THIS TRIAL CHAMBER of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the former Yugoslavia since 1991 (“Tribunal”) is seised of “Sreten Lukic’s Motion for Provisional Release During Winter Recess on Grounds of Compassion,” filed confidentially by the Defence of Accused Sreten Lukić (“Accused”) on 4 December 2007 (“Motion”), and hereby renders its decision thereon.

Brief procedural background.

1. On 5 December 2006, the Chamber denied the six Accused’s joint application for provisional release over the winter recess.<sup>1</sup> The Appeals Chamber affirmed this decision.<sup>2</sup> On 22 May 2007, the Chamber denied the application of the Accused for provisional release over the summer recess, holding, inter alia, that he had not demonstrated how the circumstances that led to the denial of his application in December 2006 had changed so as to materially affect the approach taken by the Chamber at that time. The Chamber left open the possibility that the Accused could apply for temporary provisional release on compassionate or humanitarian grounds.<sup>3</sup>

2. Following this denial, the Accused applied on 29 May 2007 for temporary provisional release arguing, inter alia, that the poor health conditions of his father and wife justified his request for relief.<sup>4</sup> On 25 June 2007, the Chamber denied this motion, reasoning that the Accused had not demonstrated that the health conditions of his father and wife precluded their travel to the Hague and that it was therefore unnecessary for the Accused to travel to Belgrade in order to visit with them.<sup>5</sup> On 4 July 2007, the Chamber denied the Accused’s motion for reconsideration on this matter on the basis that the Accused has demonstrated that his father’s health precludes him from travelling to The Hague; however, the Applicant has failed to demonstrate how his provisional release to Belgrade, as requested, would enable him to visit his father, who resides in Višegrad (Bosnia and Herzegovina) and is unfit to travel. The Chamber has simply not been furnished with the basic, requisite information to enable it to dispose of the Motion favourably, despite its diligent efforts to furnish the Applicant with opportunities to this effect.<sup>6</sup>

Submissions

3. In the Motion, the Accused requests temporary provisional release of seven days on compassionate or humanitarian grounds and sets forth various arguments in support thereof.<sup>7</sup> The Trial Chamber is in receipt of guarantees from the Republic of Serbia confirming that it will respect all orders made by the Chamber in respect of the provisional release of the Accused.<sup>8</sup> For the purposes of the present decision, the Chamber assumes that The Netherlands, in its capacity as host country, would have no objection to the Accused's provisional release.

4. On 7 December 2007, the Prosecution responded to the Motion, expressing its general opposition to the provisional release of the Accused at this stage of the proceedings. However, the Prosecution recognises that there is precedent for temporary provisional release in cases of a compelling showing of unusual or special circumstances on compassionate or humanitarian grounds, a determination that, in the view of the Prosecution, is best left to the discretion of the Chamber. Should the Motion be granted, the Prosecution requests the Chamber to order 24-hour electronic surveillance of the Accused and that he be ordered to return to the United Nations Detention Unit no later than five days prior to the resumption of the trial.<sup>9</sup>

Discussion

5. The Chamber has carefully considered all the submissions of the parties in relation to this matter and has taken all relevant factors bearing upon the issue of provisional release into account. While it is now settled law that Rule 65 of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence of the Tribunal governs provisional release generally,<sup>10</sup> motions for temporary provisional release on compassionate or humanitarian grounds are governed by a distinct set of principles. Rule 65(B), which governs provisional release during trial, makes no mention of compassionate or humanitarian grounds. However, the jurisprudence of the Tribunal has recognised that Chambers enjoy a measure of discretion when considering motions pursuant to Rule 65, and that, notwithstanding a finding that an accused does not meet the formal requirements for provisional release pursuant to Rule 65, compassionate or humanitarian concerns may nevertheless permit a more limited provisional release.<sup>11</sup>

6. The Accused points to a number of factors in support of his request for relief: his purported voluntary surrender to the Tribunal; the fact that he has been granted provisional release on two prior occasions and complied with all the orders in connection thereto; and the guarantees from the Republic of Serbia ("Serbia").<sup>12</sup>

7. [See confidential annex.]

8. The Accused was on provisional release during the pre-trial phase of the proceedings and was released during the summer recess last year (July 2006). The Accused has therefore had adequate opportunities to tend personally to pressing personal matters, and the Chamber does not consider that circumstances have materially changed so as to justify a temporary provisional release on compassionate or humanitarian grounds at this point in time.

9. For the foregoing reasons and pursuant to Rules 54 and 65, the Trial Chamber hereby DENIES the Motion.
