HEREBY ISSUES THE FOLLOWING DECISION:

I. BACKGROUND

1. The present Kallon Defence Motion is their fourth in a series of motions objecting to the form of the Indictment or the scope of the evidence admitted there under.¹ The first motion, challenging the form of the Indictment directly, was dismissed on procedural grounds.² The second Motion, requesting reconsideration of the Trial Chamber's initial decision, was also dismissed.³ The third Motion requested leave to bring a motion to exclude evidence in excess of the page-limit.⁴ The Chamber dismissed the Motion and suggested that a request to exclude evidence could have been more clearly presented in an appendix to a motion of ordinary length.⁵ Following this Decision, the Kallon Defence filed the present Motion.

II. SUBMISSIONS OF THE PARTIES

1. Kallon Defence Motion

2. The Kallon Defence Motion argues that the Chamber should exclude 104 grouped portions of testimony from 23 different Prosecution witnesses. The Kallon Defence submits that evidence outside the scope of the indictment may be excluded if its admission would prejudice the accused, even when the motion is made at a point in time much later than when the evidence was originally tendered.⁶

3. The Defence advances four grounds upon which it argues that the impugned evidence ought to be excluded: Ground 1, "the allegation cannot be reasonably related to the Indictment";⁷ Ground

2, “an allegation of physical perpetration by the Accused is not pleaded in the Indictment”;⁸ Ground 3, “insufficient pre-trial notice of material facts pertaining to all other allegations”;⁹ and, Ground 4, “the evidence is not relevant to any charge in the Indictment”.¹⁰

4. The Kallon Defence submits that although objections were not raised, in most cases, when the impugned evidence was admitted, the Second Accused has not waived his right to object to the admission of the impugned evidence.¹¹ The Kallon Defence submits that it brought the present Motion at the earliest opportunity, because the full impact of the evidence was only discernable at the end of the Prosecution case.¹² The Kallon Defence argues that its Motion has not been brought so long after the admission of the evidence, without proper explanation for the delay, that the burden should shift to the Second Accused to prove that he has been prejudiced in the preparation of his defence by the admission of the impugned evidence.¹³

2. Prosecution Response

5. The Prosecution responds that the Kallon Defence Motion should be dismissed because it raises objections to the form of the Indictment, which the Chamber has already indicated will be considered only at the close of the trial.¹⁴ In the alternative, the Prosecution responds that the impugned evidence is relevant and admissible,¹⁵ and that the Indictment informs the Accused in sufficient detail of the charges he must meet.¹⁶

6. The Prosecution points out that the Kallon Defence has never sought an adjournment to prepare for the testimony of any witness, and had the opportunity to cross-examine Prosecution witnesses in relation to all allegations.¹⁷ The evidence of Witnesses TF1-360, TF1-361, TF1-366, TF1-367 and TF1-371 was called following Prosecution motions, granted by the Chamber, for their addition as witnesses. The Prosecution submits that these motions gave notice of the material facts on which the witnesses would testify in sufficient time for the Accused to prepare his defence.¹⁸

3. Kallon Reply

7. The Kallon Defence replies that its Motion does not seek the dismissal of the Indictment on the basis of defects therein.¹⁹

8. Regarding the Prosecution's submissions on the scope of relevant evidence in international criminal law, the Kallon Defence replies that evidence which serves only to give context has no probative value because it cannot form for the basis for any conviction. As such, the prejudicial effect of such evidence outweighs its probative value.²⁰ In respect of Ground 3, the Kallon Defence asserts that the material facts in the impugned evidence were not contained in the Witness Statements of TF1-360, TF1-361, TF1-366, TF1-367 and TF1-371.²¹ In relation to the Prosecution's response on Ground 4, the Kallon Defence replies that "where the particulars of an allegation are not provided by each witness, the Chamber is in no position to find two pieces of evidence corroboratory."²² The Kallon Defence submits that it did, in fact, raise contemporaneous objections to some of the impugned portions of the testimony of Witness TF1-015,²³ and that it also raised objections during the Rule 98 oral submissions to portions of the impugned evidence.²⁴

III. APPLICABLE LAW

1. The Relevance of the Impugned Testimony and its Relationship to the Indictment

9. This Chamber has consistently observed that under Rule 89(C), relevance is the sole criterion for the admissibility of evidence at this Tribunal.²⁵ Rule 89(C) vests the Chamber with discretionary power to admit any relevant evidence and to exclude evidence that is not relevant. We have also emphasised that in contrast to Rule 89(C) of the ICTY and the ICTR Rules, Rule 89(C) of the

10. In the Chamber's opinion, the threshold of probity required under Rule 89(C) before an individual piece of evidence may be admitted is low. In this regard, the Appeals Chamber has held that while the "probative value of particular items in isolation may be minimal, the very fact that they have some relevance means that they must be available" for consideration by the Chamber.²⁸ In our Ruling on the Gbao Application to Exclude Evidence of Prosecution Witness Mr. Koker, we opined that "individual pieces of evidence that may at first appear to have little probative value may later be of greater probative value when assessed in conjunction with all of the other evidence before the Court."²⁹

11. We again opine that evidence is admissible if it bears on facts in issue,³⁰ such as the role of the Accused in the RUF,³¹ the existence of a joint criminal enterprise, the RUF command structure, or the existence of de facto authority or control over subordinates. Evidence which provides the Chamber with background and context in which to understand the conflict or the testimony of a Witness is also admissible.³² Of course, it is trite law that evidence is admissible if it is relevant to any Count in the Indictment.

12. Furthermore, it is settled law that in order to obtain a conviction on any Count alleging a crime against humanity, the Prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the conduct in question was part of a widespread or systematic attack on a civilian population.³³ In addition, Rule 93 allows the admission of evidence tending to prove a consistent pattern of conduct relevant to serious violations of international humanitarian law.³⁴ Therefore, such evidence is admissible, even if no conviction may lie in respect of the underlying conduct itself.³⁵

2. Exclusion of Evidence for Lack of Notice

13. This Chamber acknowledges that it is now settled law that in addition to pleading the charges against an Accused in the Indictment, the Prosecutor must “state the material facts underpinning the charges in the indictment, but not the evidence by which such material facts are to be proven.”³⁶ We also take it for granted that the requirement that an Accused receive adequate notice of the allegations against him in order to prepare his defence is a component of the Accused’s right to a fair trial.³⁷ Hence it is mandatory that the Prosecution must plead material facts with a sufficient degree of specificity. The degree of specificity required, however, will depend on the context of each case.³⁸

14. This is the first time a Motion for the exclusion of testimonial evidence on the ground of lack of notice to the Accused of the material facts underpinning the charges laid in the Indictment has come before this Chamber for consideration. The Chamber has, however, considered and disposed of applications for the exclusion of evidence on the basis that it contained new allegations of which the Accused, allegedly, did not have notice.³⁹ In this regard, the overriding principle that has consistently applied by this Chamber is that the Defence shall establish a prima facie case that the impugned evidence contained new allegations in respect of which the Accused had not previously been put on notice, either in the Indictment, in the Prosecution Pre-Trial Brief, Supplemental Pre-Trial Brief, or in other disclosure materials.⁴⁰ In the Chamber's view, a bare allegation by an Accused that the Indictment itself is defective will not suffice. A prima facie case must first be made out by the Defence and then it will become incumbent upon the Prosecution to respond to the allegation and demonstrate conclusively that the Accused did receive adequate notice of the allegations against him.

15. Where the Chamber finds prima facie that the impugned evidence contains material facts of which the Accused did not receive adequate notice, the Chamber will then proceed to a determination of whether the Accused's ability to prepare his defence has been materially impaired as a result of this failure. In order to protect the right of the Accused to a fair trial, where the defence did not have adequate notice of impugned evidence, the Chamber may, in its discretion, grant an adjournment or exclude the evidence in question.⁴¹

3. The Difference between Evidence which will be Excluded and Evidence which cannot found a Conviction

16. From the preceding analysis, it is clearly the law that evidence may be excluded, in the Chamber's discretion, if it is not relevant or if the accused lacked sufficient notice of the material facts underlying the allegations thereby impairing his ability to prepare his defence. A conviction, on the other hand, may only be entered where the Prosecution has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that the Accused has committed a specific criminal act as charged in the Indictment. While a lack of notice may preclude the Chamber from entering a conviction on an un-pleaded allegation, it is our considered view that evidence which may go to proving an un-pleaded allegation remains admissible if it is relevant under Rule 89(C) to the proof of other allegations in the Indictment or to facts at issue in the proceedings; to the proof of the chapeau requirements for crimes against humanity or the existence of a consistent pattern of conduct relevant to serious violations of international humanitarian law; or, where it provides the Chamber with useful background or contextual information.⁴²

IV. DELIBERATIONS

1. Challenges to the Indictment

17. At the outset, the Chamber wishes to emphasise that the key issue for determination is whether the impugned evidence ought to be excluded from the record. The Chamber is not concerned with a determination of, and makes no finding in that regard, whether a particular piece of impugned testimony would be capable of supporting a conviction for any allegation contained in the Indictment, as pleaded. The Chamber also reiterates that it is trite law that the question of admissibility is distinct from the question of the weight to be accorded to a particular piece of evidence at the judgement phase.⁴³

18. The Chamber considers that the second ground advanced by the Kallon Defence for the exclusion of the impugned evidence is, in fact, an objection to the form of the Indictment. By parity of reasoning, so is the Kallon Defence submission in Grounds 1 and 4 that evidence must be excluded where it goes to proof of an allegation which occurred in a location not specifically listed in the Indictment, but which the Prosecution submits is included in the Indictment by the phrase "locations including".⁴⁴ Consistent with our holding in the Decision on Gbao Request for Leave -

Ntahobali and Nyiramasuhuko*, ICTR-97-21-AR73, Decision on the Appeals by Pauline Nyiramasuhuko and Arsène Shalom Ntahobali on the 'Decision on Defence Urgent Motion to Declare Parts of the evidence of Witnesses RV and QBZ Inadmissible' (AC), 2 July 2004, paras 14-15; *Prosecutor v. Form of Indictment,⁴⁵ the Chamber is precluded from considering the merits of challenges to the form of the Indictment at this stage and will not exclude evidence on this basis.⁴⁶

2. Kallon Defence Grounds 1 and 4 – Relationship to the Indictment and Relevance

19. The Kallon Defence argues that certain evidence is not admissible because it cannot be reasonably related to the Indictment for the following reasons: the conduct alleged is not criminal according to the Statute; a particular location or District is not pleaded in the Indictment as a place where criminal conduct occurred; the Second Accused does not stand charged with a particular Count in the location and/or at the time given by the witness; and, the witness' testimony does not provide a date for the allegation.

20. The Chamber has considered all of the other evidence under Ground 1 that the Kallon Defence submits ought to be excluded as falling outside the scope of the indictment. It is the Chamber's considered opinion that the Kallon Defence objections are misconceived. Without addressing the issue of whether the impugned evidence is capable or not of founding a conviction for one the allegations contained in the Indictment, we find that the impugned portions of testimony, without exception, are relevant under Rule 89(C) for at least one of the following reasons, and are admissible on that basis: (i) the evidence relates to another charge in the Indictment or facts at issue in the proceedings;⁴⁷ (ii) the evidence is relevant to the proof of a widespread and systematic attack on a civilian population or the proof of the existence of a consistent pattern of conduct relevant to serious violations of international humanitarian law;⁴⁸ or (iii), the evidence is relevant because it provides the Chamber with useful background or contextual information.⁴⁹

⁴⁶ See, e.g., Kallon Defence Motion, para 20, arguing that the Indictment is defective because it fails to plead certain particulars.

⁴⁷ See, e.g., the impugned evidence of TF1-035, Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Unlawful Killings, Item (q), may be probative of the RUF command structure in a certain time and place; and, the impugned evidence of TF1-044, Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Allegations of Looting and Burning, Item (e), which evidence is clearly related to Counts 15-18 of the Indictment. See also Prosecution Response, para 19.

⁴⁸ See e.g., the impugned evidence of TF1-045, Kallon Defence Annex, Unlawful Killings, Item (e). See also Prosecution Response, para 21.

21. In Ground 4, the Kallon Defence also submits that certain evidence should be excluded from the record because it is not relevant for these reasons: the conduct is not criminal according to the Statute; timeframes, locations and the identities of victims and/or physical perpetrators were not provided by the Witness in his or her testimony, or were not provided with sufficient particularity; details such as timeframes, names of victims and physical perpetrators are not pleaded in the Indictment; a certain location named by a particular Witness does not exist; and, according to an agreed statement of fact between the Prosecution and the Kallon Defence, the Second Accused was not in a particular location, and had no authority in that location, during a particular time period.⁵⁰

22. The Chamber has reviewed in detail all of the evidence impugned under Ground 4. It is the Chamber's considered view that the testimony of individual witnesses must be weighed and considered in light of the totality of the evidence.⁵¹ It is our view of the law that a witness is not required to establish every element of an offence, nor is a witness required to testify to the identity of victims and perpetrators or dates and locations, in order for that testimony to be admissible. The Chamber observes that where the testimony of an individual witness lacks details such as a timeframe, a location or completely fails to identify victims or perpetrators, this issue will go to the matter of weight.⁵² In this regard, the Chamber opines, however, that the specific circumstances of any factual allegation will have to be factored in the determination of the degree of specificity required before according weight to any piece of evidence.

23. Under Ground 4, the Kallon Defence submits that a certain portion of the testimony of Witness TF1-141 should be excluded because the location in which the allegation is said to have occurred does not exist.⁵³ This submission raises a factual issue which can only be determined at the judgement phase.

conduct by the Second Accused beginning in 1992, but ending within the Indictment period. Although no conviction may lie for conduct outside the Indictment period, the impugned evidence will not be excluded because it forms part of the narrative flow of the Witnesses' testimony. See, Prosecution Response, para 19 and see contra, Kallon Defence Reply, para 21.

⁵⁰ Kallon Defence Motion Annex.

⁵¹ See Prosecution Response, paras 23-24 and Kallon Defence Reply, para 26.

⁵² See Prosecution Response, para 23. A careful review of the impugned evidence and the surrounding testimony indicates that Witnesses who gave the impugned testimony, in many instances, in fact, did provide a time-frame or an indication of the location or names of the individuals involved. See e.g.: impugned testimony of TF1-045, Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Allegations of Unlawful Killings, Item (e); impugned testimony of TF1-071, Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Allegations of Unlawful Killings, Item (j); impugned testimony of TF1-114, Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Allegations of Abductions and Forced Labour, Item (a).

⁵³ Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Allegations of Unlawful Killings, Item (r), p. 7.

24. Finally, as to the submission of the Kallon Defence that certain evidence should be excluded on the basis that the Prosecution has agreed that the Second Accused was not present in a certain location, nor did he have any authority in that location, at a certain time, the Chamber finds that all of the impugned evidence is relevant under Rule 89(C), as it may be relevant to the proof of other allegations in the Indictment⁵⁴ or to the proof of the existence of a widespread and systematic attack against a civilian population, or is admissible under Rule 93.⁵⁵

3. Ground 3 – Lack of Notice

25. As we have already observed, we are of the opinion that the party bringing a motion seeking the exclusion of evidence for lack of notice must make out a prima facie case that the material facts underlying the allegations to which it objects have not previously been disclosed in the Indictment, Pre-Trial briefs, Opening Statement or in other disclosure materials or communications. It is our view that a bare allegation to the effect that the Indictment is defective on the basis that it purportedly does not contain the material facts underlying an allegation in the impugned evidence is legally untenable as a ground for the exclusion of evidence.

26. On the issue of notice, the Chamber finds that the Kallon Defence has failed to demonstrate that it did not receive adequate notice of the material facts underlying the allegations contained in the impugned evidence in the Prosecution's Pre-Trial Briefs, Opening Statement, disclosure materials or in other communications. Nor has it advanced any cogent reasons to support its contention that it did not have adequate notice of the material facts underpinning the allegations made by Witnesses TF1-360, TF1-361, TF1-366, TF1-367 and TF1-371,⁵⁶ who were added as Prosecution Witnesses following Prosecution Motions granted by the Chamber.⁵⁷ The issue of disclosure is raised for the first time in the Kallon Defence Reply Annex. The Chamber will accordingly not consider this issue, since the opposing party did not have the opportunity to respond. Moreover, the Chamber reiterates

⁵⁵ See e.g., the impugned testimony of TF1-117, Kallon Defence Motion Annex, Allegations of Looting and Burning, Item (e).

⁵⁶ See Prosecution Response paras 3, 16-17; Defence Reply, para 9 and Defence Reply Annex.

that it will not consider legal submissions, such as those contained in the Kallon Defence Reply Annex, which do not conform to the Practice Direction.⁵⁸

27. Based on the foregoing considerations, and especially that of the failure of the Kallon Defence to make out a prima facie case that the Second Accused did not have adequate notice of the allegations against him, we decline to exclude the impugned evidence. Consequently, it is unnecessary for The Chamber to consider whether a lack of notice has materially prejudiced the ability of the Second Accused to prepare his defence.
