1. The Presiding Judge of a Chamber may—in order to ensure greater efficiency in the administration of justice—designate a Judge Rapporteur with responsibility for drafting a decision or for dealing with specific matters of law or fact in dispute between the Parties.
2. After consultation with the Trial Chamber, as required by Rule 36 (A) of the Special Tribunal’s Rules of Procedure and Evidence, I designate myself as the Judge Rapporteur to the Trial Chamber for dealing with attempting to achieve agreement between the Parties on specific matters of law and fact that are in dispute.
3. This may include the scheduling of the trial generally, which encompasses attempting to reduce the time required to receive evidence in the courtroom, and in reaching timetables for the submission of evidence to the Trial Chamber and its presentation in court—either through courtroom witness testimony, or under Rules 154, 155, 156 and 158.
4. Other judges, and in particular Judge Nosworthy, may assist in this judicial case management, which will include regular meetings with the Parties and Participants.
