THIS TRIAL CHAMBER of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the former Yugoslavia since 1991 (“Tribunal”) is seised of the “Defence Motion Requesting Provisional Release on the Grounds of Compassion with Confidential Annex”, filed confidentially on 23 May 2007 (“Motion”) by the Šainović Defence, and hereby renders its decision thereon.

1. On 4 May 2007, Šainović (“Applicant”) filed a motion for provisional release.¹ In its decision of 22 May 2007, the Trial Chamber denied that motion, reasoning that the Applicant had not satisfied the Trial Chamber that he would return for the continuation of the trial.² The Trial Chamber stated, however, that its decision was without prejudice to the Applicant’s entitlement to move the Chamber for provisional release of a more limited duration on compassionate grounds.³

2. The Applicant now moves the Trial Chamber for temporary provisional release on compassionate grounds for a period not exceeding seven (7) days, starting from the date of this decision, and subject to the same terms and conditions under which he was previously granted provisional release or which the Trial Chamber considers appropriate.⁴ The grounds on which the Applicant bases his motion are the following: (a) the Applicant’s mother and sole surviving parent is 93 years of age in a frail condition, is suffering from serious ill health,⁵ and her prognosis is highly uncertain;⁶ (b) the Applicant’s mother’s serious ill health prevents her from travelling to The Hague to visit him;⁷ and (c) granting temporary provisional release to the Applicant may be his last opportunity to see his mother.⁸

3. The Applicant submits that factors constituting “special circumstances” have previously warranted temporary provisional release for a fixed period in other cases, and that the Applicant’s mother’s serious ill health constitutes such a special circumstance.⁹ The Applicant reiterates his prior full compliance with “every order, condition and decision of this Tribunal during both

[previous] provisional release and otherwise”, and that the Government of the Republic of Serbia has renewed its guarantees that the Applicant will return from Serbia for trial.¹⁰

4. In a confidential addendum to his Motion, the Applicant specifies the location in Belgrade, Republic of Serbia, to which he would propose to travel, should his Motion be granted, as detailed in the confidential annex to this Decision, and adds that he would not leave the city of Belgrade under any circumstances and that “his presence at the said location would fulfil the purpose of his provisional release.”¹¹

5. The Prosecution filed its response to the Motion on 4 June 2007,¹² in which it stated its “general opposition” to the provisional release of any of the six accused in this case at this stage but recognised the Trial Chamber’s discretion nevertheless to grant provisional release on compassionate grounds.¹³ The Prosecution submits that, should the Applicant be granted provisional release, the Trial Chamber should consider requiring “electronic monitoring and/or 24-hour security details.”¹⁴

6. The Trial Chamber is in receipt of a letter from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of The Netherlands, in which The Netherlands – in its capacity as host country – represents that it has no objection to the Applicant’s provisional release.¹⁵ The Trial Chamber is also in receipt of the confidential “Conclusion of the Government of the Republic of Serbia”, dated 22 March 2007, confirming that it will respect all orders made by this Trial Chamber in respect of the provisional release of the Applicant.

7. While it is now settled law that Rule 65 governs provisional release generally,¹⁶ motions for provisional release on compassionate grounds are governed by a distinct set of principles. Rule 65(B), which governs provisional release during trial, makes no mention of compassionate grounds, although the jurisprudence of the Tribunal has recognised that Chambers enjoy a measure of discretion when considering motions pursuant to Rule 65. In the Popović case, the Appeals

Chamber stated that “[t]he weight attached to humanitarian reasons as justification for provisional release will differ from one defendant to another depending upon all of the circumstances of a particular case” and that “[i]t was reasonable for the Trial Chamber not to accord much weight to the personal circumstances of the Appellant upon remaining unsatisfied that he did not pose a serious flight risk if released”.¹⁷ The Trial Chamber takes this to mean that, even if an accused has failed to meet the requirements of Rule 65(B), his personal circumstances could nevertheless be so compelling as to merit granting the application for provisional release.

