Chamber also ordered Nsabimana to make timely disclosure of the identifying information of this witness and to provide further and better particulars with respect to the will-say statement: Prosecutor v. Nsabimana, Case No. ICTR-97-29-T, Decision on Sylvain Nsabimana's Extremely Urgent Motion to Drop and Add Witnesses, 17 August 2006. Subsequently the Chamber made further orders with respect to this decision: Prosecutor v. Ndayambaje et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on the Prosecution's Urgent Motion to Compel Compliance with the Trial Chamber's Decision of 17 August 2006, 5 September 2006. The Chamber granted this motion in part, and ordered Nsabimana to: (i) provide detailed information on the areas where Witness DEDE was expected to contradict the testimony of Prosecution Witness SJ; (ii) give details on the "aid" that Nsabimana allegedly gave to Prosecution Witness SJ; (iii) to specifically mention the name or position held by the "MRND dignitaries" mentioned in the supplementary will-say statement and, if this included any of the Accused, to identify them; and (iv) to make the required disclosures regarding the proposed testimony of Witness DEDE as soon as possible and in any case before the close of business on 8 September 2006. Nsabimana complied with this order and filed additional material on 7 September 2006 which indicated that the "MRND dignitaries" included Nyiramasuhuko. On 19 September 2006, Trial Chamber II denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko which sought to prevent Witness DEDE from testifying on facts relating to Nyiramasuhuko, or alternatively, sought additional disclosure: Prosecutor v. Nsabimana, Case No. ICTR-97-29-T, Decision on Pauline Nyiramasuhuko's Extremely Urgent Motion for Exclusion of Evidence or Subsidiarily for Further Disclosure Regarding Witness DEDE's Expected Testimony, 19 September 2006.

However, on 4 September 2006, Trial Chamber II granted Nyiramasuhuko's request to put an additional question in cross-examination to Witness Karemano, despite the fact that she had closed her cross-examination of that witness: T. 4 September 2006 p. 8 (ICS). The question was put to the witness as an assertion, without indicating that the assertion was evidence in another trial.

6506. On 25 August 2006, the Chamber issued a warning to Mr. Boulé, counsel for Ndayambaje, with respect to his discourteous and offensive conduct.¹⁵²⁷⁰

6507. On 1 September 2006, the Chamber dismissed Ndayambaje's motion for the exclusion of testimony or parts of testimony of 14 Prosecution witnesses. The Chamber was not satisfied that there was a basis to exclude the testimonies, but held that some of the matters raised could be considered at a later stage of the proceedings.¹⁵²⁷¹

6508. On 5 September 2006, the Chamber directed the Registry to inform Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Ndayambaje that if they failed to appear in court, they would be deemed to have waived their right to be tried in their presence, and the proceedings would continue in their absence.¹⁵²⁷² When the proceedings resumed, all Accused were present.¹⁵²⁷³

6509. On 15 September 2006, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nsabimana to admit a written statement by Witness JAMI in lieu of oral testimony,¹⁵²⁷⁴ and dismissed a motion by Ntahobali seeking the admission of custodial statements made by Kanyabashi to Belgian authorities upon his arrest.¹⁵²⁷⁵

6510. On 25 and 27 September 2006, the Chamber dismissed motions by Nsabimana to admit video footage where the foundation had not been laid, or the footage had not been disclosed to the other parties in a timely manner.¹⁵²⁷⁶

6511. On 5 October 2006, the Chamber ordered Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje and Kanyabashi to reduce the total number of witnesses they intended to call and to file realistic and updated witness lists by 6 November 2006. The Chamber ordered Nteziryayo to proceed with the presentation of his defence as soon as Nsabimana's Defence was closed; Nteziryayo was also ordered to ensure that all relevant disclosures were made in due time to avoid any delay in the proceedings.¹⁵²⁷⁷

Ndayambaje*, Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Ndayambaje's Motion for Extension of Time to Reply to the Prosecutor's Response to its Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, 30 June 2006. 6512. On 18 October 2006, at the end of a scheduled trial session, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 6 November 2006,¹⁵²⁷⁸ when the Chamber reconvened.¹⁵²⁷⁹

6513. On 9 November 2006, the Chamber observed that Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje had failed to comply with previous scheduling orders, and that Counsels' non-compliance with the Chamber's orders obstructs the proceedings and is contrary to the interests of justice. The Chamber ordered Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje and Kanyabashi to review their witness lists and to file realistic and updated lists of witnesses by 4 December 2006.¹⁵²⁸⁰

6514. That day, the Chamber overruled objections by Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali to the admission of Witness AGWA's testimony explaining that even though his relationship to a certain meeting was not specifically pled in the Indictment, this alone does not render the evidence inadmissible.¹⁵²⁸¹

6515. On 15 November 2006, the Chamber formally warned Counsel Kadji for disclosing certain documents to Nsabimana while he was under cross-examination.¹⁵²⁸²

6516. Nsabimana closed his case on 28 November 2006, trial day 446, after calling 11 witnesses.¹⁵²⁸³

1.2.4.4 Nteziryayo Defence Case (4 December 2006 – 9 July 2007)

6517. Nteziryayo opened his case on 4 December 2006¹⁵²⁸⁴ and his Counsel, Mr. Pacere, made an opening statement.¹⁵²⁸⁵

6518. On 7 December 2006, the Chamber reached the end of the scheduled trial session and adjourned the trial to 22 January 2007.¹⁵²⁸⁶

6519. On 8 December 2006, the Registrar granted Richard Perras' request to withdraw as Co-Counsel for Nteziryayo.¹⁵²⁸⁷

6520. On 13 December 2006, the Chamber ordered Ndayambaje and Kanyabashi to further review their witness lists to significantly reduce the total number of witnesses they intended to call and to file final and realistic lists of witnesses by 31 January 2007.¹⁵²⁸⁸

6521. On 22 January 2007, the Chamber convened to resume the proceedings.¹⁵²⁸⁹
6522. On 25 January 2007, the Chamber held that the Prosecution was not obligated to disclose an out of court statement made by Witness AND-16 as the Parties had not been demonstrably prejudiced.¹⁵²⁹⁰
6523. On 29 January 2007, the Chamber granted Nteziryayo's motion to vary his witness list.¹⁵²⁹¹
6524. On 21 February 2007, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to change the order in which the parties would cross-examine the witness.¹⁵²⁹²
6525. On 22 February, 1 March, 8 March and 19 March 2007, the Chamber granted motions by Nteziryayo to vary the order of witnesses.¹⁵²⁹³
6526. On 8 March 2007 the Chamber issued a formal warning to Ms. Bergevin, Counsel for Nyiramasuhuko, with regard to disrespectful language.¹⁵²⁹⁴
6527. On 9 March 2007, the Chamber granted a motion by Nteziryayo to delete Witness AND-20 and to add Witness AND-75 to the list. It ordered Nteziryayo to disclose Witness AND-75's identifying information at least 21 days prior to the date of that witness' expected testimony and to call that witness towards the end of its case.¹⁵²⁹⁵
6528. On 21 March 2007, the Chamber denied motions by Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje for changes to the witness lists and an extension of time within which to file a response to the Chamber's 13 December 2006 Scheduling Order. The Chamber accepted the deletion of witnesses from Kanyabashi's witness list, ordered Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje to file revised witness lists; and ordered both Defence teams not to file additional motions for variation of their witness lists until they had complied.¹⁵²⁹⁶

6529. On 23 March 2007, Judge Asoka de Silva, sitting as a single Judge pursuant to Rule 75 (H) granted a motion by Nteziryayo for the immediate disclosure of the closed session transcripts of Witness M078 in the Muvunyi case, to all of the parties in the Nyiramasuhuko et al. case.¹⁵²⁹⁷

6530. On 27 March 2007, the Chamber granted a motion by Nsabimana and adjourned Witness AND-59's testimony to the next trial session.¹⁵²⁹⁸ The Chamber adjourned the proceedings until 16 April 2007,¹⁵²⁹⁹ on which date the proceedings resumed.¹⁵³⁰⁰

6531. On 19 April 2007, the Chamber granted a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for time to examine a document and reiterated that documents to be used in cross-examination should be disclosed prior to the start of the cross-examination.¹⁵³⁰¹ The Chamber granted a motion by Nteziryayo to vary the order in which he intended to call his witnesses.¹⁵³⁰²

6532. On 25 April 2007, the Chamber granted Nteziryayo's request to vary the order of witnesses.¹⁵³⁰³ On 10 May 2007, the Chamber denied a motion by Nteziryayo for certification to appeal an Oral Decision rendered on 19 and 23 April 2007.¹⁵³⁰⁴

6533. On 1 May 2007, the Chamber held that a will-say statement is not a statement of the witness, and cannot be used to impeach the witness.¹⁵³⁰⁵

6534. On 8 May 2007, the Chamber directed Kanyabashi to prepare a list of witnesses that he intended to call, and to comply with the related disclosure obligations.¹⁵³⁰⁶

6535. On 11 May 2007, the Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to recall Witness AND-44, or to reconsider an Oral Decision of 19 April 2007 which allowed the use of immigration documents pertaining to that witness released during cross-examination. The Chamber also denied certification to appeal.¹⁵³⁰⁷

6545. On 25 July 2007, the Registry issued a decision withdrawing the assignment of Mr. Guy Larue, co-counsel for Nteziryayo.¹⁵³²¹

6546. On 7 September 2007, the Registry issued a decision withdrawing the assignment of Mr. Louis Huot, co-counsel for Ntahobali.¹⁵³²²

6547. On 9 September 2007, the Registry issued a decision withdrawing the assignment of Mr. Phillippe Larochelle, co-counsel for Nteziryayo.¹⁵³²³

6548. On 18 September 2007, the Chamber denied motions by Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali for the exclusion of portions of Mr. Filip Reyntjens' Expert Report and expected testimony.¹⁵³²⁴ On 19 September 2007, the Chamber qualified Mr. Reyntjens as an expert in: the history of Rwanda; the contemporary history of Rwanda including the events in 1994; the law and government measures in Rwanda; the inquiry and historical analysis of events in Rwanda, including the events in 1994; and human rights and individual rights in Rwanda, including investigation and analysis in this domain and the situation of the rights of the persons in Rwanda, before, during and after the events in 1994.¹⁵³²⁵

6549. On 27 September 2007, the Chamber sustained an objection by Kanyabashi for a request to produce correspondence between the Expert Witness Reyntjens and the Kanyabashi Defence team.¹⁵³²⁶

6550. On 4 October 2007, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali regarding the immigration status and counsel of Witness NMBMP.¹⁵³²⁷ At the close of proceedings the trial session was complete and the Chamber adjourned the trial to 22 October 2007¹⁵³²⁸ when the Chamber convened to resume the proceedings.¹⁵³²⁹

¹⁵³⁵⁴ Prosecutor v. Ndayambaje, Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Scheduling Order, 16 April 2008.

6571. On 23 April 2008, the Chamber sustained a Prosecution objection that the testimony of Witness NMBMP was outside the scope of the notice of alibi prepared for this witness in relation to the Accused Ntahobali; however, the Chamber observed that the Accused could not be limited in developing and relying on his defence of alibi.¹⁵³⁵⁵ At the end of the session, Nteziryayo informed the Chamber that his last remaining witness would not testify; consequently the Chamber declared the case for Nteziryayo closed.¹⁵³⁵⁶

6572. On 24 April 2008, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion to unseal and disclose to Canadian authorities the transcripts of Witness QA and Exhibit P-93 for use in the trial of Desiré Munyaneza in Canada.¹⁵³⁵⁷ The Chamber partially granted a motion by Kanyabashi for the distribution of transcripts from the Munyaneza case in Canada.¹⁵³⁵⁸

6573. The same day, the Chamber partially granted three motions for additions, deletions and substitutions of various witnesses on Kanyabashi's witness list and directed the Defence to file a new list of witnesses immediately.¹⁵³⁵⁹

6574. On 28 April 2008, Ntahobali closed his case except for the filing of outstanding documents.¹⁵³⁶⁰ That day, the Chamber ordered all parties that filed notices of alibi to confirm that these notices were properly filed and served on all parties.¹⁵³⁶¹

6575. On 29 April 2008, the Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko for disclosure of various documents by the Prosecution.¹⁵³⁶²

that Kanyabashi's remaining witnesses completed their testimonies early or were unable to attend court as planned.¹⁵³⁶⁶

6579. On 13 May 2008, the Chamber granted Ndayambaje's motion to vary the order in which he intended to call his witnesses.¹⁵³⁶⁷ The Chamber instructed Ndayambaje to be ready to begin his defence case by 2 June 2008.¹⁵³⁶⁸

6580. On 14 May 2008, the Chamber denied Ndayambaje's motion to add new facts to Witness D-2-18-O's will-say statement.¹⁵³⁶⁹

6581. On 20 May 2008, the Chamber declared Kanyabashi's Defence case closed but for the testimony of Witnesses D-2-17-A and D-2-21-T.¹⁵³⁷⁰ The Chamber later granted Kanyabashi's request to remove Witness D-2-17-A from his witness list.¹⁵³⁷¹ It was Trial Day 646. In total, Kanyabashi called 25 witnesses.¹⁵³⁷² He did not testify on his own behalf.

1.2.4.6 Ndayambaje Defence Case (20 May 2008 – 2 December 2008)

6582. The Defence for Ndayambaje opened its case on 20 May 2008. Mr. Boulé, counsel for Ndayambaje, made an opening statement.¹⁵³⁷³ As it was the end of the scheduled trial session, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 2 June 2008¹⁵³⁷⁴ when it convened to resume the proceedings.¹⁵³⁷⁵

6583. On 4 June 2008, the Chamber granted a motion by Ndayambaje to allow him to remove Witness COMET and reinstate Witness MARVA; it further directed the Defence to disclose Witness MARVA's address in 1994 to the Prosecution.¹⁵³⁷⁶

6584. On 2 July 2008, the Chamber issued a Scheduling Order with respect to the Parties' final trial briefs, specifying word and page limits for each Party, and timelines for filing final briefs and closing arguments.¹⁵³⁷⁷ On 29 August 2008, the Chamber granted in part a motion for reconsideration of the orders relating to the final briefs.¹⁵³⁷⁸ Further motions by all Defence parties seeking to extend the deadlines for filing the brief and for increases in the page limits of the briefs were denied.¹⁵³⁷⁹

6585. That day, the Chamber also granted Kanyabashi's request to recall Prosecution Witness QA, and permitted cross-examination or re-examination by all Parties on the contradictions in his testimony.¹⁵³⁸⁰

6586. On 4 July 2008, at the end of the scheduled trial session, the Chamber adjourned the proceedings to 18 August 2008,¹⁵³⁸¹ when it convened to resume the proceedings.¹⁵³⁸²

6587. On 8 September 2008, the Chamber issued a warning to Pierre Boulé, Counsel for Ndayambaje, for raising his voice during proceedings.¹⁵³⁸³

6588. On 30 September 2008, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali to admit 36 documents.¹⁵³⁸⁴

6589. On 29 October 2008, the Chamber granted Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali's motion for further cross-examination of Prosecution Witness QA.¹⁵³⁸⁵ The Chamber also granted a motion by these parties to warn Prosecution Witness TQ of the duty to tell the truth and possible consequences of a failure to do so.¹⁵³⁸⁶

6590. On 7 November 2008, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Ntahobali and ordered an investigation into the false testimony of Witness QA. The Chamber ordered an investigation, pursuant to Rule 77, into Witness QA's allegations of intimidation and bribery. The Chamber directed the Registrar to appoint an amicus curiae to investigate the false testimony of Witness QA and the related allegations of contempt and to report back to the Chamber.¹⁵³⁸⁷

6591. On 11 November 2008, following review of a medical report indicating that Nteziryayo was well enough to follow the proceedings, the Chamber ordered that he appear in court.¹⁵³⁸⁸

¹⁵³⁸⁰ Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi, Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Kanyabashi's Motion to Re-Open his Case and to Recall Prosecution Witness QA, 2 July 2008. The request to recall Witness QA was an alternative request; the Chamber denied the primary request in this motion, which was to re-open Kanyabashi's case. Trial Chamber II also denied a motion for protective measures for a potential witness that Kanyabashi had hoped to call if his case were reopened. On 19 January 2009 the Chamber denied a motion to reconsider these decisions: Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi et al., Decision on Kanyabashi's Motions for Reconsideration of the 2 July 2008 Decision, Requesting that Witnesses D-2-23-C and D-11-AB be Called to Testify, and for Special Protective Measures for Witnesses D-2-23-C and D-11-AB, 19 January 2009; *Prosecutor v. Two days later, the Chamber again ruled that it expected Nteziryayo to attend and remain in court.¹⁵³⁸⁹

6592. On 14 November 2008, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali to admit two Rwandan judgements relating to Prosecution Witness TQ.¹⁵³⁹⁰

6593. On 20 November 2008, the Chamber denied motions by Ntahobali and Nsabimana to recall Witness QCB. However, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Kanyabashi and ordered the recall of this witness so that the Defence might cross-examine and the Prosecution might re-examine Witness QCB on specific enumerated contradictions.¹⁵³⁹¹

6594. On 25 November 2008, the Chamber dismissed a motion by the Prosecution to use portions of a statement that Ndayambaje made to Belgian authorities at the time of his arrest in cross-examination of this Accused.¹⁵³⁹² The Chamber sustained an objection by Nyiramasuhuko to questions the Prosecution attempted to put to the Accused Ndayambaje in cross-examination.¹⁵³⁹³

6595. On 26 November 2008, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Ntahobali which alleged various violations of his right to be tried without undue delay.¹⁵³⁹⁴

6596. Ndayambaje's Defence closed its case on 2 December 2008.¹⁵³⁹⁵ The Chamber ordered that the 60-day period for the filing of the final trial briefs by all parties would begin to run, and would conclude on 17 February 2009.¹⁵³⁹⁶ Ndayambaje called 24 witnesses, including himself.

6597. The joint trial concluded on 2 December 2008 after 714 trial days. Collectively, the Defence called 130 witnesses; the Chamber adjourned the proceedings sine die.¹⁵³⁹⁷

Ntahobali et al.*, Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Ntahobali's Motion for Reconsideration of the Decision Concerning Prosecution Witness QCB of 20 November 2008, 9 December 2008; Prosecutor v. Ntahobali et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Ntahobali's Motion for Certification to Appeal the Decision on Ntahobali's Motion for Admission of Two Rwandan Judgements Involving Prosecution Witness TQ, 14 January 2009.

¹⁵³⁹¹ Prosecutor v. Ntahobali et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Defence Motions for Recall and Further Cross-Examination of Prosecution Witness QCB, 20 November 2008. On 14 January 2009, Trial Chamber II denied a motion by Ntahobali for certification to appeal this decision. The Chamber directed the Registrar, pursuant to Rule 73 (F), not to pay the Defence any fees or costs related to this motion, due to Counsel's failure to heed the Chamber's warnings with respect to filing multiple motions relating to the same issue: Prosecutor v. Ntahobali et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Ntahobali's Motion for Certification to Appeal the 9 December 2008 Decision Concerning Prosecution Witness QCB, 14 January 2009.

1.3 Post-Trial Proceedings

6598. On 3 December 2008, the Chamber granted in part a motion by Ntahobali to recall Prosecution Witnesses QY and SJ on specific issues.¹⁵³⁹⁸

6599. On 9 December 2008, the Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko regarding Witness TK's evidence.¹⁵³⁹⁹ The Chamber granted in part a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to recall Witness QBQ for cross-examination and re-examination on specific contradictions concerning meetings at the prefecture office.¹⁵⁴⁰⁰

6600. On 14 January 2009, the Chamber denied motions by Kanyabashi and Nsabimana for the recall of Prosecution Witness FAI.¹⁵⁴⁰¹

6601. On 15 January 2009, the Chamber denied motions by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali and Nsabimana for certification to appeal a formal statement made by the Chamber with respect to the filing deadlines for the Parties' final trial briefs.¹⁵⁴⁰² The Chamber also denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko to stay the proceedings, holding that the Prosecution did not violate its disclosure obligation, the Accused had not suffered any prejudice, and there was no basis for the request to order a stay of proceedings.¹⁵⁴⁰³

6602. On 19 January 2009, the Chamber denied a motion by Ntahobali for the exclusion of evidence or the recall of various witnesses.¹⁵⁴⁰⁴

¹⁵³⁹⁸ Prosecutor v. Ntahobali et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Ntahobali's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence or for Recall of Prosecution Witnesses QY, SJ and Others, 3 December 2008.

¹⁵³⁹⁹ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, Alternatively for Admission of Documents into Evidence or for Recall of Witness TK, 9 December 2008.

¹⁵⁴⁰⁰ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko et al., Case No. ICTR-Case No. 98-42-T, Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence, or Admission of the Testimony of the Witness QBQ in the Trial of Désiré Munyaneza, or Recall of Witness QBQ, 9 December 2008.

¹⁵⁴⁰¹ Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Kanyabashi's and Nsabimana's Motions for Recall of Prosecution Witness FAI, 14 January 2009.

¹⁵⁴⁰² Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Ntahobali's, Nyiramasuhuko's and Nsabimana's Motions for Certification to Appeal the Formal Statement of 2 December 2008, 15 January 2009.

¹⁵⁴⁰³ Prosecutor v. Nyiramasuhuko et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Nyiramasuhuko's Motion for Stay of Proceedings for Violations of Her Right to a Fair Trial Following the Non-Disclosure of Evidence Under Rule 68, 15 January 2009. The Chamber reiterated in this decision that the purpose of a response is to give a full answer to the issues raised in a motion, and not to submit separate or additional requests. Kanyabashi's request for consideration of this issue with respect to his case was therefore improper and was not considered. Although Kanyabashi did eventually submit a separate motion for disclosure, Kanyabashi's motion did not allege violations of his right to fair trial. Kanyabashi's motion was also denied by the Chamber: Prosecutor v. Kanyabashi et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Kanyabashi's Motion for Disclosure Pursuant to Rule 68, 25 February 2009.

¹⁵⁴⁰⁴ Prosecutor v. Ntahobali et al., Case No. ICTR-98-42-T, Decision on Ntahobali's Motion for Exclusion of Evidence or for Recall of Witnesses, 19 January 2009.

6604. On 23 and 24 February 2009, the Chamber convened for the further cross-examination of Witnesses QCB, QY and SJ.¹⁵⁴⁰⁶ The Chamber denied a motion by Nyiramasuhuko and Kanyabashi for an order that would compel Witness QY to testify¹⁵⁴⁰⁷ and dismissed motions by Nyiramasuhuko and Ntahobali which sought “full possibility of calling back all witnesses” to determine whether or not they were invited to testify that they did not know each other.¹⁵⁴⁰⁸

6605. On 25 February 2009, the Chamber dismissed a motion by Nteziryayo for the exclusion of portions of the evidence of certain Prosecution witnesses.¹⁵⁴⁰⁹ It admitted several exhibits and thereafter adjourned the proceedings sine die.¹⁵⁴¹⁰

6606. On 26 February 2009, the Chamber dismissed a motion by the Prosecution for site visits in Rwanda.¹⁵⁴¹¹

6607. On 5 March 2009, the Chamber granted in part motions by Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Ndayambaje and the Prosecution for further extensions to the time frame of oral submissions of closing arguments and ordered that the closing arguments should be heard continuously from 20 April 2009 to 30 April 2009 with prescribed time limits. The Chamber ordered the Parties to address matters of sentencing during closing arguments and ordered the Registry to provide translations in a timely manner.¹⁵⁴¹²

6608. On 13 March 2009, the Chamber denied a motion by Ndayambaje for disclosure of various materials from the Kalimanzira and Ntawukulilyayo cases.¹⁵⁴¹³

6609. On 19 March 2009, the Chamber granted motions by Kanyabashi and Ntahobali and ordered an investigation into the alleged false testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QY and SJ. The Chamber also ordered an investigation into the allegations of coercion related to these witnesses. The Chamber directed the Registrar to appoint an independent amicus curiae to

6610. Between 20 and 30 April 2009, the Chamber convened to hear closing arguments by all Parties.¹⁵⁴¹⁵ On 30 April 2009, the Chamber held that the Butare joint case was closed and retired for deliberations.¹⁵⁴¹⁶

6611. On 28 May 2009, the Registry issued an order withdrawing Mylène Dimitri's assignment as Ntahobali's Co-Counsel.¹⁵⁴¹⁷

6612. On 8 June 2009, the Registry issued an order withdrawing Claver Sindayigaya assignment as Ndayambaje's Co-Counsel.¹⁵⁴¹⁸

6613. On 30 October 2009, the Chamber issued an order directing the Registrar to appoint a new independent amicus curiae to conduct an investigation into Witness QA's allegations of intimidation and bribery. The order also required an investigation into the alleged false testimony of Prosecution Witnesses QY and SJ, as well as an investigation into the allegations of coercion related by these witnesses.¹⁵⁴¹⁹

6614. On 4 March 2010, the Chamber denied motions by Ntahobali, Nyiramasuhuko and Kanyabashi to transmit to the Parties an amicus curiae report filed pursuant to Rules 77 (D) and 91 (C) on 1 July 2009.¹⁵⁴²⁰

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

1.1 The revolution of 1959 marked the beginning of a period of ethnic clashes between the Hutu and the Tutsi in Rwanda, causing hundreds of Tutsi to die and thousands more to flee the country in the years immediately following. The revolution resulted in the abolition of the Tutsi monarchy and the proclamation of the First Republic in early 1961, confirmed in a referendum held in the same year. Legislative elections held in September 1961 confirmed the dominant position of the MDR-PARMEHUTU (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain - Parti du Mouvement d'Emancipation Hutu), led by Grégoire Kayibanda, who was subsequently elected President of the Republic by the Legislative Assembly on 26 October 1961.

1.2 The early years of the First Republic, which was under the domination of the Hutu of central and southern Rwanda, were again marked by ethnic violence. The victims were predominantly Tutsi, the former ruling elite, and those related to them, who were killed, driven to other regions of Rwanda or forced to flee the country. The gradual elimination of the opposition parties in those early years confirmed the MDR-PARMEHUTU as the single party, the only party to present candidates in the elections of 1965.

1.3 The early part of 1973 in Rwanda was again marked by ethnic confrontations between the Hutu and Tutsi, prompting another exodus of the Tutsi minority from the country, as had occurred between 1959 and 1963. This new outburst of ethnic and political tension between the North and South resulted in a military coup by General Juvénal Habyarimana on 5 July 1973, shifting power from civilian to military hands and from the Hutu of central Rwanda to the Hutu of the northern préfectures of Gisenyi and Ruhengeri (Habyarimana's native region).

1. CONTEXTE HISTORIQUE

1.2 Les premières années d'existence de cette république, dominée par les Hutu du centre et du sud du Rwanda, sont de nouveau marquées par la violence ethnique. Les victimes furent principalement des Tutsi, l'ancienne élite dirigeante, et leurs alliés; ceux-ci furent tués, chassés vers d'autres régions du Rwanda ou forcés de s'enfuir du pays. L'élimination progressive des partis d'opposition durant ces premières années confirme le MDR-PARMEHUTU comme parti unique, qui est le seul à présenter des candidats aux élections de 1965.

1.3 Le début de l'année 1973 au Rwanda est de nouveau marqué par des affrontements ethniques entre Hutu et Tutsi qui provoquent, après ceux de 1959 à 1963, un nouvel exode de la minorité Tutsi. Cette recrudescence des tensions ethniques et politiques (entre le Nord et le Sud) aboutit, le 5 juillet 1973, à un coup d'État militaire mené par le Général Juvénal Habyarimana. Le coup d'État entraîne un renversement du pouvoir, qui passe des mains des civils à celles des militaires et de celles des Hutu du centre du Rwanda à celles des Hutu des préfectures de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri au nord du pays (région natale du Président Habyarimana).

1.4 In 1975, President Habyarimana founded the Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), a single party, and assumed the position of party Chairman. The administrative and party hierarchies were indistinguishable in this single party state from the level of the Préfet to the bourgmestres, and down to that of the conseillers de secteurs and responsables de cellule.

1.5 From 1973 to 1994, the government of President Habyarimana used a system of ethnic and regional quotas which was supposed to provide educational and employment opportunities for all, but which was used increasingly to discriminate against both Tutsi and Hutu from regions outside the northwest.

In fact, by the late 1980s, persons from Gisenyi and Ruhengeri occupied many of the most important positions in the military, political, economic and administrative sectors of Rwandan society. Among the privileged elite, an inner circle of relatives and close associates of President Habyarimana and his wife, Agathe Kanziga, known as the Akazu, enjoyed great power. This select group, almost exclusively Hutu, was supplemented by individuals who shared its extremist Hutu ideology, and who came mainly from the native region of the President and his wife.

1.6 In 1990, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, and his single party, the MRND, were facing mounting opposition, including from other Hutu.

1.7 On 1 October 1990, the Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF), made up mainly of

1.4 En 1975, le président Habyarimana fonde le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), parti unique, dont il assume la présidence. La structure administrative et la hiérarchie du MRND se confondent en un véritable parti-État à tous les niveaux de l'administration territoriale, du Préfet aux Bourgmestres, jusqu'aux conseillers de secteurs et responsables de cellule.

1.5 De 1973 à 1994, le gouvernement du Président Habyarimana applique un système de quotas basé sur l'origine ethnique et régionale qui était censé offrir des chances égales à tous en matière d'éducation et d'emploi, mais qui fut utilisé progressivement de manière discriminatoire à l'encontre des Tutsi et des Hutu originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest.

De fait, à la fin des années 1980, plusieurs des postes les plus importants dans les secteurs militaires, politiques, économiques et administratifs de la société rwandaise étaient occupés par des personnes originaires de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri. Parmi l'élite privilégiée, un noyau, connu sous l'appellation Akazu, composé de membres de la famille et d'intimes du Président Habyarimana et de son épouse, Agathe Kanziga, jouit d'un grand pouvoir. Aux membres de ce groupe, presque exclusivement Hutu, se joignent des personnes qui en partagent l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste et qui sont principalement originaires de la région natale du Président et de son épouse.

1.7 Le 1er octobre 1990, le Front Patriotique Rwandais (FPR), composé

Tutsi refugees, attacked Rwanda. Within days the government began arresting thousands of people, presumed to be opponents of Habyarimana and suspected of being RPF accomplices. Although the Tutsi were the main target, Hutu political opponents were also arrested.

majoritairement de réfugiés Tutsi, attaque le Rwanda. Dans les jours qui suivent, le gouvernement procède à l'arrestation de milliers de personnes présumées être des adversaires d'Habyarimana et soupçonnées de complicité avec le FPR. Parmi les personnes arrêtées, majoritairement d'origine Tutsi, il y a également des opposants politiques Hutu.

1.8 Following pressure from the internal opposition and the international community, and the RPF attack of October 1990, President Habyarimana permitted the introduction of multiple political parties and the adoption of a new constitution on 10 June 1991. The Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) was renamed Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). The first transitional government was made up almost exclusively of MRND members, following the refusal of the main opposition parties to take part. With the second transitional government in April 1992, the MRND became a minority party for the first time in its history, with nine ministerial portfolios out of 19. On the other hand, the MRND retained its domination over the local administration.

1.8 Suite aux différentes pressions de l'opposition interne et de la communauté internationale, et à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990, le Président Habyarimana autorise l'introduction du multipartisme et l'adoption d'une nouvelle constitution le 10 juin 1991. Le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) est alors rebaptisé Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). Le premier Gouvernement de transition est composé presque exclusivement de membres du MRND, suite au refus des principaux partis d'opposition d'en faire partie. Avec la mise en place du second Gouvernement de transition en avril 1992, le MRND se retrouve minoritaire pour la première fois de son histoire, avec neuf portefeuilles ministériels sur 19. Par contre, le MRND demeure fortement dominant au niveau de l'administration territoriale.

1.9 The new Government then entered negotiations with the RPF, which resulted in the signing of the Arusha Accords on 4 August 1993. The Accords provided for a new system of sharing military and civilian power between the RPF, the opposition parties and the MRND.

1.9 Le nouveau Gouvernement entame alors des négociations avec le FPR qui aboutissent le 4 août 1993 à la signature des Accords d'Arusha. Ces Accords prévoient un nouveau partage des pouvoirs militaires et civils entre le FPR, les partis d'opposition et le MRND.

1.10 By the terms of the Arusha Accords, which provided for the integration of both sides' armed forces, the new national army was to be limited to 13,000 men, 60% FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) and 40% RPF. The posts of command were to be shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides, with the post of Chief of Staff of the Army assigned to the FAR.

1.10 Aux termes des Accords d'Arusha qui prévoient l'intégration des forces armées des deux parties, l'effectif de la nouvelle armée nationale est limité à 13 000 hommes dont 60% proviennent des FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) et 40% du FPR. Quant aux postes de commandement, ils sont attribués à parts égales (50%-50%) aux deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de l'armée revenant aux FAR.

The Gendarmerie was to be limited to 6,000 men, 60% FAR and 40% RPF, with the posts of command shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides and the post of Chief of Staff of the Gendarmerie assigned to the RPF.

1.11 As regards representation within the government, the Arusha Accords limited the number of ministerial portfolios to be held by the MRND to five, plus the Presidency. The other portfolios were to be shared as follows: RPF, five; MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain), four (including the post of Prime Minister); PSD (Parti social-démocrate), three; PL (Parti libéral), three; and the PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien), one.

1.12 For the men and women close to President Habyarimana, including the members of the Akazu, who held positions of prominence in the various sectors of Rwandan society, this new power sharing plan, as demanded by the political opposition and as stipulated in the Arusha Accords, meant a relinquishment of power and the loss of numerous privileges and benefits. With political changes following the establishment of the multi-party government of April 1992, several important military officers from the north had been forced to retire. At the same time, many of the military were facing massive demobilisation with the implementation of the Arusha Accords.

1.13 From 1990, Habyarimana and several of his close associates devised the strategy of inciting hatred and fear of the Tutsi minority as a way of rebuilding solidarity among the Hutu and keeping themselves in power. They strongly opposed any form of power sharing, including the one envisaged by the Arusha Accords.

1.14 Determined to avoid the power sharing prescribed by the Arusha Accords, several L'effectif de la Gendarmerie est limité à 6 000 hommes, composé de 60% des FAR et 40% du FPR, avec les postes de commandement répartis équitablement (50%-50%) entre les deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de la Gendarmerie revenant au FPR.

1.11 Au niveau de la représentation au sein du gouvernement, les Accords d'Arusha limitent à cinq le nombre de portefeuilles ministériels du MRND en plus de la Présidence de la République. Les autres portefeuilles se répartissent ainsi: cinq pour le FPR, quatre pour le MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain) dont le poste de premier Ministre, trois pour le PSD (Parti social-démocrate), trois pour le PL (Parti libéral) et un pour le PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien).

1.13 À partir de 1990, Habyarimana et plusieurs de ses plus proches collaborateurs conçoivent une stratégie d'incitation à la haine et à la peur face à la minorité Tutsi, afin de rétablir la solidarité parmi les Hutu et de se maintenir au pouvoir. Ils s'opposent fortement à toute forme de partage du pouvoir et particulièrement au partage prévu par les Accords d'Arusha.

1.14 Déterminées à éviter le partage des pouvoirs prévu par les Accords d'Arusha, prominent civilian and military figures pursued their strategy of ethnic division and incitement to violence. They targeted and labelled as RPF accomplices the entire Tutsi population, and also Hutu opposed to their domination, particularly those from regions other than northwestern Rwanda. At the same time, they sought to divide Hutu opposition parties, attracting some of their members back to the support of Habyarimana. These efforts to divide the Hutu opposition were furthered by the assassination of Melchior Ndandaye, the democratically elected Hutu President, in neighboring Burundi, by Tutsi soldiers of the Burundi army. By late 1993, two of the three major parties opposed to the MRND had each split into two factions. The faction of each known as the "Power" faction aligned itself with the MRND.

1.15 The strategy adopted in the early 1990s, which culminated in the widespread massacres of April 1994, comprised several components, which were carefully worked out by the various prominent figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, including the members of the Akazu.

In addition to the incitement to ethnic violence and the extermination of the Tutsi and their "accomplices", was the organization and military training of the youth wings of the political parties, notably the Interahamwe (youth wing of the MRND), the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated, the distribution of weapons to civilians, the assassination of certain political opponents and the massacre of many Tutsi in various parts of Rwanda between October 1990 and April 1994.

1.16 The incitement to ethnic hatred took the form of public speeches by people sharing the extremist ideology. These political and military figures publicly appealed to hatred and fear of the Tutsi and urged the Hutu majority to "finish off the enemy and its accomplices". A perfect illustration is the plusieurs personnalités civiles et militaires en vue poursuivent leur stratégie de conflit ethnique et d'incitation à la violence. Elles visent la population Tutsi tout entière, qui est qualifiée de complice du FPR, de même que les Hutu opposés à leur domination, particulièrement ceux qui sont originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest du Rwanda. Parallèlement, elles tentent de diviser les partis d'opposition Hutu, en ramenant certains de leurs membres dans le camp d'Habyarimana. Les efforts destinés à diviser l'opposition Hutu sont favorisés par l'assassinat, par des soldats Tutsi de l'armée burundaise, de Melchior Ndandaye, président Hutu démocratiquement élu dans le Burundi voisin. À la fin de 1993, deux des trois principaux partis opposés au MRND s'étaient divisés en deux factions chacun. Les factions connues sous le nom de "Power" s'allient au MRND.

À l'incitation à la violence ethnique et à l'extermination des Tutsi et de leurs "complices", s'ajoutent l'organisation et l'entraînement militaire des jeunes politiques, notamment les Interahamwe (jeunes politiques du MRND), la préparation de listes de personnes à éliminer, la distribution d'armes à des civils, l'assassinat de certains opposants politiques et le massacre de nombreux Tutsi dans diverses régions du Rwanda entre octobre 1990 et avril 1994.

1.16 L'incitation à la haine ethnique prend la forme de discours publics prononcés par des personnalités partageant cette idéologie extrémiste. Ces personnalités politiques et militaires appellent publiquement à la haine et à la peur des Tutsi et exhortent la majorité Hutu "à en finir avec l'ennemi et ses complices". Le discours prononcé en novembre 1992 par Léon Mugesera, vice-président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, qui dès cette époque incitait publiquement à l'extermination des Tutsi et leurs "complices", en est la parfaite illustration.

With the intention of ensuring widespread dissemination of the calls to ethnic violence, prominent figures from the President's circle set up true hate media. Thus the creation of Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTL) and of the newspaper Kangura was a part of the strategy and pursued the same logic.

1.17 The creation of the youth wings of the political parties, originally established to encourage or even force adherence to one or another party in the newly-established multi-party system, provided Habyarimana's circle with a large, devoted and effective workforce to implement the adopted strategy. These youth organizations, which were affiliated to the political parties, were soon manipulated as part of the anti-Tutsi campaign. Some of the members of these organizations, notably the Interahamwe (MRND), were organized into militia groups, which were financed, trained and led by prominent civilians and military figures from the President of the Republic's entourage. They were issued weapons, with the complicity of certain military and civilian authorities. The militia groups were transported to training sites, including certain military camps, in public administration vehicles or vehicles belonging to companies controlled by the President's circle.

1.17 La création des ailes jeunesse des partis politiques, qui avait à l'origine pour objectif d'encourager ou même de forcer l'adhésion à l'un ou l'autre des partis du nouveau régime multipartite, va fournir à l'entourage d'Habyarimana une main d'oeuvre dévouée, nombreuse et efficace pour mettre en oeuvre la stratégie adoptée. Ces organisations de jeunesse affiliées aux partis politiques sont très vite manipulées dans le cadre de la campagne anti-Tutsi. Des membres de ces organisations, particulièrement les Interahamwe-MRND, sont organisés en milices, financées, entraînées et dirigées par des personnalités civiles et militaires de l'entourage du Président de la République. Des armes leur sont distribuées avec la complicité de certaines autorités militaires et civiles. Leur transport vers les sites d'entraînement, dont certains camps militaires, est assuré par des véhicules de l'administration publique ou appartenant à des sociétés contrôlées par l'entourage du Président.

1.18 During the mass arrests of October 1990, the civilian and military authorities followed lists that had been drawn up in order to identify and locate the presumed accomplices of the RPF, the majority of whom were Tutsi. Later, Army, Gendarmerie, local authorities and Interahamwe were given orders to prepare new lists or update the existing ones, which were subsequently used during the massacres of 1994. In March 1993, such a list was found in the vehicle of the Army Chief of Staff.

1.19 Towards the end of 1991, certain Rwandan authorities distributed weapons to certain civilians in the north-eastern region of the country as part of a civil self-defence campaign, in reaction to the RPF attack of October 1990. Later, some authorities distributed weapons nationwide, notably to the Interahamwe and carefully selected individuals, even in regions distant from the war zone. Towards the end of 1993, the Bishop of Nyundo criticized the distribution of weapons in a public letter, questioning its purpose.

1.20 The pursuit of the strategy thus described played a catalytic role in the political and ethnic violence of the time, which climaxed in the April 1994 massacres. The early part of the 90s was marked by numerous political assassinations and large massacres of the Tutsi minority, including the one in Kibilira (1990), that of the Bagogwe (1991) and the one in Bugesera (1992). The massacres were instigated and organized by local authorities with the complicity of certain prominent persons from the President's circle. Therein can be found the components of the strategy which culminated in the genocide of 1994.

1.21 In early 1994, certain prominent people from Habyarimana's circle instigated violent demonstrations in Kigali aimed at preventing the implementation of the Arusha Accords. Soldiers in civilian clothes and militiamen took part, seeking to provoke confrontations with the Belgian UNAMIR soldiers. These incidents were partially the cause of the postponement of the establishment of the institutions foreseen by the Arusha Accords.

1.22 On 6 April 1994, the plane carrying, jour les listes existantes, qui vont servir lors des massacres de 1994. En mars 1993, une telle liste est retrouvée dans le véhicule du Chef d'État Major de l'Armée.

1.19 Vers la fin de 1991, certaines autorités rwandaises distribuent des armes à certains membres de la population civile du nord-est du pays dans le cadre de la campagne d'auto-défense civile en réaction à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990. Plus tard, en dehors du cadre de l'auto-défense civile, des armes sont distribuées dans tout le pays par des autorités, notamment aux Interahamwe et à des personnes soigneusement choisies, même dans des régions éloignées de la zone de guerre. Vers la fin de 1993, l'Évêque de Nyundo critique dans une lettre publique cette distribution d'armes, s'interrogeant sur sa finalité.

1.20 La mise en place de la stratégie ainsi décrite joue un rôle de catalyseur dans la violence politique et ethnique de cette époque qui atteint son paroxysme avec les massacres d'avril 1994. Le début des années 90 est marqué par de nombreux assassinats politiques et d'importants massacres de la minorité Tutsi, dont celui de Kibilira (1990), ceux des Bagogwe (1991) et celui du Bugesera (1992). Ces massacres sont suscités et organisés par des autorités locales avec la complicité de certaines personnalités de l'entourage du Président Habyarimana. On y retrouve tous les éléments de la stratégie qui va aboutir au génocide de 1994.

1.21 Au début de 1994, des manifestations violentes visant à empêcher la mise en place des Accords d'Arusha se déroulent à Kigali à l'instigation de certaines personnalités de l'entourage d'Habyarimana. On y retrouve des militaires en civil aux côtés des miliciens qui cherchent à provoquer des affrontements avec les soldats belges de la MINUAR. Ces incidents sont en partie à l'origine du report de la mise en place des institutions prévues dans les Accords d'Arusha.

1.22 Le 6 avril 1994, l'avion transportant, among other passengers, the President of the Republic of Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali airport.

1.23 In the hours which followed the crash of the President's plane, the senior officers of the FAR convened to assess the situation. Those who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, generally from the North, proposed an Army take-over. During a second meeting which took place on the morning of 7 April, that option was rejected in favour of setting up an interim Government.

1.24 Already on the morning of 7 April and while these discussions were taking place, groups of military, lists in hand, proceeded to arrest, confine and carry out systematic assassinations of a large number of political opponents, both Hutu and Tutsi, including the Prime Minister, some of the Ministers in her Government and the President of the Constitutional Court. At the same time, however, the military were evacuating prominent members of the dead President's circle, including the MRND Ministers, to safe locations.

The Belgian UNAMIR soldiers sent to protect the Prime Minister were disarmed, arrested and taken to Kigali military camp, where they were massacred, prompting the withdrawal of the Belgian contingent in the days that followed. After the withdrawal of the Belgian troops, the UN Security Council drastically reduced the number of UNAMIR personnel in Rwanda.

1.25 The leaders of various political parties not targeted in the assassinations assembled at the request of military officers. Other than members of the MRND, most participants were members of the "Power" wings of their respective parties. Given the political and constitutional void created by the deaths of most national political authorities, they set up a government based on the 1991 constitution. Composed solely of Hutu, the government entre autres passagers, le Président de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, est abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali.

1.23 Dans les heures qui suivent la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les principaux officiers des FAR se réunissent pour évaluer la situation. Ceux qui partagent l'idéologie extrémiste Hutu, généralement les militaires du nord du pays, proposent la prise du pouvoir par l'Armée. Le 7 avril au matin, lors d'une deuxième réunion, cette option est rejetée au profit de la mise sur pied d'un gouvernement intérimaire.

1.24 Dès le 7 avril au matin, parallèlement à ces discussions, des groupes de militaires, listes en main, procèdent à l'arrestation, à la séquestration et à l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques, Hutu et Tutsi, parmi lesquels le Premier Ministre, certains des ministres de son gouvernement et le Président de la Cour Constitutionnelle. Par contre, au même moment, des militaires évacuent dans des endroits sûrs des personnalités de l'entourage du défunt Président, y compris les ministres du MRND.

Les militaires belges de la MINUAR envoyés pour protéger le Premier Ministre sont désarmés, arrêtés et conduits au camp militaire de Kigali où ils sont massacrés. Cet incident précipite le retrait du contingent belge dans les jours qui suivent. Après le retrait des troupes belges, le Conseil de sécurité des Nations-Unies réduit de façon draconienne le nombre de personnel de la MINUAR au Rwanda.

1991. Le gouvernement, exclusivement composé de personnalités Hutu, prête serment le 9 avril 1994. Neuf postes ministériels sont attribués au MRND, en plus de la présidence de la République, et les onze postes restants, incluant celui de premier ministre, reviennent aux factions "Power" des autres partis.

1.26 In the hours following the crash of President Habyarimana's plane, military and militiamen set up roadblocks and began slaughtering Tutsi and members of the Hutu opposition in Kigali and in other parts of Rwanda. At the roadblocks, they checked the identity cards of passers-by and killed those or most of those who were identified as Tutsi. Military patrols, often involving militiamen, scoured the city, lists in hand, to execute the Tutsi and certain political opponents.

1.27 During the entire period of the genocide, FAR military, particularly units of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion, Reconnaissance Battalion and the Gendarmerie, in complicity with militiamen, actively participated in the massacres of the Tutsi throughout Rwanda.

1.28 As soon as it was formed, the Interim Government espoused the plan for extermination put in place. Throughout the period of the massacres, the Government made decisions and issued directives to aid and abet in the extermination of the Tutsi population and the elimination of the Hutu political opponents. Members of the Government incited the population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices", some of them participating directly in the massacres.

1.28 Dès sa formation, le Gouvernement Intérimaire fait sien le plan d'extermination mis en place. Durant toute la période des massacres, le Gouvernement prend des décisions et donne des directives dans le but d'aider et encourager l'extermination de la population Tutsi et l'élimination des opposants politiques Hutu. Des membres de ce gouvernement incitent la population à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices", certains d'entre eux prennent part directement aux massacres.

1.30 Les groupes de miliciens, psychologiquement et militairement préparés depuis plusieurs mois, constituent le fer de lance dans l'exécution du plan d'extermination et sont directement impliqués dans les massacres de la population civile Tutsi et des Hutu modérés, causant ainsi la mort de centaines de milliers de personnes en moins de 100 jours.

2. TERRITORIAL, TEMPORAL AND MATERIAL JURISDICTION

2.1 The crimes referred to in this indictment took place in Rwanda between 1 January and 31 December 1994.

2.2 During the events referred to in this indictment, Rwanda was divided into 11 préfectures: Butare, Byumba, Cyangugu, Gikongoro, Gisenyi, Gitarama, Kibungo, Kibuye, Kigali-Ville, Kigali-Rural and Ruhengeri. Each préfecture was subdivided into communes and secteurs.

2.3 During the events referred to in this indictment, Butare préfecture was divided into 20 communes: Nyakizu, Kigembe, Gishamvu, Ngoma, Runyinya, Maraba, Ruhashya, Mbazi, Shyanda, Muyaga, Mugusa, Nyaruhengeri, Ndora, Muganza, Kibayi, Rusatira, Nyabisindu, Ntyazo, Muyira and Huye.

2.4 During the events referred to in this indictment, the Tutsi, the Hutu and the Twa were identified as racial or ethnic groups.

2.5 During the events referred to in this indictment, there were throughout Rwanda widespread or systematic attacks directed against a civilian population on political, ethnic or racial grounds.

2.6 During the events referred to in this indictment, a state of non-international armed conflict existed in Rwanda. The victims referred to in this indictment were protected persons, according to the provisions of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

2. COMPÉTENCES TERRITORIALE, TEMPORELLE ET MATÉRIELLE

2.1 Les crimes visés par le présent acte d'accusation ont été commis au Rwanda entre le 1er janvier 1994 et le 31 décembre 1994.

2.2 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, le Rwanda était divisé en 11 préfectures: Butare, Byumba, Cyangugu, Gikongoro, Gisenyi, Gitarama, Kibungo, Kibuye, Kigali-ville, Kigali-rural et Ruhengeri. Chaque préfecture est subdivisée en communes et en secteurs.

2.3 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, la préfecture de Butare était divisée en 20 communes soit: Nyakizu, Kigembe, Gishamvu, Ngoma, Runyinya, Maraba, Ruhashya, Mbazi, Shyanda, Muyaga, Mugusa, Nyaruhengeri, Ndora, Muganza, Kibayi, Rusatira, Nyabisindu, Ntyazo, Muyira et Huye.

2.4 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, les Tutsi, les Hutu et les Twa étaient identifiés comme des groupes ethniques ou raciaux.

2.5 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, il y a eu sur tout le territoire du Rwanda des attaques systématiques ou généralisées contre une population civile, en raison de son appartenance politique, ethnique ou raciale.

2.6 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, il y avait un conflit armé non international sur le territoire du Rwanda. 3. THE POWER STRUCTURE

3. STRUCTURE DU POUVOIR

The Government

Le Gouvernement

3.1 According to the Constitution of 10 June 1991, executive power is exercised by the President of the Republic, assisted by the Government, composed of the Prime Minister and the ministers. The members of the Government are appointed by the President of the Republic upon the proposal of the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister directs the Government's program. The Government determines and applies national policy. To that effect, it controls the civil service and the armed forces. The Prime Minister decides the functions of the ministers and officials under the Prime Minister's authority. The resignation or termination of tenure of the Prime Minister, for whatever reason, causes the Government to resign.

3.1 Selon la Constitution du 10 juin 1991, le pouvoir exécutif est exercé par le Président de la République, assisté du gouvernement composé du Premier Ministre et des ministres. Les membres du gouvernement sont nommés par le Président de la République sur proposition du Premier Ministre. Le Premier Ministre est chargé de diriger l'action du gouvernement. Le gouvernement détermine et conduit la politique de la nation et dispose, à cet effet, de l'administration publique et de la force armée. Le Premier Ministre détermine les attributions des ministres et des agents placés sous son autorité. La démission ou la cessation des fonctions du Premier Ministre, pour quelque cause que ce soit, entraîne la démission du gouvernement.

3.2 The Ministers implement the Government's policy, as defined by the Prime Minister. They are answerable to the Head of the Government for doing so. In carrying out their duties, they have at their disposal the civil service and local administration corresponding to their functions.

3.2 Les ministres exécutent la politique du Gouvernement définie par le Premier Ministre. Ils répondent devant le Chef du Gouvernement de cette exécution. Dans l'exercice de leurs fonctions ils disposent de l'administration publique et territoriale correspondante à leurs attributions.

The Local Public Administration

L'administration territoriale

3.3 The Préfet represents executive power at prefectural level. The Préfet is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior and carries out his duties under that Minister's hierarchical authority. The Préfet's authority covers the entire préfecture.

3.3 Le préfet est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la préfecture. Il est nommé sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur par le Président de la République et exerce ses fonctions sous l'autorité hiérarchique du ministre de l'Intérieur. L'autorité du préfet s'étend sur l'ensemble de la préfecture.

3.4 In his capacity as administrator of the préfecture, the Préfet is responsible for ensuring peace, public order and the safety of people and property. The Préfet, in the discharge of his policing duties, maintaining peace and public order, may request the intervention of the army and of the Gendarmerie Nationale. The Préfet has hierarchical authority over all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur.

3.5 Similarly to the Préfet, the Bourgmestre represents executive power at the commune level. He is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior. He is under the hierarchical authority of the Préfet. He has authority over the civil servants posted in his commune. Moreover, he has policing duties in regard to maintaining order and law enforcement.

The Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.6 The Forces Armées Rwandaises (FAR) were composed of the Armée Rwandaise (AR) and the Gendarmerie Nationale (GN). The Forces Armées Rwandaises did not have a unified command and came directly under the Minister of Defence. The Commander-in-Chief of the Forces Armées Rwandaises was the President of the Republic.

3.7 The Gendarmerie Nationale was responsible for maintaining public order and peace and the observance of the laws in effect in the country.

3.8 The Gendarmerie Nationale was under the Minister of Defence but could carry out its duties of ensuring public order and peace at the request of the local government authority having jurisdiction, namely the Préfet. In cases of emergency, this request could be made verbally, notably by telephone. Such requests had to be carried out immediately. In addition, the Gendarmerie Nationale was obliged to transmit to the Préfet all information relating to public order. It had the duty to assist anyone in danger.

3.5 À l'instar du préfet, le bourgmestre est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la commune. Il est nommé par le Président de la République sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur. Il est placé sous l'autorité hiérarchique du préfet. Il a autorité sur les agents de l'administration officiant dans sa commune. Il a par ailleurs des attributions de police dans le cadre du maintien de l'ordre et de l'exécution des lois.

Les Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.7 La Gendarmerie Nationale était chargée du maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique et de l'exécution des lois en vigueur dans le pays.

3.8 La Gendarmerie Nationale relevait du ministre de la Défense, mais pouvait exercer ses attributions de maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique à la requête de l'autorité administrative territoriale compétente, en la personne du préfet. En cas d'urgence, cette réquisition pouvait être faite verbalement, notamment par téléphone. Cette réquisition devait être exécutée sans délai. En outre, la Gendarmerie Nationale devait porter à la connaissance du préfet tout renseignement concernant l'ordre public. Elle devait assistance à toute personne en danger.

The Political Parties and The Militia

3.9 During the events referred to in this indictment, the main political parties in Rwanda were the MRND (Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), the CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la République), the MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain), the PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) and the PL (Parti Libéral). The RPF (Rwandan Patriotic Front) was a politico-military opposition organization.

3.10 Most of the political parties had created a youth wing. The members of the MRND's youth wing members were known as the "Interahamwe" and those of the CDR were known as the "Impuzamugambi". Numerous MRND youth wing members subsequently received military training and were thus transformed from youth movements into militias.

Les Partis Politiques et les Milices

3.9 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation, les principaux partis politiques au Rwanda étaient: le MRND (Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), la CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la République), le MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain), le PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) et le PL (Parti Libéral). Le FPR (Front Patriotique Rwandais) était une organisation politico-militaire d'opposition.

3.10 La plupart des partis politiques avaient créé une aile jeunesse en leur sein. Celle du MRND était connue sous l'appellation "Interahamwe" et celle de la CDR sous le nom de "Impuzamugambi". Par la suite, plusieurs membres de l'aile jeunesse du MRND ont reçu un entraînement militaire; ce qui a transformé ces mouvements de jeunesse en milices.

4. THE ACCUSED

Pauline Nyiramasuhuko

4.1 Pauline Nyiramasuhuko was born in 1946 in Ndora commune, Butare préfecture, Rwanda.

4.2 At the time of the events referred to in this indictment, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko held the office of Minister of Family and Women's Development in the Interim Government headed by Jean Kambanda. Before that, she held the same office in the Transitional Government headed by Agathe Uwilingiyimana. She was a member of the Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) and a prominent political figure in Butare préfecture.

Arsène Shalom Ntahobali

4.3 Arsène Shalom (or Shalome) Ntahobali was born in 1970 in Israel, and is the son of Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

4.4 During the events referred to in this indictment, Arsène Shalom (or Shalome) Ntahobali was a student and led a group of MRND militiamen, the Interahamwe.

4.5 Arsène Shalom (or Shalome) Ntahobali exercised authority over Interahamwe militiamen in Butare préfecture.

4. LES ACCUSÉS

Pauline Nyiramasuhuko

4.1 Pauline Nyiramasuhuko est née en 1946 dans la Commune de Ndora, préfecture de Butare, Rwanda.

4.2 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko exerçait les fonctions de Ministre de la Famille et de la Promotion féminine au sein du Gouvernement intérimaire de Jean Kambanda. Elle a auparavant occupé les mêmes fonctions dans le gouvernement de transition du Premier Ministre, Agathe Uwilingiyimana. Elle était membre du Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND). Elle était un personnage politique important dans la préfecture de Butare.

Arsène Shalom Ntahobali

4.3 Arsène Shalom (ou Shalome) Ntahobali est né en 1970 en Israël. Il est le fils de Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

4.4 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation Arsène Shalom (ou Shalome) Ntahobali était étudiant et dirigeait un groupe de miliciens du MRND, les Interahamwe.

4.5 Arsène Shalom (ou Shalome) Ntahobali exerçait une autorité sur des miliciens Interahamwe de la préfecture de Butare.

5. CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS: PREPARATION

5. EXPOSÉ SUCCINT DES FAITS : PRÉPARATION

5.1 From late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of the government, political leaders, civil servants and other personalities conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition, so that they could remain in power. The components of this plan consisted of, among other things, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. In executing the plan, they organized, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population and of moderate Hutu. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.

5.1 Dès la fin de 1990 jusqu'à juillet 1994, des militaires, des membres du gouvernement, des responsables politiques, des membres de l'administration publique et des personnalités diverses, se sont entendus entre eux et avec d'autres pour élaborer un plan dans l'intention d'exterminer la population civile Tutsi et d'éliminer des membres de l'opposition et se maintenir ainsi au pouvoir. Les éléments de ce plan comportaient, entre autres, le recours à la haine et à la violence ethnique, l'entraînement et la distribution d'armes aux miliciens ainsi que la confection de listes de personnes à éliminer. Dans l'exécution de ce plan ils ont organisé, ordonné et participé aux massacres perpétrés à l'encontre de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalom Arsène Ntahobali ont participé à l'élaboration de ce plan, y ont adhéré et l'ont exécuté.

5.2 In December 1993 and January 1994, UNAMIR received information detailing a plan to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

5.2 En décembre 1993 et en janvier 1994, la MINUAR a reçu des informations qui exposaient des détails d'un plan conçu aux fins d'exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

Speeches and Incitement

Discours et Incitation

5.3 The incitement to ethnic hatred and violence was a fundamental part of the plan put in place. It was articulated, before and during the genocide, by elements of the FAR on the one hand, and by members of the Government and local authorities on the other.

5.3 L'incitation à la haine et à la violence ethniques a constitué un élément essentiel du plan mis en place. Elle a été articulée, avant et durant le génocide, d'une part par des éléments des FAR, et d'autre part par des membres du gouvernement et des autorités locales.

5.4 On 4 December 1991, President Juvénal Habyarimana set up a military commission. The commission presided by Colonel Théoneste Bagosora was given the task of finding an answer to the following question: "What do we need to do in order to defeat the enemy militarily, in the media and politically?"

5.5 In a letter dated 21 September 1992, the General Staff of the Rwandan Army ordered that an extract from the commission report be circulated among the troops. The letter came from the office of the Chief of Intelligence (G-2), namely Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. The extract defined the main enemy as follows: "The Tutsis from inside or outside the country, who are extremists and nostalgic for power, who do not recognize and have never recognized the realities of the Social Revolution of 1959, and are seeking to regain power in Rwanda by any means, including taking up arms." The secondary enemy was defined as: "Anyone providing any kind of assistance to the main enemy". The document specified that the enemy was being recruited from within certain social groups, notably: "the Tutsis inside the country, Hutus who are dissatisfied with the present regime, foreigners married to Tutsi women...". Among the activities the enemy was accused of, the document mentioned "the diversion of national opinion from the ethnic problem to the socio-economic problem between the rich and the poor".

5.6 The document and the use made of it by the senior officers aided, encouraged and promoted ethnic hatred and violence.

5.7 The characterization of the Tutsis as the enemy and of members of the opposition as their accomplices was echoed by politicians, notably by Léon Mugesera, MRND Vice-Chairman for Gisenyi préfecture, in a speech he made on 22 November 1992. Broadcast on the state radio and therefore reaching a much larger audience, Léon Mugesera's speech already at that time was an incitement to exterminate the Tutsi population and their "accomplices".

était chargée de répondre à la question suivante: "Que faut-il faire pour vaincre l'ennemi sur le plan militaire, médiatique et politique?"

5.6 Ce document et l'utilisation qu'en ont faite les officiers supérieurs ont aidé, encouragé et favorisé la haine et la violence ethniques.

5.7 La qualification des Tutsi comme étant l'ennemi et des membres de l'opposition comme étant leurs complices, a été reprise par des politiciens, notamment Léon Mugesera, Vice Président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, dans un discours prononcé le 22 novembre 1992. Diffusé sur la Radio d'Etat et s'adressant ainsi à un public beaucoup plus large, le discours de Léon Mugesera, a incité, dès cette époque, à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

5.8 From April to July 1994, incitement to hatred and violence was propagated by various prominent persons, including members of the Government and local authorities. The President, Théodore Sindikubwabo, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, Ministers Pauline Nyaramasuhuko and André Rwamakuba, local authorities such as the Préfets, Sylvain Nsabimana and Alphonse Nteziryayo, the Bourgmestres Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Elie Ndayambaje publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

5.8 D'avril à juillet 1994, cette incitation à la haine et à la violence a été propagée par différentes personnalités, dont des membres du Gouvernement et des autorités locales. Le Président, Théodore Sindikubwabo, le Premier Ministre, Jean Kambanda, les ministres Pauline Nyaramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba, des autorités locales tels les Préfets: Sylvain Nsabimana et Alphonse Nteziryayo, les Bourgmestres: Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Elie Ndayambaje, ont incité publiquement la population à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

The Militia Groups

Les Milices

5.9 The creation of the youth wings satisfied two of the political parties' concerns: to mobilize young people and to sensitize them to politics. The MRND and CDR followed the example of the MDR and RPF, which had already institutionalized their youth movements. Political rivalries during the multi-party period exacerbated tensions. The "Interahamwe" and "Impuzamugambi" began to be drawn astray from the time they were used to oppose with violence the political demonstrations organized by parties of the opposition.

5.9 La création des ailes jeunes répondait à deux préoccupations au niveau des partis politiques: mobiliser et sensibiliser les jeunes à la politique. Le MRND et la CDR ont suivi l'exemple du MDR et du FPR qui avaient déjà institutionnalisé leurs mouvements de jeunesse. Les rivalités politiques de la période du multi-partisme ont exacerbé les tensions. Les "Interahamwe" et les "Impuzamugambi" ont été entraînés dans la dérive dès lors qu'ils ont été utilisés pour s'opposer violemment aux manifestations politiques organisées par les partis de l'opposition.

5.10 In order to ensure that, when the time came, the extermination of the enemy and its "accomplices" would be carried out swiftly and effectively, it was necessary to create a militia that was structured, armed and complementary to the Armed Forces. For the militia to be represented nationally, Interahamwe committees were created at préfecture level. This decision of the central committee of the MRND taken in June 1993 was carried out by political figures in their localities, including, among others, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko in Butare.

5.10 Afin de s'assurer qu'à terme, l'extermination de l'ennemi et de ses "complices" se ferait rapidement et efficacement, il était nécessaire de constituer une milice, structurée, armée et complémentaire aux Forces Armées. Pour donner une représentation nationale à cette milice, des comités d'Interahamwe ont été créés au niveau préfectoral. Cette décision prise par le Comité Centrale du MRND en juin 1993 a été mise en oeuvre par des personnalités politiques au niveau de leur circonscription, parmi lesquelles Pauline Nyiramasuhuko à Butare.

5.11 As from 1993, and even before that date, anxious to radicalize the Interahamwe movement, the leaders of the MRND, in collaboration with officers of the FAR, decided to provide support, military training and weapons to those members most devoted to their extremist cause and to other idle youths.

5.11 Dès 1993 et même avant, dans un souci de radicalisation du mouvement Interahamwe, les dirigeants du MRND, en collaboration avec des officiers des FAR, ont décidé d'apporter leur appui, de fournir des armes et d'assurer un entraînement militaire aux éléments les plus dévoués à leur cause extrémiste ainsi qu'à d'autres jeunes désœuvrés.

Training of the Militia Groups

L'entraînement des milices

5.12 In Butare, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi and Ladislav Ntaganzwa, between March and June 1994, facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma and Nyakizu communes.

5.12 À Butare, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi et Ladislav Ntaganzwa, entre mars et juin 1994, ont aidé et facilité l'entraînement militaire de certains membres de la population civile, dans les communes de Ngoma et de Nyakizu.

Distribution of Weapons

La distribution d'armes

5.13 In Butare, before and during the events referred to in this indictment, Joseph Kanyabashi, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and others distributed weapons to the militiamen and certain carefully selected members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and eliminate its "accomplices".

5.13 À Butare, avant et durant les événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation, Joseph Kanyabashi, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje et Ladislav Ntaganzwa, et d'autres ont distribué des armes aux miliciens et à certains membres soigneusement choisis de la population civile dans l'intention d'exterminer la population Tutsi et d'éliminer ses "complices".

Establishment of Lists

Confection de listes

5.14 Having identified the Tutsi as the enemy and the members of the opposition as their accomplices, members of the Army General Staff, civilian authorities and militiamen established lists of people to be executed.

5.14 Après avoir identifié le Tutsi comme étant l'ennemi principal et les membres de l'opposition comme ses complices, des membres de l'Etat-Major de l'Armée, des autorités civiles et des miliciens ont dressé des listes de personnes à exécuter.

5.15 From 7 April to late July, military and Interahamwe massacred members of the Tutsi population and moderate Hutu by means of pre-established lists, among other things.

5.15 Du 7 avril à la fin juillet, des militaires et des Interahamwe ont perpétré des massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés, entre autres à l'aide de listes pré-établies.

Precursors Revealing A Deliberate Course of Action

Antécédents révélant une conduite délibérée

5.16 The political and ethnic violence of the early 1990s was characterized by the use of the elements of the strategy which achieved its finality in the genocide of April 1994. The massacres of the Tutsi minority at that time, including those in Kibilira (1990), in Bugesera (1992), and those of the Bagogwe (1991), were instigated, facilitated and organized by civilian and military authorities.

5.16 La violence ethnique et politique du début des années 90 a été caractérisée par l'utilisation des éléments de la stratégie qui allait connaître son aboutissement avec le génocide de 1994. Les massacres de la minorité Tutsi perpétrés à cette époque, tels que ceux à Kibilira (1990), à Bugesera (1992), et ceux à l'encontre des Bagogwe (1991) ont été suscités, facilités et organisés par des autorités civiles et militaires. À chaque occasion une campagne d'incitation à la violence ethnique menée par des autorités locales a été suivie de massacres de la minorité Tutsi, perpétrés par des groupes de miliciens et de civils, armés et aidés par ces mêmes autorités et certains militaires. À chaque occasion, ces crimes sont demeurés impunis et les autorités impliquées n'ont généralement pas été inquiétées.

On each occasion, a campaign of incitement to ethnic violence, conducted by local authorities, was followed by massacres of the Tutsi minority, perpetrated by groups of militiamen and civilians, armed and assisted by the same authorities and by certain military personnel. On each occasion, these crimes remained unpunished and the authorities implicated were generally not taken to task.

5.17 Finalement, dès le 7 avril 1994, sur tout le territoire du Rwanda, des Tutsi et certains Hutu modérés, pour échapper à la violence dont ils étaient victimes sur leurs collines, ont commencé à fuir leurs maisons pour chercher refuge dans des endroits où traditionnellement ils s'étaient sentis en sécurité, notamment des églises, des hôpitaux et d'autres édifices publics comme les bureaux communaux et préfectoraux. À plusieurs occasions, des endroits de rassemblement leur avaient été indiqués par des autorités locales qui avaient promis de les protéger. Durant les premiers jours, les réfugiés ont été protégés par quelques gendarmes et policiers communaux dans ces différents endroits, mais par la suite, systématiquement, les réfugiés ont été attaqués et massacrés par des miliciens, souvent aidés par ces mêmes autorités qui avaient promis de les protéger. Au cours des nombreuses attaques menées contre les réfugiés partout à travers le pays, des membres des FAR, militaires ou gendarmes, qui devaient les protéger, ont empêché les Tutsi de fuir et facilité leur massacre par les Interahamwe. A plusieurs occasions, ces

5.17 Finally, as of 7 April 1994, throughout Rwanda, Tutsis and certain moderate Hutu began to flee their homes to escape the violence to which they were victims on their hills and to seek refuge in places where they had traditionally felt safe, notably churches, hospitals and other public buildings such as commune and préfecture offices. On several occasions, gathering places were indicated to them by the local authorities, who had promised to protect them. For the initial days, the refugees were protected by a few gendarmes and communal police in these various locations, but subsequently, the refugees were systematically attacked and massacred by militiamen, often assisted by the same authorities who had promised to protect the refugees. During the numerous attacks on the refugees throughout the country, personnel of the FAR, military or gendarmes, who were supposed to protect them, prevented the Tutsi from escaping and facilitated their massacre by the Interahamwe.

On several occasions, these FAR personnel participated directly in the massacres.

membres des FAR ont participé directement aux massacres.

5.18 Furthermore, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes raped, or sexually assaulted and committed other crimes of a sexual nature against Tutsi women and girls, sometimes after having first kidnapped them.

5.18 De plus, des militaires, des miliciens et des gendarmes ont commis des viols, des agressions sexuelles et d'autres crimes de nature sexuelle à l'encontre de certaines femmes et jeunes filles Tutsi et ce parfois après les avoir enlevées.

6. CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS: OTHER VIOLATIONS OF INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN LAW

Power Crisis

6.1 On 6 April 1994 at about 8:30 p.m., the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali Airport, Rwanda.

6.2 Following the crash of the President's plane, the Forces Armées Rwandaises were left without leadership. The President was dead, along with the Chief of Staff of the Rwandan Army, Colonel Déogratias Nsabimana. The Minister of Defence, Augustin Bizimana, was on mission in the Republic of Cameroon. In his absence, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora, his directeur de cabinet, asserted himself as the man of the moment capable of managing the crisis.

6.3 Within the first hours following the death of the President, two important meetings took place in Kigali, during which Colonel Théoneste Bagosora and several Army officers attempted to seize power. During this period Colonel Théoneste Bagosora openly opposed any consultation with the Prime Minister, Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.4 Indeed, while the meeting of 7 April was going on, Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana was tracked down, arrested, sexually assaulted and killed by Rwandan Army personnel, more specifically, members of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion and the Reconnaissance Battalion. Concurrently, members of the same units arrested, confined and killed important opposition leaders. That same morning, ten Belgian para-commandos from UNAMIR

Crise du pouvoir

6.1 Au soir du 6 avril 1994 vers 20:30 heures, l'avion transportant entre autres passagers le Président de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, a été abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali, Rwanda.

6.2 Après la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les Forces Armées Rwandaises se sont retrouvées sans direction. Le Président était mort ainsi que le chef d'Etat-Major (AR), le Colonel Déogratias Nsabimana. Le Ministre de la Défense, Augustin Bizimana était en mission en République du Cameroun. En son absence, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora, son directeur de cabinet, s'est imposé comme l'homme de la situation à même de gérer la crise.

6.3 Au cours des premières heures qui ont suivi la mort du Président, deux réunions importantes ont eu lieu à Kigali, au cours desquelles le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora et plusieurs officiers de l'armée ont tenté de prendre le pouvoir. Au cours de cette période, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora s'est opposé ouvertement à toute consultation avec le premier ministre Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.4 De fait, pendant que se déroulait la réunion du 7 Avril, le Premier Ministre, Madame Agathe Uwilingiyimana était traquée, arrêtée, agressée sexuellement et tuée par des membres de l'Armée Rwandaise, plus particulièrement ceux de la Garde Présidentielle, du bataillon Para-Commando et du bataillon de Reconnaissance. Parallèlement à cet assassinat, des membres de ces mêmes unités ont arrêté, séquestré et tué des leaders importants de l'opposition.

who had been dispatched to the residence of the Prime Minister were brutally murdered at Kigali military camp.

Dans la même matinée, 10 Para-Commandos belges de la MINUAR qui avaient été envoyés à la résidence du Premier Ministre étaient assassinés au camp militaire de Kigali.

6.5 The elimination of political opponents made it possible to set aside the establishment of the Broad Based Transition Government (BBTG), stipulated in the Arusha Accords, in favour of an Interim Government. The murder of the Belgian soldiers prompted the withdrawal of most of UNAMIR's contingents. Those two events removed the two major obstacles to the pursuit of the massacres.

6.5 L'élimination des opposants politiques a permis d'écarter la mise en place du Gouvernement de Transition à Base Élargie (G.T.B.E.), prévue aux Accords d'Arusha, au profit d'un Gouvernement Intérimaire. L'assassinat des militaires belges a provoqué le retrait de la majeure partie des contingents de la MINUAR. Ces deux événements ont écarté les deux obstacles majeurs à la poursuite des massacres.

Formation of the Interim Government

Formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire

6.6 Making up for the failure of the attempt at a military takeover by certain military personnel, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora and the leaders of the MRND and set up an Interim Government which would aid and abet the continuation of the massacres. The members of the Government were appointed at a meeting held on 8 April. The same day, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora introduced the individuals chosen to constitute the Interim Government to the military crisis committee. They were almost all members of the MRND and of the "Power" wings of the other political parties. No one of Tutsi descent was included either in the talks or in the new Government.

6.6 Faisant face à l'échec de la tentative de prise du pouvoir par certains militaires, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora et les dirigeants du MRND ont formé un Gouvernement Intérimaire qui allait aider et encourager la continuation des massacres. Les membres du Gouvernement ont été désignés lors de la réunion tenue le 8 Avril. Le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora a ensuite présenté au comité militaire de crise, le même jour, les personnes choisies pour composer le Gouvernement Intérimaire. Ces personnes étaient presque toutes issues du MRND et des ailes dites "power" des autres partis politiques. Aucune personnalité d'origine Tutsi n'a été associée aux discussions ou n'a fait partie du nouveau gouvernement.

6.7 Jean Kambanda was appointed Prime Minister of the Interim Government of Rwanda formed on 8 April 1994. The Government was officially sworn in on 9 April 1994. It was composed of 19 cabinet ministers, among them Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and André Rwamakuba.

6.7 Jean Kambanda a été désigné Premier Ministre du Gouvernement Intérimaire de la République Rwandaise constitué le 8 avril 1994. Le Gouvernement a officiellement prêté serment le 9 avril 1994. Il comptait 19 ministres dont Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba.

and Para-Commando Battalion set up roadblocks on the major roads, controlling people's movements. Militiamen soon joined them or set up their own roadblocks. At these places Tutsis or people thought to be Tutsis were summarily executed. Concurrently, groups of soldiers and militiamen scoured the city and murdered civilians.

Présidentielle et du bataillon Para-Commando ont érigé des barrages, sur les principaux axes routiers, contrôlant le déplacement de la population. Par la suite, des miliciens se sont joints à eux ou ont érigé leurs propres barrages. À ces endroits, des Tutsi ou des personnes considérées comme telles étaient sommairement exécutées. Parallèlement, des groupes de militaires et de miliciens ont sillonné la ville et se sont livrés à des assassinats de civils.

6.9 As from 7 April 1994, massacres of the Tutsi population and the murder of numerous political opponents were perpetrated throughout the territory of Rwanda. These crimes, which had been planned and prepared for a long time by prominent civilian and military figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, were carried out by militiamen, military personnel and gendarmes on the orders and directives of some of these authorities, sometimes by means of pre-established lists. In Butare préfecture, apart from a few exceptions as Nyakizu commune, the massacres did not start until 19 April 1994.

6.9 À partir du 7 avril 1994, des massacres de la population Tutsi et l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques ont été commis sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes planifiés et préparés de longue date par des personnalités civiles et militaires partageant l'idéologie hutu extrémiste ont été perpétrés par des miliciens, des militaires et des gendarmes suivant les ordres et les directives de certaines de ces autorités, parfois à l'aide de listes pré-établies. Dans la préfecture de Butare, à quelques rares exceptions dont la commune de Nyakizu, les massacres ne débutèrent qu'après le 19 Avril 1994.

INTERIM GOVERNMENT

GOVERNEMENT INTERIMAIRE

6.10 As soon as the Interim Government was formed, numerous Cabinet members supported the plan of extermination in place and took the necessary steps to execute it. They incited the people to eliminate "the enemy and its accomplices", distributed weapons to them, dismissed local government authorities who were opposed to the massacres, replacing them with others who were devoted to the cause, and adopted directives intended to facilitate the massacre of the civilian Tutsi population.

6.10 Dès la formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire, plusieurs membres du Cabinet ont adhéré au plan d'extermination mis en place et pris les moyens nécessaires pour l'exécuter. Ils ont incité la population à éliminer "l'ennemi et ses complices", lui ont distribué des armes. Ils ont révoqué des autorités administratives locales opposées aux massacres pour les remplacer par d'autres acquises à la cause et ont adopté des directives visant à faciliter les massacres de la population civile Tutsi.

6.11 Already, on 8 April, the new Government summoned all the préfets to a meeting in Kigali for the purpose of assessing the situation in the country at the time. The emergency meeting was held on 11 April 1994 and recorded the participation of all the

6.11 Dès le 8 avril, le nouveau Gouvernement a convoqué tous les préfets pour une réunion à Kigali, dans le but d'évaluer la situation qui prévalait dans le pays. Cette réunion de crise tenue le 11 avril 1994, a enregistré la participation de tous les

Government ministers and all the préfets, except those of Butare (Jean Baptiste Habyarimana), Ruhengeri and Cyangugu. At this meeting, the situation as regards the massacres in each préfecture was analyzed.

6.12 Rather than to take immediate action to put an end to the massacres, on 17 April, the Interim Government dismissed several authorities, among them the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, for their refusal to take part in the massacres so that the killings could spread to the country as a whole.

6.13 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held successively in Kigali, Gitarama and Gisenyi. During this period, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, and Ministers including Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and André Rwamakuba were regularly briefed on the situation in regard to the massacres of the civilian population. On several occasions during these meetings, the Ministers demanded weapons to distribute in their respective home préfectures, knowing that the weapons would be used in the massacres.

6.14 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, during these numerous Cabinet meetings, the Interim Government adopted directives and gave instructions to the préfets and the bourgmestres. The decisions, which were then passed on to the general public, were intended to incite, aid and abet the perpetration of the massacres. In order to ensure that the directives and instructions were carried out, Jean Kambanda's Interim Government designated a Minister for each préfecture to be responsible for what was termed 'pacification'. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko was assigned this task for Butare.

6.15 On 27 April 1994, the Interim Government ordered roadblocks to be set up, knowing that the roadblocks were being used to identify the Tutsi and their "accomplices" ministres, et celle de tous les préfets, exception faite de ceux de Butare (Jean Baptiste Habyarimana), de Ruhengeri et de Cyangugu. Lors de cette réunion, la situation des massacres dans chaque préfecture a été analysée.

6.12 Le 17 avril, au lieu de prendre des mesures immédiates pour mettre fin aux massacres, le gouvernement intérimaire a plutôt limogé plusieurs responsables, dont le préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, parce qu'ils avaient refusé de prendre part aux massacres et ce afin que les tueries s'étendent à l'ensemble du pays.

6.13 Entre le 9 avril et 14 juillet 1994, de nombreuses réunions du Conseil des Ministres se sont tenues successivement à Kigali, Gitarama et Gisenyi. Durant cette période le Premier Ministre, Jean Kambanda, les Ministres, dont Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba, étaient régulièrement tenus informés de la situation des massacres de la population civile. À plusieurs occasions lors de ces réunions, les Ministres ont exigé des armes pour les distribuer dans leur préfecture d'origine, sachant qu'elles seraient utilisées dans les massacres.

6.14 Entre le 9 avril et le 14 juillet 1994, au cours de ces nombreuses réunions du Conseil des Ministres, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives et donné des instructions aux préfets et aux bourgmestres. Ces décisions, répercutées à la population, visaient à inciter, encourager et aider à commettre les massacres. Pour s'assurer de la mise en oeuvre de ces directives et instructions, le Gouvernement Interimaire de Jean Kambanda a désigné pour chaque préfecture, un Ministre responsable de ce qu'on appelait la pacification. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko devait assumer cette mission à Butare.

6.15 Le 27 avril 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a ordonné l'érection de barrages routiers, sachant que ceux-ci étaient utilisés pour identifier les Tutsi et leurs "complices", afin de les éliminer.

6.16 On 25 May 1994, the Interim Government adopted directives concerning the civil self-defence program. Its purpose was to legalize the distribution of weapons to the militiamen on the one hand and to legitimize the massacres of the civilian population on the other. As part of the civil self-defence program, the Interim Government, by ministerial decision, appointed several military officers to lead "self defence committees" established in each préfecture. Some of these officers took an active part in the massacres, including Alphonse Nteziryayo in Butare.

6.16 Le 25 mai 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives pour le programme d'auto-défense civile. Ce programme visait à légaliser d'une part la distribution des armes aux miliciens et d'autre part à légitimer les massacres de la population civile. Dans le cadre du programme d'auto-défense civile, le Gouvernement Intérimaire, par décision ministérielle, a nommé plusieurs officiers militaires pour diriger des "Comités d'auto défense" installés dans chaque préfecture. Certains de ces officiers, tels qu'Alphonse Nteziryayo à Butare, ont participé activement aux massacres.

EXTENSION OF THE MASSACRES

6.17 The massacres of members of the Tutsi population and the murder of the moderate Hutu extended throughout the territory of Rwanda. In every préfecture, local civil and military authorities and militiamen espoused the plan of extermination and followed the directives and orders in order to execute it. They called on the civilian population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices". They distributed weapons to civilians and militiamen. They gave orders to commit, aided, abetted and participated in the massacres.

6.18 From April to July 1994, in all the regions of the country, members of the Tutsi population who were fleeing from the massacres on their hills sought refuge in locations they thought would be safe, often on the recommendation of the local civil and military authorities. In numerous of these places, despite the promise that they would be protected by the local civil and military authorities, the refugees were attacked, abducted and massacred, often on the orders or with the complicity of those same authorities.

BUTARE

6.19 Three important factors delayed the start of the massacres in Butare préfecture. Historically, this préfecture had a large Tutsi population living in harmony with the Hutu majority. Since the inception of the multiparty system, the Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominated the political scene in Butare and the Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) played a lesser role in that area than elsewhere in the country. Hence, the Interahamwe organizational structure was less elaborate and its membership was smaller. Furthermore, the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana (PSD), the only Préfet of Tutsi descent in the country, had openly opposed the massacres in his préfecture, where he had succeeded in maintaining calm, with a few exceptions,

ÉTENDUE DES MASSACRES

6.17 Les massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et les assassinats des Hutu modérés se sont étendus sur l'ensemble du territoire du Rwanda. Dans chaque préfecture, des autorités locales, civiles et militaires et des miliciens ont adhéré au plan d'extermination et ont suivi les directives et les ordres afin de l'exécuter. Ils ont appelé la population civile à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices". Ils ont distribué des armes à des civils et des miliciens. Ils ont ordonné, encouragé, aidé et participé aux massacres.

6.18 D'avril à juillet 1994, dans toutes les régions du pays, des membres de la population Tutsi qui fuyaient les massacres sur leurs collines ont cherché refuge dans des endroits qu'ils croyaient sûrs, souvent sur recommandation des autorités locales, civiles et militaires. Dans plusieurs de ces endroits, malgré la promesse qu'ils seraient protégés par les autorités locales, civiles et militaires, les réfugiés ont été attaqués, enlevés et massacrés, souvent sur les ordres ou avec la complicité de ces mêmes autorités.

6.19 Trois facteurs importants ont retardé le début des massacres dans la préfecture de Butare. Historiquement, cette préfecture comptait une forte représentation de la population Tutsi qui y cohabitait paisiblement avec la majorité Hutu. Depuis le multipartisme, le Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominait la scène politique à Butare, le Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) y jouant un rôle moins important par rapport au reste du pays. Ainsi, la structure organisationnelle des Interahamwe y était moins élaborée et ses adhérents moins nombreux. En outre, le Préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, (PSD), seul préfet d'origine Tutsi dans le pays, s'était ouvertement opposé aux massacres dans sa notably Nyakizu commune. Thus, thousands of people, the majority of whom were Tutsi, came from other préfectures to seek refuge in Butare in the days which immediately followed the start of the massacres.

6.20 The country's civil and military leaders became aware of the exceptional situation in Butare. Thus, the Interim Government, of which Pauline Nyaramasuhuko was a member, removed Préfet Habyalimana from office, and incited the people to get involved in the massacres. Préfet Habyalimana was subsequently arrested and was never seen again. Moreover, elements of the Army and Interahamwe militiamen were sent to Butare as reinforcements to start the massacres.

6.21 On 19 April 1994, the swearing-in ceremony in Butare for the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, was the occasion of a large gathering, which had been announced and organized by the Interim Government. On that occasion, President Théodore Sindikubwabo made an inflammatory speech, openly and explicitly calling on the people of Butare to follow the example of the other préfectures and begin the massacres. He violently denounced the "banyira ntibindeba", meaning those who did not feel concerned. He asked them to "get out of the way" and "let us work". Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, who subsequently took the floor, did not contradict the President of the Republic.

6.22 Because they were present at the ceremony and did not dissociate themselves from the statements made by the President of the Republic, the members of the Government, including Jean Kambanda and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, prominent politicians such as Edouard Karemera, and several bourgmestres, including Joseph Kanyabashi, gave a clear signal to the people that the massacres were ordered and condoned by the Government. Further, Joseph préfecture et avait réussi à y maintenir le calme, à quelques exceptions près, parmi lesquelles, la commune de Nyakizu. Aussi, des milliers de personnes, en majorité Tutsi, venues d'autres préfectures, avaient cherché refuge à Butare dès les premiers jours qui ont suivi le début des massacres.

6.20 Les dirigeants civils et militaires du pays ont pris conscience de la situation particulière qui régnait à Butare. Ainsi le Gouvernement Intérimaire, dont Pauline Nyaramasuhuko était membre, a révoqué le Préfet Habyalimana et a incité les populations à s'impliquer dans les massacres. Par la suite, le Préfet Habyalimana a été arrêté et n'a jamais été revu depuis. En outre, des éléments de l'armée et des miliciens Interahamwe ont été envoyés en renfort pour commencer les massacres.

6.21 Le 19 avril 1994, la cérémonie d'investiture du nouveau Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, à Butare, a donné lieu à un grand rassemblement annoncé et organisé par le Gouvernement Intérimaire. À cette occasion, le Président Théodore Sindikubwabo a prononcé un discours incendiaire, appelant ouvertement et explicitement la population de Butare à suivre l'exemple des autres préfectures et à commencer les massacres. Il a violemment dénoncé les "Banyira Ntibindeba", autrement dit ceux qui ne se sentent pas concernés. Il leur a demandé "qu'ils cèdent la place" et "qu'ils nous laissent travailler". Le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda a ensuite pris la parole et n'a pas contredit le Président de la République.

6.22 Par leur présence lors de cette cérémonie et en ne se dissociant pas des propos tenus par le Président de la République, les membres du Gouvernement, dont Jean Kambanda et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, des personnalités politiques telles que Edouard Karemera et plusieurs bourgmestres dont Joseph Kanyabashi, ont clairement indiqué à la population que les massacres étaient ordonnés et cautionnés par le Gouvernement. D'ailleurs, Joseph Kanyabashi, as the dean of the bourgmestres of Butare, in the presence of the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, made a speech in support of the President of the Republic, assuring him that his instructions would be heeded. Shortly thereafter, the massacres of Tutsis began in the préfecture.

6.23 The next day, two military planes landed in Butare with numerous Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion soldiers on board. These soldiers, in tandem with the Interahamwe of Butare, took part in murdering and massacring civilians, notably the former Queen of Rwanda, Rosalie Gicanda, a historical symbol for all Tutsi.

6.24 In the days which followed the unleashing of the massacres, Interahamwe from outside the préfecture, notably from Kigali and Gitarama, came in to reinforce their fellow militiamen in Butare in perpetrating the massacres. This included a detachment of Interahamwe which was accompanying their Chairman, Robert Kajuga.

6.25 On 20 April 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko asked the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, for military assistance to proceed with the massacres in her home commune, Ngoma. Sylvain Nsabimana agreed to her request and ordered the commander of the Ngoma military camp to provide her the necessary reinforcements, identities of whom are unknown.

6.26 Following 20 April and the start of the massacres, civil servants and political appointees who did not approve or participate with enough zeal in the killings of Tutsis, were dismissed by the authorities. Joseph Kanyabashi and Sylvain Nsabimana were responsible for such dismissals.

Kanyabashi, en sa qualité de doyen des bourgmestres de Butare et en présence du nouveau Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, a prononcé un discours pour soutenir le Président de la République et l'assurer que ses instructions seraient suivies. Peu après, les massacres de Tutsi ont commencé dans la préfecture.

6.26 Après le 20 avril et le début des massacres, les fonctionnaires et les responsables politiques qui n'approuvaient pas les tueries de Tutsi ou qui n'y participaient pas avec suffisamment de zèle ont été limogés par les autorités. Joseph Kanyabashi et Sylvain Nsabimana étaient responsables de tels limogeages.

6.27 Between April and July 1994, a roadblock was set up near the residence of Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali in Butare town. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali manned this roadblock. During this entire period, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali made use of the roadblock, with the assistance of soldiers, identities of whom are unknown and other unknown persons, to identify, abduct and kill members of the Tutsi population.

6.28 From 20 April the massacres became widespread within the préfecture. As in all the regions of the country throughout this period, Tutsis were killed where they had sought refuge thinking that the authorities would protect them.

Préfecture Offices

6.29 As early as 7 April 1994, numerous members of the Tutsi population sought refuge at the Butare town préfecture offices. As from 19 April 1994, Interahamwe militiamen and soldiers took advantage of this and repeatedly went to the préfecture offices to attack the refugees. The attacks took place while Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana was present and going about his daily business at the préfecture offices. Some of the refugees asked Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana to protect them from the violent acts of the militiamen and soldiers. Sylvain Nsabimana did nothing to put a definitive end to the attacks. Refugees were often forcibly abducted, assaulted and sometimes killed outright.

6.30 Between 19 April and late June 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, accompanied by Interahamwe militiamen such as one JUMAPILI and another NSENGIYUMVA among others and soldiers, identities of whom are unknown on several occasions went to the préfecture offices to abduct Tutsi refugees. Those who attempted to resist were assaulted

6.27 Entre avril et juillet 1994, un barrage routier a été érigé à proximité du domicile du Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et d'Arsène Shalom Ntahobali dans la ville de Butare. Ce barrage était tenu par Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali. Durant toute cette période, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali ont usé de ce barrage, avec l'aide de militaires, dont les identités ne sont pas connues, et d'autres personnes inconnues, pour identifier, enlever et tuer des membres de la population Tutsi.

Bureau Préfectoral

6.29 Dès le 7 avril 1994, plusieurs membres de la population Tutsi ont cherché refuge dans l'enceinte du bureau de la Préfecture dans la ville de Butare. À partir du 19 avril 1994, profitant de cette situation, des miliciens Interahamwe et des militaires se sont rendus à plusieurs reprises à cet endroit pour attaquer les réfugiés. Ces attaques se sont déroulées alors que le préfet Sylvain Nsabimana était sur les lieux et vaquait à ses occupations au bureau de la préfecture. Certains réfugiés ont demandé au Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, de les protéger contre les exactions des miliciens et des militaires. Sylvain Nsabimana n'a rien fait pour mettre un terme définitif aux attaques. Souvent des réfugiés ont été enlevés, agressés et parfois tués sur place.

6.30 Entre le 19 avril et la fin juin 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, accompagnés de miliciens Interahamwe, tel qu'entre autres un JUMAPILI et NSENGIYUMVA, et de militaires, dont les identités ne sont pas connues, se sont rendus à plusieurs reprises au bureau de la préfecture, pour y enlever des Tutsi. Ceux qui ont tenté de résister ont été and sometimes killed outright. The survivors were taken to various locations in the préfecture to be executed, notably in the woods next to the Ecole Evangéliste du Rwanda (E.E.R.) [Evangelical School of Rwanda].

6.31 When abducting their victims, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali often forced them to undress completely before forcing them into vehicles and taking them to their deaths.

6.32 The préfecture office was also the site of numerous meetings between the authorities of the préfecture. One such meeting was called by Pauline Nyiramasuhuko in April 1994 and attended by Sylvain Nsabimana. At that meeting, the progress of the massacres was discussed, as well as the means by which to complete them.

6.33 Around 10 June, President Théodore Sindikubwabo, accompanied by Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and the Préfet of Butare, Sylvain Nsabimana, went to the Butare préfecture offices, where numerous Tutsis had sought refuge. Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko asked the Préfet what those people were doing at the préfecture offices, and why they had not yet been killed.

Butare University Hospital

6.34 In April and May 1994, Arsène Shalome Ntahobali, Joseph Kanyabashi, and André Rwamakuba, accompanied by soldiers or militiamen, identities of whom are unknown acting under their orders, went to the Butare University Hospital in Ngoma, to select, kidnap and kill Tutsi who had sought refuge or treatment there.

6.35 From April to July 1994, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali also travelled throughout agressés et parfois tués sur le champ. Quant aux autres, ils ont été emmenés dans divers endroits de la préfecture notamment dans la forêt avoisinante de l'Ecole Evangéliste du Rwanda (E.E.R.), pour y être exécutés.

6.31 Au moment de leur enlèvement, les victimes ont souvent été contraintes par Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali de se dévêtir complètement avant d'être forcées de monter dans des véhicules et d'être menées à leur mort.

6.32 Le bureau préfectoral était aussi le lieu où se tenaient des réunions entre certains des principaux responsables de la préfecture et leurs subordonnés. Une de ces réunions a été convoquée par Pauline Nyiramasuhuko en avril 1994 à laquelle Sylvain Nsabimana a assisté. Au cours de cette réunion il a été discuté de l'évolution des massacres et des moyens à prendre pour les parachever.

6.33 Vers le 10 juin, le Président Théodore Sindikubwabo, accompagné du Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et du Préfet de Butare, Sylvain Nsabimana s'est rendu au bureau de la préfecture de Butare où avaient trouvé refuge de nombreux Tutsi. Le Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko a demandé au Préfet ce que faisaient ces personnes au bureau de la préfecture et pourquoi elles n'avaient pas encore été tuées.

Hôpital Universitaire de Butare

6.34 En avril et en mai 1994, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, Joseph Kanyabashi, et André Rwamakuba accompagnés de soldats ou de miliciens, dont les identités ne sont pas connues, qui agissaient sous leurs ordres, sont allés à l'hôpital universitaire de Butare à Ngoma pour sélectionner, enlever et tuer les Tutsi qui y avaient trouvé refuge ou y recevaient des soins.

6.35 D'avril à juillet 1994, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali a sillonné la préfecture de Butare à Butare préfecture in the search for the Tutsi. When the victims were located, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali abducted them and took them to various locations, where they were executed.

6.36 In mid-June 1994 Arsène Shalome Ntahobali and Alphonse Nteziryayo together attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. Overcoming the opposition of Red Cross International personnel and local authorities they selected about 40 adults whom they believed to be Tutsi and forced them to remain in Rwanda.

6.37 Furthermore, aside from his attacks on members of the Tutsi population during this period, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, assisted by unknown "accomplices", participated in the kidnapping and raping of Tutsi women.

6.38 Between April and July 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko not only incited on, but also aided and abetted the population such as one JUMAPILI and another NSENGIYUMVA and another MASHIMANGU son of MWARABU among others to slaughter the Tutsi in Butare préfecture.

6.39 The entire préfecture of Butare was the scene of massacres of the Tutsi population involving Elie Ndayambaje, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi and Ladislav Ntaganzwa, as well as Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali.

Muganza Commune and Kabuye Hill

6.40 Kabuye hill is located in President Sindikubwabo's home commune of Ndora, very near Muganza commune, of which Elie Ndayambaje, an influential MRND party member, was Bourgmestre from 1983 to 1992. From 19 April to 20 June 1994, Elie Ndayambaje became the de facto Bourgmestre in order to see through the massacres in the la recherche de Tutsi. Une fois ces victimes repérées, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali les a enlevées et les a emmenées dans différents endroits où elles ont été exécutées.

6.36 A la mi-Juin 1994, Arsène Shalome Ntahobali et Alphonse Nteziryayo ont tenté, ensemble, d'empêcher l'évacuation, à partir de Butare, d'environ 300 orphelins et des adultes qui les accompagnaient. Passant outre l'opposition des employés de la Croix Rouge International et des autorités locales, ils ont sélectionné environ 40 adultes qu'ils croyaient Tutsi et les ont forcé à demeurer au Rwanda.

6.37 Par ailleurs, outre les sévices infligés à des membres de la population Tutsi durant cette période, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, assisté de complices inconnus, a participé à l'enlèvement et au viol de femmes Tutsi.

6.38 Entre avril et juillet 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko en plus d'inciter, a aidé et encouragé la population, tel qu'entre autres un JUMAPILI, un NSENGIYUMVA, et un MASHIMANGU, le fils de MWARABU, à procéder aux massacres dans la préfecture de Butare.

6.39 L'ensemble de la Préfecture de Butare fut le théâtre de massacres de la population Tutsi, auxquels ont participé Elie Ndayambaje, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi et Ladislav Ntaganzwa, à l'exemple de Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et de Shalom Arsène Ntahobali.

Commune de Muganza et la colline de Kabuye

region.

6.41 Between 22 and 24 April 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompanied by communal policemen, gendarmes, soldiers and civilians armed with traditional tools and weapons, attacked the Tutsi refugees who had gathered at Kabuye on his order. Numerous Tutsis were killed or wounded. During the night, armed civilians surrounded the survivors and prevented them from escaping.

6.42 In May 1994, Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, accompanied by Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, visited Ndora commune. Among others, they met the Bourgmestre who had imprisoned people who had perpetrated killings in the commune's jail. After consulting Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Jean Kambanda had the prisoners released. A few days later, the Bourgmestre of Ndora was removed from office.

6.43 In June 1994, while the massacres were continuing in the region, Jean Kambanda visited Muganza commune and met with Elie Ndayambaje, among others. By his presence and by not denouncing the massacres he observed, Jean Kambanda confirmed in the eyes of the people that the killings were condoned by the Government. Furthermore, on 20 June 1994, the Interim Government led by Jean Kambanda appointed Elie Ndayambaje Bourgmestre of Muganza despite his crimes.

Nyakizu commune

6.44 In the week following the death of President Habyarimana, Ladislas Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre of Nyakizu commune and chairman of the MRND for Nyakizu, made a speech calling on the civilians to eliminate all the Tutsi in the secteur.

6.45 On 15 April, after having distributed weapons, Ladislas Ntaganzwa ordered, supervised and participated in an attack on région.

6.42. En mai 1994, le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda, accompagné du Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, a visité la commune de Ndora. Ils y ont rencontré, entre autres, le bourgmestre qui avait emprisonné au cachot communal des individus qui s'étaient livrés à des tueries. Après consultation avec Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Jean Kambanda a fait libérer ces prisonniers. Quelques jours après le bourgmestre de Ndora a été démis de ses fonctions.

6.43 En juin 1994, Jean Kambanda a visité la commune de Muganza où il a rencontré, entre autres, Elie Ndayambaje, alors que les massacres continuaient dans la région. Par sa présence et en ne dénonçant pas les massacres qu'il avait constatés, Jean Kambanda a confirmé à la population que ces tueries étaient cautionnées par le Gouvernement. De plus, le 20 juin 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire de Jean Kambanda a nommé Elie Ndayambaje Bourgmestre de Muganza, malgré ses crimes.

Commune de Nyakizu

6.45 Le 15 avril après avoir distribué des armes, Ladislas Ntaganzwa a ordonné, supervisé et participé à une attaque perpétrée

Tutsi refugees at Cyahinda parish, perpetrated by civilians, communal police and gendarmes. On 18 April, after a visit from President Théodore Sindikubwabo, who incited the inhabitants to exterminate the refugees at Cyahinda parish, Ladislas Ntaganzwa ordered and led the massacre of those who had survived the first attack.

par des civils, des policiers communaux et des gendarmes, contre des Tutsi réfugiés dans la paroisse de Cyahinda. Le 18 avril, après une visite du président Théodore Sindikubwabo au cours de laquelle il a incité les habitants à exterminer les personnes réfugiées dans la paroisse de Cyahinda, Ladislas Ntaganzwa a ordonné et dirigé le massacre de ceux qui avaient survécu à la première attaque.

Ngoma commune

Commune de Ngoma

6.46 During the month of April 1994, thousands of Tutsi refugees gathered in various locations in Ngoma commune, such as Kabakobwa cellule, Matyazo clinic and Ngoma Church, often on the recommendation of Joseph Kanyabashi, the long serving Bourgemestre, who had promised to protect them. Then, Joseph Kanyabashi ordered and supervised the massacres of these refugees by communal civil servants, soldiers and militiamen.

6.46 Au cours du mois d'avril 1994, des milliers de réfugiés Tutsi se sont rassemblés à différents endroits de la commune de Ngoma, dont la cellule de Kabakobwa, le dispensaire de Matyazo et l'église de Ngoma, souvent sur recommandation du bourgmestre Joseph Kanyabashi (en poste depuis longtemps) qui leur avait promis de les protéger. Par la suite, Joseph Kanyabashi a ordonné et supervisé les massacres de ces réfugiés perpétrés par des fonctionnaires communaux, des soldats et des miliciens.

6.47 Between April and July 1994, to make sure that the massacres were carried out in an efficient and unflagging manner, Pauline Nyaramasuhuko, Joseph Kanyabashi, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje et Sylvain Nsabimana, individually or in the presence of one another, not only incited, but also aided and abetted the population to slaughter the Tutsi in Butare préfecture.

6.47 Entre avril et juillet 1994, aux fins de s'assurer que les massacres étaient exécutés de manière efficace et continue, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Joseph Kanyabashi, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje et Sylvain Nsabimana ont, individuellement ou en présence les uns des autres, non seulement incité, mais aussi aidé et encouragé la population à massacrer les Tutsi dans la préfecture de Butare.

6.48 In May and June 1994, Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, who was staying at the same hotel as Robert Kajuga in Butare, ordered the Interahamwe to search for the Tutsis and kill them.

Responsibility

Responsabilité

6.49 From April to July 1994, several hundred thousand people were massacred throughout Rwanda. The majority of the victims were killed solely because they were Tutsi or appeared to be Tutsi. The other victims, nearly all Hutu, were killed because they were considered Tutsi accomplices, were linked to them through marriage or were opposed to the extremist Hutu ideology.

6.49 D'avril à juillet 1994, plusieurs centaines de milliers de personnes ont été massacrées sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. La plupart des victimes ont été tuées pour la seule raison qu'elles étaient des Tutsi ou ressemblaient à des Tutsi. Les autres victimes,

surtout des Hutu, ont été tuées parce qu'elles étaient qualifiées de complice des Tutsi, liées à ces derniers par mariage ou opposées à l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste.

6.50 From 7 April 1994 around the country, most of the massacres were perpetrated with the participation, aid and instigation of military personnel, gendarmes and Hutu militiamen. Certain units of the Para-Commando, Reconnaissance and Presidential Guard battalions were the most implicated in these crimes in the capital and in other préfectures, often acting in concert with the militiamen.

6.50 Dès le 7 avril 1994, partout au Rwanda, la plupart des massacres ont été commis avec la participation, l'aide et l'encouragement des militaires, des gendarmes et des miliciens. Certaines unités des Bataillon Para-Commando, de Reconnaissance et de la Garde Présidentielle ont été les plus impliquées dans la commission de ces crimes dans la capitale et dans d'autres préfectures du pays, agissant souvent de concert avec les miliciens.

6.51 Further, from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them logistical support, i.e. weapons, transport and fuel.

6.51 En outre, d'avril à juillet 1994, durant la commission des massacres, des militaires ont aidé des miliciens, notamment en leur fournissant la logistique, à savoir des armes, du transport et du carburant.

6.52 The massacres and the assaults thus perpetrated were the result of a strategy adopted and elaborated by political, civil and military authorities in the country, at the national as well as the local level, such as Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalom Arsène Ntahobali, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo and Ladislav Ntaganzwa, who conspired to exterminate the Tutsi population.

6.52 Les massacres et les agressions ainsi perpétrés furent le résultat d'une stratégie adoptée, élaborée et mise en exécution par des autorités politiques, civiles et militaires du pays, tant au niveau national que local, dont Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalom Arsène Ntahobali, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, et Ladislav Ntaganzwa qui se sont entendues pour exterminer la population Tutsi.

6.53 During the events referred to in this indictment, rapes, sexual assaults and other crimes of a sexual nature were widely and notoriously committed throughout Rwanda. These crimes were perpetrated by, among others, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes against the Tutsi population, in particular Tutsi women and girls.

6.53 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, des viols, des agressions sexuelles et d'autres crimes de nature sexuelle ont été commis, d'une façon généralisée et notoire sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes ont été perpétrés, entre autres, par des militaires, des miliciens et des gendarmes contre la population Tutsi, en particulier des femmes et des jeunes filles Tutsi.

6.54 Military officers, members of the Interim Government and local authorities such as Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalom Arsène Ntahobali, Joseph Kanyabashi, André

6.54 Des officiers militaires, des membres du Gouvernement Intérimaire et des autorités locales dont, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalom Arsène Ntahobali, Joseph

Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislas Ntaganzwa and Elie Ndayambaje aided and abetted their subordinates and others in carrying out the massacres of the Tutsi population and its accomplices. Without the complicity of the local and national civil and military authorities, the principal massacres would not have occurred.

6.55 Knowing that massacres of the civilian population were being committed, political and military authorities, including Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, took no measures to stop them. On the contrary, they refused to intervene to control and appeal to the population as long as a cease-fire had not been declared. This categorical refusal was communicated to the Special Rapporteur via the Chief of Staff of Rwandan Army, Major-General Augustin Bizimungu.

6.56 Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalom Arsène Ntahobali, in their positions of authority, acting in concert with, notably André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi Ladislas Ntaganzwa and Elie Ndayambaje, participated in the planning, preparation or execution of a common scheme, strategy or plan, to commit the atrocities set forth above. The crimes were committed by them personally, by persons they assisted or by their subordinates, and with their knowledge or consent.

Kanyabashi, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislas Ntaganzwa et Elie Ndayambaje ont aidé et encouragé leurs subordonnés et des tiers à commettre les massacres de la population Tutsi et de ses "complices". Sans la complicité des autorités locales et nationales, civiles et militaires, les principaux massacres n'auraient pas eu lieu.

6.55 Sachant que des massacres étaient commis contre la population civile, des autorités politiques et militaires dont Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalome Arsène Ntahobali n'ont pris aucune disposition pour les arrêter. Au contraire ils ont refusé d'intervenir pour contrôler et faire appel à la population tant qu'un accord de cessez-le-feu ne serait pas ordonné. Ce refus catégorique a été transmis au Rapporteur spécial par l'intermédiaire du Chef de l'Etat-Major de l'Armée Rwandaise, le Major-Général Augustin Bizimungu.

6.56 Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Shalom Arsène Ntahobali dans leur position d'autorité, en agissant de concert avec notamment André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislas Ntaganzwa et Elie Ndayambaje, a participé à la planification, la préparation ou l'exécution d'un plan, d'une stratégie ou d'un dessein commun, afin de perpétrer les atrocités énoncées ci-dessus. Ces crimes ont été perpétrés par eux-mêmes ou par des personnes qu'ils ont aidées ou par leurs subordonnés, alors qu'ils en avaient connaissance ou y consentaient.

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

1.1 The revolution of 1959 marked the beginning of a period of ethnic clashes between the Hutu and the Tutsi in Rwanda, causing hundreds of Tutsi to die and thousands more to flee the country in the years immediately following. The revolution resulted in the abolition of the Tutsi monarchy and the proclamation of the First Republic in early 1961, confirmed in a referendum held in the same year. Legislative elections held in September 1961 confirmed the dominant position of the MDR-PARMEHUTU (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain - Parti du Mouvement d'Émancipation Hutu), led by Grégoire Kayibanda, who was subsequently elected President of the Republic by the Legislative Assembly on 26 October 1961.

1.2 The early years of the First Republic, which was under the domination of the Hutu of central and southern Rwanda, were again marked by ethnic violence. The victims were predominantly Tutsi, the former ruling elite, and those related to them, who were killed, driven to other regions of Rwanda or forced to flee the country. The gradual elimination of the opposition parties in those early years confirmed the MDR-PARMEHUTU as the single party, the only party to present candidates in the elections of 1965.

1.3 The early part of 1973 in Rwanda was again marked by ethnic confrontations between the Hutu and Tutsi, prompting another exodus of the Tutsi minority from the country, as had occurred between 1959 and 1963. This new outburst of ethnic and political tension between the North and South resulted in a military coup by General Juvénal Habyarimana on 5 July 1973,

1. CONTEXTE HISTORIQUE

1.2 Les premières années d'existence de cette République, dominée par les Hutu du centre et du sud du Rwanda, sont de nouveau marquées par la violence ethnique. Les victimes furent principalement des Tutsi, l'ancienne élite dirigeante, et leurs alliés; ceux-ci furent tués, chassés vers d'autres régions du Rwanda ou forcés de s'enfuir du pays. L'élimination progressive des partis d'opposition durant ces premières années confirme le MDR-PARMEHUTU comme parti unique, qui est le seul à présenter des candidats aux élections de 1965.

1.3 Le début de l'année 1973 au Rwanda est de nouveau marqué par des affrontements ethniques entre Hutu et Tutsi qui provoquent, après ceux de 1959 à 1963, un nouvel exode de la minorité Tutsi. Cette recrudescence des tensions ethniques et politiques (entre le Nord et le Sud) aboutit, le 5 juillet 1973, à un coup d'État militaire mené par le Général Juvénal Habyarimana shifting power from civilian to military hands and from the Hutu of central Rwanda to the Hutu of the northern préfectures of Gisenyi and Ruhengeri (Habyarimana's native region).

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Le coup d'État entraîne un renversement du pouvoir, qui passe des mains des civils à celles des militaires et de celles des Hutu du centre du Rwanda à celles des Hutu des préfectures de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri au nord du pays (région natale du Président Habyarimana).

1.4 In 1975, President Habyarimana founded the Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), a single party, and assumed the position of party Chairman. The administrative and party hierarchies were indistinguishable in this single party state from the level of the Préfet to the bourgmestres, and down to that of the conseillers de secteurs and responsables de cellule.

1.4 En 1975, le président Habyarimana fonde le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), parti unique, dont il assume la présidence. La structure administrative et la hiérarchie du MRND se confondent en un véritable parti-hat à tous les niveaux de l'administration territoriale, du Préfet aux Bourgmestres, jusqu'aux conseillers de secteurs et responsables de cellule.

1.5 From 1973 to 1994, the government of President Habyarimana used a system of ethnic and regional quotas which was supposed to provide educational and employment opportunities for all, but which was used increasingly to discriminate against both Tutsi and Hutu from regions outside the northwest.

1.5 De 1973 à 1994, le gouvernement du Président Habyarimana applique un système de quotas basé sur l'origine ethnique et régionale qui était censé offrir des chances égales à tous en matière d'éducation et d'emploi, mais qui fut utilisée progressivement de manière discriminatoire à l'encontre des Tutsi et des Hutu originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest.

In fact, by the late 1980s, persons from Gisenyi and Ruhengeri occupied many of the most important positions in the military, political, economic and administrative sectors of Rwandan society. Among the privileged elite, an inner circle of relatives and close associates of President Habyarimana and his wife, Agathe Kanziga, known as the Akazu, enjoyed great power. This select group, almost exclusively Hutu, was supplemented by individuals who shared its extremist Hutu ideology, and who came mainly from the native region of the President and his wife.

De fait, à la fin des années 1980, plusieurs des postes les plus importants dans les secteurs militaires, politiques, économiques et administratifs de la société rwandaise étaient occupés par des personnes originaires de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri. Parmi l'élite privilégiée, un noyau, connu sous l'appellation Akazu, composé de membres de la famille et d'intimes du Président Habyarimana et de son épouse, Agathe Kanziga, jouit d'un grand pouvoir. Aux membres de ce groupe, presque exclusivement Hutu, se joignent des personnes qui partagent l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste et qui sont principalement originaires de la région natale du Président et de son épouse.

Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, and his single party, the MRND, were facing mounting opposition, including from other Hutu.

1.7 On 1 October 1990, the Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF), made up mainly of Tutsi refugees, attacked Rwanda. Within days the government began arresting thousands of people, presumed to be opponents of Habyarimana and suspected of being RPF accomplices. Although the Tutsi were the main target, Hutu political opponents were also arrested.

1.8 Following pressure from the internal opposition and the international community, and the RPF attack of October 1990, President Habyarimana permitted the introduction of multiple political parties and the adoption of a new constitution on 10 June 1991. The Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) was renamed Mouvement Rpublicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). The first transitional government was made up almost exclusively of MRND members, following the refusal of the main opposition parties to take part. With the second transitional government in April 1992, the MRND became a minority party for the first time in its history, with nine ministerial portfolios out of 19. On the other hand, the MRND retained its domination over the local administration.

1.9 The new Government then entered negotiations with the RPF, which resulted in the signing of the Arusha Accords on 4 August 1993. The Accords provided for a new system of sharing military and civilian power between the RPF, the opposition parties and the MRND.

Président de la République, Juvénal Habyarimana, et son parti unique, le MRND, font face à une opposition grandissante, notamment de la part d'autres Hutu.

1.8 Suite aux différentes pressions de l'opposition interne et de la communauté internationale, et à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990, le Président Habyarimana autorise l'introduction du multipartisme et l'adoption d'une nouvelle constitution le 10 juin 1991. Le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) est alors rebaptisé Mouvement Rpublicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). Le premier Gouvernement de transition est composé presque exclusivement de membres du MRND, suite au refus des principaux partis d'opposition d'en faire partie. Avec la mise en place du second Gouvernement de transition en avril 1992, le MRND se retrouve minoritaire pour la première fois de son histoire, avec neuf portefeuilles ministériels sur 19. Par contre, le MRND demeure fortement dominant au niveau de l'administration territoriale.

1.9 Le nouveau Gouvernement entame alors des négociations avec le FPR qui aboutissent le 4 août 1993 à la signature des Accords d'Arusha. Ces Accords prévoient un nouveau partage des pouvoirs militaires et civils entre le FPR, les partis d'opposition et le MRND.

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

1.10 By the terms of the Arusha Accords, which provided for the integration of both sides' armed forces, the new national army was to be limited to 13,000 men, 60% FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) and 40% RPF. The posts of command were to be shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides, with the post of Chief of Staff of the Army assigned to the FAR.

The Gendarmerie was to be limited to 6,000 men, 60% FAR and 40% RPF, with the posts of command shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides and the post of Chief of Staff of the Gendarmerie assigned to the RPF.

1.11 As regards representation within the government, the Arusha Accords limited the number of ministerial portfolios to be held by the MRND to five, plus the Presidency. The other portfolios were to be shared as follows: RPF, five; MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain), four (including the post of Prime Minister); PSD (Parti social-démocrate), three; PL (Parti libéral), three; and the PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien), one.

1.12 For the men and women close to President Habyarimana, including the members of the Akazu, who held positions of prominence in the various sectors of Rwandan society, this new power sharing plan, as demanded by the political opposition and as stipulated in the Arusha Accords, meant a relinquishment of power and the loss of numerous privileges and benefits. With political changes following the establishment of the multi-party government of April 1992, several important military officers from the north had been forced to retire. At the same time, many of the military were facing massive demobilisation with the implementation of

1.10 Aux termes des Accords d'Arusha qui prévoient l'intégration des forces armées des deux parties, l'effectif de la nouvelle armée nationale est limité à 13 000 hommes dont 60% proviennent des FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) et 40% du FPR. Quant aux postes de commandement, ils sont attribués à parts égales (50%-50%) aux deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de l'armée revenant aux FAR.

L'effectif de la Gendarmerie est limité à 6 000 hommes, composé de 60% des FAR et 40% du FPR, avec les postes de commandement répartis équitablement (50%-50%) entre les deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de la Gendarmerie revenant au FPR.

1.11 Au niveau de la représentation au sein du gouvernement, les Accords d'Arusha limitent à cinq le nombre de portefeuilles ministériels du MRND en plus de la Présidence de la République. Les autres portefeuilles se répartissent ainsi: cinq pour le FPR, quatre pour le MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain) dont le poste de premier Ministre, trois pour le PSD (Parti social-démocrate), trois pour le PL (Parti libéral) et un pour le PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien).

1.12 Pour les hommes et les femmes proches du Président Habyarimana, parmi lesquels les membres de l'Akazu, qui occupaient des fonctions importantes au sein des divers secteurs de la société rwandaise, ce nouveau partage du pouvoir, tel qu'exigé par les opposants politiques et stipulé par les Accords d'Arusha, signifie l'abandon du pouvoir et la perte de nombreux privilèges et d'importants bénéfices. Les changements politiques consécutifs à l'établissement d'un régime multipartite en avril 1992 obligent plusieurs officiers militaires importants, originaires du Nord, à prendre leur retraite. En même temps, l'application des Accords d'Arusha confronte plusieurs militaires à

the Arusha Accords.

1.13 From 1990, Habyarimana and several of his close associates devised the strategy of inciting hatred and fear of the Tutsi minority as a way of rebuilding solidarity among the Hutu and keeping themselves in power. They strongly opposed any form of power sharing, including the one envisaged by the Arusha Accords.

1.14 Determined to avoid the power sharing prescribed by the Arusha Accords, several prominent civilian and military figures pursued their strategy of ethnic division and incitement to violence. They targeted and labelled as RPF accomplices the entire Tutsi population, and also Hutu opposed to their domination, particularly those from regions other than northwestern Rwanda. At the same time, they sought to divide Hutu opposition parties, attracting some of their members back to the support of Habyarimana. These efforts to divide the Hutu opposition were furthered by the assassination of Melchior Ndadaye, the democratically elected Hutu President, in neighboring Burundi, by Tutsi soldiers of the Burundi army. By late 1993, two of the three major parties opposed to the MRND had each split into two factions. The faction of each known as the "Power" faction aligned itself with the MRND.

1.15 The strategy adopted in the early 1990s, which culminated in the widespread massacres of April 1994, comprised several components, which were carefully worked out by the various prominent figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, including the members of the Akazu.

In addition to the incitement to ethnic violence and the extermination of the Tutsi and their "accomplices", was the une demobilisation massive.

1.13 A partir de 1990, Habyarimana et plusieurs de ses plus proches collaborateurs conçoivent une stratégie d'incitation à la haine et à la peur face à la minorité Tutsi, afin de rétablir la solidarité parmi les Hutu et de se maintenir au pouvoir. Ils s'opposent fortement à toute forme de partage du pouvoir et particulièrement au partage prévu par les Accords d'Arusha.

1.14 Déterminées à éviter le partage des pouvoirs prévu par les Accords d'Arusha, plusieurs personnalités civiles et militaires en vue poursuivent leur stratégie de conflit ethnique et d'incitation à la violence. Elles visent la population Tutsi tout entière, qui est qualifiée de complice du FPR, de même que les Hutu opposés à leur domination, particulièrement ceux qui sont originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest du Rwanda. Parallèlement, elles tentent de diviser les partis d'opposition Hutu, en ramenant certains de leurs membres dans le camp d'Habyarimana. Les efforts destinés à diviser l'opposition Hutu sont favorisés par l'assassinat, par des soldats Tutsi de l'armée burundaise, de Melchior Ndadaye, président Hutu démocratiquement élu dans le Burundi voisin. A la fin de 1993, deux des trois principaux partis opposés au MRND s'étaient divisés en deux factions chacun. Les factions connues sous le nom de "Power" s'allient au MRND.

A l'incitation à la violence ethnique et à l'extermination des Tutsi et de leurs "complices", s'ajoutent l'organisation et

organization and military training of the youth wings of the political parties, notably the Interahamwe (youth wing of the MRND), the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated, the distribution of weapons to civilians, the assassination of certain political opponents and the massacre of many Tutsi in various parts of Rwanda between October 1990 and April 1994.

1.16 The incitement to ethnic hatred took the form of public speeches by people sharing the extremist ideology. These political and military figures publicly appealed to hatred and fear of the Tutsi and urged the Hutu majority to "finish off the enemy and its accomplices". A perfect illustration is the speech made in November 1992 by Léon Mugesera, vice-chairman of the MRND for Gisenyi préfecture, who at the time was already inciting the public to exterminate the Tutsi and their "accomplices".

With the intention of ensuring widespread dissemination of the calls to ethnic violence, prominent figures from the President's circle set up true hate media. Thus the creation of Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTLM) and of the newspaper Kangura was a part of the strategy and pursued the same logic.

1.17 The creation of the youth wings of the political parties, originally established to encourage or even force adherence to one or another party in the newly-established multi-party system, provided Habyarimana's circle with a large, devoted and effective workforce to implement the adopted strategy. These youth organizations, which were affiliated to the political parties, were soon manipulated as part of the anti-Tutsi campaign. Some of the members of these organizations, notably the Interahamwe (MRND), were organized into militia groups, which were financed, trained and led l'entraînement militaire des jeunesses politiques, notamment les Interahamwe (jeunesses du MRND), la préparation de listes de personnes à éliminer, la distribution d'armes à des civils, l'assassinat de certains opposants politiques et le massacre de nombreux Tutsi dans diverses régions du Rwanda entre octobre 1990 et avril 1994.

1.16 L'incitation à la haine ethnique prend la forme de discours publics prononcés par des personnalités partageant cette idéologie extrémiste. Ces personnalités politiques et militaires appellent publiquement à la haine et à la peur des Tutsi et exhortent la majorité Hutu "à en finir avec l'ennemi et ses complices". Le discours prononcé en novembre 1992 par Léon Mugesera, vice-président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, qui dès cette époque incitait publiquement à l'extermination des Tutsi et leurs "complices", en est la parfaite illustration.

Dans le but d'assurer une large diffusion de ces appels à la violence ethnique, des personnalités de l'entourage du Président mettent sur pied de véritables médias de la haine. La création de la Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTLM) et du journal Kangura participe de cette stratégie et s'inscrit dans cette logique.

1.17 La création des ailes jeunesses des partis politiques, qui avait à l'origine pour objectif d'encourager ou même de forcer l'adhésion à l'un ou l'autre des partis du nouveau régime multipartite, va fournir à l'entourage d'Habyarimana une main d'œuvre dévouée, nombreuse et efficace pour mettre en œuvre la stratégie adoptée. Ces organisations de jeunesse affiliées aux partis politiques sont très vite manipulées dans le cadre de la campagne anti-Tutsi. Des membres de ces organisations, particulièrement les Interahamwe-MRND, sont organisés en milices, financées, by prominent civilians and military figures from the President of the Republic's entourage. They were issued weapons, with the complicity of certain military and civilian authorities. The militia groups were transported to training sites, including certain military camps, in public administration vehicles or vehicles belonging to companies controlled by the President's circle.

1.18 During the mass arrests of October 1990, the civilian and military authorities followed lists that had been drawn up in order to identify and locate the presumed accomplices of the RPF, the majority of whom were Tutsi. Later, Army, Gendarmerie, local authorities and Interahamwe were given orders to prepare new lists or update the existing ones, which were subsequently used during the massacres of 1994. In March 1993, such a list was found in the vehicle of the Army Chief of Staff.

1.19 Towards the end of 1991, certain Rwandan authorities distributed weapons to certain civilians in the north-eastern region of the country as part of a civil self-defence campaign, in reaction to the RPF attack of October 1990. Later, some authorities distributed weapons nationwide, notably to the Interahamwe and carefully selected individuals, even in regions distant from the war zone. Towards the end of 1993, the Bishop of Nyundo criticized the distribution of weapons in a public letter, questioning its purpose.

1.20 The pursuit of the strategy thus described played a catalytic role in the political and ethnic violence of the time, which climaxed in the April 1994 massacres. The early part of the 90s was marked by numerous political assassinations entraînées et dirigées par des personnalités civiles et militaires de l'entourage du Président de la République. Des armes leur sont distribuées avec la complicité de certaines autorités militaires et civiles. Leur transport vers les sites d'entraînement, dont certains camps militaires, est assuré par des véhicules de l'administration publique ou appartenant à des sociétés contrôlées par l'entourage du Président.

1.19 Vers la fin de 1991, certaines autorités rwandaises distribuent des armes à certains membres de la population civile du nord-est du pays dans le cadre de la campagne d'auto-défense civile en réaction à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990. Plus tard, en dehors du cadre de l'auto-défense civile, des armes sont distribuées dans tout le pays par des autorités, notamment aux Interahamwe et à des personnes soigneusement choisies, même dans des régions éloignées de la zone de guerre. Vers la fin de 1993, l'Évêque de Nyundo critique dans une lettre publique cette distribution d'armes, s'interrogeant sur sa finalité.

1.20 La mise en place de la stratégie ainsi décrite joue un rôle de catalyseur dans la violence politique et ethnique de cette époque qui atteint son paroxysme avec les massacres d'avril 1994. Le début des années 90 est marqué par de nombreux assassinats and large massacres of the Tutsi minority, including the one in Kibilira (1990), that of the Bagogwe (1991) and the one in Bugesera (1992). The massacres were instigated and organized by local authorities with the complicity of certain prominent persons from the President's circle. Therein can be found the components of the strategy which culminated in the genocide of 1994.

1.21 In early 1994, certain prominent people from Habyarimana's circle instigated violent demonstrations in Kigali aimed at preventing the implementation of the Arusha Accords. Soldiers in civilian clothes and militiamen took part, seeking to provoke confrontations with the Belgian UNAMIR soldiers. These incidents were partially the cause of the postponement of the establishment of the institutions foreseen by the Arusha Accords.

1.22 On 6 April 1994, the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic of Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali airport.

1.23 In the hours which followed the crash of the President's plane, the senior officers of the FAR convened to assess the situation. Those who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, generally from the North, proposed an Army take-over. During a second meeting which took place on the morning of 7 April, that option was rejected in favour of setting up an interim Government.

1.24 Already on the morning of 7 April and while these discussions were taking place, groups of military, lists in hand, proceeded to arrest, confine and carry out systematic assassinations of a large number of political opponents, both Hutu and politiques et d'importants massacres de la minorité Tutsi, dont celui de Kibilira (1990), ceux des Bagogwe (1991) et celui du Bugesera (1992). Ces massacres sont suscités et organisés par des autorités locales avec la complicité de certaines personnalités de l'entourage du Président Habyarimana. On y retrouve tous les éléments de la stratégie qui va aboutir au génocide de 1994.

1.21 Au début de 1994, des manifestations violentes visant à empêcher la mise en place des Accords d'Arusha se déroulent à Kigali à l'instigation de certaines personnalités de l'entourage d'Habyarimana. On y retrouve des militaires en civil aux côtés des miliciens qui cherchent à provoquer des affrontements avec les soldats belges de la MINUAR. Ces incidents sont en partie à l'origine du report de la mise en place des institutions prévues dans les Accords d'Arusha.

1.22 Le 6 avril 1994, l'avion transportant, entre autres passagers, le Président de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, est abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali.

1.23 Dans les heures qui suivent la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les principaux officiers des FAR se réunissent pour évaluer la situation. Ceux qui partagent l'idéologie extrémiste Hutu, généralement les militaires du nord du pays, proposent la prise du pouvoir par l'Armée. Le 7 avril au matin, lors d'une deuxième réunion, cette option est rejetée au profit de la mise sur pied d'un gouvernement intérimaire.

1.24 Dès le 7 avril au matin, parallèlement à ces discussions, des groupes de militaires, listes en main, procèdent à l'arrestation, à la séquestration et à l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques, Hutu et Tutsi, parmi lesquels le

Tutsi, including the Prime Minister, some of the Ministers in her Government and the President of the Constitutional Court. At the same time, however, the military were evacuating prominent members of the dead President's circle, including the MRND Ministers, to safe locations.

The Belgian UNAMIR soldiers sent to protect the Prime Minister were disarmed, arrested and taken to Kigali military camp, where they were massacred, prompting the withdrawal of the Belgian contingent in the days that followed. After the withdrawal of the Belgian troops, the UN Security Council drastically reduced the number of UNAMIR personnel in Rwanda.

1.25 The leaders of various political parties not targeted in the assassinations assembled at the request of military officers. Other than members of the MRND, most participants were members of the "Power" wings of their respective parties. Given the political and constitutional void created by the deaths of most national political authorities, they set up a government based on the 1991 constitution. Composed solely of Hutu, the government was sworn in on 9 April 1994. The MRND held nine ministerial posts, plus the Presidency of the Republic, while the remaining 11 positions, including that of Prime Minister, went to the "Power" factions of the other parties.

1.26 In the hours following the crash of President Habyarimana's plane, military and militiamen set up roadblocks and began slaughtering Tutsi and members of the Hutu opposition in Kigali and in other parts of Rwanda. At the roadblocks, they checked the identity cards of passers-by and killed those or most of those who were identified as Tutsi. Military patrols, often involving militiamen, scoured the city, lists in hand, to

Premier Ministre, certains des ministres de son gouvernement et le Président de la Cour Constitutionnelle. Par contre, au même moment, des militaires évacuent dans des endroits sûrs des personnalités de l'entourage du défunt Président, y compris les ministres du MRND.

Les militaires belges de la MINUAR envoyés pour protéger le Premier Ministre sont désarmés, arrêtés et conduits au camp militaire de Kigali où ils sont massacrés. Cet incident précipite le retrait du contingent belge dans les jours qui suivent. Après le retrait des troupes belges, le Conseil de sécurité des Nations-Unies réduit de façon draconienne le nombre de personnel de la MINUAR au Rwanda.

1.26 Dans les heures qui suivent la chute de l'avion du Président Habyarimana, les militaires et les miliciens érigent des barrages et commencent à massacrer les Tutsi et les membres de l'opposition Hutu à Kigali et dans d'autres régions du Rwanda. Aux barrages, ils procèdent à la vérification des cartes d'identité de tous les passants et exécutent toutes les personnes, ou la plupart des personnes, identifiées comme étant execute the Tutsi and certain political opponents.

1.27 During the entire period of the genocide, FAR military, particularly units of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion, Reconnaissance Battalion and the Gendarmerie, in complicity with militiamen, actively participated in the massacres of the Tutsi throughout Rwanda.

1.28 As soon as it was formed, the Interim Government espoused the plan for extermination put in place. Throughout the period of the massacres, the Government made decisions and issued directives to aid and abet in the extermination of the Tutsi population and the elimination of the Hutu political opponents. Members of the Government incited the population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices", some of them participating directly in the massacres.

1.29 Local authorities, including préfets, bourgmestres, conseillers de secteur and responsables de cellule applied the Government-issued directives in execution of the plan for the extermination of the Tutsi population. They incited and ordered their subordinates to perpetrate the massacres and took a direct part in them.

1.30 Having been psychologically and militarily prepared for several months, the groups of militiamen spearheaded the execution of the extermination plan and were directly involved in the massacres of the civilian Tutsi population and of moderate Hutus, thus causing the deaths of hundreds of thousands of people in less than 100 days.

Tutsi. Des patrouilles de militaires, souvent accompagnés de miliciens sillonnent la ville, listes en main, pour exécuter les Tutsi et certains opposants politiques.

1.27 Durant toute la période du génocide, des militaires des FAR, particulièrement des unités de la Garde Prsidentielle, du Bataillon Para-Commando, du Bataillon reconnaissance et de la Gendarmerie, avec la complicité de miliciens, participent activement aux massacres de Tutsi sur toute l'étendue du Rwanda.

1.28 Dès sa formation, le Gouvernement Interimaire fait sien le plan d'extermination mis en place. Durant toute la période des massacres, le Gouvernement prend des décisions et donne des directives dans le but d'aider et encourager l'extermination de la population Tutsi et l'élimination des opposants politiques Hutu. Des membres de ce gouvernement incitent la population à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices", certains d'entre eux prennent part directement aux massacres.

1.29 Des autorités locales, telles que les Prbfets, les Bourgmestres, les conseillers de secteur et les responsables de cellule, appliquent les directives du Gouvernement visant à exécuter le plan d'extermination de la population Tutsi. Ils incitent et ordonnent à leurs subordonnés de se livrer aux massacres et y prennent eux-mêmes part directement.

1.30 Les groupes de miliciens, psychologiquement et militairement préparés depuis plusieurs mois, constituent le fer de lance dans l'exécution du plan d'extermination et sont directement impliqués dans les massacres de la population civile Tutsi et des Hutu modérés, causant ainsi la mort de centaines de milliers de personnes en moins de 100 jours.

3. THE POWER STRUCTURE

3. STRUCTURE DU POUVOIR

The Government

Le Gouvernement

3.1 According to the Constitution of 10 June 1991, executive power is exercised by the President of the Republic, assisted by the Government, composed of the Prime Minister and the ministers. The members of the Government are appointed by the President of the Republic upon the proposal of the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister directs the Government's program. The Government determines and applies national policy. To that effect, it controls the civil service and the armed forces. The Prime Minister decides the functions of the ministers and officials under the Prime Minister's authority. The resignation or termination of tenure of the Prime Minister, for whatever reason, causes the Government to resign.

3.1 Selon la Constitution du 10 juin 1991, le pouvoir exécutif est exercé par le Prtsident de la République, assisté du gouvernement composé du Premier Ministre et des ministres. Les membres du gouvernement sont nommés par le Prtsident de la République sur proposition du Premier Ministre. Le Premier Ministre est chargé de diriger l'action du gouvernement. Le gouvernement détermine et conduit la politique de la nation et dispose, à cet effet, de l'administration publique et de la force armée. Le Premier Ministre détermine les attributions des ministres et des agents placés sous son autorité. La dkmission ou la cessation des fonctions du Premier Ministre, pour quelque cause que ce soit, entraîne la démission du gouvernement.

3.2 The Ministers implement the Government's policy, as defined by the Prime Minister. They are answerable to the Head of the Government for doing so. In carrying out their duties, they have at their disposal the civil service and local administration corresponding to their functions.

3.2 Les ministres exécutent la politique du Gouvernement définie par le Premier Ministre. Ils répondent devant le Chef du Gouvernement de cette extcution. Dans l'exercice de leurs fonctions ils disposent de l'administration publique et territoriale correspondante à leurs attributions.

The Local Public Administration

L'administration territoriale

3.3 The Prdfet represents executive power at prefectural level. The Prdfet is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior and carries out his duties under that Minister's hierarchical authority. The Prdfet's authority covers the entire prdfecture.

3.3 Le préfet est le reprtsentant du pouvoir exkcutif au niveau de la prkfecture. Il est nommé sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur par le President de la République et exerce ses fonctions sous l'autorité hiérarchique du ministre de l'Intérieur. L'autorité du prkfet s'étend sur l'ensemble de la prkfecture.

3.4 In his capacity as administrator of the préfecture, the Préfet is responsible for ensuring peace, public order and the safety of people and property. The Préfet, in the discharge of his policing duties, maintaining peace and public order, may request the intervention of the army and of the Gendarmerie Nationale. The Préfet has hierarchical authority over all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur.

3.5 Similarly to the Préfet, the Bourgmestre represents executive power at the commune level. He is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior. He is under the hierarchical authority of the Préfet. He has authority over the civil servants posted in his commune. Moreover, he has policing duties in regard to maintaining order and law enforcement.

The Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.6 The Forces Armées Rwandaises (FAR) were composed of the Armée Rwandaise (AR) and the Gendarmerie Nationale (GN). The Forces Armées Rwandaises did not have a unified command and came directly under the Minister of Defence. The Commander-in-Chief of the Forces Armées Rwandaises was the President of the Republic.

3.7 The Gendarmerie Nationale was responsible for maintaining public order and peace and the observance of the laws in effect in the country.

3.8 The Gendarmerie Nationale was under the Minister of Defence but could

3.4 En sa qualité d'administrateur de la préfecture, le préfet est chargé d'assurer la tranquillité, l'ordre public et la sécurité des personnes et des biens. Dans l'exercice de ses attributions de police, soit le maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique, le préfet peut requérir l'intervention de l'armée et de la Gendarmerie Nationale. Le préfet exerce son autorité hiérarchique sur tous les agents de l'administration publique et toutes les personnes détentrices de la puissance publique officiant dans la préfecture, parmi lesquels les Bourgmestres et les Conseillers de secteur

3.5 A l'instar du préfet, le bourgmestre est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la commune. Il est nommé par le Président de la République sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur. Il est placé sous l'autorité hiérarchique du préfet. Il a autorité sur les agents de l'administration officiant dans sa commune. Il a par ailleurs des attributions de police dans le cadre du maintien de l'ordre et de l'exécution des lois.

Les Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.7 La Gendarmerie Nationale était chargée du maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique et de l'exécution des lois en vigueur dans le pays.

3.8 La Gendarmerie Nationale relevait du ministre de la Défense, mais pouvait carry out its duties of ensuring public order and peace at the request of the local government authority having jurisdiction, namely the Préfet. In cases of emergency, this request could be made verbally, notably by telephone. Such requests had to be carried out immediately. In addition, the Gendarmerie Nationale was obliged to transmit to the Préfet all information relating to public order. It had the duty to assist anyone in danger.

exercer ses attributions de maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique à la requête de l'autorité administrative territoriale compétente, en la personne du préfet. En cas d'urgence, cette réquisition pouvait être faite verbalement, notamment par téléphone. Cette réquisition devait être exécutée sans délai. En outre, la Gendarmerie Nationale devait porter à la connaissance du préfet tout renseignement concernant l'ordre public. Elle devait assistance à toute personne en danger.

The Political Parties and The Militia

3.9 During the events referred to in this indictment, the main political parties in Rwanda were the MRND (Mouvement Rpublicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), the CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la Rpublique), the MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Rpublicain), the PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) and the PL (Parti Libéral). The RPF (Rwandan Patriotic Front) was a politico-military opposition organization.

3.9 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation, les principaux partis politiques au Rwanda étaient: le MRND (Mouvement Rpublicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), la CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la Rpublique), le MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Rpublicain), le PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) et le PL (Parti Libéral). Le RPF (Front Patriotique Rwandais) était une organisation politico-militaire d'opposition.

3.10 Most of the political parties had created a youth wing. The members of the MRND's youth wing members were known as the "Interahamwe" and those of the CDR were known as the "Impuzamugambi". Numerous MRND youth wing members subsequently received military training and were thus transformed from youth movements into militias.

3.10 La plupart des partis politiques avaient créé une aile jeunesse en leur sein. Celle du MRND était connue sous l'appellation "Interahamwe" et celle de la CDR sous le nom de "Impuzamugambi". Par la suite, plusieurs membres de l'aile jeunesse du MRND ont reçu un entraînement militaire; ce qui a transformé ces mouvements de jeunesse en milices.

4. THE ACCUSED

Sylvain Nsabimana

4.1 Sylvain Nsabimana was born on 29 July 1953 in Mbazi commune, Butare préfecture, Rwanda.

4.2 During the events referred to in this indictment, Sylvain Nsabimana held the office of Préfet of Butare from 19 April to 17 June 1994.

4.3 In his capacity as Préfet of Butare, Sylvain Nsabimana exercised authority over his subordinates.

Alphonse Nteziryayo

5. CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS: PREPARATION

5.1 From late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of the government, political leaders, civil servants and other personalities conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition, so that they could remain in power. The components of this plan consisted of, among other things, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. In executing the plan, they organized, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population and of moderate Hutu. Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andrt Rwamakuba, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.

5.2 In December 1993 and January 1994, UNAMIR received information detailing a plan to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

Speeches and Incitement

5.3 The incitement to ethnic hatred and violence was a fundamental part of the plan put in place. It was articulated, before and during the genocide, by elements of the FAR on the one hand, and by members of the Government and local authorities on the

5. EXPOSE SUCCINCT DES FAITS : PRÉPARATION

5.1 Dès la fin de 1990 jusqu'à juillet 1994, des militaires, des membres du gouvernement, des responsables politiques, des membres de l'administration publique et des personnalités diverses, se sont entendus entre eux et avec d'autres pour élaborer un plan dans l'intention d'exterminer la population civile Tutsi et d'éliminer des membres de l'opposition et se maintenir ainsi au pouvoir. Les éléments de ce plan comportaient, entre autres, le recours à la haine et à la violence ethnique, l'entraînement et la distribution d'armes à des miliciens ainsi que la confection de listes de personnes à éliminer. Dans l'exécution de ce plan ils ont organisé, ordonné et participé aux massacres perpétrés à l'encontre de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés. Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalom Arsène Ntahobali ont participé à l'élaboration de ce plan, y ont adhéré et l'ont exécuté.

5.2 En décembre 1993 et en janvier 1994, la MINUAR a reçu des informations qui exposaient des détails d'un plan conçu aux fins d'exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

Discours et Incitation

5.3 L'incitation à la haine et à la violence ethniques a constitué un élément essentiel du plan mis en place. Elle a été articulée, avant et durant le génocide, d'une part par des éléments des FAR, et d'autre part par des membres du gouvernement et

5.4 On 4 December 1991, President Juvénal Habyarimana set up a military commission. The commission presided by Colonel Théoneste Bagosora was given the task of finding an answer to the following question: "What do we need to do in order to defeat the enemy militarily, in the media and politically?"

5.5 In a letter dated 21 September 1992, the General Staff of the Rwandan Army ordered that an extract from the commission report be circulated among the troops. The letter came from the office of the Chief of Intelligence (G-2), namely Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. The extract defined the main enemy as follows: "The Tutsis from inside or outside the country, who are extremists and nostalgic for power, who do not recognize and have never recognized the realities of the Social Revolution of 1959, and are seeking to regain power in Rwanda by any means, including taking up arms." The secondary enemy was defined as: "Anyone providing any kind of assistance to the main enemy". The document specified that the enemy was being recruited from within certain social groups, notably: "the Tutsis inside the country, Hutus who are dissatisfied with the present regime, foreigners married to Tutsi women...". Among the activities the enemy was accused of, the document mentioned "the diversion of national opinion from the ethnic problem to the socio-economic problem between the rich and the poor".

5.6 The document and the use made of it by the senior officers aided, encouraged and promoted ethnic hatred and violence.

5.4 Le 4 décembre 1991, le Président Juvénal Habyarimana met en place une commission militaire. Cette commission présidée par le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora était chargée de répondre à la question suivante: "Que faut-il faire pour vaincre l'ennemi sur le plan militaire, médiatique et politique?"

5.5 Dans une lettre datée du 21 septembre 1992, l'Etat-Major de l'Armée Rwandaise a ordonné la diffusion, parmi les troupes, d'un extrait du rapport produit par cette commission. Cette lettre émanait du bureau du Chef des renseignements (G-2), à savoir le Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. Ce document définissait l'ennemi principal comme étant "le Tutsi de l'intérieur ou de l'extérieur, extrémiste et nostalgique du pouvoir, qui n'a jamais reconnu et ne reconnaît pas encore les réalités de la Révolution Sociale de 1959 et qui veut reconquérir le pouvoir au Rwanda par tous les moyens, y compris les armes" et l'ennemi secondaire comme étant "toute personne qui apporte tout concours à l'ennemi principal". Le document précisait que le recrutement de l'ennemi se faisait parmi certains groupes sociaux, notamment: "...Les Tutsi de l'intérieur, les Hutu mécontents du régime en place, les étrangers mariés aux femmes Tutsi..." Parmi les activités reprochées à l'ennemi, le document mentionnait le "...Détournement de l'opinion nationale du problème ethnique vers le problème socio-économique entre les riches et les pauvres".

5.7 La qualification des Tutsi comme étant l'ennemi et des membres de

as their accomplices was echoed by politicians, notably by Leon Mugesera, MRND Vice-Chairman for Gisenyi préfecture, in a speech he made on 22 November 1992. Broadcast on the state radio and therefore reaching a much larger audience, Leon Mugesera's speech already at that time was an incitement to exterminate the Tutsi population and their "accomplices".

L'opposition comme étant leurs complices, a été reprise par des politiciens, notamment Leon Mugesera, Vice President du MRND pour la prbfecture de Gisenyi, dans un discours prononcé le 22 novembre 1992. Diffusé sur la Radio d'Etat et s'adressant ainsi à un public beaucoup plus large, le discours de Leon Mugesera, a incite, dès cette époque, à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

5.8 From April to July 1994, incitement to hatred and violence was propagated by various prominent persons, including members of the Government and local authorities. The President, Theodore Sindikubwabo, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, Ministers Pauline Nyaramasuhuko and André Rwamakuba, local authorities such as the Préfets, Sylvain Nsabimana and Alphonse Nteziryayo, the Bourgmestres Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Elie Ndayambaje publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

5.8 D'avril à juillet 1994, cette incitation à la haine et à la violence a été propagée par différentes personnalités, dont des membres du Gouvernement et des autorités locales. Le Président, Theodore Sindikubwabo, le Premier Ministre, Jean Kambanda, les ministres Pauline Nyaramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba, des autorités locales tels les Préfets: Sylvain Nsabimana et Alphonse Nteziryayo, les Bourgmestres: Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Elie Ndayambaje, ont incité publiquement la population à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

The Militia Groups

Les Milices

5.9 The creation of the youth wings satisfied two of the political parties' concerns: to mobilize young people and to sensitize them to politics. The MRND and CDR followed the example of the MDR and RPF, which had already institutionalized their youth movements. Political rivalries during the multi-party period exacerbated tensions. The "Interahamwe" and "Impuzamugambi" began to be drawn astray from the time they were used to oppose with violence the political demonstrations organized by parties of the opposition.

5.9 La création des ailes jeunesse répondait à deux préoccupations au niveau des partis politiques: mobiliser et sensibiliser les jeunes à la politique. Le MRND et la CDR ont suivi l'exemple du MDR et du FPR qui avaient déjà institutionnalisé leurs mouvements de jeunesse. Les rivalités politiques de la période du multi-partisme ont exacerbé les tensions. Les "Interahamwe" et les "Impuzamugambi" ont été entraînés dans la dérive dès lors qu'ils ont été utilisés pour s'opposer violemment aux manifestations politiques organisées par les partis de l'opposition.

"accomplices" would be carried out swiftly and effectively, it was necessary to create a militia that was structured, armed and complementary to the Armed Forces. For the militia to be represented nationally, Interahamwe committees were created at préfecture level. This decision of the central committee of the MRND taken in June 1993 was carried out by political figures in their localities, including, among others, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko in Butare.

"complices" se ferait rapidement et efficacement, il était nécessaire de constituer une milice, structurée, armée et complémentaire aux Forces Armées. Pour donner une représentation nationale à cette milice, des comités d'Interahamwe ont été créés au niveau préfectoral. Cette décision prise par le Comité Central du MRND en juin 1993 a été mise en oeuvre par des personnalités politiques au niveau de leur circonscription, parmi lesquelles Pauline Nyiramasuhuko à Butare.

5.11 As from 1993, and even before that date, anxious to radicalize the Interahamwe movement, the leaders of the MRND, in collaboration with officers of the FAR, decided to provide support, military training and weapons to those members most devoted to their extremist cause and to other idle youths.

5.11 Dès 1993 et même avant, dans un souci de radicalisation du mouvement Interahamwe, les dirigeants du MRND, en collaboration avec des officiers des FAR, ont décidé d'apporter leur appui, de fournir des armes et d'assurer un entraînement militaire aux éléments les plus dévoués à leur cause extrémiste ainsi qu'à d'autres jeunes désœuvrés.

Training of the Militia Groups

L'entraînement des milices

5.12 In Butare, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi and Ladislav Ntaganzwa, between March and June 1994, facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the civilian population in Ngoma and Nyakizu communes.

5.12 A Butare, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi et Ladislav Ntaganzwa, entre mars et juin 1994, ont aidé et facilité l'entraînement militaire de certains membres de la population civile, dans les communes de Ngoma et de Nyakizu.

Distribution of Weapons

La distribution d'armes

5.13 In Butare, before and during the events referred to in this indictment, Joseph Kanyabashi, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and others distributed weapons to the militiamen and certain carefully selected members of the civilian population with the intent to exterminate the Tutsi population and eliminate its "accomplices".

5.13 A Butare, avant et durant les événements vus dans le présent acte d'accusation, Joseph Kanyabashi, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje et Ladislav Ntaganzwa, et d'autres ont distribué des armes aux miliciens et à certains membres soigneusement choisis de la population civile dans l'intention d'exterminer la population Tutsi et d'éliminer ses "complices".

Establishment of Lists

5.14 Having identified the Tutsi as the enemy and the members of the opposition as their accomplices, members of the Army General Staff, civilian authorities and militiamen established lists of people to be executed.

5.15 From 7 April to late July, military and Interahamwe massacred members of the Tutsi population and moderate Hutu by means of pre-established lists, among other things.

Precursors Revealing A Deliberate Course of Action

5.16 The political and ethnic violence of the early 1990s was characterized by the use of the elements of the strategy which achieved its finality in the genocide of April 1994. The massacres of the Tutsi minority at that time, including those in Kibilira (1990), in Bugesera (1992), and those of the Bagogwe (1991), were instigated, facilitated and organized by civilian and military authorities. On each occasion, a campaign of incitement to ethnic violence, conducted by local authorities, was followed by massacres of the Tutsi minority, perpetrated by groups of militiamen and civilians, armed and assisted by the same authorities and by certain military personnel. On each occasion, these crimes remained unpunished and the authorities implicated were generally not taken to task.

5.17 Finally, as of 7 April 1994, throughout Rwanda, Tutsis and certain moderate Hutus began to flee their homes to escape the violence to which they were victims on their hills and to seek refuge in places where they had traditionally felt safe, notably churches, hospitals and other public buildings such as commune and préfecture

5.14 Après avoir identifié le Tutsi comme étant l'ennemi principal et les membres de l'opposition comme ses complices, des membres de l'Etat-Major de l'Armée, des autorités civiles et des miliciens ont dressé des listes de personnes à exécuter.

5.15 Du 7 avril à la fin juillet, des militaires et des Interahamwe ont perpétré des massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés, entre autres à l'aide de listes pré-établies.

Antécédents révélant une conduite délibérée

5.16 La violence ethnique et politique du début des années 90 a été caractérisée par l'utilisation des éléments de la stratégie qui allait connaître son aboutissement avec le génocide de 1994. Les massacres de la minorité Tutsi perpétrés à cette époque, tels que ceux à Kibilira (1990), à Bugesera (1992), et ceux à l'encontre des Bagogwe (1991) ont été suscités, facilités et organisés par des autorités civiles et militaires. A chaque occasion une campagne d'incitation à la violence ethnique menée par des autorités locales a été suivie de massacres de la minorité Tutsi, perpétrés par des groupes de miliciens et de civils, armés et aidés par ces mêmes autorités et certains militaires. A chaque occasion, ces crimes sont demeurés impunis et les autorités impliquées n'ont généralement pas été inquiétées.

5.17 Finalement, dès le 7 avril 1994, sur tout le territoire du Rwanda, des Tutsi et certains Hutu modérés, pour échapper à la violence dont ils étaient victimes sur leurs collines, ont commencé à fuir leurs maisons pour chercher refuge dans des endroits où traditionnellement ils s'étaient sentis en sécurité, notamment des églises, des offices. On several occasions, gathering places were indicated to them by the local authorities, who had promised to protect them. For the initial days, the refugees were protected by a few gendarmes and communal police in these various locations, but subsequently, the refugees were systematically attacked and massacred by militiamen, often assisted by the same authorities who had promised to protect the refugees. During the numerous attacks on the refugees throughout the country, personnel of the FAR, military or gendarmes, who were supposed to protect them, prevented the Tutsi from escaping and facilitated their massacre by the Interahamwe. On several occasions, these FAR personnel participated directly in the massacres.

5.18 Furthermore, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes raped, sexually assaulted and committed other crimes of a sexual nature against Tutsi women and girls, sometimes after having first kidnapped them.

hôpitaux et d'autres édifices publics comme les bureaux communaux et prtectoraux. A plusieurs occasions, des endroits de rassemblement leur avaient été indiqués par des autoritts locales qui avaient promis de les prottger. Durant les premiers jours, les rtfugits ont été protégés par quelques gendarmes et policiers communaux dans ces différents endroits, mais par la suite, systkmatiquement, les rtfugits ont été attaqués et massacrtés par des miliciens, souvent aidts par ces mêmes autoritts qui avaient promis de les prottger. Au cours des nombreuses attaques menées contre les réfugiés partout à travers le pays, des membres des FAR, militaires ou gendarmes, qui devaient les prottger, ont empêché les Tutsi de fuir et facilité leur massacre par les Interahamwe. A plusieurs occasions, ces membres des FAR ont participé directement aux massacres.

5.18 De plus, des militaires, des miliciens et des gendarmes ont commis des viols, des agressions sexuelles et d'autres crimes de nature sexuelle à l'encontre de certaines femmes et jeunes filles Tutsi et ce parfois après les avoir enlevtes.

Crise du pouvoir

6.1 On 6 April 1994 at about 8:30 p.m., the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali Airport, Rwanda.

6.1 Au soir du 6 avril 1994 vers 20:30 heures, l'avion transportant entre autres passagers le Prtsident de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, a été abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali, Rwanda.

6.2 Following the crash of the President's plane, the Forces Armées Rwandaises were left without leadership. The President was dead, along with the Chief of Staff of the Rwandan Army, Colonel Dtogratias Nsabimana. The Minister of Defence, Augustin Bizimana, was on mission in the Republic of Cameroon. In his absence, Colonel Thtoneste Bagosora, his directeur de cabinet, asserted himself as the man of the moment capable of managing the crisis.

6.2 Après la chute de l'avion prtsidentiel, les Forces Armées Rwandaises se sont retrouvtes sans direction. Le Président était mort ainsi que le chef d'Etat-Major (AR), le Colonel Dtogratias Nsabimana. Le Ministre de la Dtfense, Augustin Bizimana ttait en mission en République du Cameroun. En son absence, le Colonel Thtoneste Bagosora, son directeur de cabinet, s'est impose comme l'homme de la situation a même de gérer la crise.

6.3 Within the first hours following the death of the President, two important meetings took place in Kigali, during which Colonel Thtoneste Bagosora and several Army officers attempted to seize power. During this period Colonel Thtoneste Bagosora openly opposed any consultation with the Prime Minister, Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.3 Au cours des premières heures qui ont suivi la mort du Prtsident, deux réunions importantes ont eu lieu a Kigali, au cours desquelles le Colonel Thtoneste Bagosora et plusieurs officiers de l'armée ont tenté de prendre le pouvoir. Au cours de cette ptriode, le Colonel Thtoneste Bagosora s'est opposé ouvertement à toute consultation avec le premier ministre Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.4 Indeed, while the meeting of 7 April was going on, Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana was tracked down, arrested, sexually assaulted and killed by Rwandan Army personnel, more specifically, members of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion and the Reconnaissance Battalion. Concurrently, members of the same units arrested, confined and killed important opposition leaders. That same morning, ten Belgian para-commandos from UNAMIR who had been dispatched to the residence of the Prime Minister were brutally murdered at Kigali military camp.

6.5 The elimination of political opponents made it possible to set aside the establishment of the Broad Based Transition Government (BBTG), stipulated in the Arusha Accords, in favour of an Interim Government. The murder of the Belgian soldiers prompted the withdrawal of most of UNAMIR's contingents. Those two events removed the two major obstacles to the pursuit of the massacres.

Formation of the Interim Government

6.6 Making up for the failure of the attempt at a military takeover by certain military personnel, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora and the leaders of the MRND and set up an Interim Government which would aid and abet the continuation of the massacres. The members of the Government were appointed at a meeting held on 8 April. The same day, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora introduced the individuals chosen to constitute the Interim Government to the military crisis committee. They were almost all members of the MRND and of the "Power" wings of the other political parties. No one of Tutsi descent was included either in the talks or in the new Government.

traquée, arrêtée, agresse sexuellement et tuée par des membres de l'Armée Rwandaise, plus particulièrement ceux de la Garde Présidentielle, du bataillon Para-Commando et du bataillon de Reconnaissance. Parallèlement à cet assassinat, des membres de ces mêmes unités ont arrêté, séquestré et tué des leaders importants de l'opposition. Dans la même matinée, 10 Para-Commandos belges de la MINUAR qui avaient été envoyés à la résidence du Premier Ministre étaient assassinés au camp militaire de Kigali.

6.5 L'élimination des opposants politiques a permis d'écarter la mise en place du Gouvernement de Transition à Base Élargie (G.T.B.E.), prévue aux Accords d'Arusha, au profit d'un Gouvernement Intérimaire. L'assassinat des militaires belges a provoqué le retrait de la majeure partie des contingents de la MINUAR. Ces deux événements ont écarté les deux obstacles majeurs à la poursuite des massacres.

Formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire

6.6 Faisant face à l'échec de la tentative de prise du pouvoir par certains militaires, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora et les dirigeants du MRND ont formé un Gouvernement Intérimaire qui allait aider et encourager la continuation des massacres. Les membres du Gouvernement ont été désignés lors de la réunion tenue le 8 Avril. Le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora a ensuite présenté au comité militaire de crise, le même jour, les personnes choisies pour composer le Gouvernement Intérimaire. Ces personnes étaient presque toutes issues du MRND et des ailes dites "power" des autres partis politiques. Aucune personnalité d'origine Tutsi n'a été associée aux discussions ou n'a fait partie du nouveau

6.7 Jean Kambanda was appointed Prime Minister of the Interim Government of Rwanda formed on 8 April 1994. The Government was officially sworn in on 9 April 1994. It was composed of 19 cabinet ministers, among them André Rwamakuba and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

6.7 Jean Kambanda a été désigné Premier Ministre du Gouvernement Intérimaire de la République Rwandaise constitué le 8 avril 1994. Le Gouvernement a officiellement prêté serment le 9 avril 1994. Il comptait 19 ministres dont André Rwamakuba et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

Perpetration of the Massacres

Commission des massacres

6.8 As of the night of 6 to 7 April, in the capital, elements of the Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion set up roadblocks on the major roads, controlling people's movements. Militiamen soon joined them or set up their own roadblocks. At these places Tutsis or people thought to be Tutsis were summarily executed. Concurrently, groups of soldiers and militiamen scoured the city and murdered civilians.

6.8 Dès la nuit du 6 au 7 avril, dans la capitale, des éléments de la Garde Présidentielle et du bataillon Para-Commando ont érigé des barrages, sur les principaux axes routiers, contrôlant le déplacement de la population. Des miliciens se sont par la suite joints à eux ou ont érigé leurs propres barrages. A ces endroits, des Tutsi ou des personnes considérées comme telles étaient sommairement exécutées. Parallèlement, des groupes de militaires et de miliciens ont sillonné la ville et se sont livrés à des assassinats de civils.

6.9 As from 7 April 1994, massacres of the Tutsi population and the murder of numerous political opponents were perpetrated throughout the territory of Rwanda. These crimes, which had been planned and prepared for a long time by prominent civilian and military figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, were carried out by militiamen, military personnel and gendarmes on the orders and directives of some of these authorities, sometimes by means of pre-established lists. In Butare préfecture, apart from a few exceptions as Nyakizu commune, the massacres did not start until 19 April 1994.

6.9 À partir du 7 avril 1994, des massacres de la population Tutsi et l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques ont été commis sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes planifiés et préparés de longue date par des personnalités civiles et militaires partageant l'idéologie hutu extrémiste ont été perpétrés par des miliciens, des militaires et des gendarmes suivant les ordres et les directives de certaines de ces autorités, parfois à l'aide de listes pré-établies. Dans la préfecture de Butare, à quelques rares exceptions dont la commune de Nyakizu, les massacres ne débutèrent qu'après le 19 Avril 1994.

INTERIM GOVERNMENT

6.10 As soon as the Interim Government was formed, numerous Cabinet members supported the plan of extermination in place and took the necessary steps to execute it. They incited the people to eliminate "the enemy and its accomplices", distributed weapons to them, dismissed local government authorities who were opposed to the massacres, replacing them with others who were devoted to the cause, and adopted directives intended to facilitate the massacre of the civilian Tutsi population.

6.11 Already, on 8 April, the new Government summoned all the préfets to a meeting in Kigali for the purpose of assessing the situation in the country at the time. The emergency meeting was held on 11 April 1994 and recorded the participation of all the Government ministers and all the préfets, except those of Butare (Jean Baptiste Habyarimana), Ruhengeri and Cyangugu. At this meeting, the situation as regards the massacres in each préfecture was analyzed.

6.12 Rather than to take immediate action to put an end to the massacres, on 17 April, the Interim Government dismissed several authorities, among them the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, for their refusal to take part in the massacres so that the killings could spread to the country as a whole.

6.13 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held successively in Kigali, Gitarama and Gisenyi. During this period, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, and Ministers including André Rwamakuba and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko were regularly briefed on the situation in regard to the massacres of

GOUVERNEMENT INTERIMAIRE

6.10 Dès la formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire, plusieurs membres du Cabinet ont adhéré au plan d'extermination mis en place et pris les moyens nécessaires pour l'exécuter. Ils ont incité la population à éliminer "l'ennemi et ses complices", lui ont distribué des armes. Ils ont révoqué des autorités administratives locales opposées aux massacres pour les remplacer par d'autres acquiescées à la cause et ont adopté des directives visant à faciliter les massacres de la population civile Tutsi.

6.11 Dès le 8 avril, le nouveau Gouvernement a convoqué tous les préfets pour une réunion à Kigali, dans le but d'évaluer la situation qui prévalait dans le pays. Cette réunion de crise tenue le 11 avril 1994, a enregistré la participation de tous les ministres, et celle de tous les préfets, exception faite de ceux de Butare (Jean Baptiste Habyarimana), de Ruhengeri et de Cyangugu. Lors de cette réunion, la situation des massacres dans chaque préfecture a été analysée.

6.12 Le 17 avril, au lieu de prendre des mesures immédiates pour mettre fin aux massacres, le gouvernement intérimaire a plutôt limogé plusieurs responsables, dont le préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, parce qu'ils avaient refusé de prendre part aux massacres et ce afin que les tueries s'étendent à l'ensemble du pays.

the civilian population. On several occasions during these meetings, the Ministers demanded weapons to distribute in their respective home préfectures, knowing that the weapons would be used in the massacres.

6.14 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, during these numerous Cabinet meetings, the Interim Government adopted directives and gave instructions to the préfets and the bourgmestres. The decisions, which were then passed on to the general public, were intended to incite, aid and abet the perpetration of the massacres. In order to ensure that the directives and instructions were carried out, Jean Kambanda's Interim Government designated a Minister for each préfecture to be responsible for what was termed 'pacification'. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko was assigned this task for Butare.

6.15 On 27 April 1994, the Interim Government ordered roadblocks to be set up, knowing that the roadblocks were being used to identify the Tutsi and their "accomplices" for the purpose of eliminating them.

6.16 On 25 May 1994, the Interim Government adopted directives concerning the civil self-defence program. Its purpose was to legalize the distribution of weapons to the militiamen on the one hand and to legitimize the massacres of the civilian population on the other. As part of the civil self-defence program, the Interim Government, by ministerial decision, appointed several military officers to lead "self defence committees" established in each préfecture. Some of these officers took an active part in the massacres, including Alphonse Nteziryayo in Butare.

civile. A plusieurs occasions lors de ces réunions, les Ministres ont exigé des armes pour les distribuer dans leur préfecture d'origine, sachant qu'elles seraient utilisées dans les massacres.

6.14 Entre le 9 avril et le 14 juillet 1994, au cours de ces nombreuses réunions du Conseil des Ministres, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives et donné des instructions aux préfets et aux bourgmestres. Ces décisions, répercutées à la population, visaient à inciter, encourager et aider à commettre les massacres. Pour s'assurer de la mise en oeuvre de ces directives et instructions, le Gouvernement Interimaire de Jean Kambanda a désigné pour chaque préfecture, un Ministre responsable de ce qu'on appelait la pacification. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko devait assumer cette mission à Butare.

6.15 Le 27 avril 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a ordonné l'érection de barrages routiers, sachant que ceux-ci étaient utilisés pour identifier les Tutsi et leurs "complices", afin de les éliminer.

6.16 Le 25 mai 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives pour le programme d'auto-défense civile. Ce programme visait à légaliser d'une part la distribution des armes aux miliciens et d'autre part à légitimer les massacres de la population civile. Dans le cadre du programme d'auto-défense civile, le Gouvernement Intérimaire, par décision ministérielle, a nommé plusieurs officiers militaires pour diriger des "Comités d'auto défense" installés dans chaque préfecture. Certains de ces officiers, tels qu'Alphonse Nteziryayo à Butare, ont participé activement aux massacres.

EXTENSION OF THE MASSACRES

6.17 The massacres of members of the Tutsi population and the murder of the moderate Hutu extended throughout the territory of Rwanda. In every préfecture, local civil and military authorities and militiamen espoused the plan of extermination and followed the directives and orders in order to execute it. They called on the civilian population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices". They distributed weapons to civilians and militiamen. They gave orders to commit, aided, abetted and participated in the massacres.

6.18 From April to July 1994, in all the regions of the country, members of the Tutsi population who were fleeing from the massacres on their hills sought refuge in locations they thought would be safe, often on the recommendation of the local civil and military authorities. In numerous of these places, despite the promise that they would be protected by the local civil and military authorities, the refugees were attacked, abducted and massacred, often on the orders or with the complicity of those same authorities.

6.19 Three important factors delayed the start of the massacres in Butare préfecture. Historically, this préfecture had a large Tutsi population living in harmony with the Hutu majority. Since the inception of the multiparty system, the Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominated the political scene in Butare and the Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) played a lesser role in that area than elsewhere in the country. Hence, the Interahamwe

ETENDUE DES MASSACRES

6.17 Les massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et les assassinats des Hutu modérés se sont étendus sur l'ensemble du territoire du Rwanda. Dans chaque préfecture, des autorités locales, civiles et militaires et des miliciens ont adhéré au plan d'extermination et ont suivi les directives et les ordres afin de l'exécuter. Ils ont appelé la population civile à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices". Ils ont distribué des armes à des civils et des miliciens. Ils ont ordonné, encouragé, aidé et participé aux massacres.

6.18 D'avril à juillet 1994, dans toutes les régions du pays, des membres de la population Tutsi qui fuyaient les massacres sur leurs collines ont cherché refuge dans des endroits qu'ils croyaient sûrs, souvent sur recommandation des autorités locales, civiles et militaires. Dans plusieurs de ces endroits, malgré la promesse qu'ils seraient protégés par les autorités locales, civiles et militaires, les réfugiés ont été attaqués, enlevés et massacrés, souvent sur les ordres ou avec la complicité de ces mêmes autorités,

6.19 Trois facteurs importants ont retardé le début des massacres dans la préfecture de Butare. Historiquement, cette préfecture comptait une forte représentation de la population Tutsi qui y cohabitait paisiblement avec la majorité Hutu. Depuis le multipartisme, le Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominait la scène politique à Butare, le Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) y jouant un rôle moins important par rapport au reste du pays. Ainsi, la structure

6: EXPOSÉ SUCCINCT DES FAITS:
AUTRES VIOLATIONS DU DROIT INTERNATIONAL HUMANITAIRE

organizational structure was less elaborate and its membership was smaller. Furthermore, the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana (PSD), the only Préfet of Tutsi descent in the country, had openly opposed the massacres in his préfecture, where he had succeeded in maintaining calm, with a few exceptions, notably Nyakizu commune. Thus, thousands of people, the majority of whom were Tutsi, came from other préfectures to seek refuge in Butare in the days which immediately followed the start of the massacres.

6.20 The country's civil and military leaders became aware of the exceptional situation in Butare. Thus, the Interim Government, of which Pauline Nyaramasuhuko was a member, removed Préfet Habyalimana from office, and incited the people to get involved in the massacres. Préfet Habyalimana was subsequently arrested and was never seen again. Moreover, elements of the Army and Interahamwe militiamen were sent to Butare as reinforcements to start the massacres.

6.21 On 19 April 1994, the swearing-in ceremony in Butare for the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, was the occasion of a large gathering, which had been announced and organized by the Interim Government. On that occasion, President Theodore Sindikubwabo made an inflammatory speech, openly and explicitly calling on the people of Butare to follow the example of the other préfectures and begin the massacres. He violently denounced the "banyira ntibindeba", meaning those who did not feel concerned. He asked them to "get out of the way" and "let us work". Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, who subsequently took the floor, did not contradict the President of the Republic.

organisationnelle des Interahamwe y était moins élaborée et ses adhérents moins nombreux. En outre, le Préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, (PSD), seul préfet d'origine Tutsi dans le pays, s'était ouvertement opposé aux massacres dans sa préfecture et avait réussi à y maintenir le calme, à quelques exceptions près, parmi lesquelles, la commune de Nyakizu. Aussi, des milliers de personnes, en majorité Tutsi, venues d'autres préfectures, avaient cherché refuge à Butare dès les premiers jours qui ont suivi le début des massacres.

6.21 Le 19 avril 1994, la cérémonie d'investiture du nouveau Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, à Butare, a donné lieu à un grand rassemblement annoncé et organisé par le Gouvernement Intérimaire. A cette occasion, le Président Theodore Sindikubwabo a prononcé un discours incendiaire, appelant ouvertement et explicitement la population de Butare à suivre l'exemple des autres préfectures et à commencer les massacres. Il a violemment dénoncé les "Banyira Ntibindeba", autrement dit ceux qui ne se sentent pas concernés. Il leur a demandé "qu'ils cèdent la place" et "qu'ils nous laissent travailler". Le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda a ensuite pris la parole et n'a pas contredit le Président de la République.

6.22 Because they were present at the ceremony and did not dissociate themselves from the statements made by the President of the Republic, the members of the Government, including Jean Kambanda and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, prominent politicians such as Edouard Karemera, and several bourgmestres, including Joseph Kanyabashi, gave a clear signal to the people that the massacres were ordered and condoned by the Government. Further, Joseph Kanyabashi, as the dean of the bourgmestres of Butare, in the presence of the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, made a speech in support of the President of the Republic, assuring him that his instructions would be heeded. Shortly thereafter, the massacres of Tutsis began in the préfecture.

6.23 The next day, two military planes landed in Butare with numerous Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion soldiers on board. These soldiers, in tandem with the Interahamwe of Butare, took part in murdering and massacring civilians, notably the former Queen of Rwanda, Rosalie Gicanda, a historical symbol for all Tutsi.

6.24 In the days which followed the unleashing of the massacres, Interahamwe from outside the préfecture, notably from Kigali and Gitarama, came in to reinforce their fellow militiamen in Butare in perpetrating the massacres. This included a detachment of Interahamwe which was accompanying their Chairman, Robert Kajuga.

6.25 On 20 April 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko asked the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, for military assistance to proceed with the massacres in her home commune, Ngoma. Sylvain Nsabimana

6.22 Par leur présence lors de cette cérémonie et en ne se dissociant pas des propos tenus par le Prksident de la République, les membres du Gouvernement, dont Jean Kambanda et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, des personnalités politiques telles que Edouard Karemera et plusieurs bourgmestres dont Joseph Kanyabashi, ont clairement indiqué à la population que les massacres étaient ordonnés et cautionnés par le Gouvernement. D'ailleurs, Joseph Kanyabashi, en sa qualité de doyen des bourgmestres de Butare et en présence du nouveau Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, a prononcé un discours pour soutenir le Président de la République et l'assurer que ses instructions seraient suivies. Peu après, les massacres de Tutsi ont commence dans la prefecture.

6.25 Le 20 avril 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko a demandé au nouveau préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, de lui fournir une assistance militaire pour procéder aux massacres dans sa commune d'origine, agreed to her request and ordered the military authorities to provide her the necessary reinforcements.

6.26 In the days following his taking office, Sylvain Nsabimana called a meeting of all the bourgmestres of the préfecture. At the meeting, he was informed of the extent of the massacres of Tutsi that had begun in the communes of Butare. He took no decision nor did he propose any measures to put a stop to them. Thus, the bourgmestres returned to their communes and ordered the slaughter to continue. The administrative authorities who opposed this order were dismissed.

6.27 Likewise Joseph Kanyabashi dismissed civil servants and political appointees who did not approve or participate with enough zeal in the killings of Tutsis.

6.28 Furthermore, Sylvain Nsabimana took part in other meetings with his bourgmestres, including at least one which was called by Pauline Nyiramasuhuko in April 1994. At that meeting, the progress of the massacres was discussed, as well as the means by which to complete them.

6.29 In the days following the death of the President Habyarimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo went to Butare to take over his new assignment. Between April and June 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defence for Butare préfecture, supervised the training of the militiamen and distributed weapons to them, at least once with the assistance by Elie Ndayambaje.

A cette occasion il a été informé de l'étendue des massacres de Tutsi qui avaient débuté dans les communes de Butare. Il n'a pris aucune décision ou proposé aucune mesure pour les faire cesser. Ainsi, les bourgmestres sont retournés dans leurs communes et ont ordonné la continuation des massacres. Les autorités administratives qui se sont opposées à cet ordre ont été limogées.

6.27 De même, Joseph Kanyabashi a limogé des fonctionnaires et des responsables politiques qui n'approuvaient pas les tueries de Tutsi ou qui n'y participaient pas avec suffisamment de zèle.

6.28 En outre, Sylvain Nsabimana a participé à d'autres réunions avec ses bourgmestres, dont au moins une, en avril 1994, convoquée par Pauline Nyiramasuhuko. Au cours de cette réunion il a été discuté de l'évolution des massacres et des moyens à prendre pour les parachever.

6.29 Dans les jours qui ont suivi la mort du Président Habyarimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo s'est rendu à Butare pour assumer ses nouvelles fonctions. Entre avril et juin 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo, responsable de la défense civile pour la préfecture de Butare, a supervisé l'entraînement des miliciens et leur a distribué des armes, assisté à au moins une occasion d'Elie Ndayambaje.

6.31 Entre avril et juin 1994, le Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, responsable de la défense civile pour la préfecture de Butare, a incite la population à procéder aux massacres des Tutsi dans la préfecture de Butare.

6.32 Between April and June 1994, Sylvain Nsabimana not only incited, but also aided and abetted the population in massacring the Tutsi in Butare préfecture.

6.32 Entre avril et juin 1994, Sylvain Nsabimana a incite, aide et encourage la population a proctder aux massacres des Tutsi dans la prtfecture de Butare.

6.33 In mid-June 1994 Alphonse Nteziryayo and Arsene Shalome Ntahobali together attempted to prevent the evacuation from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. Overcoming the opposition of Red Cross International personnel and local authorities they selected about 40 adults whom they beleived to be tutsi and forced them to remain in Rwanda.

6.33 A la mi-Juin 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo et Arsène Shalome Ntahobali ont tenté, ensemble, d'empêcher l'évacuation, à partir de Butare, d'environ 300 orphelins et des adultes qui les accompagnaient. Passant outre l'opposition des employes de la Croix Rouge Internationale et des autorités locales, ils ont sélectionné environ 40 adultes qu'ils croyaient Tutsi et les ont forcer a demeure au Rwanda.

6.34 On 17 June 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo was appointed Préfet of Butare by the Interim Government, replacing Sylvain Nsabimana. After the handing over of office on 21 June 1994, Préfet Alphonse Nteziryayo continued to incite the population to "finish off" the enemy and its "accomplices". He did this notably during the swearing-in ceremony of the Bourgmestre of Muganza, Elie Ndayambaje

6.34 Le 17 juin 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo a été nommé Préfet de Butare par le Gouvernement Intérimaire en remplacement de Sylvain Nsabimana. Après la passation des pouvoirs le 21 juin 1994, le Préfet Alphonse Nteziryayo a continue a inciter la population à "en finir" avec l'ennemi et ses complices. Il l'a notamment fait, lors de la cérémonie de prise de fonction du bourgmestre de Muganza, Elie Ndayambaje.

16.35 From 20 April the massacres became widespread within the préfecture. As in all the regions of the country throughout this period, Tutsis were killed where they had sought refuge thinking that the authorities would protect them.

6.35 A partir du 20 avril, les massacres se sont propagés dans la préfecture. Comme dans toutes les regions du pays pendant cette période, les Tutsi ont été tués là oh ils avaient cherché refuge en espérant qu'ils seraient proteges par les autorités.

Préfecture Offices

6.36 As early as 7 April 1994, numerous members of the Tutsi population sought refuge at the Butare town préfecture offices. As from 19 April 1994, Interahamwe militiamen and soldiers took advantage of this and repeatedly went to the préfecture offices to attack the refugees. The attacks took place while Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana was present and going about his daily business at the préfecture offices. Some of the refugees asked Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana to protect them from the violent acts of the militiamen and soldiers. Sylvain Nsabimana did nothing to put a definitive end to the attacks. Refugees were often forcibly abducted, assaulted and sometimes killed outright.

6.37 Around 10 June, President Théodore Sindikubwabo, accompanied by Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and the Préfet of Butare, Sylvain Nsabimana, went to the Butare préfecture offices, where numerous Tutsi refugees still remained. Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko asked the Préfet what those people were doing at the préfecture offices, and why they had not yet been killed. Around the same time, Minister André Rwamakuba and Bourgmestre Joseph Kanyabashi told the Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, that the Tutsi refugees at the préfecture had to be exterminated. Sylvain Nsabimana never dissociated himself from these calls.

6.38 Between mid-May and mid-June 1994, Sylvain Nsabimana gave the order that refugees at the préfecture offices be transferred to Nyaruhengeri commune, notably to Nyange secteur. Thus, on his orders and on those of Joseph Kanyabashi,

Bureau Préfectoral

6.37 Vers le 10 juin, le Président Théodore Sindikubwabo, accompagné du Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et du Préfet de Butare, Sylvain Nsabimana s'est rendu au bureau de la préfecture de Butare où se trouvaient encore de nombreux réfugiés. Le Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko a demandé au Préfet ce que faisaient ces personnes au bureau de la préfecture et pourquoi elles n'avaient pas encore été tuées. À la même époque, le Ministre André Rwamakuba et le bourgmestre Joseph Kanyabashi ont déclaré au Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana que les Tutsi réfugiés à la préfecture devaient être exterminés. Sylvain Nsabimana ne s'est jamais dissocié de ces propos.

6.38 Entre la mi-mai et la mi-juin 1994, Sylvain Nsabimana a ordonné que des réfugiés du bureau préfectoral soient transférés à la commune de Nyaruhengeri, notamment dans le secteur de Nyange. Ainsi sur ses ordres et ceux de Joseph Kanyabashi, the refugees were transported to Nyange in ONATRACOM buses, where they were then attacked by individuals armed with traditional weapons. Many of them were killed, while some of the survivors returned to the préfecture offices. During the weeks that followed, Joseph Kanyabashi and soldiers selected refugees and forcibly led them to the woods neighbouring the Ecole Evangeliste du Rwanda (E.E.R.). Some of them were never seen again.

6.39 In May and June 1994, on the orders of Sylvain Nsabimana, refugees were transferred by soldiers from the préfecture offices to the E.E.R. Some of them were either beaten or killed by soldiers, while others were taken to the neighbouring woods where a great many were executed.

6.40 Around late April 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi, accompanied by certain members of the communal police, escorted two busloads of Tutsi refugees from the préfecture offices to Rango Forest. When they arrived, the refugees were confined in an enclosure. In the weeks that followed, the refugees were deprived of food and were beaten. Some of them died, while those who remained were freed in early July 1994.

6.41 Between 19 April and late June 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, accompanied by Interahamwe militiamen and soldiers, on several occasions went to the préfecture offices to abduct Tutsi refugees, whom they later killed. Those who attempted to resist were assaulted and sometimes killed outright. When abducting their victims, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali often forced them to undress completely before forcing them into vehicles.

les réfugiés ont été transportés à Nyange, dans des autobus de l'ONATRACOM. Ils ont ensuite été attaqués par des individus munis d'armes traditionnelles. Plusieurs d'entre eux ont été tués. Certains rescapés sont retournés au bureau préfectoral. Au cours des semaines qui ont suivi, Joseph Kanyabashi et des militaires ont sélectionné des réfugiés et les ont amenés de force dans la forêt avoisinante de l'E.E.R. (Ecole Evangeliste du Rwanda). Certains d'entre eux n'ont jamais été revus.

6.39 En mai et juin 1994, sur ordre du Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, des réfugiés ont été transférés par des militaires, du bureau préfectoral à l'E.E.R.. Certains d'entre eux ont été battus ou tués par des militaires ou encore emmenés dans la forêt avoisinante, où un grand nombre ont été exécutés.

6.40 Vers la fin avril 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi accompagné de certains membres de la police communale, a escorté deux autobus de réfugiés Tutsi du bureau préfectoral vers la forêt de Rango. A leur arrivée, les réfugiés ont été détenus dans un endroit clôturé. Durant les semaines qui ont suivi, les réfugiés ont été privés de nourriture et battus. Certains ont péri, les autres ont été libérés au début juillet 1994.

6.41 Entre le 19 avril et la fin juin 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, accompagnés de miliciens Interahamwe et de militaires, se sont rendus à plusieurs reprises au bureau de la préfecture, pour y enlever des Tutsi qu'ils ont tués par la suite. Ceux qui ont tenté de résister ont été agressés et parfois tués sur le champ. Au moment de leur enlèvement, les victimes ont souvent été contraintes par Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali de se dévêtir complètement avant d'être forcés de monter dans des véhicules.

6.42 The entire prkfecture of Butare was the scene of massacres of the Tutsi population involving Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Elie Ndayambaje, et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali. These massacres occurred while Sylvain Nsabimana was exercising his authority as Préfet of Butare.

Muganza Commune and Kabuye Hill

6.43 Kabuye hill is located in President Sindikubwabo's home commune of Ndora, very near Muganza commune, of which Elie Ndayambaje, an influential MRND party member, was Bourgmestre from 1983 to 1992. From 19 April to 20 June 1994, Elie Ndayambaje became the de facto Bourgmestre in order to see through the massacres in the region.

6.44 Between 22 and 24 April 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompanied by communal policemen, gendarmes, soldiers and civilians armed with traditional tools and weapons, attacked the Tutsi refugees who had gathered at Kabuye on his order. Numerous Tutsis were killed or wounded. During the night, armed civilians surrounded the survivors and prevented them from escaping.

6.45 In May 1994, Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, accompanied by Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, visited Ndora commune. Among others, they met the Bourgmestre who had imprisoned people who had perpetrated killings in the commune's jail. After consulting Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Jean Kambanda had the prisoners released. A few days later, the Bourgmestre of Ndora was removed from office.

6.42 L'ensemble de la Préfecture de Butare fut le théâtre de massacres de la population Tutsi, auxquels ont participé Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Arsène Shalom. Ces massacres ont eu lieu alors que Sylvain Nsabimana exerçait son autorité en tant que Préfet de Butare.

Commune de Muganza et la colline de Kabuye

6.44 Entre le 22 et le 24 avril 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompagné de policiers communaux, de gendarmes, de militaires et de civils munis d'armes et d'outils traditionnels, ont attaqué les réfugiés Tutsi qui avaient été regroupés à Kabuye sur son ordre. De nombreux Tutsi ont été tués ou blessés. Pendant la nuit, des civils armés ont encerclé les survivants et les ont empêchés de s'échapper.

6.45 En mai 1994, le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda, accompagné du Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, a visité la commune de Ndora. Ils y ont rencontré, entre autres, le bourgmestre qui avait emprisonné au cachot communal des individus qui s'étaient livrés à des tueries. Après consultation avec Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Jean Kambanda a fait libérer ces prisonniers. Quelques jours après le bourgmestre de Ndora a été démis de ses fonctions.

6.46 In June 1994, while the massacres were continuing in the region, Jean Kambanda visited Muganza commune and met with Elie Ndayambaje, among others. By his presence and by not denouncing the massacres he observed, Jean Kambanda confirmed in the eyes of the people that the killings were condoned by the Government. Furthermore, on 20 June 1994, the Interim Government led by Jean Kambanda appointed Elie Ndayambaje Bourgmestre of Muganza despite his crimes.

Nyakizu commune

6.47 In the week following the death of President Habyarimana, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre of Nyakizu commune and chairman of the MRND for Nyakizu, made a speech calling on the civilians to eliminate all the Tutsi in the secteur.

6.48 On 15 April, after having distributed weapons, Ladislav Ntaganzwa ordered, supervised and participated in an attack on Tutsi refugees at Cyahinda parish, perpetrated by civilians, communal police and gendarmes. On 18 April, after a visit from President Théodore Sindikubwabo, who incited the inhabitants to exterminate the refugees at Cyahinda parish, Ladislav Ntaganzwa ordered and led the massacre of those who had survived the first attack.

Ngoma commune

6.49 During the month of April 1994, thousands of Tutsi refugees gathered in various locations in Ngoma commune, such as Kabakobwa cellule, Matyazo clinic and

6.46 En juin 1994, Jean Kambanda a visité la commune de Muganza où il a rencontré, entre autres, Elie Ndayambaje, alors que les massacres continuaient dans la région. Par sa présence et en ne dénonçant pas les massacres qu'il avait constatés, Jean Kambanda a confirmé à la population que ces tueries étaient cautionnées par le Gouvernement. De plus, le 20 juin 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire de Jean Kambanda a nommé Elie Ndayambaje Bourgmestre de Muganza, malgré ses crimes.

Commune de Nyakizu

6.47 Dans la semaine qui a suivi la mort du Président Habyarimana, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre et président du parti MRND de la commune de Nyakizu a fait un discours appelant les civils à éliminer tous les Tutsi du secteur.

6.48 Le 15 avril après avoir distribué des armes, Ladislav Ntaganzwa a ordonné, supervisé et participé à une attaque perpétrée par des civils, des policiers communaux et des gendarmes, contre des Tutsi réfugiés dans la paroisse de Cyahinda. Le 18 avril, après une visite du président Theodore Sindikubwabo au cours de laquelle il a incité les habitants à exterminer les personnes réfugiées dans la paroisse de Cyahinda, Ladislav Ntaganzwa a ordonné et dirigé le massacre de ceux qui avaient survécu à la première attaque.

Commune de Ngoma

6.49 Au cours du mois d'avril 1994, des milliers de réfugiés Tutsi se sont rassemblés à différents endroits de la commune de Ngoma, dont la cellule de Kabakobwa, le

Ngoma Church, often on the recommendation of Joseph Kanyabashi, the long serving Bourgemestre, who had promised to protect them. Then, Joseph Kanyabashi ordered and supervised the massacres of these refugees by communal civil servants, soldiers and militiamen.

6.50 In April and May 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi, André Rwamakuba and Arsène Shalome Ntahobali went to the Butare University Hospital in Ngoma, accompanied by soldiers or militiamen acting under their orders. At this place, they selected, abducted and killed Tutsi who had sought refuge or treatment there.

6.51 The search for and elimination of tutsis also took place throughout the entire prifecture between April and July 1994. During this period, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalome Ntahobali used a roadblock located in front of their house to identify and kill Tutsis. Arsène Shalome Ntahobali also traveled throughout the prifecture to locate and kill Tutsis.

6.52 Furthermore, aside from his attacks on members of the Tutsi population during this period, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, assisted by unknown "accomplices", participated in the kidnapping and raping of Tutsi women.

6.53 Between April and July 1994, to make sure that the massacres were carried out in an efficient and unflagging manner, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, individually or in the presence of one another, not only incited on, but also aided and abetted the population to slaughter the Tutsi in Butare prifecture.

dispensaire de Matyazo et l'tglise de Ngoma, souvent sur recommandation du bourgmestre Joseph Kanyabashi (en poste depuis longtemps) qui leur avait promis de les prottger. Par la suite, Joseph Kanyabashi a ordonné et supervisé les massacres de ces réfugiés perpétrés par des fonctionnaires communaux, des soldats et des miliciens.

6.50 En avril et en mai 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi, André Rwamakuba et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali se sont rendus à l'hôpital universitaire de Butare à Ngoma accompagnés de soldats ou de miliciens qui agissaient sous leurs ordres. A cet endroit, ils ont sélectionné, enlevé et tué des Tutsi qui s'y étaient réfugiés ou y recevaient des soins.

6.51 La recherche et l'élimination des Tutsi a également eu lieu à travers toute la prifecture entre avril et juillet 1994. Au cours de cette période, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali ont utilisé un barrage situé devant leur maison pour identifier et tuer des Tutsi. Arsène Shalom Ntahobali s'est également déplacé à travers toute la prifecture pour localiser et tuer les Tutsi.

Responsibility

6.54 From April to July 1994, several hundred thousand people were massacred throughout Rwanda. The majority of the victims were killed solely because they were Tutsi or appeared to be Tutsi. The other victims, nearly all Hutu, were killed because they were considered Tutsi accomplices, were linked to them through marriage or were opposed to the extremist Hutu ideology.

6.55 From 7 April 1994 around the country, most of the massacres were perpetrated with the participation, aid and instigation of military personnel, gendarmes and Hutu militiamen. Certain units of the Para-Commando, Reconnaissance and Presidential Guard battalions were the most implicated in these crimes in the capital and in other préfectures, often acting in concert with the militiamen.

6.56 Further, from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them logistical support, i.e. weapons, transport and fuel.

6.57 The massacres and the assaults thus perpetrated were the result of a strategy adopted and elaborated by political, civil and military authorities in the country, at the national as well as the local level, such as Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andre Rwamakuba, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, who conspired to exterminate the Tutsi population.

6.58 During the events referred to in this

Responsabilité

6.54 D'avril à juillet 1994, plusieurs centaines de milliers de personnes ont été massacrées sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. La plupart des victimes ont été tuées pour la seule raison qu'elles étaient des Tutsi ou ressemblaient à des Tutsi. Les autres victimes, surtout des Hutu, ont été tuées parce qu'elles étaient qualifiées de complice des Tutsi, liées à ces derniers par mariage ou opposées à l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste.

6.55 Dès le 7 avril 1994, partout au Rwanda, la plupart des massacres ont été commis avec la participation, l'aide et l'encouragement des militaires, des gendarmes et des miliciens. Certaines unités des Bataillon Para-Commando, de Reconnaissance et de la Garde Présidentielle ont été les plus impliquées dans la commission de ces crimes dans la capitale et dans d'autres préfectures du pays, agissant souvent de concert avec les miliciens.

6.57 Les massacres et les agressions ainsi perpétrés furent le résultat d'une stratégie adoptée, élaborée et mise en exécution par des autorités politiques, civiles et militaires du pays, tant au niveau national que local, dont Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, qui se sont entendues pour exterminer la population Tutsi.

indictment, rapes, sexual assaults and other crimes of a sexual nature were widely and notoriously committed throughout Rwanda. These crimes were perpetrated by, among others, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes against the Tutsi population, in particular Tutsi women and girls.

6.59 Military officers, members of the Interim Government and local authorities such as Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andri Rwamakuba, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Elie Ndayambaje and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali aided and abetted their subordinates and others in carrying out the massacres of the Tutsi population and its accomplices. Without the complicity of the local and national civil and military authorities, the principal massacres would not have occurred.

6.60 Knowing that massacres of the civilian population were being committed, political and military authorities, including Sylvain Nsabimana and Alphonse Nteziryayo took no measures to stop them. On the contrary, they refused to intervene to control and appeal to the population as long as a cease-fire had not been declared. This categorical refusal was communicated to the Special Rapporteur via the Chief of Staff of Rwandan Army, Major-General Augustin Bizimungu.

6.61 Sylvain Nsabimana and Alphonse Nteziryayo, in their position of authority, acting in concert with, notably Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andri Rwamakuba, Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Elie Ndayambaje and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, participated in the planning, preparation or execution of a common

Ces crimes ont été perpétrés, entre autres, par des militaires, des miliciens et des gendarmes contre la population Tutsi, en particulier des femmes et des jeunes filles Tutsi.

6.59 Des officiers militaires, des membres du Gouvernement Intérimaire et des autorités locales dont, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andri Rwamakuba, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Elie Ndayambaje et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali ont aidé et encouragé leurs subordonnés et des tiers à commettre les massacres de la population Tutsi et de ses "complices". Sans la complicité des autorités locales et nationales, civiles et militaires, les principaux massacres n'auraient pas eu lieu.

6.60 Sachant que des massacres étaient commis contre la population civile, des autorités politiques et militaires dont le Sylvain Nsabimana et Alphonse Nteziryayo n'ont pris aucune disposition pour les arrêter. Au contraire ils ont refusé d'intervenir pour contrôler et faire appel à la population tant qu'un accord de cessez-le-feu ne serait pas ordonné. Ce refus catégorique a été transmis au Rapporteur spécial par l'intermédiaire du Chef de l'Etat-Major de l'Armée Rwandaise, le Major-Général Augustin Bizimungu.

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

1.1 The revolution of 1959 marked the beginning of a period of ethnic clashes between the Hutu and the Tutsi in Rwanda, causing hundreds of Tutsi to die and thousands more to flee the country in the years immediately following. The revolution resulted in the abolition of the Tutsi monarchy and the proclamation of the First Republic in early 1961, confirmed in a referendum held in the same year. Legislative elections held in September 1961 confirmed the dominant position of the MDR-PARMEHUTU (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain - Parti du Mouvement d'Émancipation Hutu), led by Grégoire Kayibanda, who was subsequently elected President of the Republic by the Legislative Assembly on 26 October 1961.

1.2 The early years of the First Republic, which was under the domination of the Hutu of central and southern Rwanda, were again marked by ethnic violence. The victims were predominantly Tutsi, the former ruling elite, and those related to them, who were killed, driven to other regions of Rwanda or forced to flee the country. The gradual elimination of the opposition parties in those early years confirmed the MDR-PARMEHUTU as the single party, the only party to present candidates in the elections of 1965.

1.3 The early part of 1973 in Rwanda was again marked by ethnic confrontations between the Hutu and Tutsi, prompting another exodus of the Tutsi minority from the country, as had occurred between 1959 and 1963. This new outburst of ethnic and political tension between the North and South resulted in a military coup by General Juvénal Habyarimana on 5 July 1973, shifting power from civilian to military hands and from the Hutu of central Rwanda to the Hutu of the northern préfectures of Gisenyi and Ruhengeri (Habyarimana's native region).

H45

1.1 La révolution de 1959 marque le début d'une période d'affrontements ethniques entre les Hutu et les Tutsi au Rwanda, provoquant au cours des années qui ont immédiatement suivi, des centaines de morts chez les Tutsi et l'exode de milliers d'entre eux. Cette révolution entraîne l'abolition de la monarchie Tutsi et la proclamation de la Première République au début de l'année 1961, confirmée par référendum au cours de la même année. Les élections législatives de septembre 1961 confirme la domination du MDR-PARMEHUTU (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain-Parti du Mouvement d'Émancipation Hutu) de Grégoire Kayibanda, qui est élu Président de la République par l'assemblée législative le 26 octobre 1961.

1.2 Les premières années d'existence de cette république, dominée par les Hutu du centre et du sud du Rwanda, sont de nouveau marquées par la violence ethnique. Les victimes furent principalement des Tutsi, l'ancienne élite dirigeante, et leurs alliés; ceux-ci furent tués, chassés vers d'autres régions du Rwanda ou forcés de s'enfuir du pays. L'élimination progressive des partis d'opposition durant ces premières années confirme le MDR-PARMEHUTU comme parti unique, qui est le seul à présenter des candidats aux élections de 1965.

1.3 Le début de l'année 1973 au Rwanda est de nouveau marqué par des affrontements ethniques entre Hutu et Tutsi qui provoquent, après ceux de 1959 à 1963, un nouvel exode de la minorité Tutsi. Cette recrudescence des tensions ethniques et politiques (entre le Nord et le Sud) aboutit, le 5 juillet 1973, à un coup d'État militaire mené par le Général Juvénal Habyarimana. Le coup d'État entraîne un renversement du pouvoir, qui passe des mains des civils à celles des militaires et de celles des Hutu du centre du Rwanda à celles des Hutu des préfectures de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri au nord du pays (région natale du Président Habyarimana).

1.4 In 1975, President Habyarimana founded the Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), a single party, and assumed the position of party Chairman. The administrative and party hierarchies were indistinguishable in this single party state from the level of the Préfet to the bourgmestres, and down to that of the conseillers de secteurs and responsables de cellule.

1.4 En 1975, le président Habyarimana fonde le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), parti unique, dont il assume la présidence. La structure administrative et la hiérarchie du MRND se confondent en un véritable parti-État à tous les niveaux de l'administration territoriale, du Préfet aux Bourgmestres, jusqu'aux conseillers de secteurs et responsables de cellule.

1.5 From 1973 to 1994, the government of President Habyarimana used a system of ethnic and regional quotas which was supposed to provide educational and employment opportunities for all, but which was used increasingly to discriminate against both Tutsi and Hutu from regions outside the northwest.

1.5 De 1973 à 1994, le gouvernement du Président Habyarimana applique un système de quotas basé sur l'origine ethnique et régionale qui était censé offrir des chances égales à tous en matière d'éducation et d'emploi, mais qui fut utilisé progressivement de manière discriminatoire à l'encontre des Tutsi et des Hutu originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest.

In fact, by the late 1980s, persons from Gisenyi and Ruhengeri occupied many of the most important positions in the military, political, economic and administrative sectors of Rwandan society. Among the privileged elite, an inner circle of relatives and close associates of President Habyarimana and his wife, Agathe Kanziga, known as the Akazu, enjoyed great power. This select group, almost exclusively Hutu, was supplemented by individuals who shared its extremist Hutu ideology, and who came mainly from the native region of the President and his wife.

De fait, à la fin des années 1980, plusieurs des postes les plus importants dans les secteurs militaires, politiques, économiques et administratifs de la société rwandaise étaient occupés par des personnes originaires de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri. Parmi l'élite privilégiée, un noyau, connu sous l'appellation Akazu, composé de membres de la famille et d'intimes du Président Habyarimana et de son épouse, Agathe Kanziga, jouit d'un grand pouvoir. Aux membres de ce groupe, presque exclusivement Hutu, se joignent des personnes qui en partagent l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste et qui sont principalement originaires de la région natale du Président et de son épouse.

1.6 In 1990, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, and his single party, the MRND, were facing mounting opposition, including from other Hutu.

1.6 Au cours de l'année 1990, le Président de la République, Juvénal Habyarimana, et son parti unique, le MRND, font face à une opposition grandissante, notamment de la part d'autres Hutu.

1.7 On 1 October 1990, the Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF), made up mainly of Tutsi refugees, attacked Rwanda. Within days the government began arresting thousands of people, presumed to be opponents of Habyarimana and suspected of being RPF accomplices. Although the Tutsi were the main target, Hutu political opponents were also arrested.

1.7 Le 1er octobre 1990, le Front Patriotique Rwandais (FPR), composé majoritairement de réfugiés Tutsi, attaque le Rwanda. Dans les jours qui suivent, le gouvernement procède à l'arrestation de milliers de personnes présumées être des adversaires d'Habyarimana et soupçonnées de complicité avec le FPR. Parmi les personnes arrêtées, majoritairement d'origine Tutsi, il y a également des opposants politiques Hutu.

1.8 Following pressure from the internal opposition and the international community, and the RPF attack of October 1990, President Habyarimana permitted the introduction of multiple political parties and the adoption of a new constitution on 10 June 1991. The Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) was renamed Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). The first transitional government was made up almost exclusively of MRND members, following the refusal of the main opposition parties to take part. With the second transitional government in April 1992, the MRND became a minority party for the first time in its history, with nine ministerial portfolios out of 19. On the other hand, the MRND retained its domination over the local administration.

1.8 Suite aux différentes pressions de l'opposition interne et de la communauté internationale, et à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990, le Président Habyarimana autorise l'introduction du multipartisme et l'adoption d'une nouvelle constitution le 10 juin 1991. Le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) est alors rebaptisé Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). Le premier Gouvernement de transition est composé presque exclusivement de membres du MRND, suite au refus des principaux partis d'opposition d'en faire partie. Avec la mise en place du second Gouvernement de transition en avril 1992, le MRND se retrouve minoritaire pour la première fois de son histoire, avec neuf portefeuilles ministériels sur 19. Par contre, le MRND demeure fortement dominant au niveau de l'administration territoriale.

1.9 The new Government then entered negotiations with the RPF, which resulted in the signing of the Arusha Accords on 4 August 1993. The Accords provided for a new system of sharing military and civilian power between the RPF, the opposition parties and the MRND.

1.9 Le nouveau Gouvernement entame alors des négociations avec le FPR qui aboutissent le 4 août 1993 à la signature des Accords d'Arusha. Ces Accords prévoient un nouveau partage des pouvoirs militaires et civils entre le FPR, les partis d'opposition et le MRND.

1.10 By the terms of the Arusha Accords, which provided for the integration of both sides' armed forces, the new national army was to be limited to 13,000 men, 60% FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) and 40% RPF. The posts of command were to be shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides,

1.10 Aux termes des Accords d'Arusha qui prévoient l'intégration des forces armées des deux parties, l'effectif de la nouvelle armée nationale est limité à 13 000 hommes dont 60% proviennent des FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) et 40% du FPR. Quant aux postes de commandement, ils sont attribués à with the post of Chief of Staff of the Army assigned to the FAR.

The Gendarmerie was to be limited to 6,000 men, 60% FAR and 40% RPF, with the posts of command shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides and the post of Chief of Staff of the Gendarmerie assigned to the RPF.

1.11 As regards representation within the government, the Arusha Accords limited the number of ministerial portfolios to be held by the MRND to five, plus the Presidency. The other portfolios were to be shared as follows: RPF, five; MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain), four (including the post of Prime Minister); PSD (Parti social-démocrate), three; PL (Parti libéral), three; and the PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien), one.

1.12 For the men and women close to President Habyarimana, including the members of the Akazu, who held positions of prominence in the various sectors of Rwandan society, this new power sharing plan, as demanded by the political opposition and as stipulated in the Arusha Accords, meant a relinquishment of power and the loss of numerous privileges and benefits. With political changes following the establishment of the multi-party government of April 1992, several important military officers from the north had been forced to retire. At the same time, many of the military were facing massive demobilisation with the implementation of the Arusha Accords.

1.13 From 1990, Habyarimana and several of his close associates devised the strategy of inciting hatred and fear of the Tutsi minority as a way of rebuilding solidarity among the Hutu and keeping themselves in power. They strongly opposed any form of power sharing, including the one envisaged by the Arusha parts égales (50%-50%) aux deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de l'armée revenant aux FAR.

L'effectif de la Gendarmerie est limité à 6 000 hommes, composé de 60% des FAR et 40% du FPR, avec les postes de commandement répartis équitablement (50%-50%) entre les deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de la Gendarmerie revenant au FPR.

1.11 Au niveau de la représentation au sein du gouvernement, les Accords d'Arusha limitent à cinq le nombre de portefeuilles ministériels du MRND en plus de la Présidence de la République. Les autres portefeuilles se répartissent ainsi: cinq pour le FPR, quatre pour le MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain) dont le poste de premier Ministre, trois pour le PSD (Parti social-démocrate), trois pour le PL (Parti libéral) et un pour le PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien).

Accords.

1.14 Determined to avoid the power sharing prescribed by the Arusha Accords, several prominent civilian and military figures pursued their strategy of ethnic division and incitement to violence. They targeted and labelled as RPF accomplices the entire Tutsi population, and also Hutu opposed to their domination, particularly those from regions other than northwestern Rwanda. At the same time, they sought to divide Hutu opposition parties, attracting some of their members back to the support of Habyarimana. These efforts to divide the Hutu opposition were furthered by the assassination of Melchior Ndadaye, the democratically elected Hutu President, in neighboring Burundi, by Tutsi soldiers of the Burundi army. By late 1993, two of the three major parties opposed to the MRND had each split into two factions. The faction of each known as the "Power" faction aligned itself with the MRND.

1.15 The strategy adopted in the early 1990s, which culminated in the widespread massacres of April 1994, comprised several components, which were carefully worked out by the various prominent figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, including the members of the Akazu.

In addition to the incitement to ethnic violence and the extermination of the Tutsi and their "accomplices", was the organization and military training of the youth wings of the political parties, notably the Interahamwe (youth wing of the MRND), the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated, the distribution of weapons to civilians, the assassination of certain political opponents and the massacre of many Tutsi in various parts of Rwanda between October 1990 and April 1994.

1.16 The incitement to ethnic hatred took particulièrement au partage prévu par les Accords d'Arusha.

HUT

1.14 Déterminées à éviter le partage des pouvoirs prévu par les Accords d'Arusha, plusieurs personnalités civiles et militaires en vue poursuivent leur stratégie de conflit ethnique et d'incitation à la violence. Elles visent la population Tutsi tout entière, qui est qualifiée de complice du FPR, de même que les Hutu opposés à leur domination, particulièrement ceux qui sont originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest du Rwanda. Parallèlement, elles tentent de diviser les partis d'opposition Hutu, en ramenant certains de leurs membres dans le camp d'Habyarimana. Les efforts destinés à diviser l'opposition Hutu sont favorisés par l'assassinat, par des soldats Tutsi de l'armée burundaise, de Melchior Ndadaye, président Hutu démocratiquement élu dans le Burundi voisin. À la fin de 1993, deux des trois principaux partis opposés au MRND s'étaient divisés en deux factions chacun. Les factions connues sous le nom de "Power" s'allient au MRND.

À l'incitation à la violence ethnique et à l'extermination des Tutsi et de leurs "complices", s'ajoutent l'organisation et l'entraînement militaire des jeunesses politiques, notamment les Interahamwe (jeunesses du MRND), la préparation de listes de personnes à éliminer, la distribution d'armes à des civils, l'assassinat de certains opposants politiques et le massacre de nombreux Tutsi dans diverses régions du Rwanda entre octobre 1990 et avril 1994.

1.16 L'incitation à la haine ethnique prend

the form of public speeches by people sharing the extremist ideology. These political and military figures publicly appealed to hatred and fear of the Tutsi and urged the Hutu majority to "finish off the enemy and its accomplices". A perfect illustration is the speech made in November 1992 by Léon Mugesera, vice-chairman of the MRND for Gisenyi préfecture, who at the time was already inciting the public to exterminate the Tutsi and their "accomplices".

With the intention of ensuring widespread dissemination of the calls to ethnic violence, prominent figures from the President's circle set up true hate media. Thus the creation of Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTL) and of the newspaper Kangura was a part of the strategy and pursued the same logic.

1.17 The creation of the youth wings of the political parties, originally established to encourage or even force adherence to one or another party in the newly-established multi-party system, provided Habyarimana's circle with a large, devoted and effective workforce to implement the adopted strategy. These youth organizations, which were affiliated to the political parties, were soon manipulated as part of the anti-Tutsi campaign. Some of the members of these organizations, notably the Interahamwe (MRND), were organized into militia groups, which were financed, trained and led by prominent civilians and military figures from the President of the Republic's entourage. They were issued weapons, with the complicity of certain military and civilian authorities. The militia groups were transported to training sites, including certain military camps, in public administration vehicles or vehicles belonging to companies controlled by the President's circle.

1.18 During the mass arrests of October la forme de discours publics prononcés par des personnalités partageant cette idéologie extrémiste. Ces personnalités politiques et militaires appellent publiquement à la haine et à la peur des Tutsi et exhortent la majorité Hutu "à en finir avec l'ennemi et ses complices". Le discours prononcé en novembre 1992 par Léon Mugesera, vice-président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, qui dès cette époque incitait publiquement à l'extermination des Tutsi et leurs "complices", en est la parfaite illustration.

Dans le but d'assurer une large diffusion de ces appels à la violence ethnique, des personnalités de l'entourage du Président mettent sur pied de véritables média de la haine. La création de la Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTL) et du journal Kangura participe de cette stratégie et s'inscrit dans cette logique.

1.17 La création des ailes jeunesse des partis politiques, qui avait à l'origine pour objectif d'encourager ou même de forcer l'adhésion à l'un ou l'autre des partis du nouveau régime multipartite, va fournir à l'entourage d'Habyarimana une main d'oeuvre dévouée, nombreuse et efficace pour mettre en oeuvre la stratégie adoptée. Ces organisations de jeunesse affiliées aux partis politiques sont très vite manipulées dans le cadre de la campagne anti-Tutsi. Des membres de ces organisations, particulièrement les Interahamwe-MRND, sont organisés en milices, financées, entraînées et dirigées par des personnalités civiles et militaires de l'entourage du Président de la République. Des armes leur sont distribuées avec la complicité de certaines autorités militaires et civiles. Leur transport vers les sites d'entraînement, dont certains camps militaires, est assuré par des véhicules de l'administration publique ou appartenant à des sociétés contrôlées par l'entourage du Président.

1.18 Lors des arrestations massives

1990, the civilian and military authorities followed lists that had been drawn up in order to identify and locate the presumed accomplices of the RPF, the majority of whom were Tutsi. Later, Army, Gendarmerie, local authorities and Interahamwe were given orders to prepare new lists or update the existing ones, which were subsequently used during the massacres of 1994. In March 1993, such a list was found in the vehicle of the Army Chief of Staff.

d'octobre 1990, les autorités civiles et militaires se réfèrent à des listes établies pour identifier et localiser les présumés complices du FPR, en majorité Tutsi. Par la suite, l'Armée, la Gendarmerie, les autorités locales et les Interahamwe reçoivent des directives pour préparer de nouvelles listes ou tenir à jour les listes existantes, qui vont servir lors des massacres de 1994. En mars 1993, une telle liste est retrouvée dans le véhicule du Chef d'État Major de l'Armée.

1.19 Towards the end of 1991, certain Rwandan authorities distributed weapons to certain civilians in the north-eastern region of the country as part of a civil self-defence campaign, in reaction to the RPF attack of October 1990. Later, some authorities distributed weapons nationwide, notably to the Interahamwe and carefully selected individuals, even in regions distant from the war zone. Towards the end of 1993, the Bishop of Nyundo criticized the distribution of weapons in a public letter, questioning its purpose.

1.19 Vers la fin de 1991, certaines autorités rwandaises distribuent des armes à certains membres de la population civile du nord-est du pays dans le cadre de la campagne d'auto-défense civile en réaction à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990. Plus tard, en dehors du cadre de l'auto-défense civile, des armes sont distribuées dans tout le pays par des autorités, notamment aux Interahamwe et à des personnes soigneusement choisies, même dans des régions éloignées de la zone de guerre. Vers la fin de 1993, l'Évêque de Nyundo critique dans une lettre publique cette distribution d'armes, s'interrogeant sur sa finalité.

1.20 The pursuit of the strategy thus described played a catalytic role in the political and ethnic violence of the time, which climaxed in the April 1994 massacres. The early part of the 90s was marked by numerous political assassinations and large massacres of the Tutsi minority, including the one in Kibilira (1990), that of the Bagogwe (1991) and the one in Bugesera (1992). The massacres were instigated and organized by local authorities with the complicity of certain prominent persons from the President's circle. Therein can be found the components of the strategy which culminated in the genocide of 1994.

1.20 La mise en place de la stratégie ainsi décrite joue un rôle de catalyseur dans la violence politique et ethnique de cette époque qui atteint son paroxysme avec les massacres d'avril 1994. Le début des années 90 est marqué par de nombreux assassinats politiques et d'importants massacres de la minorité Tutsi, dont celui de Kibilira (1990), ceux des Bagogwe (1991) et celui du Bugesera (1992). Ces massacres sont suscités et organisés par des autorités locales avec la complicité de certaines personnalités de l'entourage du Président Habyarimana. On y retrouve tous les éléments de la stratégie qui va aboutir au génocide de 1994.

1.21 In early 1994, certain prominent people from Habyarimana's circle instigated violent demonstrations in Kigali aimed at preventing the implementation of the Arusha

1.21 Au début de 1994, des manifestations violentes visant à empêcher la mise en place des Accords d'Arusha se déroulent à Kigali à l'instigation de certaines personnalités de

Accords. Soldiers in civilian clothes and militiamen took part, seeking to provoke confrontations with the Belgian UNAMIR soldiers. These incidents were partially the cause of the postponement of the establishment of the institutions foreseen by the Arusha Accords.

1.22 On 6 April 1994, the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic of Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali airport.

1.23 In the hours which followed the crash of the President's plane, the senior officers of the FAR convened to assess the situation. Those who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, generally from the North, proposed an Army take-over. During a second meeting which took place on the morning of 7 April, that option was rejected in favour of setting up an interim Government.

1.24 Already on the morning of 7 April and while these discussions were taking place, groups of military, lists in hand, proceeded to arrest, confine and carry out systematic assassinations of a large number of political opponents, both Hutu and Tutsi, including the Prime Minister, some of the Ministers in her Government and the President of the Constitutional Court. At the same time, however, the military were evacuating prominent members of the dead President's circle, including the MRND Ministers, to safe locations.

The Belgian UNAMIR soldiers sent to protect the Prime Minister were disarmed, arrested and taken to Kigali military camp, where they were massacred, prompting the withdrawal of the Belgian contingent in the days that followed. After the withdrawal of the Belgian troops, the UN Security Council drastically reduced the number of UNAMIR personnel in Rwanda.

l'entourage d'Habyarimana. On y retrouve des militaires en civil aux côtés des miliciens qui cherchent à provoquer des affrontements avec les soldats belges de la MINUAR. Ces incidents sont en partie à l'origine du report de la mise en place des institutions prévues dans les Accords d'Arusha.

1.22 Le 6 avril 1994, l'avion transportant, entre autres passagers, le Président de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, est abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali.

1.23 Dans les heures qui suivent la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les principaux officiers des FAR se réunissent pour évaluer la situation. Ceux qui partagent l'idéologie extrémiste Hutu, généralement les militaires du nord du pays, proposent la prise du pouvoir par l'Armée. Le 7 avril au matin, lors d'une deuxième réunion, cette option est rejetée au profit de la mise sur pied d'un gouvernement intérimaire.

1.24 Dès le 7 avril au matin, parallèlement à ces discussions, des groupes de militaires, listes en main, procèdent à l'arrestation, à la séquestration et à l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques, Hutu et Tutsi, parmi lesquels le Premier Ministre, certains des ministres de son gouvernement et le Président de la Cour Constitutionnelle. Par contre, au même moment, des militaires évacuent dans des endroits sûrs des personnalités de l'entourage du défunt Président, y compris les ministres du MRND.

Les militaires belges de la MINUAR envoyés pour protéger le Premier Ministre sont désarmés, arrêtés et conduits au camp militaire de Kigali où ils sont massacrés. Cet incident précipite le retrait du contingent belge dans les jours qui suivent. Après le retrait des troupes belges, le Conseil de sécurité des Nations-Unies réduit de façon draconienne le nombre de personnel de la MINUAR au Rwanda.

1.25 The leaders of various political parties not targeted in the assassinations assembled at the request of military officers. Other than members of the MRND, most participants were members of the "Power" wings of their respective parties. Given the political and constitutional void created by the deaths of most national political authorities, they set up a government based on the 1991 constitution. Composed solely of Hutu, the government was sworn in on 9 April 1994. The MRND held nine ministerial posts, plus the Presidency of the Republic, while the remaining 11 positions, including that of Prime Minister, went to the "Power" factions of the other parties.

1.25 Les dirigeants des divers partis politiques non visés par les assassinats se réunissent à la demande d'officiers militaires. En dehors des membres du MRND, la plupart des participants sont membres des ailes "Power" de leurs partis respectifs. Étant donné le vide politique et constitutionnel créé par la mort de la plupart des personnalités politiques nationales, ils mettent sur pied un gouvernement fondé sur la constitution de 1991. Le gouvernement, exclusivement composé de personnalités Hutu, prête serment le 9 avril 1994. Neuf postes ministériels sont attribués au MRND, en plus de la présidence de la République, et les onze postes restants, incluant celui de premier ministre, reviennent aux factions "Power" des autres partis.

1.26 In the hours following the crash of President Habyarimana's plane, military and militiamen set up roadblocks and began slaughtering Tutsi and members of the Hutu opposition in Kigali and in other parts of Rwanda. At the roadblocks, they checked the identity cards of passers-by and killed those or most of those who were identified as Tutsi. Military patrols, often involving militiamen, scoured the city, lists in hand, to execute the Tutsi and certain political opponents.

1.26 Dans les heures qui suivent la chute de l'avion du Président Habyarimana, les militaires et les miliciens érigent des barrages et commencent à massacrer les Tutsi et les membres de l'opposition Hutu à Kigali et dans d'autres régions du Rwanda. Aux barrages, ils procèdent à la vérification des cartes d'identité de tous les passants et exécutent toutes les personnes, ou la plupart des personnes, identifiées comme étant Tutsi. Des patrouilles de militaires, souvent accompagnés de miliciens sillonnent la ville, listes en main, pour exécuter les Tutsi et certains opposants politiques.

3. THE POWER STRUCTURE

The Government

3.1 According to the Constitution of 10 June 1991, executive power is exercised by the President of the Republic, assisted by the Government, composed of the Prime Minister and the ministers. The members of the Government are appointed by the President of the Republic upon the proposal of the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister directs the Government's program. The Government determines and applies national policy. To that effect, it controls the civil service and the armed forces. The Prime Minister decides the functions of the ministers and officials under the Prime Minister's authority. The resignation or termination of tenure of the Prime Minister, for whatever reason, causes the Government to resign.

3.2 The Ministers implement the Government's policy, as defined by the Prime Minister. They are answerable to the Head of the Government for doing so. In carrying out their duties, they have at their disposal the civil service and local administration corresponding to their functions.

The Local Public Administration

3.3 The Préfet represents executive power at prefectural level. The Préfet is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior and carries out his duties under that Minister's hierarchical authority. The Préfet's authority covers the entire préfecture.

3.4 In his capacity as administrator of the préfecture, the Préfet is responsible for ensuring peace, public order and the safety of people and property. The Préfet, in the

3. STRUCTURE DU POUVOIR

Le Gouvernement

3.1 Selon la Constitution du 10 juin 1991, le pouvoir exécutif est exercé par le Président de la République, assisté du gouvernement composé du Premier Ministre et des ministres. Les membres du gouvernement sont nommés par le Président de la République sur proposition du Premier Ministre. Le Premier Ministre est chargé de diriger l'action du gouvernement. Le gouvernement détermine et conduit la politique de la nation et dispose, à cet effet, de l'administration publique et de la force armée. Le Premier Ministre détermine les attributions des ministres et des agents placés sous son autorité. La démission ou la cessation des fonctions du Premier Ministre, pour quelque cause que ce soit, entraîne la démission du gouvernement.

3.2 Les ministres exécutent la politique du Gouvernement définie par le Premier Ministre. Ils répondent devant le Chef du Gouvernement de cette exécution. Dans l'exercice de leurs fonctions ils disposent de l'administration publique et territoriale correspondante à leurs attributions.

L'administration territoriale

3.3 Le préfet est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la préfecture. Il est nommé sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur par le Président de la République et exerce ses fonctions sous l'autorité hiérarchique du ministre de l'Intérieur. L'autorité du préfet s'étend sur l'ensemble de la préfecture.

3.4 En sa qualité d'administrateur de la préfecture, le préfet est chargé d'assurer la tranquillité, l'ordre public et la sécurité des personnes et des biens. Dans l'exercice de ses discharge of his policing duties, maintaining peace and public order, may request the intervention of the army and of the Gendarmerie Nationale. The Préfet has hierarchical authority over all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur.

3.5 Similarly to the Préfet, the Bourgmestre represents executive power at the commune level. He is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior. He is under the hierarchical authority of the Préfet. He has authority over the civil servants posted in his commune. Moreover, he has policing duties in regard to maintaining order and law enforcement.

The Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.6 The Forces Armées Rwandaises (FAR) were composed of the Armée Rwandaise (AR) and the Gendarmerie Nationale (GN). The Forces Armées Rwandaises did not have a unified command and came directly under the Minister of Defence. The Commander-in-Chief of the Forces Armées Rwandaises was the President of the Republic.

3.7 The Gendarmerie Nationale was responsible for maintaining public order and peace and the observance of the laws in effect in the country.

3.8 The Gendarmerie Nationale was under the Minister of Defence but could carry out its duties of ensuring public order and peace at the request of the local government authority having jurisdiction, namely the Préfet. In cases of emergency, this request could be made verbally, notably by telephone. Such requests had to be carried out immediately. In addition, the Gendarmerie Nationale was

Le préfet exerce son autorité hiérarchique sur tous les agents de l'administration publique et toutes les personnes détentrices de la puissance publique officiant dans la préfecture, parmi lesquels les Bourgmestres et les Conseillers de secteur

3.5 À l'instar du préfet, le bourgmestre est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la commune. Il est nommé par le Président de la République sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur. Il est placé sous l'autorité hiérarchique du préfet. Il a autorité sur les agents de l'administration officiant dans sa commune. Il a par ailleurs des attributions de police dans le cadre du maintien de l'ordre et de l'exécution des lois.

Les Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.7 La Gendarmerie Nationale était chargée du maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique et de l'exécution des lois en vigueur dans le pays.

3.8 La Gendarmerie Nationale relevait du ministre de la Défense, mais pouvait exercer ses attributions de maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique à la requête de l'autorité administrative territoriale compétente, en la personne du préfet. En cas d'urgence, cette réquisition pouvait être faite verbalement, notamment par téléphone. Cette réquisition devait être exécutée sans délai. En outre, la

Gendarmerie Nationale devait porter à la connaissance du préfet tout renseignement concernant l'ordre public. Elle devait assistance à toute personne en danger.

The Political Parties and The Militia

3.9 During the events referred to in this indictment, the main political parties in Rwanda were the MRND (Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), the CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la République), the MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain), the PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) and the PL (Parti Libéral). The RPF (Rwandan Patriotic Front) was a politico-military opposition organization.

3.10 Most of the political parties had created a youth wing. The members of the MRND's youth wing members were known as the "Interahamwe" and those of the CDR were known as the "Impuzamugambi". Numerous MRND youth wing members subsequently received military training and were thus transformed from youth movements into militias.

Les Partis Politiques et les Milices

3.9 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation, les principaux partis politiques au Rwanda étaient: le MRND (Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), la CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la République), le MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain), le PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) et le PL (Parti Libéral). Le FPR (Front Patriotique Rwandais) était une organisation politico-militaire d'opposition.

3.10 La plupart des partis politiques avaient créé une aile jeunesse en leur sein. Celle du MRND était connue sous l'appellation "Interahamwe" et celle de la CDR sous le nom de "Impuzamugambi". Par la suite, plusieurs membres de l'aile jeunesse du MRND ont reçu un entraînement militaire; ce qui a transformé ces mouvements de jeunesse en milices.

Joseph Kanyabashi

4.1 Joseph Kanyabashi was born in 1937 in Mpare secteur, Huye commune, Butare préfecture, Rwanda.

4.2 During the events referred to in this indictment, Joseph Kanyabashi held the office of Bourgmestre of Ngoma commune in Butare préfecture from April 1974 until leaving Rwanda around 4 July 1994.

4.3 In his capacity as Bourgmestre of Ngoma commune, Butare préfecture, Joseph Kanyabashi exercised authority over his subordinates.

4. L'ACCUSÉ

Joseph Kanyabashi

4.1 Joseph Kanyabashi est né 1937, dans le secteur de Mpare, en commune d'Huye, préfecture de Butare, au Rwanda.

4.2 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation Joseph Kanyabashi exerçait les fonctions de Bourgmestre de la commune de Ngoma dans la Préfecture de Butare d'avril 1974 jusqu'à son départ du Rwanda vers le 4 juillet 1994.

4.3 Joseph Kanyabashi, en sa qualité de Bourgmestre de la commune de Ngoma, dans la Préfecture de Butare, a exercé une autorité sur ses subordonnés.

5. CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS: PREPARATION

5.1 From late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of the government, political leaders, civil servants and other personalities conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition, so that they could remain in power. The components of this plan consisted of, among other things, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. In executing the plan, they organized, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population and of moderate Hutu. Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.

5.2 In December 1993 and January 1994, UNAMIR received information detailing a plan to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

Speeches and Incitement

5.3 The incitement to ethnic hatred and violence was a fundamental part of the plan put in place. It was articulated, before and during the genocide, by elements of the FAR on the one hand, and by members of the Government and local authorities on the other.

5.4 On 4 December 1991, President

5. EXPOSÉ SUCCINCT DES FAITS :
PRÉPARATION

5.1 Dès la fin de 1990 jusqu'à juillet 1994, des militaires, des membres du gouvernement, des responsables politiques, des membres de l'administration publique et des personnalités diverses, se sont entendus entre eux et avec d'autres pour élaborer un plan dans l'intention d'exterminer la population civile Tutsi et d'éliminer des membres de l'opposition et se maintenir ainsi au pouvoir. Les éléments de ce plan comportaient, entre autres, le recours à la haine et à la violence ethnique, l'entraînement et la distribution d'armes aux miliciens ainsi que la confection de listes de personnes à éliminer. Dans l'exécution de ce plan ils ont organisé, ordonné et participé aux massacres perpétrés à l'encontre de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés. Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalom Arsène Ntahobali ont participé à l'élaboration de ce plan, y ont adhéré et l'ont exécuté.

5.2 En décembre 1993 et en janvier 1994, la MINUAR a reçu des informations qui exposaient des détails d'un plan conçu aux fins d'exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

Discours et Incitation

5.3 L'incitation à la haine et à la violence ethniques a constitué un élément essentiel du plan mis en place. Elle a été articulée, avant et durant le génocide, d'une part par des éléments des FAR, et d'autre part par des membres du gouvernement et des autorités locales.

5.4 Le 4 décembre 1991, le Président

Juvénal Habyarimana set up a military commission. The commission presided by Colonel Théoneste Bagosora was given the task of finding an answer to the following question: "What do we need to do in order to defeat the enemy militarily, in the media and politically?"

Juvénal Habyarimana met en place une commission militaire. Cette commission présidée par le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora était chargée de répondre à la question suivante: "Que faut-il faire pour vaincre l'ennemi sur le plan militaire, médiatique et politique?"

5.5 In a letter dated 21 September 1992, the General Staff of the Rwandan Army ordered that an extract from the commission report be circulated among the troops. The letter came from the office of the Chief of Intelligence (G-2), namely Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. The extract defined the main enemy as follows: "The Tutsis from inside or outside the country, who are extremists and nostalgic for power, who do not recognize and have never recognized the realities of the Social Revolution of 1959, and are seeking to regain power in Rwanda by any means, including taking up arms." The secondary enemy was defined as: "Anyone providing any kind of assistance to the main enemy". The document specified that the enemy was being recruited from within certain social groups, notably: "the Tutsis inside the country, Hutus who are dissatisfied with the present regime, foreigners married to Tutsi women...". Among the activities the enemy was accused of, the document mentioned "the diversion of national opinion from the ethnic problem to the socio-economic problem between the rich and the poor".

5.5 Dans une lettre datée du 21 septembre 1992, l'Etat-Major de l'Armée Rwandaise a ordonné la diffusion, parmi les troupes, d'un extrait du rapport produit par cette commission. Cette lettre émanait du bureau du Chef des renseignements (G-2), à savoir le Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. Ce document définissait l'ennemi principal comme étant "le Tutsi de l'intérieur ou de l'extérieur, extrémiste et nostalgique du pouvoir, qui n'a jamais reconnu et ne reconnaît pas encore les réalités de la Révolution Sociale de 1959 et qui veut reconquérir le pouvoir au Rwanda par tous les moyens, y compris les armes" et l'ennemi secondaire comme étant "toute personne qui apporte tout concours à l'ennemi principal". Le document précisait que le recrutement de l'ennemi se faisait parmi certains groupes sociaux, notamment : "...Les Tutsi de l'intérieur, les Hutu mécontents du régime en place, les étrangers mariés aux femmes Tutsi..." Parmi les activités reprochées à l'ennemi, le document mentionnait le "...Détournement de l'opinion nationale du problème ethnique vers le problème socio-économique entre les riches et les pauvres".

5.6 The document and the use made of it by the senior officers aided, encouraged and promoted ethnic hatred and violence.

5.6 Ce document et l'utilisation qu'en ont faite les officiers supérieurs ont aidé, encouragé et favorisé la haine et la violence ethniques.

5.7 The characterization of the Tutsis as the enemy and of members of the opposition as their accomplices was echoed by politicians, notably by Léon Mugesera, MRND Vice-Chairman for Gisenyi préfecture, in a speech he made on 22 November 1992. Broadcast on the state radio

5.7 La qualification des Tutsi comme étant l'ennemi et des membres de l'opposition comme étant leurs complices, a été reprise par des politiciens, notamment Léon Mugesera, Vice Président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, dans un discours prononcé le 22 novembre 1992. Diffusé sur la Radio d'Etat et and therefore reaching a much larger audience, Léon Mugesera's speech already at that time was an incitement to exterminate the Tutsi population and their "accomplices".

5.8 From April to July 1994, various prominent persons, including members of the government and local authorities propagated incitement to hatred and violence. On or about April 19, 1994, after the interim president Théodore Sindikubwabo delivered a speech in Butare encouraging people to fight the enemy, Joseph KANYABASHI, gave a speech in support of the interim president, encouraging the population to follow Sindikubwabo's instructions. Shortly thereafter, widespread attacks on Tutsis began in the area. In or around late May, 1994, on at least on one occasion, Joseph KANYABASHI drove through the town of Butare and spoke to the population through a megaphone. He encouraged the population to systematically search for the "enemy" in the commune and immediately afterwards, more Tutsis were killed in Ngoma commune. Also in or around May, 1994 Joseph KANYABASHI held at least two meetings in Cyarwa sector, Ngoma commune, at which he encouraged local residents to kill Tutsis. In the days following the meetings, Tutsis in the area were attacked.

The Militia Groups

5.9 The creation of the youth wings satisfied two of the political parties' concerns: to mobilize young people and to sensitize them to politics. The MRND and CDR followed the example of the MDR and RPF, which had already institutionalized their youth movements. Political rivalries during the multi-party period exacerbated tensions. The "Interahamwe" and "Impuzamugambi" began to be drawn astray from the time they were used to oppose with violence the political demonstrations organized by parties s'adressant ainsi à un public beaucoup plus large, le discours de Léon Mugesera, a incité, dès cette époque, à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

5.8 D'avril à juillet 1994, cette incitation à la haine et à la violence a été propagée par différentes personnalités, dont des membres du Gouvernement et des autorités locales. Vers 19 avril 1994, après l'allocution du Président par intérim, Théodore Sindikubwabo, à Butare, encourageant la population à combattre l'ennemi, Joseph KANYABASHI a fait un discours pour soutenir le Président par intérim, invitant la population à suivre les instructions de Sindikubwabo. Peu après, des attaques généralisées contre les Tutsis ont commencé dans la région. Vers fin mai 1994, Joseph KANYABASHI a fait, au moins une fois, le tour de la ville de Butare en voiture et s'est adressé à la population avec haut-parleur. Il a invité la population à traquer de manière systématique "l'ennemi" dans la commune et immédiatement après, davantage de Tutsis ont été tués dans la commune de Ngoma. Par ailleurs, vers mai 1994, Joseph KANYABASHI a organisé au moins deux réunions dans le secteur de Cyarwa, commune de Ngoma, au cours desquelles il a invité les habitants à tuer les Tutsis. Les jours qui ont suivi ces réunions, les Tutsis de la région ont été attaqués.

Les Milices

5.10 In order to ensure that, when the time came, the extermination of the enemy and its "accomplices" would be carried out swiftly and effectively, it was necessary to create a militia that was structured, armed and complementary to the Armed Forces. For the militia to be represented nationally, Interahamwe committees were created at préfecture level. This decision of the central committee of the MRND taken in June 1993 was carried out by political figures in their localities, including, among others, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko in Butare.

5.10 Afin de s'assurer qu'à terme, l'extermination de l'ennemi et de ses "complices" se ferait rapidement et efficacement, il était nécessaire de constituer une milice, structurée, armée et complémentaire aux Forces Armées. Pour donner une représentation nationale à cette milice, des comités d'Interahamwe ont été créés au niveau préfectoral. Cette décision prise par le Comité Centrale du MRND en juin 1993 a été mise en oeuvre par des personnalités politiques au niveau de leur circonscription, parmi lesquelles Pauline Nyiramasuhuko à Butare.

5.11 As from 1993, and even before that date, anxious to radicalize the Interahamwe movement, the leaders of the MRND, in collaboration with officers of the FAR, decided to provide support, military training and weapons to those members most devoted to their extremist cause and to other idle youths.

5.11 Dès 1993 et même avant, dans un souci de radicalisation du mouvement Interahamwe, les dirigeants du MRND, en collaboration avec des officiers des FAR, ont décidé d'apporter leur appui, de fournir des armes et d'assurer un entraînement militaire aux éléments les plus dévoués à leur cause extrémiste ainsi qu'à d'autres jeunes désœuvrés.

Precursors Revealing A Deliberate Course of Action

5.16 The political and ethnic violence of the early 1990s was characterized by the use of the elements of the strategy which achieved its finality in the genocide of April 1994. The massacres of the Tutsi minority at that time, including those in Kibilira (1990), in Bugesera (1992), and those of the Bagogwe (1991), were instigated, facilitated and organized by civilian and military authorities. On each occasion, a campaign of incitement to ethnic violence, conducted by local authorities, was followed by massacres of the Tutsi minority, perpetrated by groups of militiamen and civilians, armed and assisted by the same authorities and by certain military personnel. On each occasion, these crimes remained unpunished and the authorities implicated were generally not taken to task.

5.16 La violence ethnique et politique du début des années 90 a été caractérisée par l'utilisation des éléments de la stratégie qui allait connaître son aboutissement avec le génocide de 1994. Les massacres de la minorité Tutsi perpétrés à cette époque, tels que ceux à Kibilira (1990), à Bugesera (1992), et ceux à l'encontre des Bagogwe (1991) ont été suscités, facilités et organisés par des autorités civiles et militaires. À chaque occasion une campagne d'incitation à la violence ethnique menée par des autorités locales a été suivie de massacres de la minorité Tutsi, perpétrés par des groupes de miliciens et de civils, armés et aidés par ces mêmes autorités et certains militaires. À chaque occasion, ces crimes sont demeurés impunis et les autorités impliquées n'ont généralement pas été inquiétées.

5.17 Finally, as of 7 April 1994, throughout Rwanda, Tutsis and certain moderate Hutus began to flee their homes to escape the violence to which they were victims on their hills and to seek refuge in places where they had traditionally felt safe, notably churches, hospitals and other public buildings such as commune and préfecture offices. On several occasions, gathering places were indicated to them by the local authorities, who had promised to protect them. For the initial days, the refugees were protected by a few gendarmes and communal police in these various locations, but subsequently, the refugees were systematically attacked and massacred by militiamen, often assisted by the same authorities who had promised to protect the refugees. During the numerous attacks on the refugees throughout the country, personnel of the FAR, military or gendarmes, who were supposed to protect them, prevented the Tutsi from escaping and facilitated their massacre by the Interahamwe. On several occasions, these FAR personnel participated directly in the massacres.

et d'autres edifices publics comme les bureaux communaux et préfectoraux. A plusieurs occasions, des endroits de rassemblement leur avaient été indiqués par des autorités locales qui avaient promis de les protéger. Durant les premiers jours, les réfugiés ont été protégés par quelques gendarmes et policiers communaux dans ces différents endroits, mais par la suite, systématiquement, les réfugiés ont été attaqués et massacrés par des miliciens, souvent aidés par ces mêmes autorités qui avaient promis de les protéger. Au cours des nombreuses attaques menées contre les réfugiés partout à travers le pays, des membres des FAR, militaires ou gendarmes, qui devaient les protéger, ont empêché les Tutsi de fuir et facilité leur massacre par les Interahamwe. A plusieurs occasions, ces membres des FAR ont participé directement aux massacres.

Power Crisis

6.1 On 6 April 1994 at about 8:30 p.m., the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali Airport, Rwanda.

6.2 Following the crash of the President's plane, the Forces Armées Rwandaises were left without leadership. The President was dead, along with the Chief of Staff of the Rwandan Army, Colonel Déogratias Nsabimana. The Minister of Defence, Augustin Bizimana, was on mission in the Republic of Cameroon. In his absence, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora, his directeur de cabinet, asserted himself as the man of the moment capable of managing the crisis.

6.3 Within the first hours following the death of the President, two important meetings took place in Kigali where Colonel Theoneste Bagosora and several Army officers attempted to seize power. During this period Colonel Theoneste Bagosora openly opposed any consultation with the Prime Minister, Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.4 Indeed while the meeting of April 7th was going on, Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana was tracked down, arrested, sexually assaulted and killed by Rwandan Army personnel, more specifically, members of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion and the Reconnaissance Battalion. Concurrently, members of the same units arrested, confined and killed important opposition leaders. That same morning, ten Belgian para-commandos from UNAMIR

6.1 Au soir du 6 avril 1994 vers 20:30 heures, l'avion transportant entre autres passagers le Président de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, a été abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali, Rwanda.

6.2 Après la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les Forces Armées Rwandaises se sont retrouvées sans direction. Le Président était mort ainsi que le chef d'Etat-Major (AR), le Colonel Déogratias Nsabimana. Le Ministre de la Défense, Augustin Bizimana était en mission en République du Cameroun. En son absence, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora, son directeur de cabinet, s'est imposé comme l'homme de la situation à même de gérer la crise.

6.3 Au cours des premières heures qui ont suivi la mort du Président, deux réunions importantes ont eu lieu à Kigali, au cours desquelles le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora et plusieurs officiers de l'armée ont tenté de prendre le pouvoir. Au cours de cette période, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora s'est opposé ouvertement à toute consultation avec le premier ministre Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.4 De fait, pendant que se déroulait la réunion du 7 Avril, le Premier Ministre, Madame Agathe Uwilingiyimana était traquée, arrêtée, agressée sexuellement et tuée par des membres de l'Armée Rwandaise, plus particulièrement ceux de la Garde Présidentielle, du bataillon Para-Commando et du bataillon de Reconnaissance. Parallèlement à cet assassinat, des membres de ces mêmes unités ont arrêté, séquestré et tué des leaders importants de l'opposition.

who had been dispatched to residence of the Prime Minister were brutally murdered at Kigali military camp.

Dans la même matinée, 10 Para-Commandos belges de la MINUAR qui avaient été envoyés à la résidence du Premier Ministre étaient assassinés au camp militaire de Kigali.

6.5 The elimination of political opponents made it possible to set aside the establishment of the Gouvernement de Transition à Base Élargie (GTBE), stipulated in the Arusha Accords, in favour of an Interim Government. The murder of the Belgian soldiers prompted the withdrawal of most of UNAMIR's contingents. Those two events removed the two major obstacles to the pursuit of the massacres.

6.5 L'élimination des opposants politiques a permis d'écarter la mise en place du Gouvernement de Transition à Base Élargie (G.T.B.E.), prévue aux Accords d'Arusha, au profit d'un Gouvernement Intérimaire. L'assassinat des militaires belges a provoqué le retrait de la majeure partie des contingents de la MINUAR. Ces deux événements ont écarté les deux obstacles majeurs à la poursuite des massacres.

Formation of the Interim Government

Formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire

6.6 Making up for the failure of the attempt at a military takeover by certain military personnel, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora and the leaders of the MRND and set up an Interim Government which would aid and abet the continuation of the massacres. The members of the Government were appointed at a meeting held on April 8th. Colonel Théoneste Bagosora then introduced, on that day, the individuals chosen to constitute the Interim Government to the military crisis committee. They were almost all members of the MRND and of "Power" wings of the other political parties. No one of Tutsi descent was included either in the talks or in the new Government.

6.6 Faisant face à l'échec de la tentative de prise du pouvoir par certains militaires, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora et les dirigeants du MRND ont formé un Gouvernement Intérimaire qui allait aider et encourager la continuation des massacres. Les membres du Gouvernement ont été désignés lors de la réunion tenue le 8 Avril. Le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora a ensuite présenté au comité militaire de crise, le même jour, les personnes choisies pour composer le Gouvernement Intérimaire. Ces personnes étaient presque toutes issues du MRND et des ailes dites "power" des autres partis politiques. Aucune personnalité d'origine Tutsi n'a été associée aux discussions ou n'a fait partie du nouveau gouvernement.

6.7 Jean Kambanda was appointed Prime Minister of the Interim Government of Rwanda formed on 8 April 1994. The Government was officially sworn in on 9 April 1994. It was composed of 19 cabinet ministers among them André Rwamakuba and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

6.7 Jean Kambanda a été désigné Premier Ministre du Gouvernement Intérimaire de la République Rwandaise constitué le 8 avril 1994. Le Gouvernement a officiellement prêté serment le 9 avril 1994. Il comptait 19 ministres dont André Rwamakuba et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

Perpetration of the Massacres

6.8 As of the night of 6 to 7 April, in the capital, elements of the Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion set up roadblocks, on the major roads, controlling people's movements. Militiamen soon joined them or set up their own roadblocks. At these places tutsis or people thought to be tutsis were summarily executed. Concurrently, groups of soldiers and militiamen scoured the city and murdered civilians.

6.9 As from 7 April 1994, massacres of the Tutsi population and the murder of numerous political opponents were perpetrated throughout the territory of Rwanda. These crimes, which had been planned and prepared for a long time by prominent civilian and military figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, were carried out by militiamen, military personnel and gendarmes on the orders and directives of some of these authorities, sometimes by means of pre-established lists. In Butare préfecture, apart from a few exceptions as Nyakizu commune, the massacres did not start until the 19th of April 1994.

INTERIM GOVERNMENT

6.10 As soon as the Interim Government was formed, numerous Cabinet members supported the plan of extermination in place and took the necessary steps to execute it. They incited the people to eliminate "the enemy and its accomplices", distributed weapons to them, dismissed local government authorities who were opposed to the massacres, replacing them with others who were devoted to the cause, and adopted directives intended to facilitate the massacre of the civilian Tutsi population.

6.8 Dès la nuit du 6 au 7 avril, dans la capitale, des éléments de la Garde Présidentielle et du bataillon Para-Commando ont érigé des barrages, sur les principaux axes routiers, contrôlant le déplacement de la population. Des miliciens se sont par la suite joints à eux ou ont érigé leurs propres barrages. À ces endroits, des Tutsi ou des personnes considérées comme telles étaient sommairement exécutées. Parallèlement, des groupes de militaires et de miliciens ont sillonné la ville et se sont livrés à des assassinats de civils.

6.9 À partir du 7 avril 1994, des massacres de la population Tutsi et l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques ont été commis sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes planifiés et préparés de longue date par des personnalités civiles et militaires partageant l'idéologie hutu extrémiste ont été perpétrés par des miliciens, des militaires et des gendarmes suivant les ordres et les directives de certaines de ces autorités, parfois à l'aide de listes pré-établies. Dans la préfecture de Butare, à quelques rares exceptions dont la commune de Nyakizu, les massacres ne débutèrent qu'après le 19 Avril 1994.

GOUVERNEMENT INTERIMAIRE

6.10 Dès la formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire, plusieurs membres du Cabinet ont adhéré au plan d'extermination mis en place et pris les moyens nécessaires pour l'exécuter. Ils ont incité la population à éliminer "l'ennemi et ses complices", lui ont distribué des armes. Ils ont révoqué des autorités administratives locales opposées aux massacres pour les remplacer par d'autres acquises à la cause et ont adopté des directives visant à faciliter les massacres de la population civile Tutsi.

6.11 Already, on 8 April, the new Government summoned all the préfets to a meeting in Kigali for the purpose of assessing the situation in the country at the time. The emergency meeting was held on 11 April 1994 and recorded the participation of all the Government ministers and all the préfets, except those of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyarimana, of Ruhengeri, and Cyangugu. At this meeting, the situation as regards the massacres in each préfecture was analyzed.

6.11 Dès le 8 avril, le nouveau Gouvernement a convoqué tous les préfets pour une réunion à Kigali, dans le but d'évaluer la situation qui prévalait dans le pays. Cette réunion de crise tenue le 11 avril 1994, a enregistré la participation de tous les ministres, et celle de tous les préfets, exception faite de ceux de Butare. Jean Baptiste Habyarimana, de Ruhengeri, et de Cyangugu. Lors de cette réunion, la situation des massacres dans chaque préfecture a été analysée.

6.12 Rather than to take immediate action to put an end to the massacres, on 17 April, the Interim Government dismissed several authorities, among them the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, for their refusal to take part in the massacres so that the killings could spread to the country as a whole.

6.12 Le 17 avril, au lieu de prendre des mesures immédiates pour mettre fin aux massacres, le gouvernement intérimaire a plutôt limogé plusieurs responsables, dont le préfet de Butare Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, parce qu'ils avaient refusé de prendre part aux massacres et ce afin que les tueries s'étendent à l'ensemble du pays.

6.13 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held successively in Kigali, Gitarama and Gisenyi. During this period, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, and Ministers including André Rwamakuba et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko were regularly briefed on the situation in regard to the massacres of the civilian population. On several occasions during these meetings, the Ministers demanded weapons to distribute in their respective home préfectures, knowing that the weapons would be used in the massacres.

6.13 Entre le 9 avril et 14 juillet 1994, de nombreuses réunions du Conseil des Ministres se sont tenues successivement à Kigali, Gitarama et Gisenyi. Durant cette période le Premier Ministre, Jean Kambanda, les Ministres, dont André Rwamakuba et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, étaient régulièrement tenus informés de la situation des massacres de la population civile. À plusieurs occasions lors de ces réunions, les Ministres ont exigé des armes pour les distribuer dans leur préfecture d'origine, sachant qu'elles seraient utilisées dans les massacres.

6.14 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, during these numerous Cabinet meetings, the Interim Government adopted directives and gave instructions to the préfets and the bourgmestres. The decisions, which were then passed on to the general public, were intended to incite, aid and abet the perpetration of the massacres. In order to ensure that the directives and instructions were carried out, Jean Kambanda's Interim Government designated a Minister for each

6.14 Entre le 9 avril et le 14 juillet 1994, au cours de ces nombreuses réunions du Conseil des Ministres, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives et donné des instructions aux préfets et aux bourgmestres. Ces décisions, répercutées à la population, visaient à inciter, encourager et aider à commettre les massacres. responsable de ce qu'on appelait la pacification. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko devait assumer cette mission à Butare.

6.15 On 27 April 1994, the Interim Government ordered roadblocks to be set up, knowing that the roadblocks were being used to identify the Tutsi and their "accomplices" for the purpose of eliminating them.

6.15 Le 27 avril 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a ordonné l'érection de barrages routiers, sachant que ceux-ci étaient utilisés pour identifier les Tutsi et leurs "complices", afin de les éliminer.

6.16 On 25 May 1994, the Interim Government adopted directives concerning the civil self-defence program. Its purpose was to legalize the distribution of weapons to the militiamen on the one hand and to legitimize the massacres of the civilian population on the other. As part of the civil self-defence program, the Interim Government, by ministerial decision, appointed several military officers to lead "self defence committees" established in each préfecture. Some of these officers took an active part in the massacres, including Alphonse Nteziryayo in Butare.

6.16 Le 25 mai 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives pour le programme d'auto-défense civile. Ce programme visait à légaliser d'une part la distribution des armes aux miliciens et d'autre part à légitimer les massacres de la population civile. Dans le cadre du programme d'auto-défense civile, le Gouvernement Intérimaire, par décision ministérielle, a nommé plusieurs officiers militaires pour diriger des "Comités d'auto défense" installés dans chaque préfecture. Certains de ces officiers, tels qu'Alphonse Nteziryayo à Butare, ont participé activement aux massacres.

EXTENSION OF THE MASSACRES

ÉTENDUE DES MASSACRES 119

6.17 The massacres of members of the Tutsi population and the murder of the moderate Hutu extended throughout the territory of Rwanda. In every préfecture, local civil and military authorities and militiamen espoused the plan of extermination and followed the directives and orders in order to execute it. They called on the civilian population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices". They distributed weapons to civilians and militiamen. They gave orders to commit, aided, abetted and participated in the massacres.

6.17 Les massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et les assassinats des Hutu modérés se sont étendus sur l'ensemble du territoire du Rwanda. Dans chaque préfecture, des autorités locales, civiles et militaires et des miliciens ont adhéré au plan d'extermination et ont suivi les directives et les ordres afin de l'exécuter. Ils ont appelé la population civile à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices". Ils ont distribué des armes à des civils et des miliciens. Ils ont ordonné, encouragé, aidé et participé aux massacres.

6.18 From April to July 1994, in all the regions of the country, members of the Tutsi population who were fleeing from the massacres on their hills sought refuge in locations they thought would be safe, often on the recommendation of the local civil and military authorities. In numerous of these places, despite the promise that they would be protected by the local civil and military authorities, the refugees were attacked, abducted and massacred, often on the orders or with the complicity of those same authorities.

6.18 D'avril à juillet 1994, dans toutes les régions du pays, des membres de la population Tutsi qui fuyaient les massacres sur leurs collines ont cherché refuge dans des endroits qu'ils croyaient sûrs, souvent sur recommandation des autorités locales, civiles et militaires. Dans plusieurs de ces endroits, malgré la promesse qu'ils seraient protégés par les autorités locales, civiles et militaires, les réfugiés ont été attaqués, enlevés et massacrés, souvent sur les ordres ou avec la complicité de ces mêmes autorités.

6.19 Three important factors delayed the start of the massacres in Butare préfecture. Historically, this préfecture had a large Tutsi population living in harmony with the Hutu majority. Since the inception of the multiparty system, the Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominated the political scene in Butare and the Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) played a lesser role in that area than elsewhere in the country. Hence, the Interahamwe organizational structure was less elaborate and its membership was smaller. Furthermore, the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana (PSD), the only Préfet of Tutsi descent in the country, had openly opposed the massacres in his préfecture, where he had succeeded in maintaining calm, with a few exceptions, notably Nyakizu commune. Thus, thousands of people, the majority of whom were Tutsi, came from other préfectures to seek refuge in Butare in the days which immediately followed the start of the massacres.

6.19 Trois facteurs importants ont retardé le début des massacres dans la préfecture de Butare. Historiquement, cette préfecture comptait une forte représentation de la population Tutsi qui y cohabitait paisiblement avec la majorité Hutu. Depuis le multipartisme, le Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominait la scène politique à Butare, le Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) y jouant un rôle moins important par rapport au reste du pays. Ainsi, la structure organisationnelle des Interahamwe y était moins élaborée et ses adhérents moins nombreux. En outre, le Préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, (PSD), seul préfet

d'origine Tutsi dans le pays, s'était ouvertement opposé aux massacres dans sa préfecture et avait réussi à y maintenir le calme, à quelques exceptions près, parmi lesquelles, la commune de Nyakizu. Aussi, des milliers de personnes, en majorité Tutsi, venues d'autres préfectures, avaient cherché refuge à Butare dès les premiers jours qui ont suivi le début des massacres.

6.20 The country's civil and military leaders became aware of the exceptional situation in Butare. Thus, the Interim Government, of which Pauline Nyaramasuhuko was a member, removed Préfet Habyalimana from office, and incited the people to get involved in the massacres. Préfet Habyalimana was subsequently arrested and was never seen again. Moreover, elements of the Army and Interahamwe militiamen were sent to Butare as reinforcements to start the massacres.

6.20 Les dirigeants civils et militaires du pays ont pris conscience de la situation particulière qui régnait à Butare. Ainsi le Gouvernement Intérimaire, dont Pauline Nyaramasuhuko était membre, a révoqué le Préfet Habyalimana et a incité les populations à s'impliquer dans les massacres. Par la suite, le Préfet Habyalimana a été arrêté et n'a jamais été revu depuis. En outre, des éléments de l'armée et des miliciens Interahamwe ont été envoyés en renfort pour commencer les massacres.

6.21 On 19 April 1994, the swearing-in ceremony in Butare for the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, was the occasion of a large gathering, which had been announced and organized by the Interim Government. On that occasion, President Théodore Sindikubwabo made an inflammatory speech, openly and explicitly calling on the people of Butare to follow the example of the other préfectures and begin the massacres. He violently denounced the "banyira ntibindeba", meaning those who did not feel concerned. He asked them to "get out of the way" and "let us work". Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, who subsequently took the floor, did not contradict the President of the Republic.

6.21 Le 19 avril 1994, la cérémonie d'investiture du nouveau Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, à Butare, a donné lieu à un grand rassemblement annoncé et organisé par le Gouvernement Intérimaire. À cette occasion, le Président Théodore Sindikubwabo a prononcé un discours incendiaire, appelant ouvertement et explicitement la population de Butare à suivre l'exemple des autres préfectures et à commencer les massacres. Il a violemment dénoncé les "Banyira Ntibindeba", autrement dit ceux qui ne se sentent pas concernés. Il leur a demandé "qu'ils cèdent la place" et "qu'ils nous laissent travailler". Le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda a ensuite pris la parole et n'a pas contredit le Président de la République.

6.22 Because they were present at the ceremony and did not dissociate themselves from the statements made by the President of the Republic, the members of the Government, including Jean Kambanda and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, prominent politicians such as Edouard Karemera, and several bourgmestres, including Joseph Kanyabashi, gave a clear signal to the people that the massacres were ordered and condoned by the Government. Further, Joseph Kanyabashi, as the dean of the bourgmestres of Butare, in the presence of the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, made a speech in support of the President of the Republic, assuring him that his instructions would be heeded. Shortly thereafter, the massacres of Tutsis began in the préfecture.

6.23 The next day, two military planes landed in Butare with numerous Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion soldiers on board. These soldiers, in tandem with the Interahamwe of Butare, took part in murdering and massacring civilians, notably the former Queen of Rwanda, Rosalie Gicanda, a historical symbol for all Tutsi.

6.24 In the days which followed the unleashing of the massacres, Interahamwe from outside the préfecture, notably from Kigali and Gitarama, came in to reinforce their fellow militiamen in Butare in perpetrating the massacres. This included a detachment of Interahamwe which was accompanying their Chairman, Robert Kajuga.

6.25 On 20 April 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko asked the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, for military assistance to proceed with the massacres in her home commune, Ngoma. Sylvain Nsabimana agreed to her request and ordered the military authorities to provide her the necessary reinforcements.

6.26 Following 20 April and the start of the massacres, civil servants and political appointees who did not approve or participate with enough zeal in the killings of Tutsis, were dismissed by the authorities. Joseph Kanyabashi and Sylvain Nsabimana were bourgmestres dont Joseph Kanyabashi, ont clairement indiqué à la population que les massacres étaient ordonnés et cautionnés par le Gouvernement. D'ailleurs, Joseph Kanyabashi, en sa qualité de doyen des bourgmestres de Butare et en présence du nouveau Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, a prononcé un discours pour soutenir le Président de la République et l'assurer que ses instructions seraient suivies. Peu après, les massacres de Tutsi ont commencé dans la préfecture.

6.25 Le 20 avril 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko a demandé au nouveau préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, de lui fournir une assistance militaire pour procéder aux massacres dans sa commune d'origine, Ngoma. Sylvain Nsabimana a acquiescé à sa demande et a ordonné aux autorités militaires de lui fournir les renforts nécessaires.

6.26 Après le 20 avril et le début des massacres, les fonctionnaires et les responsables politiques qui n'approuvaient pas les tueries de Tutsi ou qui n'y participaient pas avec suffisamment de zèle ont été limogés par les autorités. Joseph responsible for such dismissal.

6.27 From 20 April, the massacres became widespread within the préfecture. As in all the regions of the country throughout this period, Tutsis were killed where they had sought refuge thinking that the authorities would protect them.

6.28 In Ngoma commune, Joseph Kanyabashi, meeting the commitment he had made on the occasion of President Théodore Sindikubwabo's speech, took the necessary measures for the Tutsi to be eliminated.

Ngoma commune

6.29 Ngoma commune was the largest commune in Butare préfecture at the time of the events. Its Bourgemestre, Joseph Kanyabashi, had been named in 1974. Ngoma commune was the site of numerous massacres, in which Joseph Kanyabashi was either directly involved or in which his subordinates as set out in paragraph 6.32 below, acting under his orders, were implicated.

6.30 Around late April 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi removed certain conseillers de secteur in his commune and replaced them with people who were known to have taken part in, or to have shown approval of, the murdering of Tutsi.

6.31 In Butare préfecture between March and June 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi facilitated and assisted the military training of certain members of the population in Ngoma commune.

Kanyabashi et Sylvain Nsabimana étaient responsables de tels limogeages.

6.27 À partir du 20 avril, les massacres se sont propagés dans la préfecture. Comme dans toutes les régions du pays pendant cette période, les Tutsi ont été tués là où ils avaient cherché refuge en espérant qu'ils seraient protégés par les autorités.

6.28 Dans la commune de Ngoma, Joseph Kanyabashi, conformément à l'engagement qu'il avait pris lors du discours prononcé par le Président Théodore Sindikubwabo, a pris les mesures nécessaires pour que les Tutsi soient éliminés.

Commune de Ngoma

6.29 La commune de Ngoma était la plus grande de la préfecture de Butare au moment des événements. Son bourgemestre, Joseph Kanyabashi, avait été nommé en 1974. De nombreux massacres ont eu lieu dans la commune de Ngoma, dans lesquels Joseph Kanyabashi a été impliqué soit directement, soit en raison de la participation de ses subordonnés, agissant sous ses ordres, comme stipulé dans l'article 6.32 ci-dessous mentionné.

6.30 Vers la fin avril 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi a remplacé des conseillers de secteur de sa commune par des personnes connues pour avoir participé aux meurtres de Tutsi ou s'y être montrés favorables.

6.31 Entre mars et juin 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi a aidé et facilité l'entraînement militaire de certains membres de la population, dans la commune de Ngoma.

Kabakobwa Cellule

6.32 On 21 and 22 April 1994, Tutsis who were fleeing the massacres took refuge in a pasture in Kabakobwa cellule, on the orders of Joseph Kanyabashi, who had promised to protect them. Joseph Kanyabashi subsequently ordered his subordinates, notably conseillers de secteur and communal policemen, on the one hand, and asked certain members of the Hutu population, on the other hand, to go to Kabakobwa cellule to eliminate the refugees.

6.33 On 22 April 1994, at around 4:00pm the communal policemen and conseillers de secteur, assisted by Hutu peasant farmers and by militiamen, attacked the refugees. Subsequently, Joseph Kanyabashi called in reinforcements from the Presidential Guard. On their arrival, they took part in the attacks.

Matyazo Clinic

6.34 In late April 1994, Tutsi who were fleeing the massacres found refuge at the Matyazo clinic in Ngoma commune. Following an initial attack by soldiers and militiamen, Joseph Kanyabashi went to the clinic and asked the Tutsi refugees to remain there for their own safety. Shortly thereafter, Joseph Kanyabashi ordered soldiers to open fire on the refugees. Several people were killed.

Ngoma Church

6.35 In late April 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi held a meeting at Ngoma parish to assure the population that there would be no more massacres. Tutsi who were fleeing the killings, among whom were survivors from the massacre at Matyazo clinic, sought refuge in the Ngoma parish church. The morning of 30 April 1994, a group of soldiers and numerous Interahamwe armed with

Cellule de Kabakobwa

6.32 Le 21 et le 22 avril 1994, des Tutsi qui fuyaient les massacres ont cherché refuge dans un pâturage situé dans la cellule de Kabakobwa, sur ordre de Joseph Kanyabashi, qui avait promis de les protéger. Joseph Kanyabashi a, par la suite, d'une part, ordonné à ses subordonnés, notamment des conseillers de secteurs et des policiers communaux, et a, d'autre part, demandé à certains membres de la population Hutu de se rendre à la cellule de Kabakobwa pour éliminer les réfugiés.

6.33 Le 22 avril 1994, vers 16:00heures ces policiers communaux, conseillers de secteur, aidés de paysans Hutu et de miliciens, ont attaqué les réfugiés. Ensuite, des éléments de la Garde Présidentielle ont été appelés en renfort par Joseph Kanyabashi. À leur arrivée, ils ont participé aux attaques.

Dispensaire de Matyazo

6.34 Vers la fin avril 1994, des Tutsi qui fuyaient les massacres ont trouvé refuge au dispensaire de Matyazo dans la commune Ngoma. Après une première attaque menée par des militaires et des miliciens, Joseph Kanyabashi s'est rendu au dispensaire et a demandé aux Tutsi réfugiés d'y rester pour leur propre sécurité. Peu après, Joseph Kanyabashi a ordonné à des militaires de tirer sur eux. Plusieurs personnes ont été tuées.

Église de Ngoma

6.35 Vers la fin avril 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi a tenu une réunion à la paroisse de Ngoma pour assurer la population qu'il n'y aurait plus de massacres. Des Tutsi qui fuyaient les tueries, parmi lesquels des rescapés du massacre du dispensaire de Matyazo ont cherché refuge à l'église de la paroisse de Ngoma. Le matin du 30 avril 1994, un groupe de soldats et de nombreux traditional weapons such as machetes and clubs, arrived at the parish. The refugees left the church after the soldiers had promised them that they would be taken to a camp where they would be safe. On the way, once the refugees were behind the parish, on the sports field beside the church, the Interahamwe attacked and massacred them.

Interahamwe munis d'armes traditionnelles, telles que des machettes et des gourdins, sont arrivés à la paroisse. Les soldats ont fait sortir les réfugiés de l'église en leur promettant qu'on allait les amener dans un camp où ils seraient en sécurité. En cours de route, quand les réfugiés sont arrivés derrière la paroisse et sur le terrain de sport adjacent à l'église, les Interahamwe les ont attaqués et massacrés.

Butare University Hospital

Hôpital Universitaire de Butare

6.36 In late April 1994, numerous Tutsi went to the Butare university hospital to seek refuge or to receive treatment for their wounds. On several occasions, various authorities demanded that the refugees and patients identify themselves. Those identified as being Tutsi were killed on the spot or abducted and executed elsewhere.

6.36 Vers la fin du mois d'avril, plusieurs Tutsi se sont rendus à l'hôpital universitaire de Butare pour y chercher refuge ou faire soigner leurs blessures. À plusieurs reprises, différentes autorités ont exigé que les réfugiés et les patients déclinent leur identité. Les Tutsi ainsi identifiés ont soit été tués sur place soit été enlevés pour être exécutés ailleurs.

6.37 In early May 1994, Hutu from the region of Mare went to the hospital to get Tutsis from their region and take them home. Joseph Kanyabashi was present at the time. In view of the Tutsi refugees' fear of returning to their region, Joseph Kanyabashi promised to protect them and provide them with a military escort. Joseph Kanyabashi left the hospital leading the convoy of refugees, who were killed on the way instead of being escorted to their home region.

6.37 Au début mai 1994, des Hutu de la région de Mare se sont rendus à l'hôpital universitaire de Butare pour chercher des Tutsi de leur région, et les ramener chez eux. Joseph Kanyabashi était présent sur les lieux. Devant la crainte des réfugiés Tutsi de retourner dans leur région, Joseph Kanyabashi leur a promis de les protéger et de leur fournir une escorte militaire pour les raccompagner. Joseph Kanyabashi a quitté l'hôpital à la tête du convoi de ces réfugiés qui ont été tués, au lieu d'être escorté jusqu'à chez eux.

6.38 On 15 May 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi and soldiers checked the identity cards of the hospital patients in order to identify the Tutsi. These people were abducted by the soldiers in the presence of Joseph Kanyabashi. They were subsequently killed.

6.38 Le 15 mai 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi et des militaires ont vérifié les cartes d'identité des patients de cet hôpital, dans le but de sélectionner les Tutsi. Ces personnes ont été enlevées par les militaires, en présence de Joseph Kanyabashi. Elles ont ensuite été tuées.

Préfecture Offices

Bureau Préfectoral

6.40 The préfecture office of Butare was at the time of the events, located in Butare town itself. As early as 7 April 1994, numerous members of the Tutsi population sought refuge at the préfecture office. From 19 April to July 1994, Interahamwe militiamen and soldiers, sometimes under the supervision of Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalome Ntahobali took advantage of this and repeatedly went to the préfecture office to attack, kidnap and kill the refugees. Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, although aware of these attacks, did nothing to put a definite end to them.

6.40 À l'époque des événements, le Bureau Préfectoral de Butare était situé dans la ville même de Butare. Dès le 7 avril 1994, plusieurs membres de la population Tutsi ont cherché refuge dans l'enceinte du bureau de la Préfecture. À partir du 19 avril jusqu'en juillet 1994, profitant de cette situation, des miliciens Interahamwe et des militaires, parfois sous la supervision de Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalome Ntahobali, se sont rendus à plusieurs reprises à cet endroit pour attaquer, enlever et tuer les réfugiés. Le préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, bien qu'au courant de ces attaques, n'a rien fait pour y mettre un terme définitif.

6.41 Between mid-May and mid-June 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi and Sylvain Nsabimana gave the order that refugees at the préfecture offices be transferred to Nyaruhengeri commune, and notably to Nyange secteur. Thus, on their orders, the refugees were transported to Nyange in ONATRACOM buses, where they were then attacked by individuals armed with traditional weapons. Many of them were killed, while some of the survivors returned to the préfecture offices. During the weeks that followed, Joseph Kanyabashi and soldiers selected refugees and forcibly led them to the woods neighbouring the Ecole Evangéliste du Rwanda (E.E.R.). Some of them were never seen again.

6.41 Entre la mi-mai et la mi-juin 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi et Sylvain Nsabimana ont ordonné que des réfugiés du bureau préfectoral soient transférés à la commune de Nyaruhengeri, et notamment dans le secteur de Nyange. Ainsi sur leurs ordres, les réfugiés ont été transportés à Nyange, dans des autobus de l'ONATRACOM. Ils ont ensuite été attaqués par des individus munis d'armes traditionnelles. Plusieurs d'entre eux ont été tués. Certains rescapés sont retournés au bureau préfectoral. Au cours des semaines qui ont suivi, Joseph Kanyabashi et des militaires ont sélectionné des réfugiés et les ont amenés de force dans la forêt avoisinante de l'E.E.R. (Ecole Evangéliste du Rwanda). Certains d'entre eux n'ont jamais été revus.

enclosure. In the weeks that followed, the refugees were deprived of food and were beaten. Some of them died, while those who remained were freed in early July 1994.

6.43 The préfecture office was also the location where meetings were held between some of the main authorities of the préfecture and their subordinates. At one such meeting in June 1994 Joseph Kanyabashi went to the préfecture office and met with Sylvain Nsabimana. At that time Joseph Kanyabashi told the Préfet that the Tutsi refugees at the préfecture had to be exterminated.

6.44 From 20 April to the end of June 1994, President Theodore Sindikubwabo, Ministers Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Andre Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana and Joseph Kanyabashi met and discussed, among other subjects, the evolution of the massacres in Butare. Upon seeing the remaining refugees at the préfecture office, several of these authorities publicly and directly called for the elimination of these survivors.

6.45 Furthermore, on several occasions between 20 April and June 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi encouraged and instructed the soldiers and militiamen, and certain members of the civilian population, to search for the Tutsis who had escaped the massacres, in order to exterminate them. These instructions were given notably on 21 April in Butare, in late April in Save, and in June 1994 near Butare

6.46 The entire préfecture of Butare was the scene of massacres of the Tutsi population involving Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalome Ntahobali, as was Joseph Kanyabashi in the area of endroit clôturé. Durant les semaines qui ont suivi, les réfugiés ont été privés de nourriture et battus. Certains ont péri, les autres ont été libéré au début juillet 1994.

6.43 Le bureau préfectoral était aussi le lieu où se tenaient des réunions entre certains des principaux responsables de la préfecture et leurs subordonnés. A l'occasion de l'une de ces réunions, en juin 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi, s'est rendu au bureau préfectoral où il a rencontré Sylvain Nsabimana. A ce moment là, Joseph Kanyabashi a dit au préfet que tous les Tutsi réfugiés à la préfecture devaient être exterminés.

6.44 Du 20 avril à la fin juin 1994, le président Théodore Sindikubwabo, les ministres Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana et Joseph Kanyabashi se sont rencontrés et ont discuté, entre autres sujets, de l'évolution des massacres à Butare. À la vue des réfugiés qui restaient encore au bureau de la préfecture, plusieurs de ces autorités ont appelé publiquement et directement à l'élimination de ces survivants.

6.45 De plus, à plusieurs occasions entre le 20 avril et le mois de juin 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi a encouragé et donné des instructions aux militaires et aux miliciens, de même qu'à certains membres de la population civile, de rechercher les Tutsi qui avaient échappé aux massacres pour les exterminer. Ces instructions ont été données notamment le 21 avril à Butare, à la fin avril à Save et en juin 1994 près du marché de Butare.

Muganza commune and Kabuye Hill

Commune de Muganza et la colline de Kabuye

6.47 Kabuye hill is located in President Sindikubwabo's home commune of Ndora, very near Muganza commune, of which Elie Ndayambaje, an influential MRND party member, was Bourgmestre from 1983 to 1992. From 19 April to 20 June 1994, Elie Ndayambaje became the de facto Bourgmestre in order to see through the massacres in the region.

6.47 La colline de Kabuye est située à Ndora, commune d'origine du Président Sindikubwabo, tout près de la commune de Muganza, dont Elie Ndayambaje, du parti MRND, a été bourgmestre de 1983 à 1992. Du 19 avril au 20 juin 1994, Elie Ndayambaje a assumé de fait les fonctions de bourgmestre pour mener à bien les massacres dans la région.

6.48 Between 22 and 24 April 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompanied by communal policemen, gendarmes, soldiers and civilians armed with traditional tools and weapons, attacked the Tutsi refugees who had gathered at Kabuye on his order. Numerous Tutsis were killed or wounded. During the night, armed civilians surrounded the survivors and prevented them from escaping.

6.48 Entre le 22 et le 24 avril 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompagné de policiers communaux, de gendarmes, de militaires et de civils munis d'armes et d'outils traditionnels, ont attaqué les réfugiés Tutsi qui avaient été regroupés à Kabuye sur son ordre. De nombreux Tutsi ont été tués ou blessés. Pendant la nuit, des civils armés ont encerclé les survivants et les ont empêchés de s'échapper.

6.49 In May 1994, Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, accompanied by Minister Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, visited Ndora commune. Among others, they met the Bourgmestre who had imprisoned people who had perpetrated killings in the commune's jail. After consulting Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Jean Kambanda had the prisoners released. A few days later, the Bourgmestre of Ndora was removed from office.

6.49 En mai 1994, le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda, accompagné du Ministre Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, a visité la commune de Ndora. Ils y ont rencontré, entre autres, le bourgmestre qui avait emprisonné au cachot communal des individus qui s'étaient livrés à des tueries. Après consultation avec Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Jean Kambanda a fait libérer ces prisonniers. Quelques jours après le bourgmestre de Ndora a été démis de ses fonctions.

6.50 In June 1994, while the massacres were continuing in the region, Jean Kambanda visited Muganza commune and met with Elie Ndayambaje, among others. By his presence and by not denouncing the massacres he observed, Jean Kambanda confirmed in the eyes of the people that the killings were condoned by the Government. Furthermore, on 20 June 1994, the Interim Government led by Jean Kambanda appointed Elie Ndayambaje Bourgmestre of Muganza despite

Nyakizu commune

Commune de Nyakizu

6.51 In the week following the death of President Habyarimana, Ladislas Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre of Nyakizu commune and chairman of the MRND for Nyakizu, made a speech calling on the civilians to eliminate all the Tutsi in the secteur.

6.51 Dans la semaine qui a suivi la mort du Président Habyarimana, Ladislas Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre et président du parti MRND de la commune de Nyakizu a fait un discours appelant les civils à éliminer tous les Tutsi du secteur.

6.52 On 15 April, after having distributed weapons, Ladislas Ntaganzwa ordered, supervised and participated in an attack on Tutsi refugees at Cyahinda parish, perpetrated by civilians, communal police and gendarmes. On 18 April, after a visit from President Théodore Sindikubwabo, who incited the inhabitants to exterminate the refugees at Cyahinda parish, Ladislas Ntaganzwa ordered and led the massacre of those who had survived the first attack.

6.52 Le 15 avril après avoir distribué des armes, Ladislas Ntaganzwa a ordonné, supervisé et participé à une attaque perpétrée par des civils, des policiers communaux et des gendarmes, contre des Tutsi réfugiés dans la paroisse de Cyahinda. Le 18 avril, après une visite du président Théodore Sindikubwabo au cours de laquelle il a incité les habitants à exterminer les personnes réfugiées dans la paroisse de Cyahinda, Ladislas Ntaganzwa a ordonné et dirigé le massacre de ceux qui avaient survécu à la première attaque.

6.53 The search for and elimination of Tutsis also took place throughout the entire préfecture between April and July 1994. During this period Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsene Shalome Ntahobali used a roadblock located in front of their house to identify and kill Tutsis. Arsene Shalome Ntahobali also traveled throughout the préfecture to locate and kill Tutsis. In May and June Alphonse Nteziryayo ordered militiamen to seek out and kill Tutsis.

6.53 La recherche et l'élimination des Tutsi a également eu lieu à travers toute la préfecture entre avril et juillet 1994. Au cours de cette période, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali ont utilisé un barrage situé devant leur maison pour identifier et tuer des Tutsi. Arsène Shalom Ntahobali s'est également déplacé à travers toute la préfecture pour localiser et tuer les Tutsi.

6.54 Par ailleurs, outre les sévices infligés à des membres de la population Tutsi durant cette période, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, assisté de complices inconnus, a participé à l'enlèvement et au viol de femmes Tutsi

6.55 As well, between April and June 1994, Elie Ndayambaje assisted Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defense for Butare préfecture, in supervising the training of militiamen and furthermore distributed weapons to them.

6.55 De même, entre avril et juin 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, a assisté le Colonel Aiphonse Nteziryayo, responsable de la défense civile pour la préfecture de Butare, dans la supervision de l'entraînement des miliciens à qui il a par ailleurs distribué des armes.

6.56 In mid-June 1994 Alphonse Nteziryayo and Arsene Shalome Ntahobali together attempted to prevent the evacuation of from Butare of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. Overcoming the opposition of Red Cross International personnel and local authorities they selected about 40 adults whom they believed to be Tutsi and forced them to remain in Rwanda.

6.57 In May and June 1994, Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, who was staying at the same hotel as Robert Kajuga in Butare, ordered the Interahamwe to search for the Tutsis and kill them.

6.58 Between April and July 1994, to make sure that the massacres were carried out in an efficient and unflagging manner, Joseph Kanyabashi, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko individually or in the presence of one another, not only called on, but also aided and abetted the population to slaughter the Tutsi in Butare préfecture.

Responsibility

6.59 From April to July 1994, several hundred thousand people were massacred throughout Rwanda. The majority of the victims were killed solely because they were Tutsi or appeared to be Tutsi. The other victims, nearly all Hutu, were killed because they were considered Tutsi accomplices, were linked to them through marriage or were opposed to the extremist Hutu ideology.

6.60 From 7 April 1994 around the country, most of the massacres were perpetrated with the participation, aid and instigation of military personnel, gendarmes and Hutu militiamen. Certain units of the Para-Commando, Reconnaissance and Presidential Guard battalions were the most implicated in

6.56 A la mi-Juin 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo et Arsène Shalome Ntahobali ont tenté, ensemble, d'empêcher l'évacuation, à partir de Butare, d'environ 300 orphelins et des adultes qui les accompagnaient. Passant outre l'opposition des employés de la Croix Rouge Internationale et des autorités locales, ils ont sélectionné environ 40 adultes qu'ils croyaient Tutsi et les ont forcé à demeurer au Rwanda.

6.58 Entre avril et juillet 1994, aux fins de s'assurer que les massacres étaient exécutés de manière efficace et continue, Joseph Kanyabashi, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Elie Ndayambaje et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko ont, individuellement ou en présence les uns des autres, non seulement appelé, mais aussi aidé et encouragé la population à massacrer les Tutsi dans la préfecture de Butare.

Responsabilité

6.59 D'avril à juillet 1994, plusieurs centaines de milliers de personnes ont été massacrées sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. La plupart des victimes ont été tuées pour la seule raison qu'elles étaient des Tutsi ou ressemblaient à des Tutsi. Les autres victimes, surtout des Hutu, ont été tuées parce qu'elles étaient qualifiées de complice des Tutsi, liées à ces derniers par mariage ou opposées à l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste.

6.60 Dès le 7 avril 1994, partout au Rwanda, la plupart des massacres ont été commis avec la participation, l'aide et l'encouragement des militaires, des gendarmes et des miliciens. Certaines unités des Bataillon Para-Commando, de Reconnaissance et de la Garde Présidentielle these crimes in the capital and in other préfectures, often acting in concert with the militiamen.

6.61 Further, from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them logistical support, i.e. weapons, transport and fuel.

6.62 The massacres and the assaults thus perpetrated were the result of a strategy adopted and elaborated by political, civil and military authorities in the country, at the national as well as the local level, such as Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, who conspired to exterminate the Tutsi population.

6.63 From April to July 1994, rapes, sexual assaults and other crimes of a sexual nature were widely and notoriously committed throughout Rwanda. These crimes were perpetrated by, among others, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes against the Tutsi population, in particular Tutsi women and girls.

6.64 From April to July 1994, military officers, members of the Interim Government and local authorities such as Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Elie Ndayambaje and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali aided and abetted their subordinates as set out in paragraph 6.32 above and others in carrying out the massacres of the Tutsi population and its accomplices. Without the complicity of the local and national civil and military authorities, the principal massacres would not have occurred.

ont été les plus impliquées dans la commission de ces crimes dans la capitale et dans d'autres préfectures du pays, agissant souvent de concert avec les miliciens.

6.62 Les massacres et les agressions ainsi perpétrés furent le résultat d'une stratégie adoptée, élaborée et mise en exécution par des autorités politiques, civiles et militaires du pays, tant au niveau national que local, dont Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, qui se sont entendus pour exterminer la population Tutsi.

6.63 D'avril à juillet 1994, des viols, des agressions sexuelles et d'autres crimes de nature sexuelle ont été commis, d'une façon généralisée et notoire sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes ont été perpétrés, entre autres, par des militaires, des miliciens et des gendarmes contre la population Tutsi, en particulier des femmes et des jeunes filles Tutsi.

6.64 D'avril à juillet 1994, des officiers militaires, des membres du Gouvernement Intérimaire et des autorités locales dont, Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Elie Ndayambaje et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali ont aidé et encouragé leurs subordonnés, comme stipulé dans l'article 6.32 ci-dessus mentionné et des tiers à commettre les massacres de la population Tutsi et de ses "complices". Sans la complicité des autorités locales et nationales, civiles et militaires, les principaux massacres n'auraient pas eu lieu.

6.65 Knowing that massacres of the civilian population were being committed, political and military authorities, including Joseph Kanyabashi, took no measures to stop them. On the contrary, they refused to intervene to control and appeal to the population as long as a cease-fire had not been declared. This categorical refusal was communicated to the Special Rapporteur via the Chief of Staff of Rwandan Army, Major-General Augustin Bizimungu.

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

1.1 The revolution of 1959 marked the beginning of a period of ethnic clashes between the Hutu and the Tutsi in Rwanda, causing hundreds of Tutsi to die and thousands more to flee the country in the years immediately following. The revolution resulted in the abolition of the Tutsi monarchy and the proclamation of the First Republic in early 1961, confirmed in a referendum held in the same year. Legislative elections held in September 1961 confirmed the dominant position of the MDR-PARMEHUTU (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain - Parti du Mouvement d'Emancipation Hutu), led by Grégoire Kayibanda, who was subsequently elected President of the Republic by the Legislative Assembly on 26 October 1961.

1.2 The early years of the First Republic, which was under the domination of the Hutu of central and southern Rwanda, were again marked by ethnic violence. The victims were predominantly Tutsi, the former ruling elite, and those related to them, who were killed, driven to other regions of Rwanda or forced to flee the country. The gradual elimination of the opposition parties in those early years confirmed the MDR-PARMEHUTU as the single party, the only party to present candidates in the elections of 1965.

1.3 The early part of 1973 in Rwanda was again marked by ethnic confrontations between the Hutu and Tutsi, prompting another exodus of the Tutsi minority from the country, as had occurred between 1959 and 1963. This new outburst of ethnic and political tension between the North and South resulted in a military coup by General Juvénal Habyarimana on 5 July 1973,

1. CONTEXTE HISTORIQUE

1.1 La révolution de 1959 marque le début d'une période d'affrontements ethniques entre les Hutu et les Tutsi au Rwanda, provoquant au cours des années qui ont immédiatement suivi, des centaines de morts chez les Tutsi et l'exode de milliers d'entre eux. Cette révolution entraîne l'abolition de la monarchie Tutsi et la proclamation de la Première République au début de l'année 1961, confirmée par référendum au cours de la même année. Les élections législatives de septembre 1961 confirment la domination du MDR-PARMEHUTU (Mouvement Démocratique Républicain - Parti du Mouvement d'Emancipation Hutu) de Grégoire Kayibanda, qui est élu Président de la République par l'assemblée législative le 26 octobre 1961.

1.2 Les premières années d'existence de cette république, dominée par les Hutu du centre et du sud du Rwanda, sont de nouveau marquées par la violence ethnique. Les victimes furent principalement des Tutsi, l'ancienne élite dirigeante, et leurs alliés; ceux-ci furent tués, chassés vers d'autres régions du Rwanda ou forcés de s'enfuir du pays. L'élimination progressive des partis d'opposition durant ces premières années confirme le MDR-PARMEHUTU comme parti unique, qui est le seul à présenter des candidats aux élections de 1965.

1.3 Le début de l'année 1973 au Rwanda est de nouveau marqué par des affrontements ethniques entre Hutu et Tutsi qui provoquent, après ceux de 1959 à 1963, un nouvel exode de la minorité Tutsi. Cette recrudescence des tensions ethniques et politiques (entre le Nord et le Sud) aboutit, le 5 juillet 1973, à un coup d'État militaire mené par le Général Juvénal Habyarimana shifting power from civilian to military hands and from the Hutu of central Rwanda to the Hutu of the northern préfectures of Gisenyi and Ruhengeri (Habyarimana's native region).

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Le coup d'État entraîne un renversement du pouvoir, qui passe des mains des civils à celles des militaires et de celles des Hutu du centre du Rwanda à celles des Hutu des préfectures de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri au nord du pays (région natale du Président Habyarimana).

1.4 In 1975, President Habyarimana founded the Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), a single party, and assumed the position of party Chairman. The administrative and party hierarchies were indistinguishable in this single party state from the level of the Préfet to the bourgmestres, and down to that of the conseillers de secteurs and responsables de cellule.

1.4 En 1975, le président Habyarimana fonde le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND), parti unique, dont il assume la présidence. La structure administrative et la hiérarchie du MRND se confondent en un véritable parti-État à tous les niveaux de l'administration territoriale, du Préfet aux Bourgmestres, jusqu'aux conseillers de secteurs et responsables de cellule.

1.5 From 1973 to 1994, the government of President Habyarimana used a system of ethnic and regional quotas which was supposed to provide educational and employment opportunities for all, but which was used increasingly to discriminate against both Tutsi and Hutu from regions outside the northwest.

1.5 De 1973 à 1994, le gouvernement du Président Habyarimana applique un système de quotas basé sur l'origine ethnique et régionale qui était censé offrir des chances égales à tous en matière d'éducation et d'emploi, mais qui fut utilisé progressivement de manière discriminatoire à l'encontre des Tutsi et des Hutu originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest.

In fact, by the late 1980s, persons from Gisenyi and Ruhengeri occupied many of the most important positions in the military, political, economic and administrative sectors of Rwandan society. Among the privileged elite, an inner circle of relatives and close associates of President Habyarimana and his wife, Agathe Kanziga, known as the Akazu, enjoyed great power. This select group, almost exclusively Hutu, was supplemented by individuals who shared its extremist Hutu ideology, and who came mainly from the native region of the President and his wife.

De fait, à la fin des années 1980, plusieurs des postes les plus importants dans les secteurs militaires, politiques, économiques et administratifs de la société rwandaise étaient occupés par des personnes originaires de Gisenyi et Ruhengeri. Parmi l'élite privilégiée, un noyau, connu sous l'appellation Akazu, composé de membres de la famille et d'intimes du Président Habyarimana et de son épouse, Agathe Kanziga, jouit d'un grand pouvoir. Aux membres de ce groupe, presque exclusivement Hutu, se joignent des personnes qui en partagent l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste et qui sont principalement originaires de la région natale du Président et de son épouse.

1.6 In 1990, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, and his single party, the MRND, were facing mounting opposition, including from other Hutu.

Président de la République, Juvénal Habyarimana, et son parti unique, le MRND, font face à une opposition grandissante, notamment de la part d'autres Hutu.

1.7 On 1 October 1990, the Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF), made up mainly of Tutsi refugees, attacked Rwanda. Within days the government began arresting thousands of people, presumed to be opponents of Habyarimana and suspected of being RPF accomplices. Although the Tutsi were the main target, Hutu political opponents were also arrested.

1.7 Le 1er octobre 1990, le Front Patriotique Rwandais (FPR), composé majoritairement de réfugiés Tutsi, attaque le Rwanda. Dans les jours qui suivent, le gouvernement procède à l'arrestation de milliers de personnes présumées être des adversaires d'Habyarimana et soupçonnées de complicité avec le FPR. Parmi les personnes arrêtées, majoritairement d'origine Tutsi, il y a également des opposants politiques Hutu.

1.8 Following pressure from the internal opposition and the international community, and the RPF attack of October 1990, President Habyarimana permitted the introduction of multiple political parties and the adoption of a new constitution on 10 June 1991. The Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) was renamed Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). The first transitional government was made up almost exclusively of MRND members, following the refusal of the main opposition parties to take part. With the second transitional government in April 1992, the MRND became a minority party for the first time in its history, with nine ministerial portfolios out of 19. On the other hand, the MRND retained its domination over the local administration.

1.8 Suite aux différentes pressions de l'opposition interne et de la communauté internationale, et à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990, le Président Habyarimana autorise l'introduction du multipartisme et l'adoption d'une nouvelle constitution le 10 juin 1991. Le Mouvement Révolutionnaire National pour le Développement (MRND) est alors rebaptisé Mouvement Républicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement (MRND). Le premier Gouvernement de transition est composé presque exclusivement de membres du MRND, suite au refus des principaux partis d'opposition d'en faire partie. Avec la mise en place du second Gouvernement de transition en avril 1992, le MRND se retrouve minoritaire pour la première fois de son histoire, avec neuf portefeuilles ministériels sur 19. Par contre, le MRND demeure fortement dominant au niveau de l'administration territoriale.

1.9 The new Government then entered negotiations with the RPF, which resulted in the signing of the Arusha Accords on 4 August 1993. The Accords provided for a new system of sharing military and civilian power between the RPF, the opposition parties and the MRND.

1.9 Le nouveau Gouvernement entame alors des négociations avec le FPR qui aboutissent le 4 août 1993 à la signature des Accords d'Arusha. Ces Accords prévoient un nouveau partage des pouvoirs militaires et civils entre le FPR, les partis d'opposition et le MRND.

1. HISTORICAL CONTEXT

1.10 By the terms of the Arusha Accords, which provided for the integration of both sides' armed forces, the new national army was to be limited to 13,000 men, 60% FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) and 40% RPF. The posts of command were to be shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides, with the post of Chief of Staff of the Army assigned to the FAR.

The Gendarmerie was to be limited to 6,000 men, 60% FAR and 40% RPF, with the posts of command shared equally (50%-50%) between the two sides and the post of Chief of Staff of the Gendarmerie assigned to the RPF.

1.11 As regards representation within the government, the Arusha Accords limited the number of ministerial portfolios to be held by the MRND to five, plus the Presidency. The other portfolios were to be shared as follows: RPF, five, MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain), four (including the post of Prime Minister); PSD (Parti social-démocrate), three; PL (Parti libéral), three; and the PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien), one.

1.12 For the men and women close to President Habyarimana, including the members of the Akazu, who held positions of prominence in the various sectors of Rwandan society, this new power sharing plan, as demanded by the political opposition and as stipulated in the Arusha Accords, meant a relinquishment of power and the loss of numerous privileges and benefits. With political changes following the establishment of the multi-party government of April 1992, several important military officers from the north had been forced to retire. At the same time, many of the military were facing massive demobilisation with the implementation of

1.10 Aux termes des Accords d'Arusha qui prévoient l'intégration des forces armées des deux parties, l'effectif de la nouvelle armée nationale est limité à 13 000 hommes dont 60% proviennent des FAR (Forces Armées Rwandaises) et 40% du FPR. Quant aux postes de commandement, ils sont attribués à parts égales (50%-50%) aux deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de l'armée revenant aux FAR.

L'effectif de la Gendarmerie est limité à 6 000 hommes, composé de 60% des FAR et 40% du FPR, avec les postes de commandement répartis équitablement (50%-50%) entre les deux parties, le poste de Chef d'État Major de la Gendarmerie revenant au FPR.

1.11 Au niveau de la représentation au sein du gouvernement, les Accords d'Arusha limitent à cinq le nombre de portefeuilles ministériels du MRND en plus de la Présidence de la République. Les autres portefeuilles se répartissent ainsi: cinq pour le FPR, quatre pour le MDR (Mouvement démocratique républicain) dont le poste de premier Ministre, trois pour le PSD (Parti social-démocrate), trois pour le PL (Parti libéral) et un pour le PDC (Parti démocrate-chrétien).

1.12 Pour les hommes et les femmes proches du Président Habyarimana, parmi lesquels les membres de l'Akazu, qui occupaient des fonctions importantes au sein des divers secteurs de la société rwandaise, ce nouveau partage du pouvoir, tel qu'exigé par les opposants politiques et stipulé par les Accords d'Arusha, signifie l'abandon du pouvoir et la perte de nombreux privilèges et d'importants bénéfices. Les changements politiques consécutifs à l'établissement d'un régime multipartite en avril 1992 obligent plusieurs officiers militaires importants, originaires du Nord, à prendre leur retraite. En même temps, l'application des Accords d'Arusha confronte plusieurs militaires à

the Arusha Accords.

1.13 From 1990, Habyarimana and several of his close associates devised the strategy of inciting hatred and fear of the Tutsi minority as a way of rebuilding solidarity among the Hutu and keeping themselves in power. They strongly opposed any form of power sharing, including the one envisaged by the Arusha Accords.

1.14 Determined to avoid the power sharing prescribed by the Arusha Accords, several prominent civilian and military figures pursued their strategy of ethnic division and incitement to violence. They targeted and labelled as RPF accomplices the entire Tutsi population, and also Hutu opposed to their domination, particularly those from regions other than northwestern Rwanda. At the same time, they sought to divide Hutu opposition parties, attracting some of their members back to the support of Habyarimana. These efforts to divide the Hutu opposition were furthered by the assassination of Melchior Ndadaye, the democratically elected Hutu President, in neighboring Burundi, by Tutsi soldiers of the Burundi army. By late 1993, two of the three major parties opposed to the MRND had each split into two factions. The faction of each known as the "Power" faction aligned itself with the MRND.

1.15 The strategy adopted in the early 1990s, which culminated in the widespread massacres of April 1994, comprised several components, which were carefully worked out by the various prominent figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, including the members of the Akazu.

In addition to the incitement to ethnic violence and the extermination of the Tutsi and their "accomplices", was the une démobilisation massive.

1.13 A partir de 1990, Habyarimana et plusieurs de ses plus proches collaborateurs conçoivent une stratégie d'incitation à la haine et à la peur face à la minorité Tutsi, afin de rétablir la solidarité parmi les Hutu et de se maintenir au pouvoir. Ils s'opposent fortement à toute forme de partage du pouvoir et particulièrement au partage prévu par les Accords d'Arusha.

1.14 Déterminées à éviter le partage des pouvoirs prévu par les Accords d'Arusha, plusieurs personnalités civiles et militaires en vue poursuivent leur stratégie de conflit ethnique et d'incitation à la violence. Elles visent la population Tutsi tout entière, qui est qualifiée de complice du FPR, de même que les Hutu opposés à leur domination, particulièrement ceux qui sont originaires d'autres régions que le nord-ouest du Rwanda. Parallèlement, elles tentent de diviser les partis d'opposition Hutu, en ramenant certains de leurs membres dans le camp d'Habyarimana. Les efforts destinés à diviser l'opposition Hutu sont favorisés par l'assassinat, par des soldats Tutsi de l'armée burundaise, de Melchior Ndadaye, président Hutu démocratiquement élu dans le Burundi voisin. A la fin de 1993, deux des trois principaux partis opposés au MRND s'étaient divisés en deux factions chacun. Les factions connues sous le nom de "Power" s'allient au MRND.

A l'incitation à la violence ethnique et à l'extermination des Tutsi et de leurs "complices", s'ajoutent l'organisation et organization and military training of the youth wings of the political parties, notably the Interahamwe (youth wing of the MRND), the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated, the distribution of weapons to civilians, the assassination of certain political opponents and the massacre of many Tutsi in various parts of Rwanda between October 1990 and April 1994.

1.16 The incitement to ethnic hatred took the form of public speeches by people sharing the extremist ideology. These political and military figures publicly appealed to hatred and fear of the Tutsi and urged the Hutu majority to "finish off the enemy and its accomplices". A perfect illustration is the speech made in November 1992 by Léon Mugesera, vice-chairman of the MRND for Gisenyi préfecture, who at the time was already inciting the public to exterminate the Tutsi and their "accomplices".

With the intention of ensuring widespread dissemination of the calls to ethnic violence, prominent figures from the President's circle set up true hate media. Thus the creation of Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTL) and of the newspaper Kangura was a part of the strategy and pursued the same logic.

1.17 The creation of the youth wings of the political parties, originally established to encourage or even force adherence to one or another party in the newly-established multi-party system, provided Habyarimana's circle with a large, devoted and effective workforce to implement the adopted strategy. These youth organizations, which were affiliated to the political parties, were soon manipulated as part of the anti-Tutsi campaign. Some of the members of these organizations, notably the Interahamwe (MRND), were organized into militia groups, which were financed, trained and led l'entraînement militaire des jeunes politiques, notamment les Interahamwe (jeunes du MRND), la préparation de listes de personnes à éliminer, la distribution d'armes à des civils, l'assassinat de certains opposants politiques et le massacre de nombreux Tutsi dans diverses régions du Rwanda entre octobre 1990 et avril 1994.

1.16 L'incitation à la haine ethnique prend la forme de discours publics prononcés par des personnalités partageant cette idéologie extrémiste. Ces personnalités politiques et militaires appellent publiquement à la haine et à la peur des Tutsi et exhortent la majorité Hutu "à en finir avec l'ennemi et ses complices". Le discours prononcé en novembre 1992 par Léon Mugesera, vice-président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, qui dès cette époque incitait publiquement à l'extermination des Tutsi et leurs "complices", en est la parfaite illustration.

Dans le but d'assurer une large diffusion de ces appels à la violence ethnique, des personnalités de l'entourage du Président mettent sur pied de véritables médias de la haine. La création de la Radio Télévision Libre des Mille Collines (RTL) et du journal Kangura participe de cette stratégie et s'inscrit dans cette logique.

1.17 La création des ailes jeunes des partis politiques, qui avait à l'origine pour objectif d'encourager ou même de forcer l'adhésion à l'un ou l'autre des partis du nouveau régime multipartite, va fournir à l'entourage d'Habyarimana une main d'œuvre dévouée, nombreuse et efficace pour mettre en œuvre la stratégie adoptée. Ces organisations de jeunesse affiliées aux partis politiques sont très vite manipulées dans le cadre de la campagne anti-Tutsi. Des membres de ces organisations, particulièrement les Interahamwe-MRND, sont organisés en milices, financées, by prominent civilians and military figures from the President of the Republic's entourage. They were issued weapons, with the complicity of certain military and civilian authorities. The militia groups were transported to training sites, including certain military camps, in public administration vehicles or vehicles belonging to companies controlled by the President's circle.

1.18 During the mass arrests of October 1990, the civilian and military authorities followed lists that had been drawn up in order to identify and locate the presumed accomplices of the RPF, the majority of whom were Tutsi. Later, Army, Gendarmerie, local authorities and Interahamwe were given orders to prepare new lists or update the existing ones, which were subsequently used during the massacres of 1994. In March 1993, such a list was found in the vehicle of the Army Chief of Staff.

1.19 Towards the end of 1991, certain Rwandan authorities distributed weapons to certain civilians in the north-eastern region of the country as part of a civil self-defence campaign, in reaction to the RPF attack of October 1990. Later, some authorities distributed weapons nationwide, notably to the Interahamwe and carefully selected individuals, even in regions distant from the war zone. Towards the end of 1993, the Bishop of Nyundo criticized the distribution of weapons in a public letter, questioning its purpose.

1.20 The pursuit of the strategy thus described played a catalytic role in the political and ethnic violence of the time, which climaxed in the April 1994 massacres. The early part of the 90s was marked by numerous political assassinations entraînées et dirigées par des personnalités civiles et militaires de l'entourage du Président de la République. Des armes leur sont distribuées avec la complicité de certaines autorités militaires et civiles. Leur transport vers les sites d'entraînement, dont certains camps militaires, est assuré par des véhicules de l'administration publique ou appartenant à des sociétés contrôlées par l'entourage du Président.

1.19 Vers la fin de 1991, certaines autorités rwandaises distribuent des armes à certains membres de la population civile du nord-est du pays dans le cadre de la campagne d'auto-défense civile en réaction à l'attaque du FPR d'octobre 1990. Plus tard, en dehors du cadre de l'auto-défense civile, des armes sont distribuées dans tout le pays par des autorités, notamment aux Interahamwe et à des personnes soigneusement choisies, même dans des régions éloignées de la zone de guerre. Vers la fin de 1993, l'Évêque de Nyundo critique dans une lettre publique cette distribution d'armes, s'interrogeant sur sa finalité.

1.20 La mise en place de la stratégie ainsi décrite joue un rôle de catalyseur dans la violence politique et ethnique de cette époque qui atteint son paroxysme avec les massacres d'avril 1994. Le début des années 90 est marqué par de nombreux assassinats and large massacres of the Tutsi minority, including the one in Kibilira (1990), that of the Bagogwe (1991) and the one in Bugesera (1992). The massacres were instigated and organized by local authorities with the complicity of certain prominent persons from the President's circle. Therein can be found the components of the strategy which culminated in the genocide of 1994.

1.21 In early 1994, certain prominent people from Habyarimana's circle instigated violent demonstrations in Kigali aimed at preventing the implementation of the Arusha Accords. Soldiers in civilian clothes and militiamen took part, seeking to provoke confrontations with the Belgian UNAMIR soldiers. These incidents were partially the cause of the postponement of the establishment of the institutions foreseen by the Arusha Accords.

1.22 On 6 April 1994, the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic of Rwanda, Juvkna Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali airport.

1.23 In the hours which followed the crash of the President's plane, the senior officers of the FAR convened to assess the situation. Those who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, generally from the North, proposed an Army take-over. During a second meeting which took place on the morning of 7 April, that option was rejected in favour of setting up an interim Government.

1.24 Already on the morning of 7 April and while these discussions were taking place, groups of military, lists in hand, proceeded to arrest, confine and carry out systematic assassinations of a large number of political opponents, both Hutu and politiques et d'importants massacres de la minorité Tutsi, dont celui de Kibilira (1990), ceux des Bagogwe (1991) et celui du Bugesera (1992). Ces massacres sont suscités et organisés par des autorités locales avec la complicité de certaines personnalités de l'entourage du Président Habyarimana. On y retrouve tous les éléments de la stratégie qui va aboutir au génocide de 1994.

1.21 Au début de 1994, des manifestations violentes visant à empêcher la mise en place des Accords d'Arusha se déroulent à Kigali à l'instigation de certaines personnalités de l'entourage d'Habyarimana. On y retrouve des militaires en civil aux côtés des miliciens qui cherchent à provoquer des affrontements avec les soldats belges de la MINUAR. Ces incidents sont en partie à l'origine du report de la mise en place des institutions prévues dans les Accords d'Arusha.

1.22 Le 6 avril 1994, l'avion transportant, entre autres passagers, le Président de la République du Rwanda, Juvkna Habyarimana, est abattu peu avant son atterrissage à l'aéroport de Kigali.

1.23 Dans les heures qui suivent la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les principaux officiers des FAR se réunissent pour évaluer la situation. Ceux qui partagent l'idéologie extrémiste Hutu, généralement les militaires du nord du pays, proposent la prise du pouvoir par l'Armée. Le 7 avril au matin, lors d'une deuxième réunion, cette option est rejetée au profit de la mise sur pied d'un gouvernement intérimaire.

1.24 Dès le 7 avril au matin, parallèlement à ces discussions, des groupes de militaires, listes en main, procèdent à l'arrestation, à la séquestration et à l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques, Hutu et Tutsi, parmi lesquels le

1. CONTEXTE HISTORIQUE

Tutsi, including the Prime Minister, some of the Ministers in her Government and the President of the Constitutional Court. At the same time, however, the military were evacuating prominent members of the dead President's circle, including the MRND Ministers, to safe locations.

The Belgian UNAMIR soldiers sent to protect the Prime Minister were disarmed, arrested and taken to Kigali military camp, where they were massacred, prompting the withdrawal of the Belgian contingent in the days that followed. After the withdrawal of the Belgian troops, the UN Security Council drastically reduced the number of UNAMIR personnel in Rwanda.

1.25 The leaders of various political parties not targeted in the assassinations assembled at the request of military officers. Other than members of the MRND, most participants were members of the "Power" wings of their respective parties. Given the political and constitutional void created by the deaths of most national political authorities, they set up a government based on the 1991 constitution. Composed solely of Hutu, the government was sworn in on 9 April 1994. The MRND held nine ministerial posts, plus the Presidency of the Republic, while the remaining 11 positions, including that of Prime Minister, went to the "Power" factions of the other parties.

1.26 In the hours following the crash of President Habyarimana's plane, military and militiamen set up roadblocks and began slaughtering Tutsi and members of the Hutu opposition in Kigali and in other parts of Rwanda. At the roadblocks, they checked the identity cards of passers-by and killed those or most of those who were identified as Tutsi. Military patrols, often involving militiamen, scoured the city, lists in hand, to

Premier Ministre, certains des ministres de son gouvernement et le Président de la Cour Constitutionnelle. Par contre, au même moment, des militaires évacuent dans des endroits sûrs des personnalités de l'entourage du défunt Président, y compris les ministres du MRND.

Les militaires belges de la MINUAR envoyés pour protéger le Premier Ministre sont désarmés, arrêtés et conduits au camp militaire de Kigali où ils sont massacrés. Cet incident précipite le retrait du contingent belge dans les jours qui suivent. Après le retrait des troupes belges, le Conseil de sécurité des Nations-Unies réduit de façon draconienne le nombre de personnel de la MINUAR au Rwanda.

Tutsi. Des patrouilles de militaires, souvent accompagnés de miliciens sillonnent la ville, listes en main, pour exécuter les Tutsi et certains opposants politiques.

1.27 During the entire period of the genocide, FAR military, particularly units of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion, Reconnaissance Battalion and the Gendarmerie, in complicity with militiamen, actively participated in the massacres of the Tutsi throughout Rwanda.

1.27 Durant toute la période du génocide, des militaires des FAR, particulièrement des unités de la Garde Présidentielle, du Bataillon Para-Commando, du Bataillon reconnaissance et de la Gendarmerie, avec la complicité de miliciens, participent activement aux massacres de Tutsi sur toute l'étendue du Rwanda.

1.28 As soon as it was formed, the Interim Government espoused the plan for extermination put in place. Throughout the period of the massacres, the Government made decisions and issued directives to aid and abet in the extermination of the Tutsi population and the elimination of the Hutu political opponents. Members of the Government incited the population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices", some of them participating directly in the massacres.

1.28 Dès sa formation, le Gouvernement Interim fait sien le plan d'extermination mis en place. Durant toute la période des massacres, le Gouvernement prend des décisions et donne des directives dans le but d'aider et encourager l'extermination de la population Tutsi et l'élimination des opposants politiques Hutu. Des membres de ce gouvernement incitent la population à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices", certains d'entre eux prennent part directement aux massacres.

1.29 Local authorities, including préfets, bourgmestres, conseillers de secteur and responsables de cellule applied the Government-issued directives in execution of the plan for the extermination of the Tutsi population. They incited and ordered their subordinates to perpetrate the massacres and took a direct part in them.

Ils incitent et ordonnent à leurs subordonnés de se livrer aux massacres et y prennent eux-mêmes part directement.

1.30 Having been psychologically and militarily prepared for several months, the groups of militiamen spearheaded the execution of the extermination plan and were directly involved in the massacres of the civilian Tutsi population and of moderate Hutus, thus causing the deaths of hundreds of thousands of people in less than 100 days.

1.30 Les groupes de miliciens, psychologiquement et militairement préparés depuis plusieurs mois, constituent le fer de lance dans l'exécution du plan d'extermination et sont directement impliqués dans les massacres de la population civile Tutsi et des Hutu modérés, causant ainsi la mort de centaines de milliers de personnes en moins de 100 jours.

2. TERRITORIAL, TEMPORAL AND MATERIAL JURISDICTION

2.1 The crimes referred to in this indictment took place in Rwanda between 1 January and 31 December 1994.

2.2 During the events referred to in this indictment, Rwanda was divided into 11 préfectures: Butare, Byumba, Cyangugu, Gikongoro, Gisenyi, Gitarama, Kibungo, Kibuye, Kigali-Ville, Kigali-Rural and Ruhengeri. Each préfecture was subdivided into communes and secteurs.

2.3 During the events referred to in this indictment, Butare préfecture was divided into 20 communes: Nyakizu, Kigembe, Gishamvu, Ngoma, Runyinya, Maraba, Ruhashya, Mbazi, Shyanda, Muyaga, Mugusa, Nyaruhengeri, Ndora, Muganza, Kibayi, Rusatira, Nyabisindu, Ntyazo, Muyira and Huye.

2.4 During the events referred to in this indictment, the Tutsi, the Hutu and the Twa were identified as racial or ethnic groups.

2.5 During the events referred to in this indictment, there were throughout Rwanda widespread or systematic attacks directed against a civilian population on political, ethnic or racial grounds.

2.6 During the events referred to in this indictment, a state of non-international armed conflict existed in Rwanda. The victims referred to in this indictment were protected persons, according to the provisions of Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions and of Additional Protocol II.

2. COMPÉTENCES TERRITORIALE, TEMPORELLE ET MATERIELLE

2.1 Les crimes visés par le présent acte d'accusation ont été commis au Rwanda entre le 1er janvier 1994 et le 31 décembre 1994.

2.2 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, le Rwanda était divisé en 11 préfectures: Butare, Byumba, Cyangugu, Gikongoro, Gisenyi, Gitarama, Kibungo, Kibuye, Kigali-ville, Kigali-rural et Ruhengeri. Chaque préfecture est subdivisée en communes et en secteurs.

2.3 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, la préfecture de Butare était divisée en 20 communes soit: Nyakizu, Kigembe, Gishamvu, Ngoma, Runyinya, Maraba, Ruhashya, Mbazi, Shyanda, Muyaga, Mugusa, Nyaruhengeri, Ndora, Muganza, Kibayi, Rusatira, Nyabisindu, Ntyazo, Muyira et Huye.

2.4 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, les Tutsi, les Hutu et les Twa étaient identifiés comme des groupes ethniques ou raciaux.

2.5 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, il y a eu surtout le territoire du Rwanda des attaques systématiques ou généralisées contre une population civile, en raison de son appartenance politique, ethnique ou raciale.

2.6 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, il y avait un conflit armé non international sur le territoire du Rwanda. 3. THE POWER STRUCTURE

3. STRUCTURE DU POUVOIR

The Government

Le Gouvernement

3.1 According to the Constitution of 10 June 1991, executive power is exercised by the President of the Republic, assisted by the Government, composed of the Prime Minister and the ministers. The members of the Government are appointed by the President of the Republic upon the proposal of the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister directs the Government's program. The Government determines and applies national policy. To that effect, it controls the civil service and the armed forces. The Prime Minister decides the functions of the ministers and officials under the Prime Minister's authority. The resignation or termination of tenure of the Prime Minister, for whatever reason, causes the Government to resign.

3.1 Selon la Constitution du 10 juin 1991, le pouvoir exécutif est exercé par le Président de la République, assisté du gouvernement composé du Premier Ministre et des ministres. Les membres du gouvernement sont nommés par le Président de la République sur proposition du Premier Ministre. Le Premier Ministre est chargé de diriger l'action du gouvernement. Le gouvernement détermine et conduit la politique de la nation et dispose, à cet effet, de l'administration publique et de la force armée. Le Premier Ministre détermine les attributions des ministres et des agents placés sous son autorité. La démission ou la cessation des fonctions du Premier Ministre, pour quelque cause que ce soit, entraîne la démission du gouvernement.

3.2 The Ministers implement the Government's policy, as defined by the Prime Minister. They are answerable to the Head of the Government for doing so. In carrying out their duties, they have at their disposal the civil service and local administration corresponding to their functions.

3.2 Les ministres exécutent la politique du Gouvernement définie par le Premier Ministre. Ils répondent devant le Chef du Gouvernement de cette exécution. Dans l'exercice de leurs fonctions ils disposent de l'administration publique et territoriale correspondante à leurs attributions.

The Local Public Administration

L'administration territoriale

3.3 The Préfet represents executive power at prefectural level. The Préfet is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior and carries out his duties under that Minister's hierarchical authority. The Préfet's authority covers the entire préfecture.

3.3 Le préfet est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la préfecture. Il est nommé sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur par le Président de la République et exerce ses fonctions sous l'autorité hiérarchique du ministre de l'Intérieur. L'autorité du préfet s'étend sur l'ensemble de la préfecture.

3.4 In his capacity as administrator of the préfecture, the Préfet is responsible for ensuring peace, public order and the safety of people and property. The Préfet, in the discharge of his policing duties, maintaining peace and public order, may request the intervention of the army and of the Gendarmerie Nationale. The Préfet has hierarchical authority over all civil servants and all persons holding public office within the boundaries of the préfecture, including the bourgmestres and conseillers de secteur.

3.5 Similarly to the Préfet, the Bourgmestre represents executive power at the commune level. He is appointed by the President of the Republic on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior. He is under the hierarchical authority of the Préfet. He has authority over the civil servants posted in his commune. Moreover, he has policing duties in regard to maintaining order and law enforcement.

The Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.6 The Forces Armées Rwandaises (FAR) were composed of the Armée Rwandaise (AR) and the Gendarmerie Nationale (GN). The Forces Armées Rwandaises did not have a unified command and came directly under the Minister of Defence. The Commander-in-Chief of the Forces Armées Rwandaises was the President of the Republic.

3.7 The Gendarmerie Nationale was responsible for maintaining public order and peace and the observance of the laws in effect in the country.

3.8 The Gendarmerie Nationale was under the Minister of Defence but could

3.4 En sa qualité d'administrateur de la préfecture, le préfet est chargé d'assurer la tranquillité, l'ordre public et la sécurité des personnes et des biens. Dans l'exercice de ses attributions de police, soit le maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique, le préfet peut requérir l'intervention de l'armée et de la Gendarmerie Nationale. Le préfet exerce son autorité hiérarchique sur tous les agents de l'administration publique et toutes les personnes détentrices de la puissance publique officiant dans la préfecture, parmi lesquels les Bourgmestres et les Conseillers de secteur.

3.5 A l'instar du préfet, le bourgmestre est le représentant du pouvoir exécutif au niveau de la commune. Il est nommé par le Président de la République sur proposition du ministre de l'Intérieur. Il est placé sous l'autorité hiérarchique du préfet. Il a autorité sur les agents de l'administration officiant dans sa commune. Il a par ailleurs des attributions de police dans le cadre du maintien de l'ordre et de l'exécution des lois.

Les Forces Armées Rwandaises

3.6 Les Forces Armées Rwandaises (FAR) étaient composées de l'Armée Rwandaise (AR) et de la Gendarmerie Nationale (GN). Les Forces Armées Rwandaises ne disposaient pas d'un État-Major unifié et relevaient directement du ministre de la Défense. Le chef suprême des Forces Armées Rwandaises était le Président de la République.

3.7 La Gendarmerie Nationale était chargée du maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique et de l'exécution des lois en vigueur dans le pays.

3.8 La Gendarmerie Nationale relevait du ministre de la Défense, mais pouvait

carry out its duties of ensuring public order and peace at the request of the local government authority having jurisdiction, namely the Préfet. In cases of emergency, this request could be made verbally, notably by telephone. Such requests had to be carried out immediately. In addition, the Gendarmerie Nationale was obliged to transmit to the Préfet all information relating to public order. It had the duty to assist anyone in danger.

exercer ses attributions de maintien de l'ordre et de la paix publique a la requête de l'autorité administrative territoriale compétente, en la personne du préfet. En cas d'urgence, cette réquisition pouvait être faite verbalement, notamment par téléphone. Cette réquisition devait être exécutée sans délai. En outre, la Gendarmerie Nationale devait porter a la connaissance du préfet tout renseignement concernant l'ordre public. Elle devait assistance à toute personne en danger.

The Political Parties and The Militia

3.9 During the events referred to in this indictment, the main political parties in Rwanda were the MRND (Mouvement Rpublicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), the CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la République), the MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Rpublicain), the PSD (Parti Social-Démocrate) and the PL (Parti Libéral). The RPF (Rwandan Patriotic Front) was a politico-military opposition organization.

3.9 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation, les principaux partis politiques au Rwanda étaient: le MRND (Mouvement Rpublicain National pour la Démocratie et le Développement), la CDR (Coalition pour la Défense de la République), le MDR (Mouvement Démocratique Rpublicain), le PSD (Parti Social-DBmocrate) et le PL (Parti Libéral). Le FPR (Front Patriotique Rwandais) était une organisation politico-militaire d'opposition.

3.10 Most of the political parties had created a youth wing. The members of the MRND's youth wing members were known as the "Interahamwe" and those of the CDR were known as the "Impuzamugambi". Numerous MRND youth wing members subsequently received military training and were thus transformed from youth movements into militias.

4. THE ACCUSED

Elie Ndayambaje

4.1 Elie Ndayambaje was born on 8 March 1958 in Cyumba secteur, Kibayi commune, Butare préfecture, Rwanda.

4.2 During the events referred to in this indictment, Elie Ndayambaje held the office of Bourgmestre of Muganza commune, in Butare préfecture, as of 22 June 1994. Previously, Elie Ndayambaje had held the office of Bourgmestre of the same commune from 1983 to 1992.

4.3 In his capacity as Bourgmestre of Muganza commune in Butare préfecture, Elie Ndayambaje exercised authority over his subordinates. Moreover, having been bourgmestre of Muganza for many years, Elie Ndayambaje continued to exercise authority over his former subordinates.

4. L' ACCUSE

Elie Ndayambaje

4.1 Elie Ndayambaje est né le 8 mars 1958, dans le secteur de Cyumba, commune de Kibayi, dans la préfecture de Butare, Rwanda.

4.2 Lors des événements visés dans le présent acte d'accusation Elie Ndayambaje, exerçait les fonctions de Bourgmestre de la commune de Muganza, dans la préfecture de Butare à partir du 22 juin 1994. Auparavant Elie Ndayambaje avait exercé les fonctions de Bourgmestre de la même commune de 1983 jusqu'à 1992.

4.3 Elie Ndayambaje, en sa qualité de Bourgmestre de la commune de Muganza dans la préfecture de Butare, exerçait une autorité sur ses subordonnés. En outre, du fait qu'il avait été Bourgmestre de Muganza pendant de nombreuses années, Elie Ndayambaje a continué à exercer une autorité sur ses anciens subordonnés.

5. CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS: PREPARATION

5. EXPOSE SUCCINT DES FAITS : PRÉPARATION

5.1 From late 1990 until July 1994, military personnel, members of the government, political leaders, civil servants and other personalities conspired among themselves and with others to work out a plan with the intent to exterminate the civilian Tutsi population and eliminate members of the opposition, so that they could remain in power. The components of this plan consisted of, among other things, recourse to hatred and ethnic violence, the training of and distribution of weapons to militiamen as well as the preparation of lists of people to be eliminated. In executing the plan, they organized, ordered and participated in the massacres perpetrated against the Tutsi population and of moderate Hutu. Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje and Shalom Arsène Ntahobali elaborated, adhered to and executed this plan.

5.1 Dès la fin de 1990 jusqu'à juillet 1994, des militaires, des membres du gouvernement, des responsables politiques, des membres de l'administration publique et des personnalités diverses, se sont entendus entre eux et avec d'autres pour élaborer un plan dans l'intention d'exterminer la population civile Tutsi et d'éliminer des membres de l'opposition et se maintenir ainsi au pouvoir. Les éléments de ce plan comportaient, entre autres, le recours à la haine et à la violence ethnique, l'entraînement et la distribution d'armes aux miliciens ainsi que la confection de listes de personnes à éliminer. Dans l'exécution de ce plan ils ont organisé, ordonné et participé aux massacres perpétrés à l'encontre de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés. Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje et Shalom Arsène Ntahobali ont participé à l'élaboration de ce plan, y ont adhéré et l'ont exécuté.

5.2 In December 1993 and January 1994, UNAMIR received information detailing a plan to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

5.2 En décembre 1993 et en janvier 1994, la MINUAR a reçu des informations qui exposaient des détails d'un plan conçu aux fins d'exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

5.4 On 4 December 1991, President Juvenal Habyarimana set up a military commission. The commission presided by Colonel Théoneste Bagosora was given the task of finding an answer to the following question: "What do we need to do in order to defeat the enemy militarily, in the media and politically?"

5.5 In a letter dated 21 September 1992, the General Staff of the Rwandan Army ordered that an extract from the commission report be circulated among the troops. The letter came from the office of the Chief of Intelligence (G-2), namely Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. The extract defined the main enemy as follows: "The Tutsis from inside or outside the country, who are extremists and nostalgic for power, who do not recognize and have never recognized the realities of the Social Revolution of 1959, and are seeking to regain power in Rwanda by any means, including taking up arms." The secondary enemy was defined as: "Anyone providing any kind of assistance to the main enemy". The document specified that the enemy was being recruited from within certain social groups, notably: "the Tutsis inside the country, Hutus who are dissatisfied with the present regime, foreigners married to Tutsi women...". Among the activities the enemy was accused of, the document mentioned "the diversion of national opinion from the ethnic problem to the socio-economic problem between the rich and the poor".

5.6 The document and the use made of it by the senior officers aided, encouraged and promoted ethnic hatred and violence.

5.4 Le 4 décembre 1991, le Président Juvenal Habyarimana met en place une commission militaire. Cette commission présidée par le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora était chargée de répondre à la question suivante: "Que faut-il faire pour vaincre l'ennemi sur le plan militaire, médiatique et politique?"

5.5 Dans une lettre datée du 21 septembre 1992, l'Etat-Major de l'Armée Rwandaise a ordonné la diffusion, parmi les troupes, d'un extrait du rapport produit par cette commission. Cette lettre emanait du bureau du Chef des renseignements (G-2), à savoir le Lieutenant Colonel Anatole Nsengiyumva. Ce document définissait l'ennemi principal comme étant "le Tutsi de l'intérieur ou de l'extérieur, extrémiste et nostalgique du pouvoir, qui n'a jamais reconnu et ne reconnaît pas encore les réalités de la Révolution Sociale de 1959 et qui veut reconquérir le pouvoir au Rwanda par tous les moyens, y compris les armes" et l'ennemi secondaire comme étant "toute personne qui apporte tout concours à l'ennemi principal". Le document précisait que le recrutement de l'ennemi se faisait parmi certains groupes sociaux, notamment: "...Les Tutsi de l'intérieur, les Hutu mécontents du régime en place, les étrangers mariés aux femmes Tutsi..." Parmi les activités reprochées à l'ennemi, le document mentionnait le "...Détournement de l'opinion nationale du problème ethnique vers le problème socio-économique entre les riches et les pauvres".

5.6 Ce document et l'utilisation qu'en ont faite les officiers supérieurs ont aidé, encouragé et favorisé la haine et la violence ethniques.

as their accomplices was echoed by politicians, notably by Leon Mugesera, MRND Vice-Chairman for Gisenyi préfecture, in a speech he made on 22 November 1992. Broadcast on the state radio and therefore reaching a much larger audience, Leon Mugesera's speech already at that time was an incitement to exterminate the Tutsi population and their "accomplices".

5.8 From April to July 1994, incitement to hatred and violence was propagated by various prominent persons, including members of the Government and local authorities. The President, Theodore Sindikubwabo, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, Ministers Pauline Nyaramasuhuko and André Rwamakuba, local authorities such as the Préfets, Sylvain Nsabimana and Alphonse Nteziryayo, the Bourgmestres Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje and Ladislas Ntaganzwa, publicly incited the people to exterminate the Tutsi population and its "accomplices".

The Militi groups

5.9 The creation of the youth wings satisfied two of the political parties' concerns: to mobilize young people and to sensitize them to politics. The MRND and CDR followed the example of the MDR and RPF, which had already institutionalized their youth movements. Political rivalries during the multi-party period exacerbated tensions. The "Interahamwe" and "Impuzamugambi" began to be drawn astray from the time they were used to oppose with violence the political demonstrations organized by parties of the opposition.

5.10 In order to ensure that, when the time came, the extermination of the enemy and its l'opposition comme étant leurs complices, a été reprise par des politiciens, notamment Léon Mugesera, Vice Président du MRND pour la préfecture de Gisenyi, dans un discours prononcé le 22 novembre 1992. Diffuse sur la Radio d'Etat et s'adressant ainsi à un public beaucoup plus large, le discours de Léon Mugesera, a incité, dès cette époque, à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

5.8 D'avril à juillet 1994, cette incitation à la haine et à la violence a été propagée par différentes personnalités, dont des membres du Gouvernement et des autorités locales. Le Président, Theodore Sindikubwabo, le Premier Ministre, Jean Kambanda, les ministres Pauline Nyaramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba, des autorités locales tels les Préfets: Sylvain Nsabimana et Alphonse Nteziryayo, les Bourgmestres: Joseph Kanyabashi, Elie Ndayambaje et Ladislas Ntaganma, ont incité publiquement la population à exterminer la population Tutsi et ses "complices".

Les Milices

5.9 La création des ailes jeunesse répondait à deux préoccupations au niveau des partis politiques: mobiliser et sensibiliser les jeunes à la politique. Le MRND et la CDR ont suivi l'exemple du MDR et du FPR qui avaient déjà institutionnalisé leurs mouvements de jeunesse. Les rivalités politiques de la période du multi-partisme ont exacerbé les tensions. Les "Interahamwe" et les "Impuzamugambi" ont été entraînés dans la dérive dès lors qu'ils ont été utilisés pour s'opposer violemment aux manifestations politiques organisées par les partis de l'opposition.

"accomplices" would be carried out swiftly and effectively, it was necessary to create a militia that was structured, armed and complementary to the Armed Forces. For the militia to be represented nationally, Interahamwe committees were created at préfecture level. This decision of the central committee of the MRND taken in June 1993 was carried out by political figures in their localities, including, among others, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko in Butare.

"complices" se ferait rapidement et efficacement, il était nécessaire de constituer une milice, structurée, armée et complémentaire aux Forces Armées. Pour donner une représentation nationale à cette milice, des comités d'Interahamwe ont été créés au niveau préfectoral. Cette décision prise par le Comité Centrale du MRND en juin 1993 a été mise en oeuvre par des personnalités politiques au niveau de leur circonscription, parmi lesquelles Pauline Nyiramasuhuko à Butare.

5.11 As from 1993, and even before that date, anxious to radicalize the Interahamwe movement, the leaders of the MRND, in collaboration with officers of the FAR, decided to provide support, military training and weapons to those members most devoted to their extremist cause and to other idle youths.

5.11 Dès 1993 et même avant, dans un souci de radicalisation du mouvement Interahamwe, les dirigeants du MRND, en collaboration avec des officiers des FAR, ont décidé d'apporter leur appui, de fournir des armes et d'assurer un entraînement militaire aux éléments les plus dévoués à leur cause extrémiste ainsi qu'à d'autres jeunes désœuvrés.

L'entraînement des milices

Establishment of Lists

5.14 Having identified the Tutsi as the enemy and the members of the opposition as their accomplices, members of the Army General Staff, civilian authorities and militiamen established lists of people to be executed.

5.15 From 7 April to late July, military and Interahamwe massacred members of the Tutsi population and moderate Hutu by means of pre-established lists, among other things.

Precursors Revealing A Deliberate Course of Action

5.16 The political and ethnic violence of the early 1990s was characterized by the use of the elements of the strategy which achieved its finality in the genocide of April 1994. The massacres of the Tutsi minority at that time, including those in Kibilira (1990), in Bugesera (1992), and those of the Bagogwe (1991), were instigated, facilitated and organized by civilian and military authorities. On each occasion, a campaign of incitement to ethnic violence, conducted by local authorities, was followed by massacres of the Tutsi minority, perpetrated by groups of militiamen and civilians, armed and assisted by the same authorities and by certain military personnel. On each occasion, these crimes remained unpunished and the authorities implicated were generally not taken to task.

5.17 Finally, as of 7 April 1994, throughout Rwanda, Tutsis and certain moderate Hutus began to flee their homes to escape the violence to which they were victims on their hills and to seek refuge in places where they had traditionally felt safe, notably churches, hospitals and other public

5.14 Après avoir identifié le Tutsi comme étant l'ennemi principal et les membres de l'opposition comme ses complices, des membres de l'Etat-Major de l'Armée, des autorités civiles et des miliciens ont dressé des listes de personnes à exécuter.

5.15 Du 7 avril à la fin juillet, des militaires et des Interahamwe ont perpétré des massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et des Hutu modérés, entre autres à l'aide de listes pré-établies.

Antécédents révélant une conduite délibérée

5.16 La violence ethnique et politique du début des années 90 a été caractérisée par l'utilisation des éléments de la stratégie qui allait connaître son aboutissement avec le génocide de 1994. Les massacres de la minorité Tutsi perpétrés à cette époque, tels que ceux à Kibilira (1990), à Bugesera (1992), et ceux à l'encontre des Bagogwe (1991) ont été suscités, facilités et organisés par des autorités civiles et militaires. À chaque occasion une campagne d'incitation à la violence ethnique menée par des autorités locales a été suivie de massacres de la minorité Tutsi, perpétrés par des groupes de miliciens et de civils, armés et aidés par ces mêmes autorités et certains militaires. À chaque occasion, ces crimes sont demeurés impunis et les autorités impliquées n'ont généralement pas été inquiétées.

5.17 Finalement, dès le 7 avril 1994, sur tout le territoire du Rwanda, des Tutsis et certains Hutu modérés, pour échapper à la violence dont ils étaient victimes sur leurs collines, ont commencé à fuir leurs maisons pour chercher refuge dans des endroits où traditionnellement ils s'étaient sentis en buildings such as commune and préfecture offices. On several occasions, gathering places were indicated to them by the local authorities, who had promised to protect them. For the initial days, the refugees were protected by a few gendarmes and communal police in these various locations, but subsequently, the refugees were systematically attacked and massacred by militiamen, often assisted by the same authorities who had promised to protect the refugees. During the numerous attacks on the refugees throughout the country, personnel of the FAR, military or gendarmes, who were supposed to protect them, prevented the Tutsi from escaping and facilitated their massacre by the Interahamwe. On several occasions, these FAR personnel participated directly in the massacres.

sécurité, notamment des églises, des hôpitaux et d'autres edifices publics comme les bureaux communaux et préfectoraux. A plusieurs occasions, des endroits de rassemblement leur avaient été indiqués par des autorités locales qui avaient promis de les protéger. Durant les premiers jours, les réfugiés ont été protégés par quelques gendarmes et policiers communaux dans ces différents endroits, mais par la suite, systématiquement, les réfugiés ont été attaqués et massacrés par des miliciens, souvent aidés par ces mêmes autorités qui avaient promis de les protéger. Au cours des nombreuses attaques menées contre les réfugiés partout à travers le pays, des membres des FAR, militaires ou gendarmes, qui devaient les protéger, ont empêché les Tutsi de fuir et facilité leur massacre par les Interahamwe. A plusieurs occasions, ces membres des FAR ont participé directement aux massacres.

Power Crisis

Crise du pouvoir

6.1 On 6 April 1994 at about 8:30 p.m., the plane carrying, among other passengers, the President of the Republic, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on its approach to Kigali Airport, Rwanda.

6.1 Au soir du 6 avril 1994 vers 20:30 heures, l'avion transportant entre autres passagers le Prksident de la République du Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, a été abattu peu avant son attemssage a l'akroport de Kigali, Rwanda.

6.2 Following the crash of the President's plane, the Forces Armies Rwandaises were left without leadership. The President was dead, along with the Chief of Staff of the Rwandan Army, Colonel Dkogratiyas Nsabimana. The Minister of Defence, Augustin Bizimana, was on mission in the Republic of Cameroon. In his absence, Colonel Thkoneste Bagosora, his directeur de cabinet, asserted himself as the man of the moment capable of managing the crisis.

6.2 Après la chute de l'avion présidentiel, les Forces Armées Rwandaises se sont retrouvées sans direction. Le Président était mort ainsi que le chef d'Etat-Major (AR), le Colonel Déogratiyas Nsabimana. Le Ministre de la Defense, Augustin Bizimana ktait en mission en Republique du Cameroun. En son absence, le Colonel Thkoneste Bagosora, son directeur de cabinet, s'est imposé c o m e l'homme de la situation a même de gérer la crise.

6.3 Within the first hours following the death of the President, two important meetings took place in Kigali, during which Colonel Thkoneste Bagosora and several Army officers attempted to seize power. During this period Colonel Théoneste Bagosora openly opposed any consultation with the Prime Minister, Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.3 Au cours des premières heures qui ont suivi la mort du Prksident, deux réunions importantes ont eu lieu à Kigali, au cours desquelles le Colonel Thkoneste Bagosora et plusieurs officiers de l'armée ont tenté de prendre le pouvoir. Au cours de cette pkriode, le Colonel Thkoneste Bagosora s'est opposé ouvertement a toute consultation avec le premier ministre Agathe Uwilingiyimana.

6.4 Indeed, while the meeting of 7 April was going on, Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana was tracked down, arrested, sexually assaulted and killed by Rwandan Army personnel, more specifically, members of the Presidential Guard, the Para-Commando Battalion and the Reconnaissance Battalion. Concurrently, members of the same units arrested, confined and killed important opposition leaders. That same morning, ten Belgian para-commandos from UNAMIR who had been dispatched to the residence of the Prime Minister were murdered at Kigali military camp.

6.5 The elimination of political opponents made it possible to set aside the establishment of the Broad Based Transition Government (BBTG), stipulated in the Arusha Accords, in favour of an Interim Government. The murder of the Belgian soldiers prompted the withdrawal of most of UNAMIR's contingents. Those two events removed the two major obstacles to the pursuit of the massacres.

Formation of the Interim Government

6.6 Making up for the failure of the attempt at a military takeover by certain military personnel, Colonel Théoneste Bagosora and the leaders of the MRND and set up an Interim Government which would aid and abet the continuation of the massacres. The members of the Government were appointed at a meeting held on 8 April. The same day Colonel Théoneste Bagosora then introduced, the individuals chosen to constitute the Interim Government to the military crisis committee. They were almost all members of the MRND and of the "Power" wings of the other political parties. No one of Tutsi descent was included either in the talks or in the new Government.

traquée, arrêtée, agressée sexuellement et tuée par des membres de l'Armée Rwandaise, plus particulièrement ceux de la Garde Présidentielle, du bataillon Para-Commando et du bataillon de Reconnaissance. Parallèlement à cet assassinat, des membres de ces mêmes unités ont arrêté, séquestré et tué des leaders importants de l'opposition. Dans la même matinée, 10 Para-Commandos belges de la MINUAR qui avaient été envoyés à la résidence du Premier Ministre étaient assassinés au camp militaire de Kigali.

6.5 L'élimination des opposants politiques a permis d'écarter la mise en place du Gouvernement de Transition à Base Élargie (G.T.B.E.), prévue aux Accords d'Arusha, au profit d'un Gouvernement Intérimaire. L'assassinat des militaires belges a provoqué le retrait de la majeure partie des contingents de la MINUAR. Ces deux événements ont écarté les deux obstacles majeurs à la poursuite des massacres.

Formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire

6.6 Faisant face à l'échec de la tentative de prise du pouvoir par certains militaires, le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora et les dirigeants du MRND ont formé un Gouvernement Intérimaire qui allait aider et encourager la continuation des massacres. Les membres du Gouvernement ont été désignés lors de la réunion tenue le 8 Avril. Le Colonel Théoneste Bagosora a ensuite présenté au comité militaire de crise, le même jour, les personnes choisies pour composer le Gouvernement Intérimaire. Ces personnes étaient presque toutes issues du MRND et des ailes dites "power" des autres partis politiques. Aucune personnalité d'origine Tutsi n'a été associée aux discussions ou n'a fait partie du nouveau

6.7 Jean Kambanda was appointed Prime Minister of the Interim Government of Rwanda formed on 8 April 1994. The Government was officially sworn in on 9 April 1994. It was composed of 19 cabinet ministers, among them André Rwamakuba and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

6.7 Jean Kambanda a été désigné Premier Ministre du Gouvernement Intérimaire de la République Rwandaise constitué le 8 avril 1994. Le Gouvernement a officiellement prêté serment le 9 avril 1994. Il comptait 19 ministres dont André Rwamakuba et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko.

Perpetration of the Massacres

Commission des massacres

6.8 As of the night of 6 to 7 April, in the capital, elements of the Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion set up roadblocks on the major roads, controlling people's movements. Militiamen soon joined them or set up their own roadblocks. At these places Tutsis or people thought to be Tutsis were summarily executed. Concurrently, groups of soldiers and militiamen scoured the city and murdered civilians.

6.8 Dès la nuit du 6 au 7 avril, dans la capitale, des éléments de la Garde Présidentielle et du bataillon Para-Commando ont érigé des barrages, sur les principaux axes routiers, contrôlant le déplacement de la population. Par la suite, des miliciens se sont joints à eux ou ont érigé leurs propres barrages. A ces endroits, des Tutsi ou des personnes considérées comme telles étaient sommairement exécutées. Parallèlement, des groupes de militaires et de miliciens ont sillonné la ville et se sont livrés à des assassinats de civils.

6.9 As from 7 April 1994, massacres of the Tutsi population and the murder of numerous political opponents were perpetrated throughout the territory of Rwanda. These crimes, which had been planned and prepared for a long time by prominent civilian and military figures who shared the extremist Hutu ideology, were carried out by militiamen, military personnel and gendarmes on the orders and directives of some of these authorities, sometimes by means of pre-established lists. In Butare préfecture, apart from a few exceptions as Nyakizu commune, the massacres did not start until 19 April 1994.

6.9 A partir du 7 avril 1994, des massacres de la population Tutsi et l'assassinat de nombreux opposants politiques ont été commis sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes planifiés et préparés de longue date par des personnalités civiles et militaires partageant l'idéologie hutu extrémiste ont été perpétrés par des miliciens, des militaires et des gendarmes suivant les ordres et les directives de certaines de ces autorités, parfois à l'aide de listes pré-établies. Dans la préfecture de Butare, à quelques rares exceptions dont la commune de Nyakizu, les massacres ne débutèrent qu'après le 19 Avril 1994.

INTERIM GOVERNMENT

6.10 As soon as the Interim Government was formed, numerous Cabinet members supported the plan of extermination in place and took the necessary steps to execute it. They incited the people to eliminate "the enemy and its accomplices", distributed weapons to them, dismissed local government authorities who were opposed to the massacres, replacing them with others who were devoted to the cause, and adopted directives intended to facilitate the massacre of the civilian Tutsi population.

6.11 Already, on 8 April, the new Government summoned all the préfets to a meeting in Kigali for the purpose of assessing the situation in the country at the time. The emergency meeting was held on 11 April 1994 and recorded the participation of all the Government ministers and all the préfets, except those of Butare (Jean Baptiste Habyarimana), Ruhengeri, and Cyangugu. At this meeting, the situation as regards the massacres in each préfecture was analyzed.

6.12 Rather than take immediate action to put an end to the massacres, on 17 April, the Interim Government dismissed several authorities, among them the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyarimana, for their refusal to take part in the massacres so that the killings could spread to the country as a whole,

6.13 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, numerous Cabinet meetings were held successively in Kigali, Gitarama and Gisenyi. During this period, the Prime Minister, Jean Kambanda, and Ministers including Andre Rwamakuba and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko were regularly briefed on the situation in regard to the massacres of the civilian population. On several

6.10 Dès la formation du Gouvernement Intérimaire, plusieurs membres du Cabinet ont adhéré au plan d'extermination mis en place et pris les moyens nécessaires pour l'exécuter. Ils ont incité la population à éliminer "l'ennemi et ses complices", lui ont distribué des armes. Ils ont révoqué des autorités administratives locales opposées aux massacres pour les remplacer par d'autres acquiescées à la cause et ont adopté des directives visant à faciliter les massacres de la population civile Tutsi.

6.11 Dès le 8 avril, le nouveau Gouvernement a convoqué tous les préfets pour une réunion à Kigali, dans le but d'évaluer la situation qui prévalait dans le pays. Cette réunion de crise tenue le 11 avril 1994, a enregistré la participation de tous les ministres, et celle de tous les préfets, exception faite de ceux de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyarimana, de Ruhengeri, et de Cyangugu. Lors de cette réunion, la situation des massacres dans chaque préfecture a été analysée.

6.12 Le 17 avril, au lieu de prendre des mesures immédiates pour mettre fin aux massacres, le gouvernement intérimaire a plutôt limogé plusieurs responsables, dont le préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyarimana, parce qu'ils avaient refusé de prendre part aux massacres et ce, afin que les tueries s'étendent à l'ensemble du pays.

6.13 Entre le 9 avril et 14 juillet 1994, de nombreuses réunions du Conseil des Ministres se sont tenues successivement à Kigali, Gitarama et Gisenyi. Durant cette période le Premier Ministre, Jean Kambanda, les Ministres, dont Andre Rwamakuba et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, étaient régulièrement tenus informés de la situation des massacres de la population occasions during these meetings, the Ministers demanded weapons to distribute in their respective home préfectures, knowing that the weapons would be used in the massacres.

6.14 Between 9 April and 14 July 1994, during these numerous Cabinet meetings, the Interim Government adopted directives and gave instructions to the préfets and the bourgmestres. The decisions, which were then passed on to the general public, were intended to incite, aid and abet the perpetration of the massacres. In order to ensure that the directives and instructions were carried out, Jean Kambanda's Interim Government designated a Minister for each préfecture to be responsible for what was termed 'pacification'. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko was assigned this task for Butare.

6.15 On 27 April 1994, the Interim Government ordered roadblocks to be set up, knowing that the roadblocks were being used to identify the Tutsi and their "accomplices" for the purpose of eliminating them.

6.16 On 25 May 1994, the Interim Government adopted directives concerning the civil self-defence program. Its purpose was to legalize the distribution of weapons to the militiamen on the one hand and to legitimize the massacres of the civilian population on the other. As part of the civil self-defence program, the Interim Government, by ministerial decision, appointed several military officers to lead "self defence committees" established in each préfecture. Some of these officers took an active part in the massacres, including Alphonse Nteziryayo in Butare.

civile. A plusieurs occasions lors de ces reunions, les Ministres ont exigé des armes pour les distribuer dans leur préfecture d'origine, sachant qu'elles seraient utilisées dans les massacres.

6.14 Entre le 9 avril et le 14 juillet 1994, au cours de ces nombreuses reunions du Conseil des Ministres, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives et donne des instructions aux préfets et aux bourgmestres. Ces décisions, répercutées à la population, visaient à inciter, encourager et aider à commettre les massacres. Pour s'assurer de la mise en oeuvre de ces directives et instructions, le Gouvernement Intenmaire de Jean Kambanda a désigné pour chaque préfecture, un Ministre responsable de ce qu'on appelait la pacification. Pauline Nyiramasuhuko devait assumer cette mission à Butare.

6.16 Le 25 mai 1994, le Gouvernement Intérimaire a adopté des directives pour le programme d'auto-defense civile. Ce programme visait à légaliser d'une part la distribution des armes aux miliciens et d'autre part à légitimer les massacres de la population civile. Dans le cadre du programme d'auto-defense civile, le Gouvernement Intérimaire, par décision ministerielle, a nommé plusieurs officiers militaires pour diriger des "Comités d'auto defense" installés dans chaque préfecture. Certains de ces officiers, tels qu'Alphonse Nteziryayo à Butare, ont participe activement aux massacres.

6.17 The massacres of members of the Tutsi population and the murder of the moderate Hutu extended throughout the territory of Rwanda. In every préfecture, local civil and military authorities and militiamen espoused the plan of extermination and followed the directives and orders in order to execute it. They called on the civilian population to eliminate the enemy and its "accomplices". They distributed weapons to civilians and militiamen. They gave orders to commit, aided, abetted and participated in the massacres.

6.18 From April to July 1994, in all the regions of the country, members of the Tutsi population who were fleeing from the massacres on their hills sought refuge in locations they thought would be safe, often on the recommendation of the local civil and military authorities. In numerous of these places, despite the promise that they would be protected by the local civil and military authorities, the refugees were attacked, abducted and massacred, often on the orders or with the complicity of those same authorities.

6.19 Three important factors delayed the start of the massacres in Butare préfecture. Historically, this préfecture had a large Tutsi population living in harmony with the Hutu majority. Since the inception of the multiparty system, the Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominated the political scene in Butare and the Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) played a lesser role in that area than elsewhere in the country. Hence, the Interahamwe

ETENDUE DES MASSACRES

6.17 Les massacres de membres de la population Tutsi et les assassinats des Hutu modérés se sont étendus sur l'ensemble du territoire du Rwanda. Dans chaque préfecture, des autorités locales, civiles et militaires et des miliciens ont adhéré au plan d'extermination et ont suivi les directives et les ordres afin de l'exécuter. Ils ont appelé la population civile à éliminer l'ennemi et ses "complices". Ils ont distribué des armes à des civils et des miliciens. Ils ont ordonné, encouragé, aidé et participé aux massacres.

6.18 D'avril à juillet 1994, dans toutes les régions du pays, des membres de la population Tutsi qui fuyaient les massacres sur leurs collines ont cherché refuge dans des endroits qu'ils croyaient sûrs, souvent sur recommandation des autorités locales, civiles et militaires. Dans plusieurs de ces endroits, malgré la promesse qu'ils seraient protégés par les autorités locales, civiles et militaires, les réfugiés ont été attaqués, enlevés et massacrés, souvent sur les ordres ou avec la complicité de ces mêmes autorités.

6.19 Trois facteurs importants ont retardé le début des massacres dans la préfecture de Butare. Historiquement, cette préfecture comptait une forte représentation de la population Tutsi qui y cohabitait paisiblement avec la majorité Hutu. Depuis le multipartisme, le Parti Social Démocrate (PSD) dominait la scène politique à Butare, le Mouvement républicain national pour la démocratie et le développement (MRND) jouant un rôle moins important par rapport au reste du pays. Ainsi, la structure organizational structure was less elaborate and its membership was smaller. Furthermore, the Préfet of Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana (PSD), the only Préfet of Tutsi descent in the country, had openly opposed the massacres in his préfecture, where he had succeeded in maintaining calm, with a few exceptions, notably Nyakizu commune. Thus, thousands of people, the majority of whom were Tutsi, came from other préfectures to seek refuge in Butare in the days which immediately followed the start of the massacres.

6.20 The country's civil and military leaders became aware of the exceptional situation in Butare. Thus, the Interim Government, of which Pauline Nyaramasuhuko was a member, removed Préfet Habyalimana from office, and incited the people to get involved in the massacres. Préfet Habyalimana was subsequently arrested and was never seen again. Moreover, elements of the Army and Interahamwe militiamen were sent to Butare as reinforcements to start the massacres.

6.21 On 19 April 1994, the swearing-in ceremony in Butare for the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, was the occasion of a large gathering, which had been announced and organized by the Interim Government. On that occasion, President Théodore Sindikubwabo made an inflammatory speech, openly and explicitly calling on the people of Butare to follow the example of the other préfectures and begin the massacres. He violently denounced the "banyira ntibindeba", meaning those who did not feel concerned. He asked them to "get out of the way" and "let us work?". Prime Minister Jean Kambanda, who subsequently took the floor, did not contradict the President of the Republic.

organisationnelle des Interahamwe y était moins élaborée et ses adhérents moins nombreux. En outre, le Préfet de Butare, Jean Baptiste Habyalimana, (PSD), seul préfet d'origine Tutsi dans le pays, s'était ouvertement opposé aux massacres dans sa préfecture et avait réussi à y maintenir le calme, à quelques exceptions près, parmi lesquelles, la commune de Nyakizu. Aussi, des milliers de personnes, en majorité Tutsi, venues d'autres préfectures, avaient cherché refuge à Butare dès les premiers jours qui ont suivi le début des massacres.

6.20 Les dirigeants civils et militaires du pays ont pris conscience de la situation particulière qui régnait à Butare. Ainsi le Gouvernement Intérimaire, dont Pauline Nyaramasuhuko était membre, a révoqué le Préfet Habyalimana et a incité les populations à s'impliquer dans les massacres. Par la suite, le Préfet Habyalimana a été arrêté et n'a jamais été revu depuis. En outre, des éléments de l'armée et des miliciens Interahamwe ont été envoyés en renfort pour commencer les massacres.

6.21 Le 19 avril 1994, la cérémonie d'investiture du nouveau Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, à Butare, a donné lieu à un grand rassemblement annoncé et organisé par le Gouvernement Intérimaire. A cette occasion, le Président Theodore Sindikubwabo a prononcé un discours incendiaire, appelant ouvertement et explicitement la population de Butare à suivre l'exemple des autres préfectures et à commencer les massacres. Il a violemment dénoncé les "Banyira Ntibindeba", autrement dit ceux qui ne se sentent pas concernés. Il leur a demandé "qu'ils cèdent la place" et "qu'ils nous laissent travailler". Le Premier Ministre Jean Kambanda a ensuite pris la parole et n'a pas contredit le Président de la République.

6.22 Because they were present at the ceremony and did not dissociate themselves from the statements made by the President of the Republic, the members of the Government, including Jean Kambanda and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, prominent politicians such as Edouard Karemera, and several bourgmestres, including Joseph Kanyabashi, gave a clear signal to the people that the massacres were ordered and condoned by the Government. Further, Joseph Kanyabashi, as the dean of the bourgmestres of Butare, in the presence of the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, made a speech in support of the President of the Republic, assuring him that his instructions would be heeded. Shortly thereafter, the massacres of Tutsis began in the préfecture.

6.23 The next day, two military planes landed in Butare with numerous Presidential Guard and Para-Commando Battalion soldiers on board. These soldiers, in tandem with the Interahamwe of Butare, took part in murdering and massacring civilians, notably the former Queen of Rwanda, Rosalie Gicanda, a historical symbol for all Tutsi.

6.24 In the days which followed the unleashing of the massacres, Interahamwe from outside the préfecture, notably from Kigali and Gitarama, came in to reinforce their fellow militiamen in Butare in perpetrating the massacres. This included a detachment of Interahamwe which was accompanying their Chairman, Robert Kajuga.

6.25 On 20 April 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko asked the new Préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, for military assistance to proceed with the massacres in her home commune, Ngoma. Sylvain Nsabimana

6.22 Par leur présence lors de cette cérémonie et en ne se dissociant pas des propos tenus par le Président de la République, les membres du Gouvernement, dont Jean Kambanda et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, des personnalités politiques telles que Edouard Karemera et plusieurs bourgmestres dont Joseph Kanyabashi, ont clairement indiqué à la population que les massacres étaient ordonnés et cautionnés par le Gouvernement. D'ailleurs, Joseph Kanyabashi, en sa qualité de doyen des bourgmestres de Butare et en présence du nouveau Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, a prononcé un discours pour soutenir le Président de la République et l'assurer que ses instructions seraient suivies. Peu après, les massacres de Tutsi ont commencé dans la préfecture.

6.23 Le lendemain, deux avions militaires ont atterri à Butare, avec à leur bord des dizaines de militaires de la Garde Présidentielle et du Bataillon Para-Commando. Ces militaires ont participé aux côtés des Interahamwe de Butare, aux meurtres et aux massacres de civils, parmi lesquels, l'ancienne Reine du Rwanda, Rosalie Gicanda, symbole historique pour tous les Tutsi.

6.25 Le 20 avril 1994, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko a demandé au nouveau préfet, Sylvain Nsabimana, de lui fournir une assistance militaire pour procéder aux massacres dans sa commune d'origine, agreed to her request and ordered the military authorities to provide her the necessary reinforcements.

6.26 Following 20 April and the start of the massacres, civil servants and political appointees who did not approve or participate with enough zeal in the killings of Tutsis, were dismissed by the authorities. Joseph Kanyabashi and Sylvain Nsabimana were responsible for such dismissals.

6.27 From 20 April the massacres became widespread within the préfecture. As in all the regions of the country throughout this period, tutsis were killed where they had sought refuge, thinking that the authorities would protect them.

Muganza commune and Kubuye Hill

6.28 Kabuye hill is located in President Sindikubwabo's home commune of Ndora, very near Muganza commune, of which Elie Ndayambaje, an influential MRND party member, was Bourgmestre from 1983 to 1992. Although he had officially resigned from his position as Bourgmestre, Elie Ndayambaje remained an influential figure in the commune up until 1994. As a result of the Government's appeals and urging on 19 April 1994 to begin the massacres, Elie Ndayambaje became the de facto Bourgmestre in order to see through the massacres in the region.

6.29 On 19 April 1994, houses were set on fire in Kibayi secteur, Muganza commune. Men, women and children, the majority of whom were Tutsi, fled with their belongings and gathered at the Muganza commune offices. From there, they left for Ngoma. Sylvain Nsabimana acquiesced to his demand and ordered the military authorities to provide him with the necessary reinforcements.

6.26 Après le 20 avril et le début des massacres, les fonctionnaires et les responsables politiques qui n'approuvaient pas les tueries de Tutsi ou qui n'y participaient pas avec suffisamment de zèle ont été limogés par les autorités. Joseph Kanyabashi et Sylvain Nsabimana étaient responsables de tels limogeages.

6.27 A partir du 20 avril, les massacres se sont propagés dans la préfecture. Comme dans toutes les régions du pays pendant cette période, les Tutsi ont été tués là où ils avaient cherché refuge en espérant qu'ils seraient protégés par les autorités.

Commune de Muganza et la colline de Kubuye

6.29 Le 19 avril 1994, dans la commune de Muganza, des maisons du secteur de Kibayi ont été incendiées. Des hommes, des femmes et des enfants, en majorité Tutsi, ont pris la fuite avec leurs biens et se sont regroupés au bureau communal de Muganza.

6.30 On 20 April 1994, Elie Ndayambaje took communal policemen to Gisagara. Teaming up with soldiers, they arrested the refugees and took them to the neighboring hill, which was called Kabuye. The soldiers and communal police separated the Tutsi from the other refugees and forced them to relinquish their traditional tools.

6.30 Le 20 avril 1994, Elie Ndayambaje a conduit des policiers a Gisagara. Ils se sont joints à des militaires pour arrêter les réfugiés et les conduire sur une colline voisine appelée Kabuye. Les militaires et les policiers communaux ont séparé les Tutsi des autres réfugiés et les ont forcés à se dessaisir de leurs outils traditionnels.

6.31 On 22 April 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompanied by communal policemen, gendarmes, soldiers and civilians armed with traditional tools and weapons, attacked the Tutsi refugees who had gathered at Kabuye. Numerous Tutsis were killed or wounded. During the night, armed civilians surrounded the survivors and prevented them from escaping.

6.31 Le 22 avril 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, accompagné de policiers communaux, de gendarmes, de militaires et de civils munis d'armes et d'outils traditionnels, ont attaqué les réfugiés Tutsi qui avaient été regroupés à Kabuye. De nombreux Tutsi ont été tués ou blessés. Pendant la nuit, des civils armés ont encerclé les survivants et les ont empêchés de s'échapper.

6.32 On 23 and 24 April 1994, the attacks on the Tutsi refugees at Kabuye continued. Elie Ndayambaje transported the attackers to Kabuye and issued them weapons. Elie Ndayambaje threw grenades into the crowd of refugees. During these attacks, numerous Tutsi were killed or wounded.

Au cours de ces attaques de nombreux Tutsi ont été tués ou blessés.

6.33 En juin 1994, Elie Ndayambaje a incité la population à tuer les tutsis.

6.34 As well between April and June 1994, Elie Ndayambaje assisted Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, the official in charge of civil defense for Butare préfecture, in supervising the training of militiamen and the distribution of weapons to them.

6.34 De même, entre avril et juin 1994, Elie Ndayambaje, a assisté le Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, responsable de la défense civile pour la préfecture de Butare, dans la supervision de l'entraînement des miliciens et la distribution des armes.

6.36 In June 1994, while the massacres were continuing in the region, Jean Kambanda visited Muganza commune and met with Elie Ndayambaje, among others. By his presence and by not denouncing the massacres he observed, Jean Kambanda confirmed in the eyes of the people that the killings were condoned by the Government.

6.36 En juin 1994, Jean Kambanda a visité la commune de Muganza où il a rencontré, entre autres, Elie Ndayambaje, alors que les massacres continuaient dans la région. Par sa présence et en ne dénonçant pas les massacres qu'il avait constatés Jean Kambanda a confirmé à la population que ces tueries étaient cautionnées par le Gouvernement.

6.37 As from 20 April, in Muganza commune and the surrounding area, Elie Ndayambaje ordered, supervised and participated in massacres of the Tutsi population, committed by militiamen, soldiers, communal policemen and communal authorities.

6.37 Dès le 20 avril, dans la Commune de Muganza et la région avoisinante, Elie Ndayambaje a ordonné, supervisé et participé aux massacres de la population tutsi, commis par des miliciens, des militaires, des policiers communaux et des autorités communales.

6.38 Despite these crimes, Elie Ndayambaje was appointed Bourgmeister of Muganza on 20 June 1994 by the Interim Government led by Jean Kambanda.

6.38 Malgré ces crimes, Elie Ndayambaje a été nommé le 20 juin 1994, Bourgmeister de Muganza par le Gouvernement Intérimaire de Jean Kambanda.

6.39 The entire préfecture of Butare was the scene of massacres of the Tutsi population involving Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalome Arskne Ntahobali, as well as Elie Ndayambaje in the area of Muganza.

6.39 L'ensemble de la Préfecture de Butare fut le théâtre de massacres de la population Tutsi, auxquels ont participé Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Joseph Kanyabashi, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, à l'exemple d'Elie Ndayambaje dans la région de Muganza.

President Habyarimana, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre of Nyakizu commune and chairman of the MRND for Nyakizu, made a speech calling on the civilians to eliminate all the Tutsi in the secteur.

6.41 On 15 April, after having distributed weapons, Ladislav Ntaganzwa ordered, supervised and participated in an attack on Tutsi refugees at Cyahinda parish, perpetrated by civilians, communal police and gendarmes. On 18 April, after a visit from President Theodore Sindikubwabo, who incited the inhabitants to exterminate the refugees at Cyahinda parish, Ladislav Ntaganzwa ordered and led the massacre of those who had survived the first attack.

Ngoma commune

6.42 During the month of April 1994, thousands of Tutsi refugees gathered in various locations in Ngoma commune, such as Kabakobwa cellule, Matyazo clinic and Ngoma Church, often on the recommendation of Joseph Kanyabashi, the long serving Bourgmestre, who had promised to protect them. Then, Joseph Kanyabashi ordered and supervised the massacres of these refugees by communal civil servants, soldiers and militiamen.

6.43 In April and May 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi, Andre Rwamakuba and Arsène Shalome Ntahobali went to the Butare University Hospital in Ngoma, accompanied by soldiers or militiamen acting under their orders. At this place, they selected, abducted and killed Tutsi who had sought refuge or treatment there.

du President Habyarimana, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Bourgmestre et president du parti MRND de la commune de Nyakizu a fait un discours appelant les civils à éliminer tous les Tutsi du secteur.

6.41 Le 15 avril après avoir distribué des armes, Ladislav Ntaganzwa a ordonné, supervisé et participé à une attaque perpétrée par des civils, des policiers communaux et des gendarmes, contre des Tutsi réfugiés dans la paroisse de Cyahinda. Le 18 avril, après une visite du président Théodore Sindikubwabo au cours de laquelle il a incité les habitants à exterminer les personnes réfugiées dans la paroisse de Cyahinda, Ladislav Ntaganzwa a ordonné et dirigé le massacre de ceux qui avaient survécu à la première attaque.

Commune de Ngoma

6.42 Au cours du mois d'avril 1994, des milliers de réfugiés Tutsi se sont rassemblés à 8 différents endroits de la commune de Ngoma, dont la cellule de Kabakobwa, le dispensaire de Matyazo et l'église de Ngoma, souvent sur recommandation du bourgmestre Joseph Kanyabashi (en poste depuis longtemps) qui leur avait promis de les protéger. Par la suite, Joseph Kanyabashi a ordonné et supervisé les massacres de ces réfugiés perpétrés par des fonctionnaires communaux, des soldats et des miliciens.

6.43 En avril et en mai 1994, Joseph Kanyabashi, André Rwamakuba et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali se sont rendus à l'hôpital universitaire de Butare à Ngoma accompagnés de soldats ou de miliciens qui agissaient sous leurs ordres. A cet endroit, ils ont sélectionné, enlevé et tué des Tutsi qui s'y étaient réfugiés ou y recevaient des soins.

Prifecture Offices

6.44 The prifecture office of Butare was, at the time of the events, located in Butare town itself. As early as 7 April 1994, numerous members of the Tutsi population sought refuge at the prifecture office. From 19 April to July 1994, Interahamwe militiamen and soldiers, sometimes under the supervision of Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalome Ntahobali took advantage of this and repeatedly went to the prifecture office to attack, kidnap and kill the refugees. Préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, although aware of these attacks, did nothing to put an end to them. Furthermore, during this period, Joseph Kanyabashi and Sylvain Nsabimana also ordered and supervised the transfer of refugees from the prifecture Office to various locations within the prifecture, where they were confined, deprived of food beaten or killed.

6.45 The prifecture office was also the location where meetings were held between some of the main authorities of the prifecture and their subordinates. From 20 April to the end of June 1994, President Theodore Sindikubwabo, Ministers Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana and Joseph Kanyabashi met and discussed, among other subjects, the evolution of the massacres in Butare. Upon seeing the remaining refugees at the Prefecture office, several of these authorities publicly and directly called for the elimination of these survivors.

6.46 The search for and elimination of Tutsis also took place throughout the entire prifecture between April and July 1994. During this period Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalome Ntahobali used a roadblock located in front of their house to identify and kill Tutsis. Arsène Shalome

6.44 A l'époque des événements, le Bureau Préfectoral de Butare était situé dans la ville même de Butare. Dès le 7 avril 1994, plusieurs membres de la population Tutsi ont cherché refuge dans l'enceinte du bureau de la Préfecture. A partir du 19 avril jusqu'en juillet 1994, profitant de cette situation, des miliciens Interahamwe et des militaires, parfois sous la supervision de Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalome Ntahobali, se sont rendus à plusieurs reprises à cet endroit pour attaquer, enlever et tuer les réfugiés. Le préfet Sylvain Nsabimana, bien qu'au courant de ces attaques, n'a rien fait pour y mettre un terme définitif. En outre, pendant cette période, Joseph Kanyabashi et Sylvain Nsabimana ont ordonné et supervisé le transfert de réfugiés du bureau préfectoral vers plusieurs endroits de la prifecture, où ils ont été confinés, privés de nourriture, battus ou tués.

6.45 Le bureau préfectoral était aussi le lieu où se tenaient des réunions entre certains des principaux responsables de la préfecture et leurs subordonnés. Du 20 avril à la fin juin 1994, le président Thkodore Sindikubwabo, les ministres Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana et Joseph Kanyabashi se sont rencontrés et ont discuté, entre autres sujets, de l'évolution des massacres à Butare. A la vue des réfugiés qui restaient encore au bureau de la préfecture, plusieurs de ces autorités ont appelé publiquement et directement à l'élimination de ces survivants.

6.46 La recherche et l'élimination des Tutsis a également eu lieu à travers toute la prifecture entre avril et juillet 1994. Au cours de cette période, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali

OTHER VIOLATIONS OF INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN LAW

Ntahobali also traveled throughout the préfecture to locate and kill Tutsis.

6.47 Furthermore, aside from his attacks on members of the Tutsi population during this period, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, assisted by unknown "accomplices", participated in the kidnapping and raping of Tutsi women.

6.48 In May and June 1994, Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo, who was staying at the same hotel as Robert Kajuga in Butare, ordered the Interahamwe to search for the Tutsis and kill them.

6.49 In mid-June 1994 Alphonse Nteziryayo and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali together attempted to prevent the evacuation of about 300 orphans and their adult supervisors. Overcoming the opposition of Red Cross International personnel and local authorities they selected about 40 adults whom they believed to be Tutsi and forced them to remain in Rwanda.

6.50 Between April and July 1994, to make sure that the massacres were carried out in an efficient and unflagging manner, Joseph Kanyabasbi, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo and Pauline Nyiramasuhuko individually or in the presence of one another, not only called on, but also aided and abetted the population to slaughter the Tutsi in Butare préfecture.

ont utilisé un barrage situé devant leur maison pour identifier et tuer des Tutsi. Arsène Shalom Ntahobali s'est également déplacé à travers toute la préfecture pour localiser et tuer les Tutsi.

6.47 Par ailleurs, outre les sévices infligés à des membres de la population Tutsi durant cette période, Arsène Shalom Ntahobali, assisté de complices inconnus, a participé à l'enlèvement et au viol de femmes Tutsi.

6.48 En mai et juin 1994, le Colonel Alphonse Nteziryayo qui logeait au même hôtel que Robert Kajuga à Butare, a ordonné aux Interahamwe de rechercher les Tutsi et de les tuer.

6.49 A la mi-Juin 1994, Alphonse Nteziryayo et Arsène Shalom Ntahobali ont tenté, ensemble, d'empêcher l'évacuation, à partir de Butare, d'environ 300 orphelins et des adultes qui les accompagnaient. Passant outre l'opposition des employés de la Croix Rouge Internationale et des autorités locales, ils ont sélectionné environ 40 adultes qu'ils croyaient Tutsi et les ont forcé à demeurer au Rwanda.

6.50 Entre avril et juillet 1994, aux fins de s'assurer que les massacres étaient exécutés de manière efficace et continue, Joseph Kanyabashi, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo et Pauline Nyiramasuhuko ont, individuellement ou en présence les uns des autres, non seulement appelé, mais aussi aidé et encouragé la population à massacrer les Tutsi dans la préfecture de Butare.

Responsibility

6.51 From April to July 1994, several hundred thousand people were massacred throughout Rwanda. The majority of the victims were killed solely because they were Tutsi or appeared to be Tutsi. The other victims, nearly all Hutu, were killed because they were considered Tutsi accomplices, were linked to them through marriage or were opposed to the extremist Hutu ideology.

6.52 From 7 April 1994 around the country, most of the massacres were perpetrated with the participation, aid and instigation of military personnel, gendarmes and Hutu militiamen. Certain units of the Para-Commando, Reconnaissance and Presidential Guard battalions were the most implicated in these crimes in the capital and in other préfectures, often acting in concert with the militiamen.

6.53 Further, from April to July 1994, in the course of the massacres, some soldiers gave assistance to militiamen, notably by providing them logistical support, i.e. weapons, transport and fuel.

6.54 The massacres and the assaults thus perpetrated were the result of a strategy adopted and elaborated by political, civil and military authorities in the country, at the national as well as the local level, such as Elie Ndayambaje, Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andrck Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa and Shalome Arsbne Ntahobali, who conspired to exterminate the Tutsi population.

6.55 During the events referred to in this indictment, rapes, sexual assaults and other crimes of a sexual nature were widely and

Responsabilité

6.51 D'avril à juillet 1994, plusieurs centaines de milliers de personnes ont été massacrées surtout le territoire du Rwanda. La plupart des victimes ont été tuées pour la seule raison qu'elles étaient des Tutsi ou ressemblaient à des Tutsi. Les autres victimes, surtout des Hutu, ont été tuées parce qu'elles étaient qualifiées de complices des Tutsi, liées à ces derniers par mariage ou opposées à l'idéologie Hutu extrémiste.

6.52 Dès le 7 avril 1994, partout au Rwanda, la plupart des massacres ont été commis avec la participation, l'aide et l'encouragement des militaires, des gendarmes et des miliciens. Certaines unités des Bataillon Para-Commando, de Reconnaissance et de la Garde Présidentielle ont été les plus impliquées dans la commission de ces crimes dans la capitale et dans d'autres préfectures du pays, agissant souvent de concert avec les miliciens.

6.54 Les massacres et les agressions ainsi perpétrés furent le résultat d'une stratégie adoptée, élaborée et mise en exécution par des autorités politiques, civiles et militaires du pays, tant au niveau national que local, dont Elie Ndayambaje, Joseph Kanyabashi, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, Andrck Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa et Shalome Arsbne Ntahobali, qui se sont entendus pour exterminer la population Tutsi.

6.55 Lors des événements auxquels se réfère le présent acte d'accusation, des viols, des agressions sexuelles et d'autres crimes notoriously committed throughout Rwanda. These crimes were perpetrated by, among others, soldiers, militiamen and gendarmes against the Tutsi population, in particular Tutsi women and girls.

6.56 Military officers, members of the Interim Government and local authorities such as Elie Ndayambaje, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Joseph Kanyabashi and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali aided and abetted their subordinates and others in carrying out the massacres of the Tutsi population and its accomplices. Without the complicity of the local and national civil and military authorities, the principal massacres would not have occurred.

6.57 Knowing that massacres of the civilian population were being committed, political and military authorities, including Elie Ndayambaje, took no measures to stop them. On the contrary, they refused to intervene to control and appeal to the population as long as a cease-fire had not been declared. This categorical refusal was communicated to the Special Rapporteur via the Chief of Staff of Rwandan Army, Major-General Augustin Bizimungu.

6.58 Elie Ndayambaje, in his position of authority, acting in concert with, notably Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Joseph Kanyabashi and Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, participated in the planning, preparation or execution of a common scheme, strategy or plan, to commit the atrocities set forth above. The crimes were committed by him personally, by persons he assisted or by his de nature sexuelle ont été commis, d'une façon généralisée et notoire sur tout le territoire du Rwanda. Ces crimes ont été perpétrés, entre autres, par des militaires, des miliciens et des gendarmes contre la population Tutsi, en particulier des femmes et des jeunes filles Tutsi.

6.56 Des officiers militaires, des membres du Gouvernement Intérimaire et des autorités locales dont, Elie Ndayambaje, Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Joseph Kanyabashi et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali ont aidé et encouragé leurs subordonnés et des tiers à commettre les massacres de la population Tutsi et de ses "complices". Sans la complicité des autorités locales et nationales, civiles et militaires, les principaux massacres n'auraient pas eu lieu.

6.57 Sachant que des massacres étaient commis contre la population civile, des autorités politiques et militaires dont Elie Ndayambaje, n'ont pris aucune disposition pour les arrêter. Au contraire ils ont refusé d'intervenir pour contrôler et faire appel à la population tant qu'un accord de cessez-le-feu ne serait pas ordonné. Ce refus catégorique a été transmis au Rapporteur spécial par l'intermédiaire du Chef de l'Etat-Major de l'Armée Rwandaise, le Major-Général Augustin Bizimungu.

6.58 Elie Ndayambaje dans sa position d'autorité, en agissant de concert avec notamment Pauline Nyiramasuhuko, André Rwamakuba, Sylvain Nsabimana, Alphonse Nteziryayo, Ladislav Ntaganzwa, Joseph Kanyabashi et Shalome Arsène Ntahobali, a participé à la planification, la préparation ou l'exécution d'un plan, d'une stratégie ou d'un dessein commun, afin de perpétrer les atrocités énoncées ci-dessus.