8. In a prior decision, the Trial Chamber varied the conditions of the Applicant’s provisional release at that time so that he could visit his mother, and so that he could accompany his mother to his father’s grave during a requiem.¹⁸ The Trial Chamber noted in that prior decision that these factors were similar to others on which it had based decisions and that it was in the interests of justice to do so.¹⁹ Those circumstances are also similar to those before the Trial Chamber in this Motion.

9. Likewise, the Appeals Chamber has previously granted motions for provisional release based on compassionate grounds, albeit pursuant to Rule 65(I) of the Rules, which expressly provides that “special circumstances” may warrant provisional release.²⁰ Provisional release has been granted to a convicted person pending an appeal to attend memorial services for his daughter and brother and to observe the traditional periods of mourning with family and community members.²¹ In the Krnojelac Decision to which the Applicant refers, the Appeals Chamber granted provisional release to an accused so that he could visit his brother, whose terminal illness was recognised as a special circumstance.²²

²² Krnojelac Decision, pp. 2, 3.

10. In the Kordić and Čerkez case, an accused on appeal was denied provisional release to visit his mother who was in extremely poor health, and whose death was believed to be imminent.²³ The motion was dismissed for failing to meet the requirements set out in Rule 65(I), as the accused was considered a flight risk.²⁴ However, the Appeals Chamber added that “in case of exceptional circumstances such as e.g. a substantial deterioration of the health conditions of Dario Kordić’s mother, the Defence may submit a detailed request for a temporarily controlled visit to his mother.”²⁵ The Appeals Chamber has therefore recognised that, notwithstanding a finding that an accused does not meet the formal requirements for provisional release pursuant to Rule 65, compassionate concerns may nevertheless permit a more limited provisional release.

11. In this case, the Applicant has been denied provisional release on the grounds that he did not satisfy the Trial Chamber that he would return for the continuation of the trial.²⁶ Notwithstanding that determination, the Trial Chamber considers that it is appropriate that the Applicant be granted provisional release for a limited duration on compassionate grounds, subject to the conditions ordered. In light of the 24-hour surveillance of the Applicant, the Trial Chamber does not consider that monitoring him electronically is necessary.

12. In cases similar to the instant case where limited provisional release has been granted on compassionate grounds, the period for which an accused has been provisionally released has varied from three to five days.²⁷ The Trial Chamber therefore considers that granting the Applicant provisional release on compassionate grounds for a period of five (5) days is consistent with the practice of the Tribunal.

²³ Prosecutor v. Kordić and Čerkez, Case No. IT-95-14/2-A, Decision on Dario Kordić’s Request for Provisional Release, 19 April 2004 (“Kordić Decision”), paras 5, 11.

²⁴ Kordić Decision, paras 9–10.

²⁵ Kordić Decision, para. 12.

²⁶ 22 May Decision, para. 12.

²⁷ In the Krnjelac decision on which the applicant relies, the accused was granted only five days despite requesting 15 days. In Prosecutor v. Limaj et al., Case No. IT-03-66-A, Decision Granting Provisional Release to Haradin Bala to Attend His Daughter’s Memorial Service, 20 April 2006, the accused was granted five days; in Prosecutor v. Haradinaj et al., Case No. IT-04-84-PT, Decision on Urgent Defence Motion on Behalf of Ramush Haradinaj for Provisional Release, 16 April 2005, the accused was granted three days; in Prosecutor v. Hadžihasanovic et al., Case No. IT-01-47-T, Decision Granting Provisional Release to Enver Hadžihasanovic, 18 January 2004, the accused was granted three days; in Prosecutor v. Mrkšić et al., Case No. IT-95-13/1-PT, Decision Pursuant to Rule 65 Granting Mrkšić’s Request to Attend His Mother’s Funeral, 30 January 2004, the accused was granted three days; and, in Prosecutor v. Hadžihasanovic et al., Case No. IT-01-47-T, Decision Pursuant to Rule 65 Granting Amir Kubura Authorisation to Attend His Mother’s Funeral, 12 March 2004, the accused was granted three days.

13. For the foregoing reasons, and pursuant to Articles 20 and 21 of the Statute and Rules 54 and 65 of the Rules, the Trial Chamber hereby GRANTS the Motion in part and ORDERS as follows:
